Q. In what portion of the Scriptures do we find immortal soul?

A. It is not a Bible phrase, it is an expression altogether foreign to Holy Scripture.

Q. If the Scriptures are silent about the existence of immortal souls, what evidence have we that the departure spoken of in the text under consideration means the exit of an immortal soul from the body at death?

A. We have nothing stronger than a mere supposition.

Q. Is it a proper way to arrive at an accurate exposition of any Scripture to read in our suppositions, and the thinkings of the fleshly mind?

A. It is not, such a procedure will certainly lead to erroneous conclusions.

Teacher. I will ask Lud, in his reading of history if he has ever read anything about a man named William Tyndale?

A. Yes, I have. He lived in the fifteenth century.

Q. What great work did he accomplish?

A. He was a learned man, and he was the first person who translated the original Scriptures into the English language. He was a thorough Bible student, and as a translator of the Holy Scriptures he was obliged to thoroughly criticise every word in both Old and New Testament Scriptures.

Q. He ought to know something about what the Scriptures taught should he not?

A. No one had a better opportunity.

Q. Were there people in his day who taught that the departure meant going to heaven at death?

A. Yes.

Q. What did Tyndale think about such doctrine?

A. He said: "In putting departed souls in heaven, hell and purgatory, you destroy the arguments wherewith Christ and Paul prove the resurrection."

Q. Did he give what he considered to be the true Bible faith, or teaching on the above topic?

A. He did. He said: "The true faith putteth the resurrection" in place of going to heaven at death.

Q. Did he say who denied that the resurrection was the proper time when the departed could be with Christ?

A. He did. He said: "The heathen philosophers denying that, did put that the souls did ever live."

Q. Did he say that these heathen philosophers had some company in their belief?

A. He did. He said: "And the Pope joineth the spiritual doctrine of Christ, and the fleshly doctrine of philosophers together—things so contrary that they cannot agree."

Q. Did he say what the Pope did with the Scriptures in order to establish this heathen doctrine?

A. Yes. He said: "And because the fleshly-minded Pope consenteth unto heathen doctrine, therefore he corrupteth the Scriptures to establish it."

Q. Did he say that this "heathen doctrine," sustained by "corrupted Scriptures," rendered unnecessary the resurrection?

A. Yes. He said: "If the souls be in heaven, tell me why they be not in as good a case as the angels be? And then what cause is there of the resurrection?"

Q. Did William Tyndale have confidence enough in his faith to die for it?

A. He did. He suffered as a martyr in 1536.

Teacher. I will request Lucy to state whether Paul gave the time when the departed could be permanently with Christ?

Lucy. Yes. See 1 Thes. iv. 16, 17: "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord."

Q. Paul and Tyndale seem to agree?

A. Yes, they seem to teach the same thing, but both heartily disagree with the "heathen philosophers," and the "fleshly minded Pope," and all their disciples.

Q. A person could not be a disciple of the "heathen philosophers" and "the fleshly-minded Pope," which "corrupteth the Scriptures," and also a disciple of the Lord Jesus at the same time, could he?

A. No, sir, things which differ so materially cannot agree.

Q. If Paul was given the choice between life and death, which do you think he would select?

A. One would suppose that he would choose death, if that is the "gate to endless bliss," or the avenue by which the departed can be with the Lord, but, however, between these two things, he said: "Yet what I shall choose I wot not, for I am in a strait betwixt two, (life and death) having a desire to depart and be with Christ; which is far better" than either this present mortal life, or death.

Q. Then he had something else in his mind, which was "far better" than either life and death, what was it?

A. "To depart and to be with Christ."

Q. Then death could not be the departure spoken of?

A. No.

Teacher. Will Arloa please give the Greek word for depart?

Arloa. It is analusai.

Q. What does it mean?

A. Parkhurst says: "It signifies in the New Testament, to return or depart."

Q. Give a Scripture where the word analusai occurs.

A. See Luke xii. 36: "Be like unto men who wait for their Lord when he shall return (analusai) from the wedding."

Q. Please give the study of scholars with regard to the use of the word analusai in the text under consideration.

A. "There is a feature which the Common Version ignores, the infinitive analusai is preceded by the article 'to.' The significance of the word will be perceived in the light of the following rule of Greek grammar. The infinitive with the article, is in all cases equivalent to a substantive; as ton legeo, the act of speaking. Hence, to analusai, (literally 'the return,') is the act of returning, and should distinctly be 'the returning.' In addition to the verb 'return;' there is the verb 'to be;' this is also in the infinitive, and preceded by the article, and therefore, ought to be understood as a substantive—the being. Both phrases are preceded by the preposition 'eis,' (for) from which it allows that Paul's desire was for 'the returning and the being with Christ.' The verse translated in strict accordance with the original, would stand as follows: 'For I am straitened by the two, having the earnest desire for the returning, and the being with Christ, far better by much.'"

Q. Have we other translations which harmonize with the above?

A. Yes.

Q. Please give one.

A. I will quote from the Diaglott: "I am indeed hard pressed by the two things;—I have an earnest desire for the returning, and being with Christ, since it is very much to be preferred." To Paul, "the returning and being with Christ," was "very much to be preferred" to "the two things"—life or death.

Yours in Christ.

Wisdom of Seirach.

CHAPTER 39.

1. One will seek however the wisdom of all the ancients from the one who hath given his soul to it and who is thoroughly appreasive in the law of a Most High; and who in prophecies shall have spent his leisure.

2. The discourses of men who have made a name will he watch to keep in mind. And in turns of parables (parable figures of speech) will he become conversant.

3. Hidden things of comparative teaching will he seek out, and with enigmas of parable teaching will he familiarize himself.

4. In the midst of great men will he do subordinate service, and in the presence of a leader will he have appeared. In a land of other nations will he pass through; for he hath assayed good and bad things [illegible]

5. His heart will he give to go early into the Lord his Creator, and in the presence of a Most High will he have beseought. And he will open his mouth with votive-prayer, and will have besought concerning his sins.

6. If the great Lord be willing he will have been filled with a spirit of understanding; like rain will he shower oracular words of his wisdom and in votive-prayer will he confess unto the Lord.

7. He will make his counsel and exact knowledge upright, and in his hidden things he will have become thoroughly conversant.

8. He will manifest the chastening-instruction of his teaching, and in a law of the Lord's covenant will he boast.

9. Many will praise his understanding; until the animate-age it will not have been left off; the remembrance of him will have stood away, and his name will live unto generations of generations.

10. His wisdom nations will discourse and his praise a church will publish.

11. If it (the church) abide in it, he will leave behind a name better than themselves, and if it go to rest, he create th in it (the name) (see John's gospel for the same thought).

12. Still further have I apprehended and I will discourse it, and as a full moon have I been filled.

13. May ye have hearkened unto me ye holy (not "saints" or "sanctified" merely—a term applied to the priesthood who were "accounted holy" under the Old Covenant) sons (of God) and may ye have budded like a rose that groweth by a flowing stream of a field.

14. And like frankincense may ye have yielded a sweet smell, and may ye have flowered out like a lily; may ye have yielded an odor and may ye have sung praise with a song; may ye have commended (blessed) the Lord for all his works.

15. May ye have ascribed majesty to his name, and may ye have confessed with praise of him with odes for lips and with harps (lit. "kinura" a primitive harp of David's time) and in the way of confession ye shall speak in this wise to wit.

16. The works of the Lord are very good, and every imposed commandment will be in his due time.

17. For they will have been sought in his due time; as his word ("logos") water standeth like a heap of grain, and at the oracular-word ("hreema") of his mouth a receptacle for waters.

18. At his command there is all satisfaction, and there is no one who will diminish his instrument-salvation.

19. The doings of all flesh are in his sight and there is no hiding from his eyes.

20. From the animate-age unto the animate-age he hath looked upon them, and there is nothing wondrous (miraculous) in his sight.

21. There is no saying, What is this? or, Why is this? For all things were generated for their uses.

22. His blessing hath covered over like a river, and like a flood hath it intoxicated dry ground.

23. Even so will nations inherit his wrath as hath turned waters into a salt sea.

24. His ways are straight for the holy ones; even so are they stumbling-places for the transgressors.

25. Good things did he generate (institute laws that result according to their use or abuse) for the good from the beginning, even so bad things for the transgressors.

26. A beginning (or authoritive institution) of every use is unto life for mankind, namely water, fire and iron and salt and fine flour of wheat and honey and milk, blood of the grape, and olive-oil and outer-clothing.

27. All these things for the truly-reverent are for good (uses); even so for the obdurate-sinners will they be turned into bad (uses or results).

28. There are spirits which were generated for requital, and in their anger have they made hard their scourges; and in a due time of consummation they pour out strength, and they [illegible] lay the anger of the [illegible]

29. Fire and famine and death, all these were generated for requital.

30. Teeth of wild-beasts and scorpions and vipers and a sword that requiteth the irreverent unto destruction.

31. At his command will have rejoiced, and will have been made ready for uses upon the earth; and in their appointed-times will not evade a word.

32. Therefore from authority have I been confirmed and have thoroughly apprehended, and in Scripture have I graduated.

33. The works of the Lord are all good, and every use in its season (or hour) will he supply.

34. And there is no saying, This is worse (more wicked) than that; for they all will have been proved good in due season.

35. And now may ye with all your heart and mouth have sung with a hymn and may ye have commended (blessed) the name of the Lord.

COMMENT.

The reader will find in this chapter a whole system of theology, like the 32nd chapter of Deuteronomy, an epitome of the general teaching of revelation of God's purpose in creation and redemption; and the teaching here is so clear that it throws a search-light on many difficult and vexed questions not only of the day, but of all the past theological and philosophical inquiry—like for instance "the origin of evil," "the good and bad angels" and their use and ministration in the providence of God and the absolute subordination of the natural laws to the higher spiritual powers and forces. The metaphors too are well worth studying as they co-ordinate with similar teaching throughout the length and breadth of the Scriptures. The absolute sovereignty of the personal God in purpose, plan and ultimate accomplishment, however personally delegated or whatever powers, laws, dynamic forces or material instrumentalities naturally or spiritually may be used in bringing about the great result. God's kingdom always has been and always will be a theocracy, and the "gods many and lords many" of Paul's teaching and in fact of all prophecy are either merely the false ideals of men's perverted imagination or true disposers within their assigned sphere subject and subordinate to the Disposer of disposers which is the true meaning of the official term applied to the One person translated "God" and so rendered in all the English versions. There can be no question about this fundamental fact and it is high time that it was published again broadcast throughout the world. The personal sovereignty of God was the keynote of the Hebrew cosmogony and were it not for the prevailing apostasy, would now be the keynote of Christianity. Nothing else but the reassertion of it will ever make Christianity as it should be one organic whole and definite in its practical work in the world.

CHAS. GARDNER

Separation.

Salvation is through separation. The world with all its philosophy, science, civilization and progress is a moral ruin, and if any are saved it must be by coming out of it.

By the world is meant the system of men and things most common around us, which is evil, under control of Satan the usurper, and opposed to God and His gospel. Gal. i: 4. This system has many departments—social, political, commercial, and religious, through which Satan works. This world is unchangeably evil, opposed to God, and bound over with its head to "the judgment of the Great Day." From this we must be separated or we cannot be saved. 2. Cor. vi: 17, 18.

1. THE SOCIAL YOKE. "Society" is hypocritical, hollow-hearted, proud, carnal, godless, and increasingly immoral. All Christians should renounce its claims. The early Christians regarded its objects and aims, its conversation and amusements, its spirits and attire, as utterly unchristian and they utterly renounced it. Indeed the early Christians would not be admitted into modern "society," nor would they seek admission. No person can be truly loyal to Christ and at the same time to Mrs. Grundy. Her dominion is earthly, sensual, devilish. Her polished manners and esthetical sense are only the veneering and foil of the flesh. 1. John ii: 15-17; Jas. iv: 4; 1. Tim. ii: 9-10; 1. Peter iv: 3-5. Of course this principle will keep all Christians out of all secret brotherhoods, or call them out as soon as their eyes are opened, if they walk closely with God. Man-made societies naturally adopt a man-made religion.

THE MARRIAGE YOKE. God's people, from the outcalling of Abraham, have been forbidden to marry unbelievers. Such intermarriages brought in the Antediluvian apostacy. Gen. vi: 2-5. Paul declares that Christians should marry only in the Lord. 1. Cor. vii: 39. Yoke a sheep and a goat together, and the goat will usually lead the sheep. This is not God's way of saving souls. Lot's daughters, Ishmael, Samson, Ahab, Jeroboam, and many others in Bible history, were injured or ruined by these unholy alliances. The first blasphemer stoned was the son of an Egyptian, married to an Israelitish woman. Lev. xxiv. The rebellious Absalom was the son of a Pagan woman. Even Solomon was led astray and probably lost through alliance with outlandish women. Samson's godly parents expostulated with him against his marriage outside of Israel. Judges xiv: 3. Some one says, "Well, well, if you marry a child of the devil, you may expect to have trouble with your father-in-law." Deut. vii: 3-4; Josh. xxiii: 12-13; Ezra ix: 2; Rom. viii: 5; Luke xvi: 13.

3. THE BUSINESS YOKE. In a business firm it is unsafe to commit yourself to the action of others who are unconverted. The ethics of the world and Christ are widely different. Deut. xxii. We are to do all for the glory of God; they nothing. 1. Cor. x: 31. We do all in His name; they nothing. Col. iii: 17. We are not to love money; they do. 1. Tim. vi: 10. We are crucified unto the world and alive unto Christ; they are alive to the world and dead to Christ. Gal. ii: 20. Mark the results of such business alliances in 2. Chronicles xviii., xx: also in many examples of modern times.

4. THE POLITICAL YOKE. Satan, the usurper, offered the kingdoms of this world to Christ, for a bow. Matt. iv: 9. Since the crown rights of our true Covenant King have been and still are rejected by all nations during these times of the Gentiles, it is vain for us to expect to reign, rule and run the world. Our mission is to run people out of it for refuge in Christ. Heb. [illegible] 18-20. In all countries we are pilgrims and strangers who refuse to be naturalized. Phil. iii: 20.

We advocate the crown rights of an absent Prince and wait for a rejected dynasty to be restored. Tit. ii: 11-13. There is no "Christian State" on earth and there never will be one until the Christ of God shall come to erect it and reign over it. Ours is a pilgrim life like that of the father of the faithful and the friend of God. We have a higher citizenship and a loftier patriotism. No instructions are given us in the New Testament for Christians to work in politics or hold office during our Lord's rejection and these times of the Gentiles. We are ambassadors. Four duties only are enjoined: 1. Pay taxes, Matt. xvii: 24-27; Rom. viii: 6. 2. Obey rulers, Rom. xiii: 1-7; Tit. iii: 1. 3. Honor rulers, 1. Pet. ii: 17; Jude 8. 4. Pray for rulers, 1. Tim. ii: 1-3. Christ and the Apostles instruct us in the duties of husband and wife, parents and children, elders and deacons, but not in those of the magistrate. If we have other duties to the State, it must be by inference only; there is no express command.

5. THE RELIGIOUS YOKE. Two prominent characteristics of the present Church are unprecedented and phenomenal:—the multiplication of auxiliary societies, and the production of ecclesiastical amusements for [illegible] saints and sinners. It [illegible] the thought, that [illegible] devices are [illegible] Church to "reach the [illegible] tract them to the Church, [illegible] are farther away than before they were invented.

"Ecclesiastical Amusements" would vanish like a delusive dream before the earnest work of rescuing lost souls, and these "Societies" would merge their individuality and energy in the promise and potency of the consolidated Church of God.

All yokes with "associate members," or lobby members, are utterly unchristian. There was no fellowship between those inside and outside of the Ark. They were absolutely and eternally separated, as the saved and the lost. No auxiliary pleasure yachts were provided to hover around the Ark with Associate members."—E. P. Marvin. Selected by M. A. Woodward.

Swallowing Windmills.

The tax levied on human credulity by some of the scientific theories of the day, is thus illustrated by C. H. Spurgeon in the Sword and Trowel:

"There is a quaint story of a giant who had long fed upon windmills, and at last was choked by a pat of butter; and assuredly his counterpart may be seen in the evolutionists of our day, who are unable to receive the Bible account of the creation. The hypotheses of our present philosophers are enough to tax the credulity of a monk of the middle ages, yet many take down these windmills as pigeons swallow peas. The teaching of revelation is fitted for the capacity of a child, but our wise men are choked with such simple fare. We confess we have not enough faith to be an infidel, or an agnostic, nor even an evolutionist. We find ourselves for once standing up for reason, and demanding that our faith be not overstrained. We can believe what is revealed; for, sublime as it is, there is a kind of truthlikeness about it; but we cannot believe what we are now taught with such tremendous authority, for, in the first place, it is not worth believing, and in the next place it looks so dreadfully like a lie that we had rather not. No, thank you dear sir, we will keep to our bread and butter; our throat is not yet adapted to the disposal of windmills."

The Paternity of Jesus! and Arraignment of Marcionism.

No. 3.

When legally invested and arrayed the Aaronic high priests were "HOLINESS to JEHOVAH," and the representatives of the holy and just One in his character and priestly office.

Does not the fact, that often, as in the case of Caiphas, they were unjust and wicked men who held the office, show that an awful importance was attached to the things typified?

The symbolism relative to the High Priest was the righteousness of God to be fulfilled by Jesus before he could enter upon his functions, first, over the House of God, and afterwards over the twelve tribes of Israel.

John the Baptist was a greater prophet than Moses, see Luke vii. 28; but not so great as Jesus. He preached and administered the baptism of repentance for the remission of sins."

Jesus came to him to be baptized of this baptism; for, as Moses baptized Aaron and his sons, so the greatest of the prophets was appointed to baptize Jesus and his brethren.

It is objected that Jesus was not a fit subject of this baptism, because it is claimed without reserve that he was without sin of his own.

Nevertheless as the SIN-BEARER of the Abrahamic covenant, through whom it was confirmed, see Romans xv. 8, Jehovah made the iniquity of the children of that covenant to meet upon him, that by his bruise they might be healed. Is. liii. 5, 6.

Until his baptism Jesus was concealed from the Jewish world. John the Baptist said, "there standeth one among you, WHOM YE KNOW NOT; he it is, who, coming after me, is preferred before me, whose shoe's latchet I am not worthy to unloose.

What an estimate of the worth of [illegible] hitherto unknown. Evidently [illegible]self, did not know that Jesus [illegible], or the Lamb of God [illegible]," and he.....he that [illegible] baptize with water, the [illegible] said to me "Upon whom thou shalt see the Spirit descending and remaining on him, the same is he which baptiseth with the Holy Spirit."

John may have known him as a righteous Man, judging by his objection to immerse him. Jesus' reply to John's protest, however, is evidence that he understood his relation to sin much better than John did. "Suffer it to be so, now; for thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness."

Prior to the introduction of sin, our first parents had to perform no act of righteousness. We mean that they had to do nothing to secure a righteous standing before God. The fulfillment of righteousness implies the existence of unrighteousness,—or a condition of things growing out of unrighteousness.

After sinning our first parents were covered with the skins of slain animals. And all the righteousness which Christ fulfilled had for its object the removal of the consequences of unrighteousness.

The symbolic death in water was one form of fulfillment; and the literal death on the cross was the other.

Both events were a declaration of God's righteousness in type or shadow, and then in substance! Jesus recognized his baptism by John to be the representation of the death required of HIM, for he afterward said, "I have a baptism to be baptized with, and how am I straightened till it be accomplished. Luke xii. 50. When, therefore, he came to John we understand it was equivalent to his saying:—

"By birth I am under condemnation to death; I cannot be freed from the power of death without being slain as a sacrificial lamb; and no other member of the race can be saved from sin and its consequences without such a sacrifice. My Father has ordained me for this mission, and has provided all that is necessary to enable me to accomplish it; therefore I came to do his will, as written of me in the volume of the book. By his help I have been able to keep the law perfectly, and a continuance of this obedience would entitle me to live on under the blessings of the law; but in that case I should be like a grain of wheat abiding alone, whereas, if I die the death of the cross, I shall be the means of bringing forth much fruit. Therefore I am determined to lay down my life for the sheep, that I might take it again, and be the means of bestowing the eternal life upon my faithful sheep."

Paul in Rom. ii. 17-20 teaches that the form (appearance) of the knowledge and the truth was in the law. And no well instructed scribe will deny that the connection between the appearance, and the substance is such that the things of the Spirit as set forth apostolically, can only be understood by those who are acquainted with the types and shadows of the law.

It is a great mistake to think that because Jesus the substance has come there is no longer any use for the shadow; because in the writings of Moses, PERSONS, as well as things are allegorical of things pertaining to the kingdom of God.

"In Rom. v. 14 we are distinctly taught that even Adam the transgressor was a type of him that was to come, in some aspects. As the federal head of the race of earth-borns, who are in his likeness and image; as the Lord of creation, the husband of Eve, bone of his bone, and flesh of his flesh, he was an exact cut type of the Second Adam, the federal head of all created anew in him;—the husband of the spotless bride, the second Eve, the Church of God purchased with the blood of the spotless Lamb,—the future Ruler of the earth in the Regeneration;—the Adam, Lord of all, and Jehovah's King over the whole earth. Thus the typical relation is clearly seen, and the relations of the first man aids as much in understanding the relations of Jesus the Anointed to his chosen one; and to the inhabitants of the earth in the age to come.

Abel, to whom we have given some attention already, we hold to be a typical personage on the same principle that Isaac was. Gal. iv. 29. He was a type of the woman's Seed prevailed against by the seed of the serpent. The enmity of Cain against his brother was allegorical of the long and bitter enmity existing between those merely born of the flesh and those begotten of God.

Abel was prevailed against even unto death, so multitudes of his brethren, whom he represented, have been wounded in the heel, prevailed against, worn out, and lie under the altar slain for the Word of God, and the testimony which they held.

Abraham's sons, Ishmael and Isaac, represented Israel after the flesh and Israel after the Spirit. Gal. iv. 23-26. Which things are allegorical; for they represent two covenants,—one indeed from Mount Sinai, breeding children for servitude—that is Hagar—the other the son of the free woman.

Moses, the Messenger of God to deliver Israel, was a type of the messenger of the covenant, the Lord of the whole earth. Egypt was the existing dragon or old serpent on whose head was blasphemy, for he said, "Who is Jehovah that I should obey his voice, to let Israel go? I know not Jehovah."

But the Sent of God bruised the head of the serpent and delivered Israel, and led them in triumph through the Sea; and then all Israel sang the song of Moses the servant of God, even to Jehovah, who had triumphed gloriously. And all who doubt the typical character of this event can consult Rev. xv. 3.

The journeyings of Israel in the wilderness and the things which happened to them were types, see 1 Cor. x. 1-9. The food they ate was typical, and called angel's food, or "bread from heaven to eat," Psa. lxxviii. 24, 25; John vi. 31, because it was supernatural in origin, and therefore a type of him "who was born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, but of God."

Still it was corruptible, and, under peculiar circumstances, bred worms and stank, Ex. xvi. 20, a type of him, who, though DIVINE IN ORIGIN, was made in the likeness of sin's flesh; a body of flesh inferior to angels, yet as the Son of God, he partook of his moral qualities,—was godlike in disposition, holy, harmless and separate from sinners.

While the manna, supernatural in its origin, and corruptible in its nature, was a type of Jesus begotten of the Father, yet corruptible flesh and blood, the pot of manna laid up in the Ark before the testimony, Ex. xvi. 34, in the Most Holy, was a type of Jesus made Lord and Christ, laid up in the Most Holy, or the heaven itself, at the right hand of the Majesty in the heavens.

He is the true bread of life, the hidden manna concealed from us until he appears in power and great glory to make us like himself.

As we have already partly shown, Aaron and his sons were types of Jesus and his brethren. Their beautiful garments of blue, purple, scarlet and fine-twined linen, ephod, the onyx-stones, the breastplate with its settings of twelve precious stones worn by the High Priest, in the Most Holy, its lustrous appearance, were all types of him who was manifested in flesh and justified in Spirit. And yet we are told that the blood shed by Jesus, the Son of the living God, and HIS GIFT, "that whosoever believeth in him might not perish, but have everlasting life" was not typified by the blood of the offerings under the Mosaic system!

As we are writing for the family of God, of matters that belong to no others, it may be profitable to look into this matter a little further. We are informed that the people were all sprinkled with the blood by which Moses dedicated the covenant before they could have the hope of what was set before them.

The blood of the New Covenant speaks better things than that of the Mosaic. It speaks of better things to come, of which Jesus is High Priest, not Aaron.

It speaks of the better hope, and of eternal redemption for his people, individually and nationally. It is Israel's hope, emphatically, and no Gentile man or nation can partake of it, that is not sprinkled with the blood of the covenant that sets it forth.

The Israelitish nation will not possess it till sprinkled by the covenant; for it is by virtue of that blood alone, that they possess the land, to be expelled no more. Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, David and all the righteous dead who will come into possession of it,—will not possess it on other terms than through the blood of that covenant. O that the prisoners may soon be sent forth out of the pit in which there is no water. Zech. ix. 11.

We find, too, that Moses sprinkled the book [of the Covenant] and all the people with a bunch of hyssop and scarlet wool. He had a vessel containing the water, and the blood, within convenient reach,—but we may be asked, Where is the blood of the better covenant? How can access be obtained to it? How can it be sprinkled upon all the people from generation to generation, who shall inherit what they hope for when the time arrives? These questions are answered by the testimony of God.

The blood of the covenant was poured out of Jesus side. Had the blood been caught in a vessel, and with a bunch of hyssop and scarlet wool had been sprinkled upon the believing people near, viz. it would have availed them nothing. It would have been presumptive evidence that those upon whom it was found, had taken part in his murder; but it would have been no proof of their interest in the hope of the covenant which it dedicated.

The blessed Jesus was raised again for our justification. When poured out, it was the blood of an unriven Christ, and therefore of no then present efficacy. After Jesus came to life again the blood would be dried up, and if found at all, it would not be known to what use it should be applied.

"It is evident, therefore, that the existence of or accessibility to the material blood, is not a question we need to entertain. It was not intended to be used ceremonially, as Moses used the blood of the covenant he was mediator of.

"The common use of the New Covenant blood in sprinkling or drinking was never intended. The blood of the covenant which sanctifies is no common or unholy thing. While remembering what is said about the blood and sacrifice by the system we oppose, let us turn to the words of the spirit in Hebrews x:—

"By one offering he hath perfected forever them that are sanctified." verse 14.

"Having therefore, brethren, boldness to enter into the holiest by the blood of Jesus, by a new and living way, which he has consecrated, dedicated, initiated,—for us, through the veil, that is, to say his flesh." Vs. 19, 20.

Verses 28, 29.

THE war situation has changed in the past week. The Japs have been gradually closing in on the Russian army, and may succeed in cutting it off from its base and so render retreat impossible. Some fighting has occurred, and the Japs have taken three important passes. The Port Arthur fleet made a dash but was driven in again with the loss of two vessels. The rainy season of six weeks has begun, and it will be difficult for either army to do much while the roads are so bad.

IN the Province of Van, Armenia, the Kurds, aided by Turkish troops, killed a company of Armenian travellers, claiming they were revolutionists. The people are in terror, fearing this is but the beginning of a general massacre.

Shine at Home.

BE a light unto all who are in the house. Shine where you live. Eat without faultfinding. Mend the torn garment without complaint. Go on the unpleasant errand without bewailing the necessity. Respond to the call for help cheerfully. Commend often; censure only when you must. "Papa, I do try to do right; won't you please tell me sometimes when I please you?" a little girl said to her father, who was constantly correcting her.

The lights of kindness, gentleness, patience and consideration should never go out; we should keep the light of a holy example always burning. A boat went out to sea, carrying a father and daughter. A terrible storm came up as they were hurrying back. The coast was dangerous.

The mother lighted a lamp, and started up the worn stairway to the attic window. "It won't do any good, mother," the son called after her. But the mother went up, put the light in the window, knelt beside it, and prayed. Out in the storm the daughter saw a glimmer of gold on the water's edge. "Steer for that," the father said. Slowly, but steadily, they came toward the light, and at last were anchored in the little sheltered harbor by the cottage.

"Thank God!" cried the mother, as she heard their glad voices and came down the stairway, with a lamp in her hand. "How did you get here?" she said. "We steered by mother's light," answered the daughter. "although we did not know what it was out there." "Ah!" thought the boy, a wayward boy, "it is time I was steering by my mother's light;" and, ere he slept, he surrendered himself to God, and asked him to guide him over life's rough sea. Months went by, and disease smote him. "He cannot live long," was the verdict of the doctor; and one stormy night he lay dying. "Do not be afraid for me," he said, as they wept; "I shall make the harbor, for I am steering by my mother's light."—Illustrator.

The Effect of the Eastern War.

The London Spectator, commenting on the recent successes of Japan, in the battle on the Yalu river, says:—

"It is the moral effect upon the world at large which is, and will be, so tremendous as to modify, possibly for all time, the relation of Europe to Asia. Until that battle had been fought the white race, though deeply impressed with the capacity of the Japanese and the devoted courage of Japanese sailors, was still unconvinced that a Japanese army could rival or defeat a European force of anything like adequate dimensions. The pride of the white continent had for three centuries seemed to be justified by history, and it created, consciously or unconsciously, a mass of belief which was perhaps the cause of many of its victories, and certainly of much of its daring. The struggle on the Yalu provides precisely the concrete evidence needed to dissipate this confidence. A Japanese army has crossed a mighty river in the teeth of European defenders, and then has marched upon those Europeans entrenched in a splendid hilly position; has driven them out by the close fighting which we still call fighting with the bayonet; has overwhelmed the European fire by the superior weight of cannon and shells made in Japan itself; has captured whole batteries of European guns; has driven European artillerymen in what seems to have been headlong rout: and—most notable fact of all—has taken hundreds of European prisoners, who have surrendered, not by a capitulation, but while fighting on the field. In other words, an Asiatic Power has arisen which, besides defeating a European war-fleet, is proving itself able to use three great armies of invasion, each sixty thousand strong, with the careful provision, the strategic skill, and the clinching courage of armies directed by the great masters of European warfare."

A Point for Preachers.

This story is told of Dr. Lyman Beecher that in the early part of his career he once engaged to preach for a brother minister, whose church was in a remote district, peopled by a sparse and scattered population. It was mid-winter; the day was unusually stormy and cold, and the snow lay so deep in some places that he could hardly proceed. On his arrival, although he saw no one, he took his seat in the pulpit. Presently one man came in and sat down, and at the appointed hour the preacher began. The service was closed with the benediction, when the solitary hearer departed, and left the preacher alone.

Twenty years after, Dr. Beecher was traveling in Ohio when a stranger accosted him by name.

"Do you remember preaching," said he, "twenty years ago to one man?"

"Yes, yes," said the doctor, grasping his hand; "that I do, and if you are the man, I have been wishing to see you ever since."

"I am the man," was the reply, "and that sermon saved my soul and made a minister of me, and yonder is my church. The converts of that sermon sir, are all over Ohio."

A Busy World.

This is a busy, busy world. With getting knowledge and with getting money, with getting into office and with getting out of office, with getting sick and with getting well, with business, and social and family cares, all men are hurried and most men are worried. There are duties likewise for the daughters of the children of men. Household cares must be attended to, and there are baby clothes to be made, and wedding dresses to be shaped, and mourning garments to be fitted, for life comes and death comes, and both require entertaining. Working early and working late, meeting present wants and preparing for future needs, doing, helping, hurrying, most men and women feel themselves sadly limited for time as they rush through this life.

How happens it, then, that people have so much time to throw away? Busy, yet with leisure to pack the city theatres to overflowing night after night? Busy, yet at liberty to read every newspaper horror and scandal? Busy, yet with time to waste over sensational novels? Busy, yet with leisure to loiter in club billiard rooms, or to chatter hither and thither over neighborhood gossip. "While thy servant was busy here and there, he," thy servant's charge, "was gone," mourned the man of God long ago as he lifted his sad face by Ahab's chariot, seeking in a parable to warn the wicked king of the danger of heedlessness. While we are busy here and there, over our idle amusements or trivial occupations, He—not the imaginary captive of the prophet's parable, but the personified Accepted Time—may be gone. Busy indeed we must be in this busy world, but we have no time to be busy over nothing; busy we should be, but not over such trivial matters here and there, that before we lift our eyes the Master shall have left us.—*S. Shut Up the Death-Traps.

An Israelite who did not put a battlement or railing around the top of his house, to prevent people from falling from the roof, brought upon himself, and his house, guilt for the blood of any who were injured by falling from it. The homes of our land are surrounded with dangers, and every man should seek by appropriate means to guard his own household and protect his own family. Even men who themselves go wrong, are anxious that their children should do right. They cannot bear to have them led even in the paths in which they themselves are walking.

A drinking man in Ohio says before an election:—"I have three boys. One of them is old enough to drink, and is drinking. He learned it in the saloon. My prayer is, and my vote shall be cast, to close the saloons before my other boys get into them and get to drinking; and I know scores and scores of other drinking men who are anxious as I am to close the saloons before the little boys reach them."

The best way for a man to train his children in the right way is to walk there himself; and the influence of a father, walking in the ways of temperance, and going to the house of God, will go far toward building a battlement around his own house, and protecting his own loved ones.

But then men have no right to leave open these pitfalls and death-traps, in which so many souls are taken and destroyed; and when God shall judge men for their iniquities, and require innocent blood at their hands, how many will find themselves responsible for the ruin of persons whom they, perhaps, have never seen, but who by their neglect have been led astray and lured to ruin.—Christian.

The Living Word.

The Word is alive. Directly I turn it over it begins to throw out sparks in all directions, like a bit of radium and develops energy on every side, so that I don't know which way it will shine next, and it fills me with warmth and life. Yes, the very words in the Bible are like bits of radium. It is all alive. It is life, the Word of Life, and in its living power it is verbally inspired. The Word of God is alive. Vital change, vital growth, vital expression, vital power is in every fragment of it. It can't stop at the original tongue, or at any version. I feel that more and more every time I touch a bit of it. Directly one tries to tie a phrase to one meaning a better one starts up in one's mind.

If verbal inspiration means verbal life and radiance, yes, the Bible is verbally inspired.

If it means verbal fixity, it is also inspired. For "till heaven and earth pass, one jot or one tittle . . "My words shall not pass away." Verbal indestructibility.

But if it means verbal limitation, No. Try and limit a piece of radium, or limit the variations and changes of one human thought. The next man that catches it will start a fresh aspect of it. This letter I am writing will mean something to you that it doesn't mean to me. And if you start telling a third person about it, something else will emanate, and if you write a book, directly you have done it, you know better. But this is emphatically so with God's Word because it is alive, alive. And it is, not only was, inspired.

A man bought a large tract of land in the West, in which were mountains and valleys. A stream took its rise among the hills and leaped down through the gorges to the valley. When the rains fell it became a wild torrent, rushing madly on its way, carrying everything before it. Nothing could withstand it. It swept destruction wherever it reached. What to do with it was a problem. It could not be destroyed. The owner built a flume and tamed the wild torrent. It was held within limits and led quietly down the mountain side. In the valley its terrific force was gathered and made to turn mills and to water fields and gardens. This is what God wants us to do with our appetites and passions: not destroy them, but yoke them in Christ's service and make them serve us and serve others.—Episcopal Recorder.

Poetry.

Despondency.

Sometimes there comes within the life,
This checkered life of ours,
So much of loss and pain and strife,
That our sad eyes, with tear drops rife,
Look up and see no flowers.

A sudden sorrow clouds the day
And the tired heart grows faint,
For strength and courage die away,
And lips that have been free to pray,
Can only make complaint.

And life becomes at such a time
An unattractive thing;
There is no sound of cheery chime,
The days move on in dreary rhyme,
And bring no heart to sing.

If such a time should come to thee—
And somewhere in the years
For every one its pain will be—
Do not despair, but try to see
Some sunshine through the tears.

And know that he whom sorrows teach
Receives a gift from heaven,
His tenderness some hearts may reach,
To whom the glad in vain might preach,
And joy through him is given.

Oh, then, be thou a comforter
To some more sad than thee;
And while thou dost thus minister,
Strange bliss in thine own heart shall stir,
And grief forgotten be.

Christian Fellowship.

Doubtless this subject is practically familiar to such as meet together in their assemblies as formed under the auspices of the RESTITUTION; but it is hoped by the writer that a certain aspect of it to be noticed in this paper is new to them. That aspect affords a lesson of warning to every one who considers the "gospel of the Kingdom of God," as a first principle in New Testament discipleship and church fellowship.

Some twenty years ago the subject of Christian fellowship was discussed in a magizine which circulated in Scotland. Some seven or eight brethren took part in the discussion, the major part of whom maintained the propriety of occasional fellowship with the sects. This showed decided symptoms of danger to "the gospel of the Kingdom of God." Much of the argument in favor of fellowship with the sects was of a very inconclusive character. This was partly favoured by the brother who opened the discussion against fellowship with the sects suggesting a parallel between the early disciples having partial fellowship with the temple and synagogue, and nineteenth century disciples having partial fellowship with the sects. Such a parallel was not admitted, the claims of Jesus in any sense being rigidly denied by those Jews in temple and synagogue.

Thus Peter and John's visit to the temple at the hour of prayer can be explained apart from any idea of worship or "fellowship" on their part. Their visit ended with an exposition of the claims of Jesus, followed by their arrest by the authorities. From this it becomes apparent that their mission (which was to begin at Jerusalem) was the real and only object of their visit. From what is recorded, it was the same with the synagogues. Supposing that the synagogues had worship as part of their service, there is no evidence that the apostles had any other object in their visits to the synagogues than access to Jews in order to carry out their mission to preach the "gospel of the Kingdom of God." (See Acts xvii; xviii; xix.) There was evidently free access for Jews to the synagogues, as well as, to some extent, liberty of speech.

Fellowship on the part of the early disciples either at the temple or synagogue, is fully answered by the question of the apostle—"What part hath he that believeth with an infidel," or unbeliever? The plainly implied answer is—no part at all. "He that believeth," in the language of Paul, imports one who had believed and obeyed "the gospel of the kingdom of God," On the other hand "an infidel;" or as R. V. gives it "an unbeliever," is a rejector of the claims of Jesus as the Messiah. Such were the officiating ministers of the temple and the synagogue. Fellowship between these parties and the early disciples was plainly inadmissible.

There was certainly a kind of relationship which even believing Jews and proselytes might keep up with temple and synagogue, if occasion offered. An illustration of such relationship may be found in Paul's "vow." Acts xxi.

We read in Acts ii: that the early disciples "continued steadfast in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship. The elementary part of the "doctrine" is to be found in Peter's discourse on the day of Pentecost, which certainly became the basis of the "fellowship." The 3000 in accepting the Messiahship of Jesus, became equals or "fellows." They are spoken of as "such as should be saved." Were not such as rejected the claims of Jesus as the Messiah, the unsaved?

The attainments of the 3000 in Bible knowledge may have been scanty or abundant, and there may have been great differences of opinion on some points; but such was quite compatible with the simplicity of the basis referred to.

Some of the remarks made in the discussion referred to may be given as specimens.

One brother (W. L.) who favoured partial fellowship with the sects, said "whatever errors or mistakes these may hold regarding the nature of the kingdom of Christ and life eternal they professed to believe in him as the Son of God and the Saviour of the world—prophet, priest, and king. The difference between those who sincerely and lovingly believe in Jesus and the mere Jewish worship of Jehovah, is radically different." It cannot be denied there is a difference. But the description judged by the test prescribed by Jesus and carried into effect by his apostles is simply a description of unbelievers. The "earnestness" and "love" professed and doubtless conscientiously experienced will not turn their "errors and mistakes" into true knowledge, and belief of "the gospel of the Kingdom of God." In the phrase "prophet, priest, and king," king can only signify that the church is the Kingdom.

Another (W. D.) says "I am fully persuaded that we have hitherto been far too rigid and exacting as to the terms of admission to our fellowship."

Another (J. W.) as if to give strong emphasis in the opposite direction to the preceding, says, "I suppose one coming from amongst these sects and desiring my fellowship and saying 'I believe that Jesus is the Christ, and there is no hope of life out of him, and I am patiently waiting his appearance and his kingdom knowing I shall receive it then...but I believed none of these things when I was baptized in my last conviction. Yet I hold I underwent the act of Christian baptism, and will on no consideration be re-immersed. Then I say, you and I at least cannot meet together for the breaking of bread. Not most emphatically, no."

The New Testament affords no examples of sectarian communities such as we find in the present day. In John i: and ii: we read of certain teachers who denied that "Jesus was the Christ," in denying that he "had come in the flesh." We are not informed whether those who taught this error formed their followers into an assembly. We do find, however, that the apostle John forbad any countenance to be shown to such, even to the "receiving them into your house," or "bidding them God speed." This prohibition must have been tantamount to disapproval of fellowship in any gathering of such errorists, if such had been in existence.

"Christian Fellowship" translated into the language of the apostle Paul, reads "fellowship in the gospel," as he wrote to the Philippians (chap. i: 5). This was truly the "apostles doctrine and fellowship, in which the 3000 disciples of Pentecost "continued stedfast." It was the only "fellowship" known and practised by the disciples from that time throughout the New Testament history so far as recorded. It had its origin in our Lord's preaching "the gospel of the Kingdom of God," which, according to his own prediction "this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness," was faithfully set forth by his apostles after his ascension to heaven. It is sad to find that a so-called Church Constitution in Roxburgh Street Hall, Edinburgh, makes no mention of "the gospel of the Kingdom of God," and that even the term "gospel" itself is not to be found in said "constitution." Immersion in water seems to be a sine qua non, as if any water ceremony in the absence of "the faith" that justifies could transform the operation of dipping into a substitute for "The Gospel." See Messenger, Glasgow, June 1903.

A general remark in closing. A disciple may wish to hear a certain discourse in a sectarian assembly. He becomes simply a spectator. He has to endure as best he may, such language as may occur in the discourse, in the hymns, and even in the prayers. In many cases he may be expected to offer a silent prayer for the enlightenment of such as may show a need for it.

"Fellowship," in many cases, perhaps in most, will be at the farthest remove from the visitors experience.

Table Talk.

IN SINGLENESS OF HEART.

This expression is found in Col. iii. 22, and in Eph. vi. 5, where the Apostle Paul is teaching the relative duties of husbands, wives, children, servants and masters, and the exhortation is, not to render service as men-pleasers, but in singleness of heart, fearing God, or with good will doing service as to the Lord and not to men. And whatsoever ye do, do it heartily as unto the Lord and not unto men, knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward of the inheritance, for ye serve the Lord Christ. How many of us, who claim to serve the Lord Christ, remember that whatsoever ye do in word or deed, is to be done in the name of the Lord Jesus. I fear that many of us, alas, too many do these things which we ought not, forgetting that we bear the name of the Lord Jesus.

Jesus bought us with his own precious blood, and if we comply with his conditions, we are then his servants, and owe him constant service, if we hope to obtain the reward of the inheritance. All those who serve the Lord Jesus, are under the same law, and that is, For this is the message that ye heard from the beginning that we should love one another. We are not to love in word, neither in tongue, but in deed and in truth, for if God so loved us, we ought to love one another, for God is love. Now, let us see how this law of love works among those who serve the Lord Jesus, who in singleness of heart fear God. Paul sets each one's duty clearly before them, and while the standard is high, it can be reached by all. Notice, Husbands love your wives, even as Christ loved the church. How did Christ love the church, he gave his life for it. Would a wife ever have cause for complaint if her husband always remembered this law of love? Wives submit yourselves unto your husband, as unto the Lord, as the church is subject unto Christ, (and it is because of love for him) so let the wives be to their own husbands in everything. Would a husband ever desire better treatment than this, which works by love. Fathers provoke not your children to wrath lest they be discouraged, but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. Another rule, which if always observed, would show the love of the parent for the child, and the child would bl[illegible] when he came to years of understanding. Children obey your parents. If this were always done, would parents ask for further proof of love from their children than obedience? If masters gave their servants that which was just and equal, knowing that they have a Master in heaven, and that there is no respect of persons with him, and if masters treated servants as they would like to be treated by their Master in heaven, think you the servants would be dissatisfied? And if the servant render unto his master obedience, knowing that whatsoever good thing a man doeth, the same shall he receive of the Lord, whether he be bond or free. I am sure his master would not desire better service than this. These instructions given by Paul teach each one in our several positions in life, that all we do, must be controlled by God's law of love, and then it will be done to his honor and glory. But in order to do this we shall need to do as Paul exhorts, put on the whole armor of God; yea, in order to stand, we need to have on the breastplate of righteousness, we need to be girt about with truth, we need the shield of faith, and the Sword of the Spirit which is the Word of God, beside earnest prayer, if we would overcome the trials that flesh is heir too, and become obedient servants of the Lord Jesus. If we serve the Lord Jesus, Paul says, we know that of the Lord we shall receive the reward of the inheritance, and what is that? Why, he is heir of the world, and his promise is, we shall be joint heirs with him of his kingdom and glory. Are we hoping to share in this glorious prospect? Are we striving to be found worthy, are we making it the aim of our lives to please him who offers us life forevermore in his kingdom, are we confident we shall hear the "Well done, because thou hast been faithful over a few things I will make thee ruler over many things, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord"? Shall any of us who have put on the all-saving name fail to have a share in the glorious scenes soon to take place? Oh, I trust not, and to make our calling and election sure, let us worship God in the singleness of heart, and whatsoever we do, do it heartily as unto the Lord.

The Aztecs on Drunkenness.

H. H. Bancroft in his "Indian Races on the Pacific Coast" gives an account of the way in which the ancient Aztecs treated drunkenness. They were more strict than Christian nations of the present day in this respect:

The young man who became drunk was conveyed to jail, and there beaten to death with clubs; the young woman was stoned to death. In places, if the drunkard was a plebeian, he was sold for a slave for the first offense and suffered death for the second; and at other times the offenders hair was cut off in the public market-place, he was then lashed through the streets, and finally his house was razed to the ground, because, they said, one who would give up his reason to the use of strong drink was unworthy to possess a house, and be numbered among respectable citizens. Cutting off the hair, as we shall see, was a mode of punishment frequently resorted to by these people, and so deep was the degradation supposed to be attached to it, that it was dreaded almost equally with death itself. Should a military man, who had gained a distinction in the war, become drunk, he was deprived of his rank and honors, and considered henceforth as infamous. Conviction of this crime rendered the culprit ineligible for all future emoluments, and especially was he debarred from holding any public office. A noble was invariably hanged for the first offense, his body being afterward dragged without the limits of the town and cast into a stream used for that purpose only.

But a mightier influence than mere fear of the penal law restrained the Aztec nobility and gentry from drinking to excess: this influence was social law. It was considered degrading for a person of quality to touch wine at all, even in seasons of festivity, when, as I have said, it was customary and lawful for the lower classes to indulge to a certain extent. Wine-bibbing was looked upon as a coarse pleasure, peculiar exclusively to the common people, and a member of the higher orders who was suspected of practicing the habit would have forfeited his social position, even though the law suffered him to remain unpunished. These heathens, however, seem to have recog[illegible]tural incongruity existing between precept and practice, fully as much as the most advanced Christian.

The Panama Canal.

The Panama Canal means a great deal to the world besides increased trade facilities. Along with and beyond these comes the civilizing power that always accompanies easier means of communication. Central America and South America, which have for hundreds of years slept the siesta of their Spanish governors, will be livened by this new touch with the North. The far islands of the South Seas by being so many thousand miles nearer Europe and the United States will be proportionately better. For however much we may feel that civilization and modern life carry with them certain drawbacks, we must acknowledge that in the main they work for good. As they see the progressive North the people of the Isthmus will have new incentives to engage in the trade. Railroads and roads will naturally be better, and will increase. As their cities become sojourning-places for Northern travelers, so the people will have an increased civic pride, and their towns will be better built, better kept and better managed. A future Mr. Carnegie will find a new field for the sowing of libraries, for the people will care more for education; life will mean more to them. Prodigious changes we acknowledge, and not to take place in one decade nor in one generation, but certain to come. So while we speak of the commercial and political advantage to the United States of the Panama Canal, we must also remember its worth to the world and to the progress of civilization.—June Woman's Home Companion.

Giving a Tenth.

We often hear people say that Christians do not have to give by rule as did the Jews. This is true. We are called unto liberty. Hence, we are at liberty to give by rule as did the Jews, or to overstep that law and give as did the widow whom Jesus so highly commended. When we consider that the widow was still under the law, we wonder if her gift has been matched, under grace.

Consider a modern parable. A certain rich man was sick unto death. In agony of mind he called his physician to his bedside and addressed him thus: "Doctor, if you will get me out of this bed I will give you five thousand dollars." To this the physician simply said: "I always do my best;" and went out to attend to other patients. In due time and somewhat to the surprise of the physician, the disease took a turn for the better, and soon the rich man was able to sit up, and after a short convalescence to resume his business. After waiting a reasonable time for the rich man to come and pay voluntarily, the physician made out an ordinary bill for his services and sent it to the rich man's office. Six months rolled by, and as the bill was still unpaid the physician was forced to sue the man at law; and under the constraint of legal pressure the ungrateful patient paid the bill.

There is a Great Physician and he has done a saving work for us. We promised to give up all. Are we giving even a tenth to his cause?

WHY SHOULD I GIVE A TENTH?

1. The cause of God needs it.
2. I can spare it.
3. Nine tenths, with salvation, is worth more to me than ten-tenths without it.
4. There are thousands in the world who need the services of the Great Physician, and my tenth will help send him (through his ambassadors) to them.
5. Of those who thus honor the Lord with their substance, none ever regret having done so.

Timely and True.

Justice Ginley of Cleveland, Ohio, announced some time ago that he would perform the marriage ceremony for no couples who would not previously sign an agreement never to secure divorce. In Cleveland, a divorce center, where in the last few months there has been a divorce application for every three licenses to marry, this stand, by an official whose income depends largely upon marriage fees, required peculiar courage. Ever since that announcement, business has been dull with Justice Ginley. Somehow nobody seemed to care to marry without reserving the right of divorce. And while the couples avoided Justice Ginley, the newspapers made fun of him and his friends confidently told him he was making a fool of himself.

But Justice Ginley was game. He refused to tie knots that were to be untied again. He did not want the money of poor fools who did not know what marriage really means. For weeks and weeks he did not marry a single couple. But at last the tide was turned. A young workingman with his blushing sweetheart appeared before Justice Ginley the other day and asked to be permitted to sign the no divorce agreement and to be married by him good and tight. Maybe there are scoffers who will laugh and say that this couple is no better married than any other; that their no-divorce agreement will have no effect in law and that they may quarrel, tire of each other and separate just as others do.

Marriage is a thing not of legal bonds and agreements, but of the heart. If the heart is not wholly given to it, all the mumbled ceremonies and perjured promises make but a rope of sand. The man and woman who swear before God and men to live together as husband and wife until death do them part, yet reserve in their hearts an intention to get a divorce the instant things do not go satisfactorily, may marry in form, but never in fact. The difference between free love and legal marriage, as it is loosely put on and easily thrown off in this country, to-day, is a difference in form and name only. In either condition the couple lives together so long as mutually agreeable and no longer. There is as much real moral and legal protection to offspring and to society at large in the one case as in the other.

For the couple whom Justice Ginley has married he has done no more perhaps than any other marrying agent could do for them, in the eyes of the law. But in their own eyes and in their own hearts he has done more for them than the law itself can do. He has taught them to embrace marriage in its real meaning.—St. Paul Daily News.

An Important Sign.

Is there an apostacy? To this question all who see the situation and understand the signs of the predicted falling away must answer, "Yes." Many who recognize that the difference between much of the teaching of the modern churches and that of those who founded them is so radical as to amount to the entire abandonment of their old positions, consider it the evolution of a purer faith. Others see that at last the teachings of Thomas Paine and other infidels, who denied the truthfulness and infallibility of the Bible, have come to be accepted by most of the seminaries for the preparation of ministers of the gospel.

There are many, however, who perceive that the movement has gone much farther than to attack the Bible on which the faith rests, and has assailed the fundamental doctrine of the Christian religion. That which distinguishes the gospel from pagan and apostate religions is the fact that it is not a system of morals, but glad tidings of redemption, expiation, and forgiveness of sins. It is now common to encounter preachers and teachers who reject the doctrine of the blood of Jesus, and many of those who accept it intellectually never preach anything but salvation by character. The result is that a large portion of the Christian churches are led back to the same place in which the[y] found our pagan ancestor[s] deemed by their consciences, but without a Savior. One who recently [h]eard on successive Sunday evenings [t]he principal churches of one of our [l]arger cities testifies that he did not hear a preacher emphasize the finished work of Christ, or say one word that would have given light to a sinner seeking the way of salvation. With the abandonment of the doctrine which makes the fundamental contention of Christianity with heathenism; it is not surprising that belief in the salvation of the heathen is gaining ground.

Plain as are the evidences of the departure of the professing people of God from the truth, it is even more evident that holy standards of life are being set aside. No one believes that Wesley would tolerate the worldliness of the institution founded by him. Who of the Puritans would recognize the churches which proudly claim a Puritan ancestry? They would turn in disgust from the Unitarian doctrines which are now preached, the silly papal holidays, and the vanities of the modern church.

It is our growing conviction, however, that the apostacy is deeper than all these things. Sin, unbridled, save by the demands of respectability and fear of publicity, unrebuked by pulpit or pew, is in the religious life of this land an incurable sore that is surely and rapidly bringing the pro[fessing] church to utter ruin.

The Distille[r]

In the first ye[ar] occurred an incide[nt] bounds of my congregation [t]hat half-century has failed to efface from my memory. At that early day the cause of temperance was gradually spreading its influence through our country, and we thought it well to organize a temperance society in our community. In my congregation there was a gentleman thirty-one years of age, of more than ordinary intelligence and business activity. It was desirable that he should join our new society, and I did my best to bring him to that point but without success. On one occasion, when trying to persuade him to connect himself with the temperance movement, he said to me, "I never expect to be a member of a temperance society, and yet I rejoice at their existence. Not on my own account, but for the sake of that boy;" pointing to his little son of four years, "When he has grown to manhood he will be under better influences than those which have surrounded his father. He will have temperance men for his companions—drinking usages will then have ceased."

I replied in most serious tones, "Ma[n] 8—, whatever effect temperance so[cie]ties may have on the community at large, one thing is certain, which [is] that the destiny of your little son [is] in your hands more than with all oth[ers]; that such is your influence on the [life] that boy that it may well be shaped by you, more than by the whole outside world."

I regret that my words were too prophetic! In about two years after the above-mentioned interview I was called to bury that dear boy. His father had a small distillery on his farm. One evening, while engaged in removing some apple-brandy from the "receiver" into a cask, the boy standing by with lighted candle, the liquor was ignited, an explosion followed, and both father and son were covered with flames! The father was taken to his bed, and slowly recovered after weeks of suffering. But where was the son, who was to live and grow up under the happy influence of a temperance community! were was he? On the day of the funeral, as I entered the chamber of the suffering father, he turned his face to the wall, and raising his wounded hand as if to shun my sad look, exclaimed in agony, "Oh, I know what you are going to say!"—C. B., in Presbyterian.

Shunning Bad Habits.

There is a difference between a habit and an appetite. We do things from the force of habit, when having been accustomed to doing them over and over again, we repeat them simply from lack of thought. A boy bites his finger nails, not because he loves them, nor because he cannot let them alone, but simply because he has fallen into the habit of doing it, and does it without thinking. If he would think and watch, he could easily conquer the habit. But an appetite is different, and frequently controls a man's will and sweeps away all his resolutions. He yields to habit through thoughtlessness; he yields to appetite because of his weakness, and because of an intense and overmastering desire. Often habit and appetite interblend. An appetite for strong drink if resisted may be overcome; but if it be gratified, the cold claim of habit and appetite is hard to break. To overcome habits, watch; to conquer evil appetite, pray and strive.

Understand what your habits are. You may have bad habits which you have never noticed, and of which you are not conscious. Others can tell you them. Know what you do and see that you have good reasons for doing it. Keep out of the way of temptation, by means of which appetite frequently overcomes men. Keep busy, and vigilant, and know what you are about. Thoughtlessness is the strength of bad habits. Persons do think not what they are doing, and so do things which are foolish, improper, and wrong.

In striving to overcome bad habits and evil appetites, do not be discouraged. You may fail ten times or ten thousand times, and yet succeed at last. Do not think that you can vanquish your foe by vows, and promises, and resolutions; you must do it by watchfulness and by prayer.

Resist the beginnings of evil. Do not in the way of the ungodly, nor sit in the seat of the scornful. Look over your failures, and think just where the first step in wrong-doing was taken, and avoid it for the future; and remember that it will not be strange if the habits which have been years in forming are not easily vanquished. They strike their roots very deep, and [illegible] who will battle with them need [illegible] comes from God. He [illegible] new hearts and new [illegible] victors—free both habit and [illegible]. Hastings.

To the Saints of Illinois:

At the quarterly meeting held with the Antioch church on Saturday evening, May 7, it was unanimously decided to hold a Bible school this year just preceding the annual conference as last year. So much did the Board of Management desire it that they voted ten dollars support toward paying the grocery bill for the same. The school will be held beginning on Monday, August 15, 1904. The work will proceed much on the same plan as last year except that the daily sessions will consist of two periods of an hour and a half each instead of two hours each. Many have already signified their intention of attending.

Young people cannot estimate the value of such a training until they have had it. For further particulars write me. Suffice it to say that about the only expense—at least the chief item of expense—will be the expense of transportation. Please write and say that you are coming.

Beautiful Winona.

With the opening of the season at Winona Lake, May 10th, the sale of excursion tickets over the Pennsylvania Lines to that attractive resort in Northern Indiana will begin. Every summer passed there by thousands has only increased their desire to return. On the golf links, the tennis courts, the baseball or cricket grounds, the croquet field, or boating on the lake, fishing, camping, swimming, driving, or attending recitals and lectures by world-famed personages in the auditorium—whatever the diversion may be, the associations are of that congenial sort conferred by good society. This resort is noted as the site of Winona Assembly and Summer School, attracting teachers and students from educational institutions of this and other countries.

Fifteen-day and season excursion tickets will be sold from stations of the Pennsylvania Lines during the summer. For information about fares and time of trains, apply to local ticket agents, or to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Illustrated literature describing attractions of Winona Lake may be had for the asking. Address S. C. Dickey, Secretary and General Manager, Winona Lake, Ind., who will give particulars regarding camping facilities, hotel accomodations, program of addresses by noted speakers and all other details.—Sept. 30.

"The World to Come and the Life Everlasting," is the name of a book of over 400 pages. The title page describes it as a Symposium of Writers on eternal life from the Bible Basis, and is selected from the works of a goodly number of Bible Students who have written during the past few years. It is compiled and published by Bro. John O. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., of whom it may be ordered. The paper and print are excellent, as is the durable cloth-binding. The price is $1.00, and considering the work as a whole it is very low, and we urge all who need a book on this subject to procure one without delay.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by [illegible] draft, postoffice money orders, or [illegible]. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-resculaltes of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

Our Father's at the Helm.

Though fierce the howling winds may blow,
While o'er life's raging sea we go,
And leave our vessels to and fro,
Our Father's at the helm,
Our Father's at the helm.

Though lying-to with close-reefed sails,
While on us beats the furious gale,
Our child-like faith will never fail,
Our Father's at the helm.

Though mountains on huge mountains rise,
And toss us upward to the skies,
While many a sea quite o'er us flies—
Our Father's at the helm.

Thus down we plunge deep in the wave,
All threatened with a watery grave,
It cheers our hearts that God can save.
Our Father's at the helm.

Should tempests rage from day to day,
And sweep our towerings masts away,
We'll quiet sit, and smiling say—
Our Father's at the helm.

Let wicked men and devils fear
While viewing death and judgment near,
The child can sing without a fear—
Our Father's at the helm.

Oh, blessed consolation given,
To saints while o'er life's ocean driven,
To guide their bark into the haven—
For Father's at the helm.

Then let us join our cheerful songs,
This stormy voyage will not last long,
But soon we'll join the ransomed throng,
For Father's at the helm.

Wisdom of Seirach.

CHAPTER 40.

1. A great lack of leisure was generated for every man, and a heavy yoke is it upon Adam's sons from the day they come forth from their mother's womb until their burial in a mother of them all.

2. Reflective thought of expectation, a day of one's end have incited their reasonings and fear of heart.

3. From the one seated upon a throne of glory to the one humbled in earth and ashes.

4. From the one who weareth hyacinth and a chaplet to the one who throweth around him a plain linen garment.

5. Passion and envy and tumult and commotion and fear of death and frenzy and strife and in a period of rest upon his couch even sleep by night changeth his comprehension.

6. As little as nought is there in his rest, and from it in the way of sleep as little as in a day of spying: stirred up with tumult at a vision of his heart, like one fleeing for refuge from the face of war is he.

7. In a due time of his salvation he hath awakened, and wondereth that there is nothing to fear.

8. With all flesh from man to domestic-animal, and upon obdurate-sinners in a sevenfold way is it according to these things,

9. Death and blood and strife and a sword, attacks, famine and a crushing blow and a scourge.

10. All these things have been generated for the transgressors, and because of them (the lawless) the flood occurred.

11. All things whatsoever are from earth and revert to earth and whatsoever are from waters return to a sea.

12. Every bribe and act of injustice will have been wiped out, and faith will stand forever.

13. The abilities of wrong-doers will have been dried up like a river, and like a great thunder peal will echo out with rain.

14. Even as one will have rejoiced in the opening of his hands, will the evaders of law leave off in a consummation.

15. The progeny of the irreverent will not make many ingrafted branches and their unclean roots are upon a precipitous rock.

16. Like "achel" (a water-plant that grows close to the bank of a stream) by every water and at the brink of a river it will be plucked up before any grass.

17. Grace is like a paradise in blessings and an act of mercy abideth forever.

18. The life of a contented worker will have been made sweet; and more than both is he the finder of a treasure.

19. Offspring and the building of a city stay up a name, and more than both is a blameless life accounted.

20. Wine and music rejoice one's heart, and more than both is a love of wisdom.

21. A flute and a psaltry sweeten honey, and more than both is a sweet tongue.

22. Grace and beauty [illegible] desire, and the verdure of [illegible] more than both.

23. A friend and a comrade who meet one in an opportune time, and more than both a wife with a husband.

24. Brethren and responsive-help in a time of tribulation, and more than both will an act of mercy deliver one.

25. Gold and silver will establish one's foot, and more than both counsel prove itself to be a good thing.

26. Useful things and strength will lift up one's heart, and more than both fear of the Lord; there is nothing that maketh less in fear of the Lord, and with it there is no need of seeking after responsive-help.

27. Fear of the Lord is like a blessing and more than all glory have they covered it.

28. Child do not live a life of beggary; better is it to die than to beg.

29. A man who is looking unto another's table, his way of living is not in an accounting of life; he will pollute his soul with another's food; and a man of experience and who hath been instructed will be on his guard.

30. Beggary in the mouth of a shameless person will have tasted sweet, and in his belly a fire will burn.

COMMENT.

The condition of the natural or (soul) man and "all flesh from man to domestic animal" in the garden of probation so graphically summed up in the first twelve verses of this chapter makes "regeneration," the fundamental doctrine of Christianity, doubly significant to us who are under the New Covenant of grace, which old Seirach was not, and to whom many things were "mysterious" which to us now are made plain and clearly revealed. "The all flesh" of Seirach here was the animate-soul life of the Mosaic record with man merely at the head of it. The possibilities dimly and mysteriously revealed of an ultimate evolution of the natural man at least to the higher spiritual life of God and so to an eternal life hereafter clearly apprehended only by the esoteric few of God's prophets and teachers who were unable even figuratively and pictorially to convey the thought of their vision to the rank and file of the Old Covenant people because in the plan and purpose of God this "enablement" was to come in due time through the Messianic Revealor as well as Redeemer of "all flesh," when in the words of the mouthpiece Joeel God says "I shall pour out from my spirit upon all flesh and your sons and your daughters will prophesy, etc." According to Peter we are now in these "last days" here spoken of and all the spiritual phenomena of God's grace—still going on in the world confirm the truth of the statement.

Again see in the closing verse of this chapter how exactly the teaching here harmonizes with the teaching of the apostles and the early Christian church in regard to "work" and "beggary" and how flatly it contradicts the apostate Catholic beggar order of monks and monasticism as well as more modern ideas of "the world owes one a living" and "I am going to get it somehow if I have to tramp" for it or take it whenever or however I can "hold it up."

Some Thoughts on the Assumption of Speculative Science.

True science, like all other things human that are true, is kind, modest and conscious of its own limitations, ever ready to learn, holding what conclusions and theories it may have in abeyance subject to the modifications that future discoveries and light may reveal. Fake science is different—both arrogant, assertive, aggressive, scornful and contemptuous, it struts out as the arbiter of the whole realm of human knowledge and sniffs a supercilious smile at any poor trembling querist that stirs up courage enough to doubt the infallibility of its judgment. True science under God is what has made the present civilization of the world, and its leading [illegible] ponents have been practical [illegible] Mr. Watts, Stevenson, [illegible] the endless list of the scientific great have not generally had even what's called a scholarly education, but have thought their way and fought their way sometimes in the very teeth of the opposition of the professionally "scientific." Benjamin Franklin had his troubles with them over the lightning question. Stevenson had a tremendous job to get permission to run his first locomotive, and nearly every one of the real practical benefactors of humanity have had all they could do to raise funds to flout their scientific schemes, while professional chairs of learning had all the money necessary to maintain princely salaries. Now there is no objection to the chairs of learning or the princely salaries provided that we are not compelled to bow the knee to their theories and give them credit as the limit of all knowable truth.

Of late years this false science has been particularly blatant in regard to what is known as religion or the idea of the Creator of all revealing himself to his creative man. In fact the very idea of man as special creation not to speak of a "child of God" is treated as ludicrous superstition and quite intolerable to scientific patience. A good many years ago I had a personal experience of this scientific contempt that made a [illegible] like to add a few impressions. A celebrated [illegible] been said. professor delivered a popular [illegible] chemistry at the Peabody Institute [illegible] days, [illegible] in Baltimore at which I was present. good things to come. And in Lev. xxiii: we find a list It was an interesting and instructive of those holy days. The weekly Sabbath was a shadow of that rest which remaineth for the people of God. Heb. iv: 9.

lecture but in speaking of the history of his science I thought he went out of his way to condemn the socalled "Father of Chemistry" Joseph Priestly as a "religious fanatic." At that time my line of reading had incidently lead me in the way of happening to know a good deal of Priestley's life, history and religious opinions. I had carefully read some of his religious works and looked over nearly all of them, and so in a sort of "good Samaritan" spirit I thought to help the young professor out and so penned him a short note giving the salient points in Priestley's history and opinions. Stating for instance that he was a correspondent with President Thomas Jefferson, a friend and co-worker with Franklin, that his name stood beside George Washington's as "honorable citizen" of the French republic. That his persecution in England was the work of an ignorant mob instigated by a worthless hierarchy. The account of his spoken sympathy with the independent action of the United States as well is his radical views on religion and that he was called an infidel because he denied the dogma of the immortality of the soul and the theory of eternal torture, etc. I thought these points would be useful [illegible] young man and that he would ponder them quietly. What was my surprise when at the beginning of the next lecture he strutted out in high dudgeon and resented indignantly the suggestions with which he had been "honored" in my "communication" and reiterated emphatically that it was well known and universally accepted that Priestley was a "religious fanatic," disclaiming however any personal opinions on the matter as if the subject was altogether too small, and the large and fashionable audience burst into loud and prolonged applause. At such a rebuff I thought that perhaps the gentleman might have some grounds for his ideas, so next day I went over all the encyclopedias in the Peabody library, one of the best in the country, and read in two languages and spelt in a third all I could find in regard to the opinions of Priestly, but I was unable to find a word of disparagement as to his character and intellect or the slightest implication of fanaticism.

After many years this young man that I dared to "tip" has risen to one of the most prominent positions, as university president, in America, and I was pleased sometime ago reading an article from his pen in one of the magazines on the "Limitations of Science" in which he confessed that [illegible] thought to [illegible] Most of us learn something as the poll grizzlies, but the trouble is that the fiery know-all impetuosity of hair-brained youth is rather inclined to be nourished by those dignified institutions of socalled learning, and the fledgling professor in cap and gown steps forth to illuminate a dark world. When it will be found generally that outside his professional specialty the light that is in him is darkened and his opinions are only worth those of any other man of intelligence and general information. With the many avenues of information open to all as we have it in our time one need not regret the lack of a "sheep skin" nor fear to encounter its possession while with modest common sense he keeps posted on things in general and marches with the times, and it is the duty of every man to do so according to his ability.

Sacred Times and Seasons Observed by the Jews.

The above is the heading of a full page article in The Restitution of June 1, by Ada B. Butler, and is worthy of a close study. Although the article is quite lengthy it has not brought out all that might be said, and by permission I would like to add a few

The 2nd holy day in the order given was the Passover, and it foreshadowed the death of the Lamb of God, as our Passover (lamb). See 1 Cor. v: 7.

And as the Passover lamb was to be slain in the evening of the fourteenth day of the first month, so also the Lamb of God suffered death on the cross in the evening of the fourteenth day of the first month, on the day of preparation for the Passover feast. Mark xv: 42; Luke xxiii: 54; & John xix: 42.

The 3rd holy day given in the list was the waving of the first sheaf of the first fruits of their harvest. This was to be done on the morrow after the Sabbath, and the Lamb of God as the first fruits of them that slept, Acts xxvi: 23: 1 Cor. xv: 20, was taken or raised from the dead, and waved before the Lord God on the morrow after the Sabbath. Mark xvi: 1; Luke xxiv: 1. The good thing to come, the resurrection of Christ, occured on the day foreshadowed in the waving of the first sheaf of the harvests.

The 4th holy day in the list was the [illegible] and baked with leaven [illegible] from their harvests, [illegible] verse 17, these loaves are also called first fruits, and these loaves were to be waved before the Lord on the fiftieth day after the waving of first sheaf of their harvests, and the good thing foreshadowed by these loaves of bread was the resurrection of the saints, as they are also a part of the first fruits of the harvest of the world. James i: 18; Rev. xiv: 4. Although the God of heaven has not plainly told us the day of the coming of the Lord, yet he has hid in the shadows under the law the day of the resurrection of the saints.

The 5th holy day was to be on the first day of the seventh month a memorial of blowing of trumpets, a holy convocation, but just what good thing is to come this day of blowing of trumpets foreshadowed, I do not now feel safe to say, but as it was set nine days before the 6th holy day which was set for the tenth day of the seventh month, it may have been set as a kind of prelude, a giving of notice of the notable atonement day when all Israel must appear, and make the prescribed sacrifices for their sins.

On this tenth day of the seventh month the high priest entered into the most holy place, and made an atonement for all Israel. Lev. xvi. When he came out he laid his hands on the head of the goat that was to [illegible] children of Israel. Jesus [illegible] foreshadowed by the priest going into the most holy place once every year with the blood of beasts, is now entered into heaven itself to appear in the presence of God for us. Heb. ix: 7 verse to end of chap.

As the high priest came out of the most holy place, and confessed the sins of the people over the head of the goat, and finished the atonement for the people on that tenth day of the seventh month, so I think we may expect our High Priest to come out of the Most Holy Place, and complete the sacrifice made for the people by confessing their sins over the goat that is to be led away, into the wilderness on the tenth day of the seventh month.

The 7th and last of these holy convocations was to be on the fifteenth day of the seventh month at the end of the gathering in of the fruit of the land, and this convocation was to continue for seven days, and this evidently foreshadowed the time of the gathering in of the last fruits of the harvest of the world, when there will be a time of rejoicing of the people of God over the completion of the great work of redemption. But the last good thing that God has in store for them that love him, is too great, too grand, to be foreshadowed by the temporal things under the law.

J. B. CRATON.

To the Church of God assembled in Conference at Antioch, Ind:

As it is impossible for me to be with you in person in your present meetings to honor God the Father and his beloved Son Jesus the Christ, I wish to enjoy by anticipation some pleasure in saying I am with you in spirit, and rejoice that my name is enrolled with you who are seeking to extol our King and Savior in prayer and supplication, also in proclaiming his gospel of life to a dying world. Allow me a few minutes of your time please. You now form a part of the grandest organization ever brought into existence, namely the Church of God. What an honor bestowed upon an individual that he is permitted to have membership with the called out people of God. I hope I appreciate this and thank the holy One for the enlightenment given and the position conferred. Although a poor worm of the dust I am invited to the plane of life brought to light by the Son of Man who gave himself a ransom for all and was manifested in due time. Now brethren, I wish to tell you what I understand necessary upon the part of the person who desires to become a participant of the honor to be given to the Lord's people. He must repent, be converted and believe the gospel of the kingdom of God and of his Christ. He must obey from the heart that form of doctrine which has been delivered for the saving of man. This gospel which is the power of God unto salvation to the Jew first and also to the Gentile, I understand to be the glad tidings of the things concerning the kingdom of God and the things concerning Jesus the Christ. This kind of faith with a repentance that needeth not to be repented of gives the person so wrought upon a right to a burial in water in baptism into the all saving name for the remission of past sins. He now arises from the watery grave to walk in a new life having died unto the love of sin. His life is now hid with Christ in God. After this conversion and burial into Christ he must walk worthy of the vocation in which he is called, up to death or the coming of the Lord in his kingdom and glory. Now his business is to honor God in turning away from all iniquity by cleansing his mind and soul from all filthiness and superfluity of naughtiness in receiving the engrafted Word, which is able to save his soul. Now he becomes a doer of the Word as well as a hearer of the same. In complying with the above teachings he reads his Bible day and night, meditating upon the same and lives in communion with God in prayer. By thus living daily he becomes so thoroughly imbued with the [illegible] the serpent to mother Eve in the garden of Eden, "Ye shall not surely die." The same falsehood is still propagated by Plato and promulgated by his followers the blind guides of the present age. How one does rejoice when he gets out of this darkness now covering the earth. The writer came near being lost in the belief of the soul destroying lie of the devil. Thanks to God he now has the truth. Amen.

Obituary.

On July 1, 1904, we received the sad news of the death of our beloved cousin and sister Miss Mattie Elton, daughter of David Elton and wife of Nottingham, Ohio, who used to live at Delta. And oh, how it shocked us and although young in years in the prime of life. It seems so hard to think of it. But the great enemy of all mankind, the relentless hand of death spareth none. And as our memory reflects back to by gone days as she used to meet with us at Raker church and greet us with that cheerful voice, and as she stood with her sister by the side of the organ and sang and played those beautiful songs of praise to her Creator. Today that voice is silent and our loving sister is sleeping in the silent tomb. It was the lot of the writer of this article to go down into the chilly [illegible] same hour under convincing arguments of Eld. B. Woodward and wife of Dutton, Mich. It was on a cold November day with ice on the surface of the water, but her young heart beat warm for the cause she espoused. She arose to walk in newness of life. And all that knew Mattie knew her for to love her, and may her virtues and beatitudes be worthy examples for all, and we trust it will be our happy lot to meet Mattie again some sweet day in that age to come, where the inhabitants will no longer say, I'm sick, and where the tear dimmed eye will be no more. Clothed in immortality, then and not until then can we say, Oh! death where is thy sting? Oh! grave where is thy victory? And may the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob be the God of the bereaved parents and sister, strengthen and support them in this hour of extreme trial is our prayer, and though we sing,

We shall sleep, but not forever,
There will be a glorious dawn,
We shall meet to part no never,
On that Resurrection morn.

Then we shall meet Mattie again when this old mother earth shall be redeemed from the curse and all things made new and restored to its Edenic beauty. Oh, may that time quickly come.

WM. H. ELTON.

The Scriptures declare that in the last days there shall false scoffers say, ing: Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep all things continue as they were from the beginning." They are thoroughly devoted to the existing order of things, and are utterly averse to any interference with it by the interjection of the supernatural. They are so little in love with the Lord Jesus that they have neither desire or expectation of his coming. They being freed from the influence of the power of the world to come they surrender themselves to the baser influences of this present evil world, and begin to indulge in all sorts of cruelties and excesses. That the fading out of the hope of Christ's second coming has had much to do with the existing low state of religion in the churches we do not for a moment doubt.—Baptist Quarterly.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, JULY 13, 1904.

The Paternity of Jesus! and Arraignment of Marcionism. No. 4.

Let us note a few things of vast importance in the above verses; and

1. The perfection of the sanctified is by ONE OFFERING.

2. Brethren have boldness to enter the holiest BY THE BLOOD of Jesus by a new way which he has consecrated for us, by means of his flesh, which was offered.

3. That we have a High Priest over the House of God, so that

4. We can draw near in full assurance; and

5. Our hearts have been [illegible] from an evil conscience.

6. Our bodies washed with pure water.

Did our author consider how he can be sanctified without the one offering; or how he can enter the Holiest without the blood of the offering? Or how there could have been an High Priest over the House of God if he had not first been offered? or did he consider that the words, NO MORE sacrifice for sins proves there has been a sacrifice for sins, contrary to his assertions? or did he weigh the import of the words, "trodden under foot and counted THE BLOOD of the COVENANT an unholy thing?" If he did, before he published his belief, he ought to have been prepared to explain how all these things to be done BY the one offering, would have been done without it, not forgetting to show his proof and authority for what he says. Most unjust and cruel is it to deprive people of their faith and hope without something better and more reliable to take their place.

We are told in Hebrews ix. 12 that it was by means of his own blood he entered once for all into the holy places, having found eternal redemption." These are solemn verities along here, for those who are making bold assertions respecting the office and work of Christ. Our readers will notice that our last quotation omits the words "for us," which are found in the common version, because there is nothing in the original to warrant them. The Revised Version, Diaglott, Lange, Sawyer's, Rotherham's, Syriac, Young's, Jamieson Fausset and Brown and others, omit the words for us.

The great truth that Jesus is the Way, the Truth and the Life, in connection with the Truth in Hebrews ix. 12, that Jesus, as one of us, lower in nature than angels, had to obtain eternal redemption from death for himself, before he could confer it upon any others, shows the utter folly of the scheme offered by our author, and his brethren. In that scheme Christ is not life. His doctrine is, that Christ was righteous and that was sufficient.

His relation to the human family and the death sentence hanging over it, is worthy of no notice by our author, neither is the fact of his being made in all things like unto his brethren so that he could suffer death,—nor the fact that sin could not have been condemned in his flesh if he had been made otherwise. His reference to what is taught by some respecting an infinite sacrifice" for infinite sin does not apply to us,—neither does it to the party he has gone out from; and we see no reason for its introduction.

By means of his own blood Jesus entered in once into the holy place, into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us." Standing there before the throne, he appeared as a Lamb that had been slain; his wool of snowy white, dyed scarlet with his blood, the blood of the covenant that gives life; and here he is, attesting that the God of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob is a covenant keeping God; for, according to promise, the God of peace brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great shepherd of the sheep [by what means] through the blood of the everlasting covenant."

He rose as he said he would. And we have his Word direct from heaven, since his ascension, that he who was dead is alive forevermore; and that he holds the keys of hades and of death; a plain intimation that he will use them to liberate all who have fallen asleep in the faith of him since the first promise in Paradise.

Before we proceed further we will try to point out the difference between truth and error on the points last discussed. If we were to look through our author's spectacles we would see no gospel from Adam to Christ; no justification by faith; obedience to law was all that was required; and that it was an afterthought,—(if Paul was authorized to say it,) that it was impossible to please God without faith. Heb. xi. 6. And that it was wrong to say that Abraham's faith in God's promises was imputed to him for righteousness. Rom. iv. 3.

Wrong to declare that God imputeth righteousness without works. Rom. iv. 6.

Wrong to teach that Abraham was the father of all who believe, whether circumcised or not,—and that righteousness might be imputed to such. Rom. iv. 11.

Wrong to teach that Christ came to confirm the promises to the fathers that the Gentiles might glorify God for his mercy. Rom. xv. 8, 9.

Wrong for Jesus to say Matthew [illegible] Blood of the [illegible] shed for many, for the remission of sins.

Wrong to teach that there was no law that could give life, or constitute a person righteous. Gal. iii. 21.

Wrong to say that God sent his Son to do what the law could not do. Rom. viii. 3.

Wrong to say that Jesus was raised from the dead through the blood of the everlasting covenant. Heb. xiii. 20.

Wrong to say he entered the heavens by means of his own blood. Heb. ix. 12.

Wrong to say that the first tabernacle and the gifts and sacrifices were A FIGURE FOR the time then present.

Lastly, another teacher of this way teaches that the blood Jesus shed, was the blood of a pardoned sinner, not a man without a stain; not a spotless lamb, but one of many sinners.

If that be so, does he deny the statement that without the shedding of blood there is no remission of sins; or will he tell us in whose blood he received remission of the alledged sins?

The following sentence warrants every statement made in the above summary, because it sets aside every condition of salvation laid down in the Scriptures,—it says:—

"It is only by man's forsaking and giving up his past sinful life, and devoting his future life to God and to righteousness that a reconciliation or at-one-ment could possibly be effected."

We left the Lord Jesus in the Holy Place where he had entered by his own blood. This blood is the medium of justification and sanctification, and we are loth to leave it till we have shown how access to it is possible by us on earth; that is secure a share of the benefits to be received from the covenant ratified by the blood of Jesus.

Paul says "we have access by faith;" a saying which agrees with that of the prophet,—"the just shall live by faith."

"God," says Peter, "puts no difference between Jews and Gentiles, purifying their hearts by faith." "I send thee," said Jesus to Paul, "to open the eyes of the Gentiles, to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins, and inheritance among them who are sanctified by FAITH WHICH IS IN ME."

Summarily, we can say, the testimony shows that the sons of Adam are purified, sanctified, justified or pardoned, and obtain eternal life by faith, or, in other words, as the apostle says to those who had been delivered from their past sins, "In grace ye are [illegible] saved, through the faith; and this not of, (or originating from) yourselves; but the gift of God."

For want of space we must soon leave this interesting part of our study,—although more and more persuaded that our author could hardly get farther from the truth if he tried to. The theme of Redemption in the book of God, is kept in view from first to last, and the types of successive centuries are made to converge the whole of their light upon it.

The use of typology is often stated in the Bible itself. And the careful student could hardly fail to notice that God taught his children, as human parents teach theirs; first by sensible and external signs, pictures, stories, etc.

Listen to the word of the Spirit in 1 Cor. v. "Purge out therefore the old leaven, that ye may be a new lump, as ye are unleavened, For even Christ, OUR PASSOVER is SACRIFICED for [illegible]. Here we see, waiving [illegible] position;—

1. That the church was normally unleavened.

2. That the leaven of wickedness had gotten in amongst them, and was tainting the whole Body.

3. They were commanded to purge it out,

4. "FOR [Because] OUR PASSOVER" Lamb was sacrificed.

5. The comparison between the typical feast and the antitypical feast: "Let us," therefore, keep the feast commemorative of our Paschal lamb. Not once a year, but as often as we do it, as Jesus said, "in remembrance of me;" which, by apostolic example, was on the first day of the week.

6. The effect of the blood sprinkled on the lintels and doorposts of Israelitish homes, was to preserve them from the sword of the destroying angel.

7. The effect of the blood of our Paschal Lamb is

a. OUR HEARTS [illegible]

b. By ONE OFFERING [illegible] perfected for ever them that are sanctified. Heb. x. 14.

c. Their sins and iniquities are remembered no more. v. 19.

d. And have an High Priest over the House of God. v. 21.

e. And can draw near with full assurance and enter into the Holiest by the BLOOD OF CHRIST. v. 22

f. That where remission of sins by the means herein set forth has once taken place, there is no more offering for sin. v. 18.

g. For if we sin wilfully, after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation, which shall devour the adversaries. v. 26, 27.

h. He that despised Moses' law died without mercy, under two or three witnesses; of how much sorer punishment, suppose ye, shall he be thought worthy, who hath trodden under foot the SON OF GOD, and counted the blood of the covenant, wherewith he was sanctified a common thing, instead of what is expressed

By 1 Peter, 1: "Ye were not redeemed with corruptible things as silver and gold, from your vain conversation received by tradition from your fathers,—but with [illegible] of Christ, as [illegible] ish, and W[illegible] From the fo[illegible] is easily discerned [illegible] forgiveness for those who count the blood of the SON OF GOD, which we know to have been the blood of the covenant, COMMON BLOOD,—blood of a pardoned sinner!

Think of God SO loving the world, as to give that pardoned Son of his, "that whosoever believeth in him might not perish, but have everlasting life." Yes; think of this, if you can, after reading that "HE KNEW NO SIN," and place the lie where it belongs.

Exodus xii. 14-27 shows that the primary object of the Passover feast was to keep the deliverance of Israel from Egypt in the memory of that people. But is a remarkable fact, that the historic reality of the facts associated with the Feast of the Passover, and which are linked with the observance of that feast by Israel in all their generations, to the present day, are now discredited by increasing numbers.

And we regard the fact that the lands which have sent out the vast numbers of copies of the Scriptures into all the world, give birth to those who discredit Moses; yes, we consider this a striking sign that we are rapidly approaching the moral condition predicted by Jesus, [illegible] said, "Nevertheless, [illegible] cometh, shall he find [illegible] on the earth?"

Many of these parties pr[illegible]s to believe Christ, while they reject Moses; either forgetting or disregarding the fact that Jesus gave Moses his unqualified endorsement, when he told his own people who pretended to believe Moses, that if they h[illegible] believed Moses, they would have believed him, "for, he, (Moses) wrote of me. But if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe my words"? John v. 46, 47.

We commend these words of Jesus to those who deny h[illegible] sacrificial death, and the typical nature of Old Testament sacrifices; that they might see themselves as others see them, if nothing more.

In Heb. x. 1 we are told [illegible] the law had a SHADOW of th[illegible]ture GOOD THINGS;—not the very image of the things." Taking this in connection with—

Hebrews ix. 11 which says,—"But Christ having become a High Priest of the future good things, by means of the greater and more perfect tabernacle, not made by hands, that is, not of this creation,—he entered once for all, into the Holy places; not indeed by means of the blood of goats and of bullocks, but by means of his own blood, having found Aionian Redemption."

The testimony is infallibly and diametrically opposed to the statements in reference to the blood of Christ. It also explains how the way into the Holies was opened, see Heb. ix. 8. And

The absolute necessity of the death of Christ,—"Because a Covenant is firm over dead victims, since it is never valid when that which ratifies it is alive. And

That on account of having offered himself spotless to God (v. 14) "He is Mediator of a NEW COVENANT (v. 15) and

That his death was necessary for the Redemption of those who sinned under the Old Covenant, the sacrifices [illegible] with which, only cleansed the flesh and left the conscience guilty—v. 18, but, says the Spirit, Heb. x. 3, "But in these there is an annual remembrance of sins;" which we understand to be a virtual acknowledgment, or confession of sins. And

Reader, can you imagine an animal sacrifice which could not put away sin, but which was an acknowledgment of sin, without inspiring hope of being FREED from sin some time in the future?

Unless this were the case, what object would there be for such sacrifice?

Doubtless fleshly minded Israelites, being void of faith, were content to live for the present, and enjoy what obedience to the law and carnal ordinances afforded, because Paul, Rom. ii. 17 says, "Behold, thou art called a Jew, and RESTETH in the law, and makest thy boast of God." The same apostle in Gal. ii. 16, and Gal. iii. teaches "that no man is justified by the law," is evident.

And Heb. vii. 19 declares that "The law made nothing perfect, but the bringing in of a better hope did." The reason of this is, that it was (1) based upon better promises. Heb. viii. 6. And (2) justification is on the principle of faith,—not by obedience to an arbitrary command. And (3) what [illegible] stituted the better hope, was this; [illegible] d to a better life after death, [illegible] everlasting inheritance (Heb. [illegible]; 35) as joint heirs with Abraham through union with Christ; Gal. iii. 29: while the law conferred blessings only in the present life.

How delightful it is in view of the foregoing, to read in Rom. viii. 3, "For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, GOD SENDING HIS OWN SON in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh;" [of his own Son] whom he sent for that purpose, as herein set forth.

We have already shown that the gospel was preached to Abraham 430 years before the law was given and has been in operation without suspension ever since.

Abraham became heir of the world by faith in it Gal. iii. 8, not by law (Rom. iv. 13; and that principle is applied to all who like him, believe what God promised. He became the father of all such, and righteousness is also imputed to them. Rom. iv. 11.

And how will the vaporing of our author appear beside the Word of the Spirit in Gal. iii. 13, "Christ has redeemed us from the curse of the law, being made a CURSE FOR US,..... that the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles, through Jesus Christ!" Does he know anything of the process?

Heb. iv. 14 informs us that we have a Great High Priest that is passed into the heavens, Jesus the Son of God.

Psa. cx. informs us that his appointment had been decided upon and confirmed by the oath of Jehovah a thousand years before he was born. "Jehovah hath sworn, and will not repent. Thou art a priest forever after the order of Melchisedek."

How unlike the casual finding or selection from among his fellows, Jesus of Nazareth, to redeem mankind from their state of sin and misery, presumably by setting a good example.

Pursuing the study in this direction a little further; we remark that Jesus, not being a Levite, was not eligible to a priesthood under the law; and his appointment a thousand years in advance discloses the divine purpose to change the law when the proper time should come; and to this, Paul, in Gal. iii. 19 testifies, when he says the law was added because of transgressions TILL THE SEED SHOULD COME, to whom the promise was made." [Christ v. 16.]

This law added, to continue so long, and no longer, was instituted by means of a Mediator, [Moses]. And Heb. vii. 12 says the change of the priesthood made the change of the law necessary. And verse 18 proves that its abrogation was decreed on account of its weakness and unprofitableness.

Heb. viii. 6, says: "But now hath he, (Jesus) obtained a more excellent ministry (than Aaron's) by how much also he is the mediator of a better covenant; which was established upon better promises; for if the first one were faultless, a place would not be sought for a second."

Again we find our author greatly at fault. How vain the search for salvation in a faulty law. In discounting the sacrificial character of Christ's death, he seems oblivious of the fact that the better covenant Jesus is Mediator of required to be dedicated by blood.

Heb. ix. 18, 19, 20 show that even [illegible] Moses was a Mediator of was dedicated, or instituted with blood. Moses took the blood of calves and goats and sprinkled both the book and all the people, saying, This is the blood of the covenant which God enjoined on you."

And verse 23 reads thus: "It was therefore necessary that THE PATTERNS of things in the heavens be purified with these [blood of calves and goats] but the heavenly things themselves with better sacrifices than these."

"For Christ is not entered into the holy places made with hands, THE FIGURES of the true; but into heaven itself, now to appear in the presence of God for us."

"Nor, that he should OFFER HIMSELF OFTEN,.....But now once, in the end of the ages hath he appeared, to put away sin by the SACRIFICE of himself."

He said, "Lo, I come to do the will of God." That will required the New Covenant to be dedicated with the blood of one of Adam's race; who could DIE as one of us, and who was made under the law that claimed us all; so that, although personally WITHOUT SIN, he could suffer its penalty. Had he sinned in his youth, as we are told he did,—he would have remained under the power of death; with the result that we could not have been justified by his resurrection. "If Christ be not risen, then is our preaching vain, and your faith is also vain."

His resurrection is infallible proof that his blood ratified the covenant he is now the Mediator of; he himself was the first to receive its benefits,—the first born from the dead.

We read in Heb. xiii. 2, as follows: "Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great Shepherd of the sheep, THROUGH THE BLOOD of the everlast covenant."

THE War news of the past week has shown a steady advance by the Japanese. Kaichou has fallen to their hands, and this assures them the occupation of New Chang, giving them a base on that side of the Liaotung peninsula, and completing their line across. With this advantage the Russians must accept battle or retreat, as they will be cut off from the line to Mukden soon if the Japs push their forces on.

COMMENTING on an Imperial decree that has just been made by the Czar, with regard to banishment without legal trial, the Chicago Tribune correspondent says:

"Exile by administrative process" has been the dark spot in the Russian governmental system for many decades. Exile under this process means the banishment of an obnoxious person from one part of the empire to another without the observance of any legal formalities.

The obnoxious person may not be guilty of any crime, but if in the opinion of the local authorities his presence in a particular place is "prejudicial to public order," or "incompatible with public tranquility," he may be arrested without a warrant, may be held for two weeks to two years in prison, and may then be exiled by force. He may or may not be informed of the charges against him.

He has no right to demand a trial or even a hearing. He cannot ask for a writ of habeas corpus. He cannot appeal to his fellow citizens through the press. He may be exiled so suddenly and so secretly that even members of his own family do not know what has become of him. He is literally and absolutely without any means of defense. The Czar's decree abolishing political exile to Siberia without trial marks the beginning of the downfall of a political system that had its origin in the barbarities of the seventeenth century. Singularly enough, the exile system, even with all its horrors, was introduced in the seventeenth century as a reform movement.

The Russian criminal code of that age was almost incredible, cruel, and barbarous. Men were impaled on sharp stakes, hanged, and beheaded by hundreds for crimes that would now be regarded as trivial in any country on the globe. Lesser offenders were flogged, branded with hot irons, mutilated, deprived of their tongues, or suspended in the air by hooks passed under their ribs until they died a lingering death.

The Son of God as the Son of Man.

When Jesus said he was the living bread which came down from heaven, and that the bread was his flesh, which he should give for the life of the world, (John xi: 5.) he spoke a parable based on the manna that fed Israel in the wilderness. He did not mean that his flesh should be eaten literally, though some of his disciples thought so. Nor did he mean there was life-giving virtue in his flesh as a physical thing; for when some of his disciples were disposed to take this meaning, he said expressly "the flesh profiteth nothing," (v: 63). His meaning is evident in view of the fact that the sacrifice of his body (in order that sin might be condemned in a sinless sufferer from its effects), was the appointed means of opening for us a way of salvation which otherwise was closed: and that this fact would have to be the subject of faith, or be mentally eaten.

His body (which was the seed of David according to the flesh) was prepared by the Spirit descending upon Mary and generating it; and afterwards, the spirit came forth in a more special sorm upon Christ at his baptism, so that it was as regards its initiation and object, a manifestation of the Spirit from heaven. Therefore there was propriety in the parable that spoke of his having come down from heaven to give his flesh for the life of the world.

If the spirit be understood as the speaker, there is no difficulty, provided the details are kept in view. As to his being called "the Son of the Highest" (Luke i: 32), the very same verse speaks of "his father David." He is the Son of God because begotten, not of the will of the flesh as other men are, but begotten of God; but he is also the Son of Man, because born of a member of the human race, whose nature it is testified he partook in all particulars.

He was the first that he might be obedient in all things, and that the work might be of God; and he was the second, that the power of death, which is destroying the seed of Abraham, might in him be extinguished, in harmony with the law of God's action toward men; and that he might then be offered as a name for men to unite themselves with him for participation in his victory. Poetry.

The Church and Her Foe.

Where art thou, O thou Church of God?
Thou hast at ease lain down,
Thy sword grows rusty in its sheath,
Yet dreaming of thy crown!

Thou sleepest, but a sleepless foe
Defiant o'er thee stands;
Fresh from the fray, thy brothers' blood
Is red upon his hands.

His tortured captives are thy sons,
They cry out for release;
What ails thee, O thou Church of God,
That thou should'st hold thy peace?

Thy holy Sabbaths are his jest,
Thy Christ his lips blaspheme;
On a deaf ear his curses fall,
They do not break thy dream.

Th. helmet from thy brow is loosed,
Thine arm unnerved and weak;
Thy very voice is hused; thou art
Like one afraid to speak.

Or, if thy lips have moved, thy words
Have power and fervor lacked;
Bias fears no threat, God hears no prayer
Of men who dare not act.

Awake! awake, O Church of God!
At last thy danger see!
Fight as thou hast not fought before,
And God will fight for thee!

In all the fearlessness of faith,
Tread thine opponents down;
But think not with a sheathed sword
To win a conqueror's crown.

The Bereans Column.

[Under this heading the society of "Bereans" of Illinois, will supply the copy, and endeavor to fill the space once a month.]

Dear Bereans:

I have been requested to write a letter to you, and I am surely very willing to do so, for I have a very tender place in my heart for all of you dear young people. We older ones are nearing the time when the sleep of death will overtake us, unless as we pray, the King will soon come. You will therefore understand our anxiety, knowing that younger hands must take up the work, that they should be stedfast and immovable in the knowledge of the Lord, full of zeal and love for our God & His Christ, so able to withstand the darts of the enemy.

Our Arch enemy is very subtle. He appeals to youthful love of pleasure and society, saying "Oh! it is no harm to do this or that." "The Lord will not condemn you." Thus deceiving many even as he did our mother Eve, and by his effort lowering our spiritual standard, and endangering our spiritual life.

Dear ones, it is only those who are tried and triumphant over their trials, that are to enter into glory unspeakable. It is only they that rule their own spirits and overcome their sinful desires, that are to rule with Christ in righteousness. Surely he that cannot rule himself is not fit to rule others, and so the Lord has decreed that "He that overcometh, shall rule the nations with a rod of iron. He that overcometh shall be clothed in white raiment, and his name shall be confessed before the Father and His holy angels. Shall we indulge in the "pleasures of sin for a season," and lose this great reward?

My dears; it is the little things that try us, the every day little irritations that beset every one, the daily invitations to ease and pleasure that our natural desires covet, that tempt us sometimes to stray from the straight path, and if indulged in deaden our spiritual nature and endanger our entrance into the kingdom. How shall we overcome? By the word of God.

How did Jesus overcome? By a "Thus Saith the Lord." Supposing He had not known the Lord's will and by His words resisted the enemy where would we have obtained the hope of life? So you see how important is the study of the Word, that you may always have a "Thus Saith the Lord," at your tongues end, when temptations assail you. Indeed how shall we know it is wrong to steal, if we do not know the Word says "Thou shalt not steal."

How shall we know it is wrong to be selfish if we do not know the Word says, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." How shall we know it is wrong to hate, if we do not know the saying, "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, and pray for them that despitefully use you and persecute you? Do you not think that in order to resist the desire to pay back in kind, the spiteful work of an enemy you would have to constantly bear in mind the above command of our Lord. So you see, dear ones, how important is our earnest study of the Word if we would win that glorious crown promised to all who walk in the footsteps of our Saviour. Do not neglect it, or make a superficial study of it, if you would gather strength to walk righteously before Him.

Young Bereans, make your organization tell for Christ. "In union there is strength." All have not the same talents, therefore by each using his talent in an organization, better results are obtained and more work done. As Paul says "For the body is not one member, but many." "And the eye cannot say unto the hand, I have no need of thee; nor the head to the feet, I have no need of thee."

So if you all step together and each does his part, no matter how small that part is, you will be a power for good. Work steadily and constantly, doing here a little and there a little, as opportunity offers, and the combination of the little things, will roll up a reward that will make the Master say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Do not wait for the great opportunity, or the little ones will slip by never to return. The Lord says to the servant, "Because thou hast been faithful in very little have thou authority over ten cities. Notice He says faithful in very little, that the great reward is given. He also says that "Whosoever shall give to drink unto one of these little ones a cup of cold water only in the name of a disciple, verily I say unto you, he shall in no wise lose his reward. Is not this encouragement to me, whose talents are small? Have we not cause to be thankful that He who notes the sparrows fall will not pass over the smallest thing done in His name? Then do not say, I can't, when those whom you have put in authority ask you a service, for the Lord, in the organization, but be happy to think you have been asked, because it is to be done for the Lord, and will be recorded in the Lord's book of remembrance. Say the "Lord helping me I will try," and then keep your word. You do not know what a thrill of encouragement, such words give to those who are at the head of the organization, nor how much you build up your spiritual nature by thus working joyfully for Him who never slumbers nor sleeps, but "Like as a father pitieth his children so the Lord hath mercy on them that fear Him," be he great or small.

The time is fast approaching when the report of the past years work of the Berean Band will be called for by the Illinois Conference. How much progress will the record show in the work of the Lord? Have any through your influence, learned the way of righteousness? Have any suffering ones been comforted, any sorrowing ones made glad? Have you relieved the necessity of any in want? Has your knowledge of the way of the Lord been increased? Have you been strengthened in your faith? Is your heart warmer with love for God and man? Is your trust more confident, do you feel nearer to "our Father" more loving and fervent? Are your lives purer? Are you more like little children, and so surer of an entrance into the kingdom of Heaven. If you have advanced along these lines then indeed may you rejoice, for God will be with you, and that to bless. So my dears, press on. Gladly perform whatever service is asked of you. Nay do not wait to be asked, but cheerfully offer and the God of the living and the dead, will bless your dear society and crown each individual member with everlasting joy, when He comes to make up His jewels. We who are older must soon sleep, and we are very anxious for you to be fully equipped to take up the work and bear the banner in the cause of truth, to victory over death, even as Christ our leader has shown us how.

Let me urge you to to press on. Overcome by the help of God, every discouragement, they will but make you stronger, and your crown brighter. When you feel like giving up, think of the glad time when with a shout and the voice of God the Lord shall descend and gather all the faithful ones.

When they shall see the King in His beauty, gather about His throne and a vast throng, thousands upon thousands clad in the white robes of righteousness, swell the glad song of Moses and the Lamb. Grander, far grander than the multitude of angels sang at His birth, because the assembled multitude will bear the palms of victory over sin and the grave. Can we be there? Yes, if we only follow "In His steps," we shall reach the throne of the Lamb to abide with Him forever. Let us ask our Father to help us that we may not grow weary in well doing.

Your loving sister in Christ, and one of the Berean Band.

R. W. Whitehead.

Dear Bereans:

It gave me a great deal of pleasure when one I esteem very highly asked me to address a few lines to you, and this thought occured to me, the power of influence.

Do you and I really realize what an effect it has upon others. It either leads them up to a noble godly life, or else it drags them down.

And so the word of God is given to us, in which the spirit of Christ is revealed which should control our words and actions, and you know actions speak louder than words. Study the life of the dear Master, drink deep into the spirit of His life. How meek and gentle He was, how tender and forbearing yet how stern against hypocrisy, and He said to his disciples over and over again beware of the leaven of the Pharisees which is hypocrisy, which Webster says is a person who pretends to be something which he is not. Dear Bereans be indeed worthy of that name, be out and out for God, truth and righteousness then the power of your influence will indeed be felt. Go no place where you could not [illegible] ly meet Jesus. Do nothing that you could not ask His blessing on, for we read in the Ephesian letter that Christ is to wash His church by the washing of the Word, that He may present to Himself a spotless Church.

Now I commend you to the word of His grace that is able to build you up, and give you an inheritance among them that are sanctified, set apart for His service.

I remain your brother in The Blessed Hope.

M. T. Arlaksen.

I would like to give a word of encouragement for the little band of Bereans in Chicago. Any one to hear them in the class would know that they did what Jesus told them to do, "Search the scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life, and they are they which testify of me." John v: 39.

I think some of us older heads could take a lesson from them in searching for the grand things they find in the good old Book.

Truly there is nothing like it, if the young will follow its teachings. They will grow to be good men and good women, and as for the old, it will give them comfort and rest in their declining years, when life is not so bright as when they are young.

Some will say, I have not time [illegible] it pays to make time, it rewa[illegible] for it. Jesus says in [illegible] 4, "It is written that man shall [illegible] live by bread alone, but by every word of God. It surely means that it is good for this life, we are now living, and it is fitting us for the eternal life, for without the cutting and chiselling we will not be able to be of God's chosen ones. The trials must come whether we stand them or not. My prayer is keep on. It will help you through many a hard time.

Now God himself and our Father and our Lord Jesus Christ, direct our way unto you. And the Lord make you to increase, and abound in love one toward another, and toward all men, even as we do toward you. To the end He may stablish your hearts unblamable in holiness before God even our Father, at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ with all the saints. 1 Thess. iii: 11, 12, 13.

Beloved brothers and sisters, keep up the work. It will teach you to do good in word and deed, for that is our Master's wish. It was part of His work when on earth.

From your loving sister,

Fannie Elvey.

The Only Begotten of the Father.

Christ was called the Son of God because his begettal was due to the power of the Highest overshadowing Mary. This is alleged in Luke 1: 35. He was therefore the Son of God from his mother's womb. This can be said of no other, we are all the sons of God by faith in Christ Jesus,—(Gal. iii: 26) We are adopted sons: not sons by first production. By birth, we are aliens; but God, by the truth, hath sent forth the spirit of adoption into our hearts, whereby we cry, "Abba, Father!"—Rom. viii: 15. This is elsewhere styled, "The Spirit of His Son" (Gal. iv: 6); for Christ was the Son of God by parentage, though also the Son of Man by one side of that parentage. In view of these things, there can be no doubt that the phrase "the only begotten Son," applied to Jesus, is meant to express the fact that though there are "many sons," Jesus is the only son begotten or made such at and from and by the very inception of his being in the flesh.

The Spirit laid the foundation of what he was. But this did not make his physical nature in the days of his flesh different from that of the "many sons" whom he is leading to glory; that is, as regards substance of which he at that time consisted. It gave a higher form to that substance. That is it gave us a man in the mental image of God—a man who, having exhibited that image acceptably for thirty years, under trial, was openly acknowledged at his baptism in the Jordan, as one in whom the Father was well pleased; and who was taken possession of by the Spirit, shed upon him at the time, without measure, for the doing of the work which God purposed to accomplish through him during his succeeding ministry on earth. Yet will all this, a man made in all things [illegible] to his brethren, in whom, [illegible] destroyed in his [illegible] son; and who thus becomes [illegible] means of approval to God, and our hope of life in the day of his coming. Col. iii: 3. Selected by Delusion.

In Zion's Watch Tower, and Herald of Christs Presence of June 15th, the question is asked: "When our Lord appeared to the eleven apostles in the upper room and invited Thomas to thrust his hand into his side and put his finger into the nail prints, was it the same body that was buried in Joseph's tomb a few days before? If not, was it a deception practised upon Thomas?" "Answer—No: it was neither the same body nor was there a deception." The editor continues, "Our Lord's body, buried in Joseph's tomb, was composed of flesh and bones, and could not have passed through the door [illegible] the room . . . . the doors being shut."

Wonder if Mr. Russel ever read what Christ said on this very point. "Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself: handle me and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have." (Lu. xxiv: 39. In what way could a man more effectually deny the resurrection of Christ? It would be hard to conceive.

[illegible] so hard for God?" [illegible] cleansed the leper, [illegible] med the ragged [illegible] old the eyes of [illegible] the case with the two disciples on the way to Emmaus, so that he could enter the room, and they not see how he came in. A small matter for him to perform who was girded with the power and spirit of the Almighty.

Further, this leader of the Elijah class, says, "We have some reason for supposing that the body which lay in the tomb is hidden away by the Lord, as was the body of Moses, though for a different purpose, ... that men may actually look upon him whom they have pierced, actually see the remains of him who died for them."

The inspired Prophet, says, "They shall look upon Him whom they have pierced," but this man of the Watch Tower says, "That men may actually see the remains of Him who died for them." This teacher uses the language of Babylon, not of Zion. No true Zionist speaks of the man, dead or alive—as the remains, but as the man himself.

Hear the language of the Master, "I am he that liveth, and was dead; and, behold I am alive for evermore." "And the angel said to Mary Magdalene and the other Mary..."He is not here: for He is risen, as He said. Come see the place where the Lord lay." Where the body was, the Lord was. Where the [illegible] the Lord lay, if Christ's [illegible] as Moses' was, [illegible] place his followers in the same position that Mary was in when she said that she wept, "Because they have taken away my Lord, and I know not where they have laid him." What a crime to rob poor humanity of the only hope of justification, a risen Saviour.

It is [illegible] tained in the word of God, that [illegible] d raised Christ from the dead. The[illegible]e Christ was dead, and if the bod[illegible]s not raised, what was raised "for [illegible] justification?" Christ Himself t[illegible]fies, "I am that bread of life. Your [illegible]athers did eat manna in the wilderness, and are dead. . . I am the living [illegible]read which came down from heave[illegible] if any man eat of this bread, he sh[illegible]l live forever: and the bread that [illegible] will give is my flesh, which I will give [illegible] the life of the world." (John. vi: 4[illegible] to 51.

It is [illegible] written by the Apostle Paul, "I deliver[illegible]d unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures; and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the Scriptures. (1 Cor. xv: 3-4). It is the Christ that died, that was buried, and that rose again, according to the Scriptures and of whom it is written, "Thou will not leave my soul in hell, nor suffer thine holy one to see corruption."

It is the body that died, was buried and was raised again, because God would not allow His "holy one to see corruption." It is the Christ body that is the seed of the woman—that was to bruise the serpents head. It is the Jesus conceived in the womb of the virgin, of whom it is written,—"He shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his Father David. And he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." This exaltation comes because he humbled himself even to death, the death of the cross. The hands and feet pierced by spikes [illegible] fy him as the one c[illegible] we not believe him (or [illegible] unbelieving than doubting Thomas) when he presents his hands and his feet as evidence, that he is the one that was crucified, and raised again.

The Father says, "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased, hear ye Him." And He says, "Behold my hands and my feet, that it is I myself; handle me and see; for a spirit hath not flesh and bones, as ye see me have." (Lu. xxiv: 39.) Let us all say to this,—Amen.

Although our Lord has attained unto the divine nature, he is still as says the apostle the "one mediator between God and men:—the man Christ Jesus."

The Lips and the Life.

Every true Christian, whether in high or humble station, is bound to be a preacher of the gospel. Remember that there are manifold ways of preaching Christ's gospel without choosing a text or addressing a congregation. Wilberforce and Lord Shaftesbury preached God's truth on the floor of the British Parliament; Dr. Wayland, Mark Hopkins, and James Mc Cosh from the presidential chairs of a college. William Carvosso, the saintly Methodist class leader, brought hundreds of souls to Christ, and humble John Pounds, the shoemaker who baited poor street boys into his shop with a biscuit or a potato, was the founder of "Ragged Schools"! Jacob A. Riis is the orator of the slums; and the sailor, Frank T. Bullen, rings out his message from the forecastle. Haliburton, when laid aside by illness, made a sick bed his pulpit. "It is the best one I was ever in," he said; "I am laid here for the very end that I may commend my Lord and Saviour."

A Christ-loving heart is the true ordination after all. "As ye go, preach!" "Let him that heareth say, Come!"—these are the heavenly commissions to every one who has felt the love of Jesus in his or her soul, knowing the gospel fixes at once the obligation to make it known to others. If I have drunk from the well of salvation I am bound to call out, "Ho! every one that thirsteth, come ye to the waters!" God has a vast variety of pulpits for his servants to preach from. Yours, my friend, may be in a Sabbath-school teacher's seat, or in the nursery, or a mother's arm chair, or it may be a work bench, or in a countingroom. You may preach by a Bible or a tract or a loaf of bread on a poor man's table, or by an earnest talk in a mission school or a faithful pleading with an impenitent soul,—any way that will give you a hold on a sinner's heart and draw him to the Saviour; any way so that he [illegible] heareth says, Come! [illegible] the platform, you can live out the truth; that is the best preaching after all. No infidel can answer that. It draws silently but surely. It says Come by showing the way. The "living epistle" never needs a translation or a commentary. It is in plain English, that a child can understand. An arrant skeptic once spent a day or two with Fenelon, and on leaving he said to him, "If I stay here much longer I shall become a Christian in spite of myself." Stanley also confessed that when he left London for Africa he was "as much prejudiced against religion as the worst infidel," but a few weeks of companionship with the old heroic missionary so impressed him that he said, "I was converted by him, although he had not tried to do it."

More eloquent often than words is the silent beauty of conduct and Christly character. A poor sick girl, for example, is wearing away her young life in a chamber of confinement. All day long and all the night, for weary weeks and months, the patient sufferer suffers [illegible] But she bears the sorrows of her [illegible] weekly; she speaks of her disci[illegible] ly; she exhibits such quiet trust in Him whose strong arm is underneath her, she lives out so much religion in that room, that her worldly-minded father and fashion-loving sisters are deeply touched by it. Her example is a "means of grace" to that whole family; they get no better preaching from any pulpit. Her deep, tranquil joys beside the well of salvation are a constant voice speaking to them, "Come, come ye to this fountain!"

Sabbath desecration is sadly on the increase, and the loose example of too many church members has something to do with it. On the other hand, the best defense of the Fourth Commandment is found in the higher lives and spiritual character of those who remember God's day to keep it holy. In no direction was Gladstone's influence more impressive; and I often recall his words to me: "Amid all the pressure of public cares and duties, I thank God for the Sabbath, with its rest for the body and the soul." The clear brain and the full purse of the total abstainer are the best temperance lecture. Actions speak louder than words. If you wish to move others, move yourself! Cæsar never said to his troops "Ite!" He took the lead and cried out "Venite!" Paul acknowledged the power of example when he said, "Be ye followers of me." Even the lips of our adorable Redeemer do not so move us as the study of his sublime and sinless life and the power of his self-sacrificing death. Godly living is what this poor ungodly world is dying for to-day. If the vital union of believers with their divine head means anything, it means that Christ Jesus pours himself into the world through the lips and the lives of his representatives. "Ye are my witnesses." "It is not that I live," exclaimed the hero-apostle, "but it is Christ that liveth in me."—Theodore L. Cuyler, in the Morning Star.

Open Letter to Elder Smithers.

My dear Sir:

I was much interested in your discourse of this (June 12) morning. The subject, "The future life," being as you truly remarked one to which men in all ages of the world have given much thought. I also agree in the opinion you expressed that the only reliable source of information regarding it is found in what God has revealed; and that he has made a revelation.

You took as the foundation of your remarks an expression found in Rev. iv., "A door was opened in heaven" and proceeding you said, "the Apostle John on the Isle of Patmos was permitted to look into heaven through this door and reveal what he saw there. The most conspicuous figure that greeted his vision was Jesus, but he saw also the spirits of men that were continuing their existence there, having left their perishing bodies behind in the grave, for the future life was but the continuation of this life," and in this connection you remarked that there might be something in spiritualism after all, and that the spirits of the departed might be hovering about us; and here you seemed to anticipate a question, for you put it interrogatively, why do they not speak to us? Because they have no tongue? Why do they not hear us? Because they have no ear. You might with equal propriety, have added, they have no brain with which to take cognizance of us in any way. What strange beings our disembodied spirits must be without organs of any kind by which to receive or impart impressions.

What we read in the Bible then may be true after all; that the dead know not any thing  In that very day their thoughts perish  Their sons come to honor and they know it not. They are brought low but they perceive it not of them. A being without brains cannot think regarding the revelation made to the apostle on the Isle of Patmos. I think you overlook the important fact that the purpose of the revelation was not to reveal to men what heaven is like in this age. By reading to the end of the verse from which you quote we learn that it was to reveal to the apostle "things which must be hereafter."

By referring to the first chapter of the Revelation we get more definite information as to the time when the things which must be hereafter would transpire. I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day. Now the Lord's day, the seventh millenial day had not dawned in John's day and is still future.

Again there is frequent mention in the New Testament of a resurrection to life of those having died. This you entirely ignored. You made no mention of a resurrection; but said that the souls of the redeemed having no material body to provide for, and having left their last pain and sorrow in the grave, with their bodies; would dwell with God in eternal felicity.

But are you warranted in assuming that the beings the Revelator saw in company with Jesus were the disembodied spirits of men. As the time for the occurrence of "the things that must be hereafter" is still future it may be that a resurrection of those who have fallen asleep in Jesus may have prior occurrence. Indeed there is warrant for such a conclusion. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air. Then will the bright effulgence of the Lord's day burst upon the enraptured vision of those who love his appearing. May not John saw in company with Jesus have been of the resurrected ones. Jesus himself belonged to that class, for referring again to the first chapter we find him saying I am he that liveth and was dead and behold I am alive forever more, amen; and have the keys of the grave and of death. He was the first born from the dead, that in all things he might have the preeminence. Referring again to your remark that the spirits have no ears. Thanks be to God who giveth us the victory. There is an ear that will respond to the voice of the Son of God. Where is it? Let Jesus answer through this same apostle. Marvel not at this for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life. How can you ignore the resurrection when you find the Savior so often and so lovingly referring to it? To the Sadducees he said, Those who shall be found worthy of that world (the age to come) and the resurrection from the dead will be as the angels of God, neither can they die any more. To one he said, Thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just. To the sorrowing sisters at the grave of Lazarus I am the resurrection and the life.

In conclusion Dr. Smithers, I would ask how you can reconcile your views of the future life with Paul's declaration that if the dead are not raised up then those who have fallen asleep in Christ are perished.

Cordially yours,

J. T. SMITH.

To the Berean of Illinois:

At the quarterly meeting held with the Antioch church on Saturday evening, May 7, it was unanimously decided to hold a Bible school this year just preceding the annual conference as last year. So much did the Board of Management desire it that they voted ten dollars support toward paying [illegible] but for the same. The [illegible] will be held beginning on Monday, August 15, 1904. The work will proceed much on the same plan as last year except that the daily sessions will consist of two periods of an hour and a half each instead of two hours each. Many have already signified their intention of attending.

Young people cannot estimate the value of such a training until they have had it. For further particulars write me. Suffice it to say that about the only expense—at least the chief item of expense—will be the expense of transportation. Please write and say that you are coming.

"The World to Come and the Life Everlasting," is the name of a book of over 400 pages. The title page describes it as a Symposium of Writers on eternal life from the Bible Basis, and is selected from the works of a goodly number of Bible Students who have written during the past few years. It is compiled and published by Bro. John O. Woodruff, of Elizabeth, N. J., of whom it may be ordered. The paper and print are excellent, as is the durable cloth binding. The price is $1.00, and considering the work as a whole it is very low, and we urge all who need a book on this subject to procure one without delay.

Poetry.

No More Death.

There's death everywhere. Life's brightest,
Sunniest morn, is followed by the somber shade of the night of Death.
Just beyond the palace there is a tomb, and over the warm
Embrace smile, there steals the chill of sadness and pain.
There is an open grave, a tomb or a grassy mound
Where the beautiful form of Youth, manhood's prime
And [illegible] all alike will sometime crum-
[illegible]
It's but a little while and life is over. Its hopes, Fears, ambitions, cares, loves all past, all quiet, all so still.
Day succeeds day, month, month; and generation, generation,
As the long line of life marches down into death.
But there will come an end at last.
The longest lane will have a turn, and the deepest canyon has an Outlet for its water. The heart by death so still, so long,
Will throb again. The cheek so pale,
Will blush anew with life, and the tomb, the grave,
The grassy mound will yield their treasures up,
And all will live again.
'Tis ours now to choose and so prepare that we may with
The Just arise, and be clad with immortality
Beyond that morn on which the dead arise,
there'll be no night,
No tears, no pain, no death; the past all gone,
And all things new; and when the life that has no end,
That is to be, is ours, no longer then
Shall we be mortal.

Conditions of Justification, Sonship, and Endless Life.

"He that loses time and opportunities can never get them back. There is no sacrifice, ransom, nor forgiveness in the sense of undoing the consequences, for such willful sin after justification. Heb. x: 26. That is sin against the Holy Spirit, and the person must bear the consequences—loss of position and influence. The ransom is to recover from death, or to make alive in Christ. This secures full justification, sonship, and endless life; but the position to be occupied in the kingdom of God depends upon the use made of opportunities."

The writer of the foregoing extract would have us to understand that it is impossible to lose anything but "position and influence" in the kingdom of God through neglect of "time and opportunities;" that no matter how we may abuse these, we are certain of "full justification, sonship and endless life," which are "secured" by "the ransom." The following lines are intended to show the pernicious consequences arising from the position assumed. The writer speaks of "the ransom" as securing "full justification," etc. The conclusion is enevitable that in his system there are two methods of justification, the one secured by the ransom, and the nature of the other to be inferred by the reader. That all men are sinners and in need of justification, seems to be understood, as also that there is such a relation or condition as justification in this life, which may be followed by "willful sin."

Justification implies and involves "offenses," mentioned in Rom. v: 16. These offenses are acts committed against God, and are contrary to His will. As the first "offense" ever committed against God (v. 15), they are connected with certain consequences. "Death by sin"—is the inevitable tendency. As then, so now, "the wages of sin is death." Rom. vi: 23. All have sinned (Rom. iii: 23), and all are under the sentence of death. Rom. v: 12. As the offense of sin is against God, the Lawgiver who is able to save or destroy (Jas. iv: 12), He alone can pardon or justify, and upon such terms and conditions as He may set forth. "It is God that justifieth." Rom. viii: 33. To justify is "to prove or show to be just, or conformable to law, right, justice, propriety, or duty." What class of persons does He justify? Those who need justification, surely—whom the apostle Paul styles "the ungodly." Rom. iv 5. And there is no difference between "circumcision" and "uncircumcision," Jew and Gentile, in this respect; they are "all under sin." Rom. iii: 9. Is this justification conditional or unconditional? Surely not unconditional. God declares his righteousness: that he might be just and the justifier of him that believeth on Jesus. Rom. iii: 26. This is His method of justification. He has taken the initiative in this matter: He set forth Jesus Christ to be a propitiation (the Object through Whom to show His pity) through faith in his blood, to declare his righteousness for the remission of sins that are past through the forbearance of God, and in this way becomes the justifier of him [illegible] Jesus. God set forth Jesus Christ without the aid of the sinner; but having thus set forth and publicly declared him as the Object of faith (Rom. iv: 25), the blessing or favor of justification is appropriated "through faith in his blood." Ages ago God had it in mind to "justify the heathen through (ek, out of) faith," and so proclaimed glad tidings to Abraham. Gal. iii: 8. "Being justified by faith, we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." Rom. v: 1. What is this faith? We may say, in a word, it is confidence, trust in God. It has to do with "things hoped for" and "things not seen." Heb. xi: 1. It takes God at His word.

We may further remark that such justifying faith is active faith. "Abraham our father" was justified by active faith. Rom. iv: 1, 2. It is said that he "believed God, and it was counted to him for righteousness." v. 3. How much did he believe God? He was "fully persuaded that what he had promised, he was able also to perform." Rom. iv: 21. "By faith . . . he offered up Isaac, of whom it was said, that in Isaac shall thy seed be called, accounting that God was able to raise him up, even from the dead." Heb. xi: 17-19. Thus "was not our father Abraham justified by works when he offered Isaac his son upon the altar?" And we see that "faith wrought with his works, and by works was faith made perfect. And the Scripture was fulfilled which saith, Abraham believed God, and it was imputed unto him for righteousness." Jas. ii: 21-23. His works, then, were the practical demonstration of his faith. From all of which we see that man is justified in the sight of God, shown to be conformable to God's law, to right, justice, propriety, and duty, whose faith in God prompts him to fulfill the demands God makes upon him. This is God's method of justification as revealed in the holy Oracles. Is there any other method revealed? We are given to understand by our author that there is. His method takes no account of any conditions, or faith in God, but simply asserts, without a shred of evidence in its support, that "the ransom secures full justification, sonship and endless life." Faith requires effort and sacrifice, and if we can be sure of the blessings named without faith and without obedience to God, it is little wonder that many are resting on the delusive hope of "full justification, sonship and endless life" without making the sacrifices demanded of and made by others in order to the enjoyment of these blessings.

That the justification here spoken of has reference to the future life is evident from the language employed. "The ransom is to recover from death, or to make alive in Christ." According to the teaching of the word of God men come to be "in Christ" through faith and obedience, but here we have an additional plan of bringing men into Christ which requires neither faith nor obedience.

"Sonship" is another of the favors which are said to be "secured by the ransom." True enough. But how is this sonship brought about? Has God any method in the distribution of His favors? The apostle Paul wrote to the brethren in Galatia. "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus." Gal. iii: 26. Is it possible to be the children of God without faith? "Without faith it is impossible to please Him." Heb. xi: 6. Then how can there be a sonship without faith?

What about "endless life?" Are any conditions to be observed in order to its enjoyment? Jesus complained to the Jews, "Ye will not come unto me that ye might have life." John v: 40. This shows that the proper attitude toward the Lord Jesus is a very essential condition toward the enjoyment of endless life. "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up: that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life. For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." John iii: 14, 15. At [illegible] you, he that heareth my word, and believeth on him that hath sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation, but is passed from death unto life." John. v: 24. "This is the will of him that sent me, that every one that seeth the Son, and believeth on him, may have everlasting life: and I will raise him up at the last day." John vi: 40. Language could not be stronger and plainer to show that the enjoyment of everlasting or "endless life" depends upon the proper observance and improvement of "time and opportunities."

I would impress upon the reader by way of emphasis that "without faith it is impossible to please" God. Heb. xi: 6. How can a man be justified, how become a son of God, how obtain endless life, as long as he does not please God; and how can he please God without faith? Unbelief is a sin against God which results from "an evil heart." Heb. iii: 12.

There is another feature to which I ask attention. If "the ransom secures full justification, sonship and endless life," to one person, it ought to secure the same blessings to another. Either a man is "fully justified," or he is not. If he is fully and unconditionally justified of his disobedience to God, another man who has simply allowed "time and opportunities" to slip by unimproved, should in fairness also be fully justified. If he is justified for such neglect, or in spite of it, why deprive him of "position and influence?" Are not these granted upon condition of continuance in a justified state? Then why not give them to another who is "recovered from death, or made alive in Christ," with "full justification," etc., secured for him by the ransom? How "full" would a justification be that does not fully justify of all past shortcomings?

What about the "loss of position and influence?" Is that all that can be "lost?" Our author would have us so understand. Is this true? According to the words of Jesus, "whosoever will save his life shall lose it: but whosoever will lose his life for my sake, the same shall find it. For what is a man advantaged, if he gain the whole world, and lose himself, or be cast away?" Luke iv: 23-25. Thus not merely "position and influence," but "life" may be lost, and the man himself "cast away." "Lay hold on eternal life." 1. Tim. vi: 12.

Help Your Minister.

With money do I mean? No, not this time, it is not the question before us. There are other things of more importance even than a minister's salary to him. It is his reputation. If it is not good you may be to blame for it. Did you ever think that each one composing the congregation and especially the church body are responsible for the outcome of the minister's work. It may be that one person in the church has so blocked the wheels the almost superhuman efforts of the poor minister are entirely lost. How has it been done? First we must all remember the minister is a human being, too much must not be expected of any poor mortal. The minister has faults to overcome, temptations to battle with, the same as you, but it is no help to him or the cause of truth to have these faults criticized before the neighbors, on the street corner, at the family circle, or in the church before the minister arrives Sunday morning. All of these things leave their bitter, unholy influence—a greater sin than all the minister's faults that have been so ruthlessly handled over, and the poor minister who has spent sleepless nights to prepare something to benefit his congregation [illegible] the influence of the unkind remark it has cast its shadow on him and [illegible] who felt so happy on entering the house of God begins to feel depressed. He does not know why, but as all thought has taken wings like the little [illegible] down and cannot be gathered again, it has done its work, and who is to blame? Is it I? Is it I? Some [illegible] magnified a mole hill [illegible] church does, and that is talked of at the home, the children hear it. It is not long before the minister looks in vain for the members of the family and upon inquiry is told, they are attending the —— church. The minister's heart falls with a sickening bud, he prays in his agony. O Lord, thy grace must be sufficient, my strength is all weakness. Do you suppose the evening sermon can ring out from a free heart and lip while some willing gossip enlightens the minister of what brother and sister blank said yesterday? The ruthless handling of ministerial reputation is one of the flagrant sins of this age. Poisoned arrows are shot from a thousand bows. It is forgotten that the minister's reputation is his stock in "trade." It is everything to him. You might a hundred times better burn his house over his head than to unjustly assail his good name, as well waylay him and stab him to the heart as to break down public confidence in his integrity and religious character. A brother said to me recently, I do dislike to go to Mr. ——— he is always finding fault with our ministers. A bad man should not be shielded from his wrong one minute because he carries the "shepherd's crook," but if he was worthy enough to be employed by the church or Conference then every one in the body should respect the cause enough to protect the minister's good name. No one person is expected to please every one; but if you find he is helping even one in the congregation, do your part to help too. You cannot do it by unjust criticisms of him, or cold indifference to him. If some one who does not care to magnify the cause of truth speaks unkindly of him in your presence, stop it at once and speak of his good qualities. A young lady once said, I do not remember ever hearing in my father's family one unkind word respecting the minister. That father and mother can never estimate the influence for good their loving silence had. Let the minister know you respect him, even love him for his love of the truth, and you will get better sermons, more inspiration to do good, and others will be snatched from death to life. Give your minister a boost by your confidence in him. While many may and do sadly need the money they receive, they need the influence of kindly words and acts far more. Yours hoping for kindly criticism.

MARY A. WOODWARD.

The Devil and Satan.

Continuing former remarks on above subject: Jude also said that Satan disputed with Michael about the body of Moses, which some say proves "two personalities were talking together"—the angel and Satan.

The passage in question no more proves that such a scene or words were of actual occurrence than the story of the Rich man and Lazarus (Luke xvi.) proves conscious existence "in torment" of the dead in literal flames of fire, or the present existence of the faithful in "Abraham's bosom," or as the symbol would indicate, in present enjoyment of their eternal reward.

True, the characters in both passages are represented as talking, but both are as clearly figurative representations as are found in all the Scriptures embodying a truth of far different meaning which we may discover.

If we take the word "devil" to mean "a false accuser," and not as a title or name of a spirit or invisible personal being; simply an adversary (Hebrew Satan) or adverse disposition we have no difficulty here nor elsewhere in the Scriptures. Jesus tells Peter in John vi. 7 that Judas was a devil—a false accuser, the very same word (diabolos) being used to indicate the tempter by whom Jesus is said to be tempted, Luke iv. ii. 3 and Matt. iv. 1, 8, and others. In Luke xxii. 3 it says: "Then Satan entered into Judas," while John says: "The devil having now put it into the heart of Judas Iscariot to betray him John xiii. 8. Was Jesus responsible for his own act [illegible] Jesus or was he cut alto- [illegible] gether the work of an invisible spirit, devil or Satan whose power he was unable to resist? Upon our answer to this question the whole argument for a personal devil rests. Clearly Judas was the one, and true offender. A personal devil could not enter him, but "a man is tempted when he is led away of his own lusts—appetites or desires.

Devil and Satan represent the same general condition of mind; but they differ in this, that "Satan" is the general term for adversary, and the "devil" represents the particular form or nature under which the adversary operates, namely, in falsely accusing, in calumniating. This passage, then, merely shows that the principle of selfishness, the adverse condition to that of Christ, had taken full possession of the mind of Judas, shortly to manifest itself in the outward act of betrayal for money. The money is what he desired, what he coveted, and the act sprang from the heart's sinful desire—where all sinful acts arise.

But to return to the passage in Jude referred to. In connection with this text, reading Dan. x. 13 and 21 we find Gabriel speaking of Michael as assisting him against "the Prince of Persia;" the power which was then holding the house of Judah in captivity. In Dan. xii. 1, we find Michael represented to be the special guardian of Israel—"the, great prince which standeth for thy people." Compare with Zech. iii. 1 and Ezra iv. 6, we get a strong side light on the words in epistle of Jude. The adversary or Satan which Michael is said to have contended with is clearly shown to be intended to represent the persons (officials) who falsely accused and opposed the Jews, as shown by Gabriel's words to Daniel and the allegory (vision) Zech. iii. 1, 2; which undoubtedly represents symbolically the same things. The words attributed to the angel Michael are found there, but are not fully quoted in Jude. They are: "The Lord rebuke thee, O Satan; even the Lord that hath chosen Jerusalem rebuke thee; is not this a brand plucked out of the fire"? The contention is evidently for Israel, not over a dead body. The "body of Moses" signifies the "body" of people of whom Moses was the head or leader; those under "the law of Moses," just as "the body" of Christ is his people or church, i. e., those who are under Christ's law. Both are figures of speech and equally appropriate and Scriptural. Comparing Heb. iii. 2-5 with this explanation and it becomes clear that "the house of Moses" and "the body of Moses" are one and the same—namely Israel. Also read 1 Cor. x. 1-3, along with 12th, 13th and 14th of same. These passages show show that they were "Moses body" by baptism, being "baptized unto Moses" in the cloud and in the sea"—after the same figure we are baptized into Christ by immersion in water. Gal. iii. 27. The passage is therefore not to be taken as literal but figurative. Concerning the temptation of Jesus, if there is a rule by which we may know in such passages what is literal, it is the simple one that unless all the parts of a passage fairly admit of a literal interpretation in accordance with common sense, it should not be taken so.

Upon this principle, can we suppose that a being came to our Lord in person; in visible form and recognized by him as Satan? That he speaks with audible voice, takes Jesus bodily from place to place and is known throughout these translations as the devil or Satan? Does it accord with common sense to suppose that under such circumstances there was any chance of Jesus being tempted to accept the offer of the devil since he recognizes the tempter in his true character. I doubt if any of us would be tempted by a devil who worked in such an open and straightforward way as this. Evidently to suppose the literal and personal appearance of the devil before the Son of God would have been to destroy any possibility of the tempter succeeding.

True we are told to "resist the devil and he will flee from thee" (Jas. iv. 7, and 1 Peter v. 9) and evidently what is taught by the apostles was the experience here of Jesus also. Now was any man ever tempted by a personal devil or Satan? In fact would a personal visit from such an one as the devil is popularly represented tempt any man in his right mind?

Furthermore, are we not told that Christ "was in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin." Heb. iv. 15. Now unless his temptation was like or of the same kind as ours what force or point is there in the argument with which the writer of Hebrews sought to prove that "our high priest" could be touched with a feeling of our infirmities"? There being none at all, the conclusion is reasonable that as we are not subjected to visits and temptations by a "personal devil" neither was Christ, since they were "like" (i. e. of same kind) in order to gain us his sympathy through his own experience.

But suppose some one insists that "the Scripture says the devil or Satan took Jesus up into a high mountain" and therefore it must be so. I would ask, if this is literal what mountain is there so high as to literally enable one upon its summit to behold "all the kingdoms of the world"? There being no such mountain, that is not a literal matter, and as Luke says it only took "a moment of time," are we not right in saying this is another [illegible]

Eph. vi. 11 is quoted in connection with 1 Peter v. 8, 9. Put on the whole armor of God that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil." Now here is a passage highly figurative in its nature in which one of the figures is given a literal meaning. Is it not evident that Paul did not mean a personal devil any more than he meant a man could put on an armor, or literal coat of mail belonging to or furnished by God? Is the armor literal or figurative? Evidently figurative and therefore appropriately reckoned the kind of armor with which to oppose a figurative enemy.

In the same manner Peter represents the adversary as "like a roaring lion which walketh about seeking whom he may devour." Who would insist upon this being taken just as literal as the words read? If any one has ever heard of a personal devil appearing in this form or known of his devouring any one the personality of the devil is proven—not otherwise.

The kind of armor Paul describes in Eph. vi. such as "the breastplate of righteousness"—"shield of faith"—"helmet of salvation" and "sword of the Spirit" as well as Peter's admonitions "be humble, be sober, be vigilant, etc., show the nature of the enemy to be not personal, but the spiritual darkness and wickedness of the powers which rule in this present evil world, and which can only be overcome by their opposites, spiritual enlightenment and righteousness, the source of which is God our Father through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory and honor both now and for ever.

These remarks have not begun to exhaust the subject but merely roughly indicating many points which could be much better covered by more experienced writers or some with more time at their disposal for such work. Enough is shown however to point the way for any with open minds who are searching for the truth of this important subject. All such will be well repaid the time given this study.

Yours in hope of eternal life.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Paternity of Jesus and Arraignment of Marcionism.

No. 6.

Beclouded must be the mind that cannot see that Jesus was not an adopted Son; and that if no REAL SON had been sent forth, there could have been no sons adopted.

By virtue of his SONSHIP Jesus was HEIR; and the Heir gave the power to become sons and heirs to all "who believed into his name." John i. 12. He gave this power by offering himself, his offices and work, as the object of their faith.

Paul in Romans i. 16 says it is the gospel of this same Christ, that is the power of God unto salvation to all who believe it. The very gospel Jesus referred to when he said, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Mark xvi. 16. This is being led by the Spirit, Rom. viii. 14, and constituted sons of God—Jesus' words were spirit and life.

The system we oppose practically places Jesus on a level with other men; and shows how far away from the truth it is when it says there was no cleansing power in his blood, through faith.

The Scriptures above quoted are invulnerable. The heaviest artillery of the enemy cannot effect them, nor those who trust in them. And the next reference we shall make will infallibly endorse what we have just said respecting his sonship and heirship; and the adoption of sons, and their joint-heirship with him who is heir of all.

John iii. 14-16 reads as follows: "And as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life, for God so loved the world, that he gave his ONLY BEGOTTEN Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."

This beyond question settles it,

1. That there is no other Son of THAT CLASS; and

2. That God is the Father of Jesus in a sense in which he is Father to NO ONE else, and

3. That it is for his EXISTENCE he is indebted to God in the manner set forth, not for any other relationship. His paternity is here settled independently of Matthew and Luke.

4. That he did not become the Son of God, when he was baptized. The announcement of his Sonship to God was then made.

5. That he did not become Son of God at his resurrection. He was then AGAIN DECLARED to be the Son of God with power, according the Spirit of Holiness, BY the resurrection from the dead," instead of orally.

6. That he became Son of God at his birth, because he was made of a woman by God; and that again accounts for his EXISTENCE. And

7. The promise of Gabriel, that the Holy Thing to be born of Mary should be called the Son of God, was actually and literally fulfilled,—as the words of Jesus, John iii. 16 prove.

Of course the last quotation will be objected to, as not authentic; but the objectors can throw out whatever they please, and welcome; but since they have confessed they are obliged to do so on an opinion it would be folly to allow them to do any culling for us.

The trouble of this humiliating confession was caused by deciding that Joseph was the Father of Jesus, before they searched for proof of it,—a practice they have for years denounced vigorously, when other questions were involve. What is the use of Bible scholarship if it is not used? Ages before the events recorded in Matthew and Luke, the Spirit in Jeremiah said: "Behold the days come, saith Jehovah, that I will raise unto David a Righteous Branch, and a King shall reign and prosper, and shall execute judgment and justice in the earth, in his days Judah shall be saved, and Israel shall dwell safely, and this is his name whereby he shall be called, The Lord our righteousness." Jer. xxiii. 5, 6. Note

1. The learned tell us it is the the Hebrew word Jehovah, which is rendered Lord in the above quotation.

2. That Jah is a contraction of Jehovah.

With this in mind let us read Psa. cxviii. 26, "Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord, (Heb. Jehovah) and then turn to Matt. xxiii. 39 which gives us the words of Jesus. "Ye shall not see ME henceforth, till ye say, [of me] Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord;" as he quotes the exact words of Psa. cxiii. 25 and identifies himself for us, we are on a safe footing;—are sure that the word Lord here means Jehovah, because that is the meaning of the original of it.

Turning to Isa. xlix. 1-6, we read, "Listen, O, isles unto me; and hearken ye people from afar. Jehovah hath called me from the womb; from the bowels of my mother hath he made mention of my name. And he said, it is a light thing that thou shouldst be my servant to raise up the tribes of Israel. I will also give thee for a light to the Gentiles, that thou mayest be my salvation unto the end of the earth." Every reader knows that Gabriel did make mention of his name when he made the announcement to Mary that she should have a son, and also that he was to be called Jesus. This name Jesus is the Greek word Jesous anglicised, but not the proper name of the Nazarine, which was yehhoshea, a Hebrew name which by coming through Greek orthography, is corrupted into Jesus. It is the same as the English, Joshua. It is compounded of two Hebrew words, Yah, —the abbreviated form of Yahweh, the glorious and fearful name of the eternal One, meaning in English, "He who shall be," and Hoshea, meaning salvation or deliverance. So that the name of him who was begotten of the Virgin Mary was the same as that of his Father.

We see from this that when Jesus in John v. 43 says, "I am come in my Father's name, it means far more than that he had come by the authority of his father. We know of no other man who came in the Father's name in this sense. But Jehovah warned Moses to beware and not provoke the angel who was to accompany the Israelites on the way to the promised land, for he would not pardon their transgressions, for his (Jehovah's) name was in him.

But the testimony of the Spirit in Heb. i. 5-14 is to the effect that their exaltation power and glory is so far inferior to that of the first begotten Son of God, that not one of them was ever invited to sit on the right hand of the Majesty in the heavens. To not one did the Great Jehovah ever say, "Thou art my Son, this day I have begotten thee,—or I will be to him a father, and he shall be to me a Son."

Those who are familiar with the Scriptures will recognize the last clause quoted, as part of God's covenant with David concerning his seed that will occupy the throne of his kingdom for ever. 2 Sam. vii. 12-16. And we here remind our readers

1. That these were sons of God who shouted for joy when the foundations of the earth were laid; but they were not begotten sons. Heb. i. 5-9.

2. That Jesus was not an adopted Son was previously proven but begotten;—and the only begotten son. And

3. This last fact explains why we read that the Son by whom God has spoken to us in these last days,—the begotten Son,—has been appointed heir of all things; it was on account of him the ages were constituted. Heb. i. 2. And proving beyond controversy, by the 4th and 5th verses.

4. That he inherited his name from him who begot him, as all other sons do. And

5. That that name was NOT JOSEPH. And

6. That it was JEHOVAH. And

7. That the above furnishes infallible evidence that Jesus, made of a woman, and LOWER than the angels in NATURE OF EXISTENCE for the suffering of death, (Heb. ii. 9) by Divine Paternity out-ranked all men and all angels. To not one of these did Jehovah ever say, "Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever," nor "Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee."

No one can deny that the Almighty has a vast number of adopted sons, dead and alive, but He never treats with any of them on any special terms. The best, and most inclusive offer is, to make them joint heirs with his only begotten Son. And when we in a measure realize the vastness of his domains, besides all the honor power and glory accompanying it; the offer appears unspeakably great.

But those we oppose write as if they knew exactly what is possible, and what is not, in connection with the subject in hand. Happily we have been baptized into the Christ who spake from heaven saying, "I am He that liveth, and was dead; and have the keys of hades and of death."

We rejoice to have had an interest in the author of those words for nearly fifty years. For several years previous to that time we trusted in Christ who we supposed allowed his body to be put to death on our account but did not himself die. This idea grew out of the fact that we had been taught that man was of a dual nature, partly human, partly divine. When we discovered that man was a unit, and that Christ was in all things made like unto His brethren, and therefore could not be dead and alive at the same time; and learned from 1 Cor. xv: 3, 4, that it was the Christ that died for our sins, not a part of him; and that it was the Christ that died that rose again, according to the Scriptures; and learned further that if the Christ that died had not been raised, faith in Him would have been vain, because those believing would be still in their sins; (See 1 Cor. xv: 14-17) and the preaching vain. But why all these dire results? The answer is found in Rom. iv: 25, "Who was delivered for our offences; and was raised again for our justification." But why so, some one may ask? Because we have to be justified from [illegible] the risen one, His counsel, His office and work, was the object for justifying faith to take hold of. If he had not been raised, he would not have overcome death for himself or others; life and immortality could not have been brought to light. A glorious message from heaven was this "I am He that liveth and was dead; and behold I am alive for evermore, Amen; and have the keys of hades and of death." No one need be in doubt as to what his identity inheres in. The pronouns "I" and "He" locate it. It is supposed by some that the paternity of Jesus can only be settled by a mysterious dualism, or the Josephite idea.

We hold that neither of these suggestions could be much farther from the truth. That is to say, we hold both to be entirely wrong. We are writing now for those who are supposed to agree with us on the nature of man as revealed in the Scriptures; and that by one man sin entered into the world and death by sin. All such should readily agree that

1. That parents in varying degrees stamp their intellectual, moral and physical qualities upon their children, and

2. That the function of the brain is to know, think, remember, love, hate, be good, bad, conscientious, etc. and

3. That the cultivation of any mental or moral faculty increases its strength; and neglect of the same diminishes, and practically destroys it. The indulgence of appetites, tastes, and passions, vividly illustrates this principle. and

4. That as God made man upright, (Eccl. vii: 29.) or with a well balanced mental and moral organism, so that he should have a fair start on his probationary career, man, by his many inventions, threw himself out of plumb on the principle indicated above. and

5. That a wise and good God would not begin to create a new race out of the old one, with a lopsided, or biased mental and moral organism. Fallible men would hardly manifest such unwisdom; to say nothing of the injustice or unfairness unveiled and

6. That the wisdom and goodness of God in the beginning of the New Creation was manifested in the initial step taken. It was not an expedient; but a step determined upon at least four thousand years before it was taken. and

7. That the promise that the seed of the woman should crush the head of the serpent, intimates that he would deviate from the usual course of nature in fulfilling that promise. and

8. That the nature of God's intervention is disclosed in His covenant with David, recorded in 2 Sam. vii: 14, in the words, "I will be His Father, and He shall be my Son." and

9. That it was not the creation of a child that already existed, that would constitute God the Father of David's seed, but that the very existence of that Son would be due to His intervention, is proven by the words of Jehovah in Psalm 2: 7. "I will declare the decree; Jehovah has said unto me, Thou art My Son; this day have I begotten thee." and

10. That inasmuch as Jesus was made of a woman, and therefore possessed her nature, which was amenable to the law of sin and death, God's intervention did not impart to him divine nature of existence; for we have already given the divine evidence that he was made in the form of sinful flesh, so that God could condemn sin in his flesh, by his death. And

11. That as God never does what is not necessary, he had other reasons for his intervention. And

12. That as not one of the countless millions who had up to that time lived and died had been sinless; and, as the blood of a sinner was of no more value for salvation purposes than that of bulls and goats; neither could it be the blood of the New Covenant, which alone can discharge prisoners from the pit in which there is no water; and in view of the law of heredity, which constitutes all of Adam's children sinners, and pre-disposes them to personally sin; and inasmuch as Jesus could not have earned his discharge from the power of death by perfect obedience, if through divine nature he were incapable of sinning; we think it safe to conclude, in view of all this, that the love of God for the work of his hand led him to intervene as he did, so that the second Adam might not be cumbered so severely with the warped moral organism imparted by a human father, but as like as possible to the upright condition of the first Adam when put on trial. And

13. That we might safely discard the learned foolishness respecting "microbes," "hybridism," "fertilizing elements," and the like, and rejoice [illegible] to know of God degree that to NEVER is to CAUSE to BE, or to EXIST; and that to CREATE, is "To cause to come into existence," and that "To make," also means "To cause to exist; bring into being; to form out of any materials; to influence," etc. So we rejoice because we read in Gal. iv. 4, that God sent forth his Son, made of a woman. And in Heb. ii. 7, we read of God as follows: "Thou madst him [Jesus] a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death," etc. And Isaiah xlix. 5, respecting the same person, "And now, saith Jehovah who is forming me from the womb, his servant, to bring Jacob again to him."—Dr. Youngs Translation. And in Psalms ii. 7, "I will declare the decree, the Lord hath said unto me, 'Thou art my son; this day have I begotten thee." Four passages, in four different books of the Bible, relating to one person, the Lord Jesus Christ. Two of them say he was MADE, one of them says he was FORMED, and the other that he was BEGOTTEN. Three different ways of designating one thing, viz, the cause of the coming into existence of Jesus, the radical meaning of each being the same.

All this is confirmed, and memorably explained in Luke i. 35, in these words, "The Holy Spirit shall come upon thee (Mary) and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee, therefore that Holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God."

"Blind unbelief is sure to err
And scan his works in vain"

The following extract from a leaflet sown broadcast in England shows exactly what we are asked to believe:—

"It is written 'Whosoever therefore, shall confess me (the son of Joseph) before men, him will I confess also before my Father who is in heaven. But whosoever shall deny me (Joseph's son) before men, him will I also deny before my Father who is in heaven.'"

To offset this we quote from Matt. iii. 17, the words of the voice from heaven, "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased."

This squarely crosses the track of most of the advocates of Josephitism, who say he became the Son of God at his resurrection. God the Father miraculously announced that Jesus was his Son at his baptism.

In addition to this we offer the testimony of Jesus himself, in Matt. xii. 24-27, but will quote only from verse 27 to save space: "All things are delivered unto me of my Father; and no man knoweth the Son but the Father; neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal him." The Father referred to here is said to be the Lord of heaven and earth. Here is proof of weightier character that God was the Father of Jesus before he died and rose again. And that

By virtue of his Sonship all things had been delivered unto him. And that

No one but the Father knew the Son. And that

No one knew the Father but the Son. Proving

That there was no other Son of God beside him, or he would not have been the only person that knew the Father.

Lastly, That it was not possible for any one to know the Father except through this acknowledged Son; a matter of tremendous import, in the light of Jesus' words in John xvii. 3. Addressing his Father he said: "And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent."

Any one who wishes to believe that no one knew God, but a son of Joseph; and that no one knew the son of Joseph but God; and that salvation depended upon CONFESSING THE SON OF JOSEPH before men, are quite welcome to do so, as far as we are concerned. They are also welcome to believe they are predestinated to be conformed to the image of Joseph's son, (Rom. viii. 29.) that Joseph's son might be the first-born among many brethren

And that God so loved the world that he gave the beloved son of Joseph, that whosoever believeth into him might not perish, but have eternal life. John iii. 16. And

That God committed all judgment unto the son of Joseph, that all men should honor that son of Joseph as they honor himself, John v. 22, 23. And

That it was the beloved son of Joseph that was sent to the wicked tenants after others had been so ill treated, thinking they would reverence him; but, instead of that, being the heir, they killed him. But that they ought, in justice to themselves, consider the Lord's own application of the parable in Matt. xxi. 42, 43.

[illegible] to test the strength of the Japanese forces, General Kourpatkin sent 20,000 men to drive them from Motien pass. The Russians came back with over 1000 men missing. A high price for the information obtained. While it seems the progress is very slow, when we consider the nature of the ground that has to be passed, and the necessity of keeping in touch with supply bases, we can understand more why delays are necessary. Day by day little seems to be accomplished, but if we look at the advances of a month, progress is apparent. One thing is certain, delay is a help to Russia, and the longer she can put off decisive battle the better for her. More troops are being sent, and the money in the war chest of little Japan is fast dwindling, while that of Russia is hardly touched. Latest reports tell of fighting within sight of New Chwang. It is also stated that a determined effort will be made to capture Port Arthur before the end of July.

The passage of the Dardanelles by volunteer ships, which are at once converted into war ships, has raised a protest that is unsettled, and likely to cause friction. The seizure of British and German steamers in the Red Sea, and sending them to neutral ports for examination, has caused an upheaval of the sentiment in these countries, and while not disallowing her rights in the matter, Russia has given orders to stop such seizures for the present. There is little doubt that articles that are clearly contraband are shipped to eastern ports, to be transshiped to Japan. on many vessels not only of British and German lines, but of American as well. While the stoppage of these supplies will cause some annoyance to the Japanese, still they are not vital to her just now. The gain by Russia over Japan by this work will not nearly balance the trouble she will be in with these nations. Hence it will be wise for her to desist. Meanwhile the status of the Black Sea Volunteer fleet will have to be ascertained. Some claim the treaty allows the passage of such vessels flying the mercantile flag, and that Turkey nor any one else can say what shall be done with them afterwards. Others claim that it requires more than the simple hoisting of a flag, and daubing of a little paint to make a warship out of a merchantman, or to convert a battleship into a peaceful liner. One thing is certain, Russia has succeeded in having some vessels that are now warships pass the Dardanelles, in spite of the existing treaty, and another question is before the powers for settlement. Meanwhile these ships are free to aid the Russian government against the Japanese.

The tract advertised by Bro. A. H. Zilmer under the title "Will all men be saved," has been placed on our desk, and we advise all who are in any way troubled by this question to buy a copy and read it. The arguments it contain will not, of course, convince all, but any one who reads the book will have a better understanding of the subject, and be amply repaid for the time and expense. The question of whether all men will be saved is second in importance only to the one as to whether or not I am among those who are to have salvation. The one concerning me individually is of primary interest, and should be looked after first of all. Then the salvation of others is next to hand, and we are not to neglect the rights of other people, but lend a hand to see that they get what is due them. If there is salvation for all men we ought to know of it. Get Bro. Zilmer's tract and read it. It may help you to an understanding of the subject.

The Entered Word.

The entrance of thy words giveth light; it giveth understanding unto the simple. Ps. 119, 130. His plain Scripture informs us that it is the receiving, the admission, of the words, that gives light. Not the hearing, nor the reading, nor the knowing of the words, but the mental reception, and endorsement, and also heartfelt obedience to the word, that giveth light. It is some ten years since I began to strive to believe what I call the deep things of the simple words of God, and our Lord Jesus Christ, and I can and do assure all that the entrance of the words do give light and understanding to the simple.

Going from place to place in furtherance of my work, I meet many privately, as well as publicly, and I am asked a great many questions concerning rule and conduct of life according to the Scriptures. When I find I cannot answer a plain question with plain Bible words, I say I do not know. Time and again I have been asked what my opinion is on partnership, union, or marriage between believers & unbelievers, or between those of the Church of God, and those who are not. My answer is, that I have no opinion, my opinion might be darkness, but here are the words that give me light and understanding. What communion hath light with darkness? 2 Cor. vi: 14. Ans, the only answer is, none. A graduate of the common school can answer the question correctly.

Dearly beloved we are the temple of the living God, by the entrance of his word, God dwells in us, walks in us.

He is our God, and we are his people by the entrance of his word, so that even the simple understand, and will not undertake any unequal yoke. If ye love me keep my commands. John says the Lord does not give commands to grieve his people. And I can and do here testify from experience and observation, that when we give the word entrance and walk by its light, in due time we realize that the commands are all given for our special benefit, and we avoid the galling pain of the unequal yoke.

Another, Do you think it possible to love our neighbors as ourselves? Answer, Mat. v: 44. Example 2 Cor. xii: 15. Comment, If we through heartfelt obedience to the gospel, by the entrance of the word, have obtained a hope of eternal life, and we then proceed according to 2 Tim. ii: 24, 25. These words enlighten me to state that we cannot otherwise prove that we love our neighbors as ourselves.

Poetry.

The Jews.

The wonder of the ages past;
A standing miracle today!
Their sky with darkness overcast—
And countless pitfalls 'long their way.
Still they exist, apart and lone,
The doomed and wand'ring exiled race,
That treads the soil of every zone,
Without a home, without a place.

Their city, old Jerusalem,
Neath heap on heap in ruin lies;
Though once she sparkled like a gem,
Beneath the blue of Orient skies;
But desolation most complete
Now sits enthroned on Zion's hill;
Her soil is pressed by alien feet;
The voice of sacred psalm is still.

To David's Son upon the throne
Is bowed no more the subject head;
No offering on the altar stone,
Where once the countless victims bled;
Nor willing tribes seek Jacob's God,
To pour their songs in holy strain;
The spot where mitred Levite trod,
By Moslem foot is made profane.

Opposing forces all combined—
The pestilence, and fire, and sword,
—The cruelty of humankind—
Have wrought the vengeance of the Lord,
The cup of curses they have drained;
The bitter dregs their lips do have pressed
Their sinful pride the Lord has stained,
—Their weary feet have found no rest.

For years and years they've borne their shame
Beneath the proud oppressor's rod;
In lands adorned with freedom's name,
Their blood has also stained the sod,
And yet beneath this deep disgrace,
As once the favored sons of old,
Exists the unconquer'd pride of race;
Remains the unquenchless thirst for gold.

Amid the changes of all time,
As dwelling empires rose and fell;
As nations filled their cup of crime,
And sank into a nations' hell;
Though crushed beneath the conqueror's tread,
The Jews in spite of all survive;
Though as a nation counted dead;
Yet as a race they live and thrive.

Their enemies have tried in vain
To bend or break their lofty will;
To wear as slaves the servile chain,
To toil like beasts that turn the mills.
Mid changes wrought by time and place;
Against the march of all events,
Remains intact the ancient race,
A monument of Providence.

What people could endure so long
So much of spite and fiendish hate,
Through eighteen hundred years of wrong,
And still outlive the dreadful fate?
But soon the darkness will be gone;
The first faint tinge of light appears,
The herald of the coming dawn,
That ushers in the brighter years.

When guided by an unseen hand,
Thy expatriated sons once more
Oh Palestine, thou sacred land!
Shall bend their steps toward thy shore,
Jerusalem shall rise and shine,
Queen city of the New-born East,
And temple service then divine
Will consecrate the solemn feast.

Then stores of blessing shall come down;
Refreshing rain and dew distill,
And wealth of verdure then shall crown
The desert, vale and barren hill.
The Prince of David's house shall reign,
The rightful heir to David's throne,
The manger-cradled babe, once slain,
Will sway a scepter all must own.

Wisdom of Seirach.

CHAPTER 42.

1. Do not be ashamed of these things and do not take a face (show partiality) so as to sin.

2. Concerning a law of the Most High and his covenant, and concerning a verdict to justify the irreverent man.

3. Concerning a word of a partner and fellow-travelers, and concerning the giving of an inheritance of comrades.

4. Concerning accuracy of weight and measures, concerning the acquisition of many and few things;

5. Concerning common buying and selling, and concerning much chastening-instruction of children, and blood-storming the side of a wicked house-servant.

6. A seal for a wicked woman and where hands are many shut her up.

7. Whatever thou mayest commit in trust do it by number and weight, and let giving and taking in everything be in writing.

8. Concerning instruction of the ignorant and foolish and an extremely old man to be given to young men,—thou wilt both be instructed thyself in a true way and of approved-value in the sight of every living man.

9. A daughter out of a father's sight is a wakeful anxiety, and over-anxiety for her standeth away sleep. In her youth lest she pass the prime perchance, and when married lest perchance she be hated.

10. In her virginity lest she become defiled, and become enceinte in her paternal home; when with a husband lest she evade duty and become sterile though married.

11. Over a headstrong daughter keep a strict watch lest perchance she make thee a laughing-stock for enemies, a subject of common-talk in a city an object of a laity's legal summons, and lest she put thee to shame in a mass-meeting of many.

12. Do not regard any man in the way of beauty, and do not sit in counsel in the midst of women;

13. For from outer-garments a moth goeth in its way and from a woman a woman's wickedness.

14. Better is a man's wickedness than a well-doing woman, and a woman who putteth to shame doeth it unto reproach.

15. I shall have called to mind forsooth the works of the Lord, and I will discourse the things I have seen. In the Lord's words are his works.

16. A sun that shineth hath looked down on everything, and his work is full of his glory.

17. The Lord hath not created in his saints the power to discourse all his wonders, works which the All-controlling Lord canopied, to have the whole stand fast in his glory.

18. An abyss and a heart hath he searched out and in their subtleties hath he thought them through; for the Lord knoweth every way of knowing and hath looked into a sign of an animate-age.

19. Therefrom announcing the things that have come to pass, and the things that are going to be, and uncovering the footsteps of hidden things.

21. No thought hath passed him by, nor hath a word been hidden from him.

21. The great things of his wisdom did he arrange in a cosmic-order even while it was before an animate-age and unto the animate-age; nor have they been added to nor diminished, and neither hath he besought for any fellow-counselor.

22. Since all his works are works to be desired, and like the seeing of a spark of fire is it to behold them.

23. All these things live and abide forever in all their uses (or in all needful ways) and they all obey.

24. All things are double, a one over opposite the one, and he created nothing that leaveth off (or is a failure).

25. The good things did he ordain as a one of the one, and who will have been filled with seeing his glory?

COMMENT.

It is a pity that even in this twentieth century we cannot see and more generally assert the practical wisdom contained in the first fourteen verses of this chapter both in our individual and national life. It would be the speedy solution of many of the vexing problems and is the oracular answer to many of the burning sociological questions of the day the civilized world over.

From the 15th verse to the 25th or the close of the chapter we have what I consider fundamental inspired teaching in the realm of natural science and philosophy of great suggestive value to the professed truth-seeker in these fields of inexhaustible research.

For instance the positive assertion here made in answer to the most recent tentative inquiry of modern physical science that life does pervade inanimate as well as animate creation in short is as pervasive as the law of gravity in the universe. Again the question of the indestructibility of matter still unsolved and unsettled by our schools of philosophy—answered here by a positive affirmation.

Again the positive affirmation of the all-pervasiveness of sound, the tentative suggestion of which made De Quincy "an opium-fed fanatic" in the eyes of the positive scientists of his day.

Again the impossibility of any thought even escaping the knowledge of "the God who is in all his world"—much more any word or expressed thought.

Most interesting of all perhaps is the assertion in the 24th verse of the marriage of matter" as well as of man in the fiat of creation—the productive-law or "the law of productivity" upon which rests the law of the perpetuity of matter. The latest science now in discarding "the infinite-molecule" theory, in its published results and conclusions is apparently groping slowly towards a similar affirmation. No units merely in all God's creation, but duplex unities working out God's law of perpetuity in "the cosmos of the heavens and the earth."

The first hint of a "Gulf-stream" and the now well-known "ocean currents" was received from a poor translation of "the wisdom of Salomoon" another "apochriphal Book" of divine revelation.

Possibly science and scientists may find another "pou sto" by hauling back to old "apochriphal Seirach." Wait and see. We are on the eve of greater discoveries than ever before in the natural world and the conclusions of heathen philosophy and unassisted reason will have "to take a seat away back."

Prepare to attend the coming Ohio State Conference of the Church of God. It will be held again at Salem, O., beginning Thursday evening September 1, 1904, and continue over the following Sunday. Notify Bro. P. Neill 366 N. Main St. Salem, O. when you expect to arrive and he will arrange to meet you at the depot and see that you are taken care of. Salem, O. is located on the P. Ft. W. & C. branch of the Penna. Co. Good speakers will be in attendance. The programme will be published later.

The Conference of last year was the first held in Ohio in recent years. Much good has come from the organization of a Conference Body. An evangelist has been placed in the field and isolated organizations of the Faith have been visited. The Evangelist Bro. P. Neill reports that up to June 30, 1904, 21 visits have been made and 76 sermons delivered. Of this number Sister P. Neill delivered 7. Number of baptisms 2. They have also been able to keep up the work in Salem, O. having delivered 60 sermons, besides holding the usual mid-week meetings.

The Evangelist also reports many private talks in regard to the Faith and instructing many how to walk the narrow way. He has carried on a volume of correspondence, and has labored diligently in the cause of the Truth as he could find or make opportunity, and he is willing and anxious to do more.

Up to date about 425 dollars have been collected to be used by the Conference Body. Brothers and sisters, let us see if we can double this amount next year and find more work for our Evangelist. Come to the meeting in September and enjoy the fellowship of the saints.

The Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Indiana is to be held at the Church of God near Hillisburg, Ind., beginning at 8 o'clock Thursday evening September 8, 1904, and continue over the following Sunday. Brethren and sisters, bear in mind, this is the Annual Conference, at which the Annual business of the Churches in Indiana is transacted, officers elected, plans to be devised for the prosecution of the work, and also a spiritual feast enjoyed. Let all the churches be represented at this Conference. The brethren at Hillisburg are preparing for a large attendance and will make you welcome. Come to the Conference, and bring some one with you. Bring your Bible.

A. H. ZILMER, Pres.
Lydia Rallsback, Sec.

The 17th Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Iowa will be held at their beautiful campground at Waterloo, commencing August 20th and continuing over Sunday August 28, 1904. A rate of 1¼ fare for the round trip on the Certificate Plan has been granted by all railroads from all points in Iowa. Full fare is paid on the going trip and ½ fare on the return trip, if you present your certificate properly signed by the President of the Conference. Be sure to get your certificate of Agent when you buy a ticket; otherwise you can get no reduction.

On arriving at Waterloo if the Conference Baggageman is there give him your checks. If not there bring checks to the Campground. Our baggageman will have a badge upon his hat reading "Conference Baggageman." Give checks to no other.

Take the Street Car for Cedar River Park and get off at the Campground. Tents will be furnished to all. Bring your straw ticks and a few comforters. Board at the Dining Hall ten cents per meal, or three meals for twenty-five cents. This is cheaper than you can board at home.

Begin at once to calculate on being at the meeting. We need your presence and counsel on the questions of vital importance which will come before the Conference. Come for the first day and stay all through the meeting.

Now Brethren and Sisters, can you not afford to go to meeting once a year? Some of you will come no doubt, others have not had the opportunity for a whole year. Let the words of the prophet sink deep into your hearts and create within you a stronger desire than ever before to be present at this meeting. Invite your neighbors and friends to come and spend a ten days vacation in this beautiful park. If we cannot interest them there are plenty of amusements to enable them to pass away the time very pleasantly.

Dear Bereans:

The time for our conference is fast approaching and I wish to remind you of our annual business meeting which we always conduct at that time. How glad we would be to have every Berean of Illinois present, but since that is impossible let each society make every effort to send a delegate. If that cannot be done do not omit to send a report. That at least is possible with every society and every isolated member.

The latter would enjoy attending our conference even more than the former, since one who is away from an organization cannot enjoy the blessings and privileges which members of societies do.

Do not fail to gladden us with your presence if possible, or if not each and every member who is isolated and every society let us know of your progress during the past year.

All who will sacrifice something to be present, will surely return thinking, "It was good to have been there."

Reports must reach me not later than August the fifteenth.

MARY ASLAKSEN, Sec'y.
364 Dickens Ave., Chicago, Ill.

To the Illinois Bereans:—

Will all the Bereans who pledged a dollar to the society at the last conference please send in their pledges by the first of August, to E. T. Renner, Treas., Lanark, Ill.

In Memoriam.

Many of the readers of THE RESTITUTION are familiar with the name of J. B. Adams, who died March 9, 1904, at Hamburg, Iowa, where he was laid to rest on March 11, to await the coming of him who is the resurrection and the life. Hamburg has been his home for the last fifteen years. Those who knew him well bear record that his walk in life was that of an upright Christian man, who honored his profession. Testimonies of that kind are truly refreshing and encouraging, and exercise a beneficial effect upon survivors who know such to be a fact.

He was married in 1888 to the widow who now mourns his loss. She testifies that he has been a kind and good husband to her, hence, she sadly feels her bereavement. When married to him she says that she was an Episcopalian. From him she learned the way of the Lord more perfectly. Having been instructed in the grand old gospel of the kingdom and also learned the grand truth that life eternal was not a natural inheritance, but a gift of God through Jesus Christ, she was buried with Christ in baptism in Lake Carmel, at Hamburg, Iowa. This Blessed Hope gives an inspiration to life, it tends to raise the mind from scenes of sorrow to lofty and joyous aspirations to a period of time where there will be no tear-stained faces. At that time joy will beam from every eye, sweet harmony and peace dwell within every breast. This, to the true believer, is music of seraphic sweetness. In anticipation the heart sings for joy. This sunbeam of hope lights up the dark pathway, and converts gloom into glory.

Behold the western evening light,
It melts in deep'ning gloom,
So calmly Christians sink away
Descending to the tomb.

Night falls, but soon the morning light
Its glories shall restore,
And thus the eye that sleeps in death
Shall wake to close no more.

May God bless the aged sister, and keep her true to her purpose, sound in the faith, with her eye steadfastly fixed on the coming King.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.
W. H. WILSON.

Revelation XVII.

Verse 1, "I will show unto thee the judgment of that great city, (verse 18) that sitteth upon many peoples and multitudes, and nations and tongues" (verse 15) or "Which reigneth over the kings of the earth." Verse 18. Verse 3, "I saw a great city (verse 18) sit upon a scarlet colored beast, full of names of blasphemy, having seven heads and ten horns." "The seven heads are seven mountains upon which the 'city' (verse 18) sitteth." Verse 9. "Yet this is Rome, that sat on her seven hills, and from her throne of beauty ruled the world!" Rienzi's Address to the Romans.

We do not need the proof of chapter xviii. 10, 16, 18, 19 to prove the woman to be a city. How could a plainer description of the city of Rome be given? The statement of verse 10 that "There are seven kings" does not affect that of verse 9 that "The seven heads are seven mountains." The seven kings or heads in the view of many, are the seven successive forms of government of Rome, viz: Kings, consuls, dictators, decemvirs, military tribunes, emperors and the German emperors.

The beast that was, and is not, and yet is" (verse 8) is the Roman power which existed first in pagan istic form and then "was not" but sprung up again in the form of Roman Catholicism, at the head of which is Antichrist. If this interpretation is correct Rome well deserves the name written in verse 5, "Mystery, Babylon the Great, the Mother of Harlots and Abomination of the Earth." Some may object that the "Woman" typifies the Church. That may be true and yet have nothing to do with the authenticity of this interpretation, just as the sacrifice of the Passover was a literal fact and yet typical of Christ's sacrifice.

Yours in the love of truth.
GEORGE A. WATERS.

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

Poetry.

The Obstacle Always Ahead.

There's always a river to cross,
Always an effort to make,
If there's anything good to win,
Any rich prize to take.
Yonder's the fruit we crave,
Yonder the charming scene,
But deep and wide, with a troubled tide,
Is the river that lies between.

For, tougher the way we take,
The stronger the heart and the nerve;
The stones in our path we break
For the glory we hope to win;
'Tis to pause and turn while we mourn
The river we have to cross.

Communicated.

Letter to the Church at Plymouth.

A request came to me, saying Will you write something to be read before the Church at Plymouth some Sunday morning?

When I received the request to address you by or through the voice of another, an interogation recorded in Acts x: 29, occured to me. I shall try to comply with the request and hope to be with you in spirit when the letter shall be presented to you.

The means by which we communicate with persons living in different parts of the country have very materialy changed since the time in which Cornelius, the Centurion, despatched his messengers, with a request to Peter. Distance has been bridged by steam and electricity, and a journey of a thousand miles, is of little more consequence at the present time, than was that in the time of Cornelius, from Cesarea to Joppa. Today we talk with those who are separated by thousands of miles from us as if face to face. Oregon is not so far away, today, as it was when Lewis and Clark, brave, dauntless, and patriotic, commenced their hazardous journey to this, then, comparatively unknown country. Or when Jason Lee, with true missionary spirit, left his New England home, to deliver his message of the Book of the Great Spirit to the red man, dwelling in the then unknown wilds, by the Cascades of the Storied Columbia.

These primitive children of the forest, worshiped the Great Spirit. Through the trappers and traders who visited their dwelling-place in the wilderness, they heard of the book, which the Great Spirit had sent to his children. So anxious were they to know the truth about this book, that they sent three messengers over mountain and plain, to the city of St. Louis, to enquire of the pale face. Three years these messengers were gone, and only one of them lived to return. But Jason Lee brought the message.

Religion in some form is interwoven with every fabric of human history. Every nation has its God or Gods, and consequently its corresponding forms of worship. Some worship idols, the work of man's hands, others the powers and objects of nature, while others worship the true and living God, yet many worship him very imperfectly, because they have not a knowledge of God's purpose or plan of saving his people. Cornelius was not an idolator. He worshipped the living God, with all his house. One who gave much alms to the people, and prayed to God always. Yet God directed him to send to Joppa for one Simon, whose surname was Peter, who lodged with one Simon, a tanner whose house is by the seaside. He shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do. The prayers of Cornelius had been heard, the honesty of his devotion, was unquestioned. He gave much of his goods to the poor. There is nothing in the record that we have, which would indicate that Cornelius was any thing other than a good man. We will presume he was an honest man. That he dealt uprightly, with his neighbor. That as a Roman soldier, he was not oppressive beyond the requirements of the law. He was a man who if living in the City of Plymouth, today, would be called a devout, a religious man. Why did God deem it necessary for Cornelius, to send for Peter. We often lose sight of the requirements of G— Every promise which God has made to the children of men, is conditional. There were requirements of which Cornelius was ignorant. There were duties to be performed which must be intelligently done, by Cornelius and his household, if they would be saved. "He shall tell thee what thou oughtest to do."

Peter had to be instructed of God before he would go to the house of Cornelius, because the laws of the Jews forbad their mingling in any way socially with the Gentiles. When all doubt as to duty had been removed, Peter went bearing nothing. When he had come to Cesarea, to the house of Cornelius, he asked, "For what intent have you sent for me."

A request came by our modern form of communication and found me, not on the shore of the Mediterranean, but in this land of the west. Not in Joppa, but at Portland, on the banks of the Willimantic, and I would ask "For what intent have you sent for me?" I would that your answer might come from the heart, with the same degree of interest as did that of Cornelius when he said, "Thou hast well done that thou art come, now therefore are we all here present before God, to hear all things that are commanded thee of God." Peter did not go to Cesarea to please Cornelius, he went in obedience to the command of God. He might of answered in the language of Paul in the 21 verse of the first chapter of Philippians "For me to live is Christ." He did say when accused by those of the circumcision, what was I that I should withstand God. I have come because I was invited, and I hope what I shall say may be that which is in harmony with what God has revealed. The congregation who listen to the letter which I have written, know as well as did Cornelius of the word which was sent to the Children [illegible] preaching peace by J[illegible] that word was pub[illegible] Judea, and Galilee, [illegible] which John preach[illegible] anointed Jesus, of Nazareth [illegible] Holy Ghost and with power, who went about doing good, and healing them that were sick; That God raised him from the dead, that he has commanded us, as he did his disciples, to preach to the people, and to testify that it is he which was ordained of God, to be judge of Quick and Dead.

What interested Cornelius was how he and his household were to be saved. There is a longing desire implanted in every human heart for immortality. The paramount question to every son and daughter of Adam in all the ages of the past, has been, shall I be saved? Shall I be numbered with the redeemed? Shall I hear the well done? Cornelius did not speculate as to Gods infinite mercy toward all mankind. Or how boundless and universal his love to save the human family. His individual duty was the all absorbing theme, his prayers had reached the ear of the compassionate Father, and in obedience to his command, he had sent for Peter. Cornelius said to Peter, that God had told him that when he had come he shall speak unto thee. Peter did speak unto Cornelius. He said of a truth I perceive that God is no respector of persons, but that in all nations he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him, or (margin) acceptable to him.

Peter preached to him that Christ; he is Lord of all, that whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins. When it had been made plain to Peter that Cornelius and his household believed the things concerning Jesus, and the resurrection, he commanded them to be baptised. Baptism is an open or public confession of faith. It is the means which God has ordained by which we may become identified with his family, may become his children. Paul tells us in Gal. iii: "Ye are all the Children of God in Christ Jesus, for as many as have been baptised into Christ have put on Christ. It is God's appointed way. When we become his children by obedience and continue in his commandments we shall receive the promise, the promise was to Abraham and to his seed which is Christ. We are to be in Christ, and Christ in us. Christ is appointed judge. If ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed and heirs according to the promise. The promise which God gave to Abraham, implied immortality, for the things promised were to be eternal. God said unto Abraham, unto thee, and to thy seed, will I give it for an everlasting possession. If the possession is to be everlasting, then the possessor must have everlasting life to enjoy it forever. There will be no deceit in the title, it comes from our heavenly Father, through his son Jesus the Christ, who has been legally appointed our advocate and judge. 1 John, ii: 1. We have an advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous, and in Rom. viii: "who is ever at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us. But my friends, be not deceived, Christ will not intercede for those who keep not his commandments.

Jesus said, whosoever shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my heavenly Father." How are we to confess Christ. Not only by baptism, but by a continued holy life. The Master has said, if you love me keep my commandments. And again "he that hath my words and keepeth them he it is that loveth me; and he that loveth me, shall be loved by my Father. In Rom. viii: 24, the question is asked, who is it that condemneth? and the answer is, it is Christ. Job says, "and when he hideth his face, who then can behold him? whether it be done against a nation, or against a man only." Jesus has said, "for the Father raiseth up the dead and quickeneth them: even so the Son quickeneth whom he will." "For as the Father hath life in himself: so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself; and hath given him authority to execute judgment also, because he is the Son [illegible] Yes Christ is to be the judge. [illegible] James must be found written in [illegible] book of life. Jesus the Christ [illegible] Lamb of God, and [illegible] Word. In his book our names must be found written. Jesus said the Father judgeth no man, but hath committed all judgment unto the Son: That all men should honor the Son, even as they honor the Father. He that honoreth not the Son, honoreth not the Father which hath sent him. Verily, verily I say unto you, he that heareth my words, and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life, and shall not come into condemnation; but is passed from death unto life."

Remember, we must hear the words of Jesus, and believe them if we would not come into condemnation. Listen, to Job, "thou shall call and I will answer thee:" why does Job say God will call? what reason does he give? he says, "thou wilt have a desire for the work of thine hands, for now thou numberest my steps: dost thou not watch over my sins? my transgression is sealed up in a bag, and thou sewest up my iniquity." Dear friends it is now, that our steps are numbered, it is now that our sins are watched over, it is now that our transgressions and our iniquities must be sealed up. Jesus shall be the judge.

Shall we be among those who shall hear his voice and live, or shall we come forth to condemnation for Jesus says, "the hour is coming, in which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth: they that have done good unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation. How very careful we should be. In Mat. 12: 35, 37, Jesus said, "but I say unto you that every idle word that men shall speak, they shall give an account thereof in the day of judgment, for by thy words thou shalt be justified, and by thy words thou shalt be condemned. Peter's instruction to Cornelius was that he (the Christ) was ordained of God to be the Judge. He is our example in all that forms the Christian character.

We are commanded to be Christ like. In 1 John ii: 6, "he that sayeth he abideth in him ought himself to walk as he walked. Jesus was the embodiment of all that was good, merciful, and just, yet he never made any compromise with any who failed to do the things that God had required; he was fearless in his condemnation while here, he entered the temple and overthrew the tables of the moneychangers, and drove out those that bought and sold therein, saying, it is written, my house shall be called a house of prayer but ye have made it a den of thieves. The Christian man or woman should meet the world with a face all radiant with hope which is born of a heart that is filled with love and sympathy for all God's creatures; yet with a firmness that will not permit of the lowering of the standard of faith.

If we believe that Gods people should be a peculiar people zealous of good works, then our lives should correspond with our profession, and we should teach none other things than what God has commanded. We must come to God by and through his Son Jesus, the Christ, but having come to to Christ, in his own appointed way is not all. The first step is well taken, if it is coupled with intelligent faith. Intelligent faith teaches us that faith without works is dead. Paul tells us in Rom. vi: "know ye not, that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey: whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness? But God be thanked, ye were the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered unto you. Being made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness, for when ye were the servants of sin, ye were free from righteousness, but now being made free from sin, and become the servants of God, ye have fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life. For the wages of sin is death: but the gift of [illegible] eternal life through Jesus Ch[illegible] Lord."

Jesus, in his parable of [illegible] said: I am the vine, ye [illegible] he that abideth in [illegible] the same bringeth [illegible] for without me ye [illegible] as a branch, and is wither[illegible] gathered them, and cast [illegible] the fire, and they are burned. [illegible] tree that bringeth not forth [illegible] fruit, is hewn down, and cast in[illegible] fire;" there is no middle ground in the service of the Master. Christ has said, "he that is not with me is against me: and he that gathereth not with me scattereth abroad," strait is the gate, narrow is the way, which leadeth unto life, but wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction.

Which shall we be found traveling when the Master comes? I doubt not but there will be less jostling in the broader way, the ascent is not so steep: the leisurely multitudes, may have removed the thorns which would wound the tender feet; but it is not the way our Saviour walked, Paul tells us, Jesus suffered, leaving us an example, if he was despised and rejected of men; then we may be. If when weary, he rested by Jacob's well, and being athirst asked drink of the woman of Samaria. He has taught us to come to him who is as the shadow of a great rock in a weary land, and as rivers of water in a dry place; whosoever drinketh of the water I shall give, shall never thirst, but the water I shall give shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life, are the words of the Master, but dear friends, we must come to him, there is salvation in no other way, for there is none other name given under heaven among men whereby we must be saved. We must come to God, because we love God. The worldly man, does not come to God, the profane, wicked persons, who delights in doing evil, seldom congregate with the people of God, or attend the house of prayer. As the children of God we are commanded to meet often, forsake not the assembling yourselves together, and so much the more as you see the day approaching.

"If ye love me, you will keep my words." "This is the love of God, that we keep his commandments, and his commandments are not grievous, for whatsoever is begotten of God overcometh the world; and this is the victory that overcometh the world even our faith. Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God." Faith is truly the substratum, it is the ground work, the foundation, yet if we fold our hands and sit idly by, the grand superstructure of a holy life, will never be finished. The Christian character, which will say to the world that we have been with Christ and learned of him, will never be ours. Faith without works is dead, so works which are done in connection with the church, that are not pleasing to God. It is impossible to have faith in something we know absolutely nothing about.

If the people will not hear, when we preach to them, and testify of these things then they cannot have faith. If a friend tell us something, and we believe what he says is true, our actions will prove our faith, and he will be pleased with our confidence. Our Heavenly Father has given us his word, if we believe it, our lives will be in harmony therewith; faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God, and we read that without faith it is impossible to please God. The harvest is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Why are there so few laborers for the Master? is it not because so few are intelligently instructed in the truth? So few understand what God requires of those who are to work for him. By faith Noah, Abraham, Moses, and all of the ancient worthies worked in harmony with God's commands, and their work was counted unto them for righteousness. Jesus in that notable prayer, in John xvii: says to the Father, "I have finished the work thou gavest me to do." And in verse 8, he says, "For I have [illegible] to us the words thou gavest me." [illegible] would we do? Is it not to [illegible] the Master has given us? [illegible] none other words than [illegible] ye unto us to teach? We [illegible] to or take from the words [illegible] ecy of the book of God, [illegible] deth to the words of the [illegible] Book, to him shall be [illegible] plagues that are written [illegible] and if any man shall take [illegible] the words of the book of [illegible] d shall take his part out [illegible] of life, and out of the holy [illegible] om the things that are [illegible] this book.

[illegible] is to be the judge. Our names must be written in the book of life. "He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment, and I will not blot his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father, and before his angels." But what if our names are not written there? John the Revelator "saw the dead, small and great, stand before God; and the books were opened, and another book was opened, which is the book of life; and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books, according to their works. He that overcometh shall inherit all things, and I will be his God, and he shall be my Son," but in that city of our God, there shall in no wise enter anything that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie; but they which are written in the Lamb's book of life. It is now, that we must make the record. It is now, that our names must be written in the book, each man and each woman shall be judged as his or her work shall be, for Paul in his letter to the church at Philippi, said, "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling. For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ, that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to the things he hath done, whether it be good or bad." Yet a little while and he that shall come, will come and will not tarry." The Nobleman will surely come to reckon with his servants. To him that hath shall be given that he may have more abundantly; but to him that hath not shall be taken away even that he hath." "The Son of Man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him. Then shall he sit upon the throne of his glory, and before him shall be gathered all nations, and he shall divide them one from another as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats." "Then shall the King say unto those on his right hand, Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. But to those on his left, depart from me ye cursed into everlasting fire." The wicked go away into everlasting punishment, but the righteous into life eternal.

We are living in the closing of Gentile times. I know not how soon our Lord may come. Ancient prophecy is fast becoming modern history, and we know the time is near at hand. Soon the white-winged messenger of peace shall come to this sin-sick world, which is torn by contending strife and clash of arms. The Sun of righteousness shall arise with healing in his wings, and there shall be no more death, neither sorrow, nor crying, neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things have passed away.

Instead of the clarion call to battle and the shedding of blood the melody of that new song of the redeemed shall float o'er Judah's fair plain; on the pure air of that bright morn, and from the mountain tops the pean shall be wafted on and on by the glittering hosts who have washed their robes and made them white in the blood of the Lamb, until the whole world is filled with his glory. Shall we be there? Do you wish to be there, my dear brother or sister, who have not become obedient to the requirements of faith, if such there be within my hearing? If you do I plead with you to delay no longer. These things are true! The time is coming when there shall be a change in the government of this world. The time is coming when the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus, and all nations shall serve, and obey him. For out of Zion shall go forth the law, and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem. He shall judge among the nations, and shall rebuke many people, and they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks, and nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. What a blessed era when the earth shall be filled by the knowledge of the glory of God, as the waters cover the deep. My prayer is that we may each be there and share with him in his glory.

Dear Brother Underwood:

Will some one please inform us why the apostles did not go and preach to all nations as they were commanded in the commission? Mat. xxviii. 19; Mark xvi. 15-16; but did not after they were given the Holy Ghost, Acts ii., until the special message was sent to Peter to go and proclaim the Word to Cornelius, Acts x., they being endowed with power that would remind them of all things Christ had said to them, and speak with tongues? Why did they not obey his command? Will some one please give us a solution of these Scriptures?

Yours in search of the truth.

Pine Woods Bible Class In Book Form.

I have several times been solicited to have the part lessons of the Class put in Book form.

I have decided to do this, if I can secure enough subscribers to the book to warrant the expense of publishing it.

The book if printed will contain over four hundred pages. How many copies will you take at $1.25 each?

Send your pledges but no money until I can see if sufficient is subscribed for to warrant the expense.

Send your pledges right away, so that the book can be put to press as soon as possible. Address W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Station Chicago, Ill.

It is surely evident to all that we cannot well do business without means. It surely is likewise evident to those who have not yet renewed their subscription that we must be in need of what is due us. We dislike very much to mention this, and hope you will not compell us to repeat the hint.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all things Which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME LIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUG. 3, 1904. NUMBER 29.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all His holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the Kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUG. 3. 1904.

THE strike at the meat packing establishments is worse than last week. Peace was agreed on, then again broken off, and now other trades are out on a "sympathetic strike," and the end seems far off. The police and rioters have clashes every day, and dire distress and trouble is in the air.

THAT Russia has "troubles of her own" is manifested by the assassination of Minister Von Plehve, the man who held the highest place in the Russian government next to the Czar. He was on his way to visit the Czar when killed by a bomb thrown from the roadside. The event has caused consternation in Russia, as it is evident that a plot exists to kill others as another man within similar possible was killed at the time.

THE progress of the war in Manchuria has taken a faster gait. The Japs have finally entered New Chwang, and the Russians are falling back along the railroad to the north. It looks as if the Japanese could easily surround them if they were so disposed, and whether they wish to leave the way open so they can retreat when they are defeat is likely to come, is the question. No one knows the mind of the wily Jap officers. In the meantime the forces about Port Arthur are engaged in heavy fighting. Rumors have been current for some days that the fortress had been taken, but no confirmation comes. The trouble arising from the seizure of neutral shipping by Russian warships, is being settled in most cases by apology being made. The question of the passage of the ships from the Black Sea will likely call for a conference to decide the proper status of such vessels.

THERE is trouble in Venezuela. It seems that the American companies that are interested in the asphalt business there have had some trouble, and President Castro has ordered the seizure of the property. The Chicago Tribune in commenting on the affair says:—

[redacted]tro of Venezuela is not [redacted] is [redacted]ouey. However, he is more apt to find the former than the latter if reports are true concerning his latest outbreak. He has seized the properties of the New York and Bermudez Asphalt company at Guanaco. This action has been taken as the result of a suit against the company begun by President Castro himself on the charge that the company had given aid to the revolutionists. He had a receiver appointed when the company refused to pay the heavy mulct and it was this receiver, accompanied by the attorney general, a gun boat, and a company of soldiers, who took forcible possession of the asphalt properties.

The New York and Bermudez company has been upheld in its rights too many times for any question to be now raised as to the validity of its title to the asphaltum lake of Guanaco. The company has been operating for about fifteen years. In 1898 the Venezuelan government interfered in the affairs of the concern, but the courts decided against the government. After Castro had seized the government and made himself dictator he sold a large part of the asphaltum lake of Guanaco to another American company. Then there was a mix up which was not straightened out until last year. The New York and Bermudez company was sustained in its original title to the lake.

President Castro is in need of money. He has always been so since he swooped down with his army of Andinos in 1899 and captured the government. He has devised some clever ruse by which he hopes to swindle the asphalt company for a good round sum. No doubt he is acting at the direction of the lower courts, for Castro is absolute dictator and it is unsafe for a judge to refuse his commands.

It is fortunate that Castro has chosen an American company to attack, for if any nation is to deal with the gentleman in the manner he deserves it should be this one.

IT is surely evident to all that we cannot well do business without means. It surely is likewise evident to those who have not yet renewed their subscription that we must be in need of what is due us. We dislike very much to mention this, and hope you will not compell us to repeat the hint.

Immortality—What is it?

We find this word but five times in the entire Bible and the word immortal but once, and that only in the writings of the apostle Paul. Now if the apostle is the only one who uses the word we must look to him for the meaning of it. Let us take the word as we encounter it for the first time in the Scriptures, Rom. ii. 6-7, who (speaking of God) will render to every man according to his deeds; to them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and honor and immortality—eternal life. Yes, says one, I know it reads that way, and immortality and eternal life means one and the same thing, but let us see if it does. Let us transpose the language and see if we can get at the meaning. To them who by patient continuance in well doing seek for glory and immortality, God will render eternal life. So we find by the construction of the language that immortality and eternal life are not one and the same thing.

Let us try again 2 Tim. i. 9-10, Who hath saved us and hath called us with an holy calling, not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began. But is now made manifested by the appearing of our Savior Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. Now let us write the last sentence as though life and immortality meant one and the same thing. Who hath abolished death and hath brought life and life to light through the gospel. Do we not see that by such construction we make the statement meaningless, and without sense. The apostle has here declared that by the appearing of the Savior that he brought to light through the gospel something which had not been revealed to man before. We find the promise of life all the way from [redacted] creation down to the first [redacted] the Master. The doctrine [redacted] surrection and eternal [redacted] have been understood [redacted] in all ages, so if life and [redacted] are one and the same thing [redacted] bring it to light through [redacted] for life was known and [redacted] his appearing, so we [redacted] language will not allow [redacted] tion that life and immo[redacted] one and the same thing.

Now let us try once again [redacted] 51, Behold, I show you a [redacted] (Emphatic Diaglott, sever[redacted] not all sleep but we shall all be changed. What have we found here? The apostle is discoursing on the second appearing of our Lord and is showing the conditions as they will be at that time. That is that all the Lord's people will not be in the death state when he comes again to claim his own, but there will be some living at that time who will not die, so we have the two classes, the living and the dead. Ver. 52, in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye at the last tramp, for the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall be raised incorruptible and we (the living) shall be changed. So we find the two classes again, the dead spoken of as the corruptible, and the living as being changed. Changed from what? Verse 53 for this corruptible must put on incorruption and this mortal must put on immortality; so we find that we shall be changed from mortal to immortal. And what else have we found? We have found that immortality can only come to the living at the Lord's coming, that immortality means translation, that and nothing else. Let us see if this is in harmony with the teaching of the Bible. What is the condition of the human body in death? Let us go to the sentence that was passed on the body of man when he transgressed the commandment of God and received the death penalty. In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread till thou return unto the ground, for out of it wast thou taken, for dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return. Gen. iii. 19. So we see that the body of man in death can truly be said to be in a corrupted condition. Let us take the case of our Lord's body in death. Peter on the day of Pentecost (Acts ii. 25, 26, 27) speaking of the prophecy of David makes use of this language, for David speaketh concerning him, I foresaw the Lord always before my face, for he is on my right hand that I should not be moved. Therefore did my heart rejoice, and my tongue was glad, moreover my flesh shall rest in hope, because thou wilt not leave my soul in hell; neither wilt thou suffer thine holy one to see corruption. We see that meaning of the word corruption from a Bible standpoint has reference to the condition of the body in death, so when this corruption shall have put on incorruption, it will mean a resurrection from the dead. It would be an impossibility for a living man to put on incorruption, having never been corrupted, and so would it be impossible for a dead man to put on immortality because of the fact that he is not mortal when the change comes. Immortality means to change from mortal to immortality or translation. To refer back to 2 Tim. i. 10, but now is made manifest by the appearing of our Savior Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel. Did he teach while here on earth the doctrine of immortality or translation? Let us turn to John's gospel. xi. 25-26, we have here the subject of the resurrection of the saints, under consideration. What is it the Master says. He that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live, and whosoever liveth and believeth in me shall never die. We find him here teaching just what the apostle Paul said he taught, 2 Tim. i. 10, that the living man at the time of his second appearing, who was found worthy should not see death, but should be immortalized or translated. Let us here take the Diaglott translation of the 15th of 1 Cor. beginning with the 51st verse, Behold a secret I disclose to you, we shall not all sleep but we shall all be changed in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet, for it will sound and the dead will be raised incorruptible and we shall be changed, for this corruptible must be clothed with incorruptibility, and this mortal must be clothed with immortality. So we see that immortality comes only to the man who is mortal at the time of reward, and a dead man is in no sense a mortal man, hence he cannot receive immortality.

Yours in the hope of immortality.

Conference Report.

[redacted]eventeenth Annual Meeting of [redacted] W. Conference convened at [redacted]ore, Wash., June 17, 1904. [redacted]sident being absent, Vice-[redacted] Wolf presided.

[redacted]t were Bro. Smally [redacted] Edwin Groat of [redacted] Palmer of Eugene, [redacted] Skeels of Scholls, Ore. expecting Brother Griswold, [redacted]oma, Wash., but unforeseen [redacted]stances kept him away. We [redacted]ll disappointed.

[redacted]e had preaching on Friday evening by Bro. Smally.

Saturday morning at 10:30 we had a business meeting; at 2:30 preaching by Sister Palmer, and at 7:30 preaching by W. L. Skeels.

Sunday morning Brother Skeels spoke again and after this came the basket dinner. At 2:30 Social meeting, and at 7:30 preaching by Edwin Groat.

At the business meeting reports of the Secretary and Evangelist were read and approved. Reports from the several churches were given in. Brother Smalley reported the church at Brookfield, Wash. Brother Skeels gave in his report as minister at Scholls, also a verbal report of the church at Central Point, Oregon, as they did not send a delegate.

The officers elected were as follows:
President, W. W. Jaquith.
Vice President, George Hall.
Secretary, Almira Brooks.
Treasurer, C. K. Schmeltzer.
Evangelist, W. L. Skeels.

A Finance Committee was appointed by the President as follows:—Lake Shore, Bro. Mills; Scholls, Floyd Lawrence; Central Point, Ellen Hanson; Tacoma, Brother Jaeger; Brookfield, Brother Smalley.

Letters to Ministers were given by the Conference as follows:—N. C. Griswold, of Tacoma, Wash. Merrit Elliott, Central Point, Oregon. Sylvester Wilkins, of Tacoma. W. L. Skeels, Scholls, Ore. Elder Smalley of Frankfort, Wash.

The treasurer being absent on account of sickness, the Conference had no way of knowing just how much was in hand, (we have delayed this report waiting for him to send in the amount, thought it best not to wait any longer. We know it is all right and are sure that we have at least eighty or ninety dollars to start out our evangelist with.)

Last year a motion was made and approved that each male member should pay into the Conference $2.00 and each female $1.00, which was responded to by some. We [redacted]on. ference) thought we had bet[redacted] speak of it again for fear it was not understood. This is optional with the brother or sister, whether they do this or not. It is not a great burden by no means.

The attendance was good, and a feeling of love and friendship seemed to prevail. One Sister yielded obedience, Sister Alice Wilkins, of Tacoma, Wash. On Sunday afternoon she was baptized in Salmon Creek, by W. L. Skeels. May she ever walk in the narrow way; for at the end thereof is life everlasting. We were glad to make the acquaintance of Sister Palmer, she of whom we have heard so much through our paper. We hope she will be a help to us. Brother and Sister Darby, late from the east were with us. They have settled in Corvallis, Ore. We welcome them among us also. We hope more of the brethren will see fit to come and locate in our State, where we are quite sure they will be satisfied with the climate. In all probability the next conference will be held at Scholls, Ore.

A letter was read from Brother A. J. Eychaner, concerning an effort being made to unite the believers in all the states, and as a means to this end, to publish a Year Book which shall contain, 1st, A list of all our conferences. 2nd, Locality of each congregation, and pastor. 3rd, Number of members. 4th, Evangelists and ministers. 5th, A general statement of doctrine we hold, and 6th, Sunday Schools, and other information of value to the brotherhood. He asked the Conference to give the matter a thought, which they did. The Secretary was instructed to answer his questions as far as possible, and to write out the following declaration of faith to Brother Eychaner, which was gotten up by the committee appointed for that purpose, consisting of W. L. Skeels, C. H. Belshaw, and Brother Mills.

ALMIRA BROOKS, Sec'y.

DECLARATION OF PRINCIPLES OF N. W. CONFERENCE.

We, as a people, accept no articles of faith, creed, or man-made form of confession; but it is the object of our conference work to give prominence and support to the following Scripturally stated principles of truth:

"There is one body, and one spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of [redacted] who is above all, and through [redacted] and in you all."

"Wherefore, as by one man [redacted] tered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men, for that all have sinned; for since by man came death, by man came also the resurrection of the dead."

"But whom say ye that I am?" "Thou art the Christ the Son of the living God." "Upon this Rock I will build my Church."

"So Christ was once offered to bear the sins of many; and unto them that look for him shall he appear the second time, without sin unto salvation."

"But these are written, that ye might believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God: and that believing, ye might have life through his name."

"Who will render to every man according to his deeds: to them who, by patient continuance in well doing, seek for glory, honor and immortality, eternal life."

"For the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord."

"For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the tramp of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first."

"Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection; on such the second death hath no power."

"But they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and shall reign with him a thousand years."

"But the meek shall inherit the earth, and shall delight themselves in the abundance of peace."

"The Lord knoweth the days of the upright, and their inheritance shall be forever."

"And the kingdom and the dominion, and the greatness of the kingdom under the whole heavens, shall be given to the people of the saints of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him."

"Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life."

These statements are not subject to change or amendment except by direct quotations from the Bible, without comment or explanation.

EVANGELIST REPORT.

Will there be Probation After the Coming of Christ?

The above question was the subject of a discourse June 26 by Elder Johnson of the First Advent Christian Church, Tampa, Fla. His outline and argument in the negative were about as follows:—

I. Proposition—Probation is based upon a covenant, and there cannot be probation without a covenant.

1. The Bible reveals two covenants viz The Old and the New.

2. The Old Covenant reached from Adam to Christ—about 4000 years.

3. The New Covenant began with Christ and will reach to his coming again, and the destruction of this world.

II. Proposition. For probation under a covenant there must be

1. A Tabernacle and Sanctuary.

2. A sacrifice, or offering.

3. Ministers or priests.

III. Arguments.

1. There can be no probation after Jesus comes because there is no place for a third covenant—none mentioned in the Scriptures, and the New covenant ends when Christ comes.

2. The earth will be burned up and all but the righteous will perish at the coming of Christ.

3. There will be no sacrifice for a third covenant. Animals were the sacrifice under the first covenant; Jesus was the sacrifice under the second covenant, but there is no sacrifice for a third covenant hence there can be no forgiveness and consequently no need of propation.

4. Jesus will cease to be a priest when he leaves the Father's throne, and comes to earth, hence there will be no intercessor and no probation.

5. Time will end when Jesus comes, hence there can be no probation.

6. What about the heathen? I am not much concerned about them" said [redacted] "They that have sinned [redacted] shall perish without [redacted] and in you all."

[redacted]us to me that the dis- [redacted] Johnson is faulty in [redacted] points and this opportunity should not pass without a review and Scriptural answer.

Probation is simply an opportunity to secure everlasting life and an inheritance in God's kingdom. The Bible reveals more than two covenants: we have 1st Gods first covenant with all flesh—both man and beast, and is an everlasting covenant. See Gen. ix: 9 to 17.

2. The covenant of circumcision—everlasting. See Gen. xvii. 13-14, Acts vii: 8.

3. God's covenant concerning the land of Canaan to Abraham's literal posterity. Gen. xvii: 4-8. Everlasting also.

4. God's covenant with Abraham and his spiritual seed to bless all nations of the earth. Gen. xxii: 15-18. Lu. i: 68-73. Acts iii: 25-26. Gal. iii: 16.

5. The covenant made with Israel at Mt. Sinai Ex. xxxiv: 27, 28.

6. God's covenant with David that his seed should occupy his throne forever Ps. lxxxix: 3, 4. 34 to 37, 2 Sam. xxiii: 5.

7. The covenant of the everlasting priesthood Num. xxv: 11-13; Ex. xl: 14, 15.

8. The second covenant made with Israel in the land of Moab. Deut xxix: 1, 10 to 15.

9. The New covenant.

Here is the record of at least nine covenants. You have taken a very limited view of God's covenants. I am aware that the writer to the Hebrews contrasts two of these covenants and speaks of them as "old" and "new" but what has that to do with probation beyond the Advent? Everything especially when you reflect that the new covenant extends beyond the coming. You certainly admit future probation if that covenant is everlasting. If as you contend there is probation under the new covenant now and I show that the new covenant continues beyond the coming of Christ forever, then I show that there is probation as long as the covenant lasts.

Looking at this question from your standpoint that probation exists where there is a covenant a tabernacle, a sacrifice, and a priest, it is plain that there will be probation after Jesus comes for we will show that all these conditions are in existence after he returns.

1. The new covenant, if it is everlasting, hence does not cease at Jesus coming.

2. The tabernacle, It will be set up and established forever, and God will dwell in it. "I will return and build again the tabernacle of David which is fallen down, and I will build again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up, that the residue of men might (have an opportunity) seek after the Lord" Acts xv: 16. When Christ comes he will sit upon his throne in the tabernacle rebuilded. Isa xvi: 5. When the everlasting covenant is made with Israel at the coming of Christ God declares "I will set my sanctuary in the midst of them for ever more, my tabernacle also shall be with them" Ezek xxxvii: 26 27. We have then the covenant and tabernacle both after Christ comes. Now let us examine—

3. The sacrifice.

We are informed by Paul that it is not necessary to make any more sacrifices "for this he did once when he offered up himself"—after he had offered one sacrifice for sins forever, sat down on the right hand of God." So you see brother that the sacrifice also reaches into the future "forever." Past and future are both covered by the plan of God.

4. Priest.

This too has been provided, you affirm that "when Jesus leaves the Father's throne he will cease to be priest." If that were true there could be no probation. But you are mistaken in the premises. Christ will always be a priest, let me read—"Thou art a priest forever after the order of Melchisedec." Heb. v: 6. The Lord swear and will not repent, thou art a priest forever after the order of Melchisedec" Heb. vii: 21. "This man because he continueth ever hath an unchangable priesthood" Heb. vii: 24.

We find in the Scriptures then, all the conditions of probation mentioned in your proposition No 2, after Jesus returns, viz; The New or everlasting covenant, the tabernacle of God with men. (Rev. xxi: 3,) a sacrifice whose efficacy will never fade or lose its power, and a priest after the order of Melchizedec, with an unchanging priesthood.

Thus according to your own outline and propositions we prove probation from your own premises. Your guns are spiked, re cast and turned against you; for by the Scriptures we prove all your conditions of probation exist after Jesus comes.

To make the matter more direct let us look at a few texts bearing on this question of probation after Jesus comes.

1. God covenanted with Abraham that through his seed (Christ) all the kindreds of the earth should be blessed. Has this been done or will it be done before Jesus comes?

2. James declares, Acts xv: 16, that when Jesus returns the tabernacle of David will be set up that the residue of men may seek after the Lord. Is not this "seeking after God" an opportunity to find him which before they had not enjoyed?

3. When the God of heaven sets up a kingdom, which at that time is the least of all kingdoms, how can it fill the whole earth without growth? If it grows, how will this be, how can it be, if everyone is destroyed at his coming except those who are the Kingdom?

4. Is the leaven, the three measures of meal, or is the leaven put into the meal, and does not the leaven work upon the whole lump until it (the lump) is leavened. In other words, does not the stone (Dan. ii,) increase in size after it smites the image upon the feet until it fills the whole earth? How can this be done without probation?

5. After the Lord comes with his saints to the Mount of Olives (Zech. xiv: 4, 5.) Where do these nations come from that fight at Jerusalem and whose wealth is gathered there, if all had previously been destroyed at the time of Christs coming? And why are they required to come up to Jerusalem to worship year by year and punished by drouth and plague if they refuse to come, if there is no probation? Zech. xiv: 14 19.

6. After the graves have been opened and David resurrected and made king and Judah and Israel made one kingdom and there is one fold and one shepherd how can God cleanse those who have sinned if they are not on probation? Ezek. xxxvii: 22-28. Yet this is all spoken to be done by the prophet of God after the resurrection.

7. How can times of refreshing and Restitution come from the presence of Christ after his return if the world is destroyed at his coming? (Acts iii; 19-21.) He says too that those who refuse to hear him then will be destroyed, this language looks very much as though some one was on trial for good behavior at that time.

A Vision.—Rev. vii: 9-17.

Who are these arrayed in white, who come like a wonderful crowd?
That cannot be counted! They seem like a cloud;
Their garments are gleaming with light from the skies,
And peace, that is perfect, looks out from their eyes.

They come from the ranks of the greatest and least;
Among them are martyrs, and prophet and priest;
And still, and forever, the song that they sing
Is love of the kingdom and love of the King.

Among them are faces that once were so dear;
Long, long have we missed them; but lo! they are here!
Through faith did they conquer; they bear from afar
His name on their foreheads, as bright as a star.

They witness for Jesus, this wonderful crowd,
As round the bright throne they flout like a cloud;
And still, and forever, the song that they sing
Is love of the kingdom and love of the King.

Notes by the Way.

My last notes by the way ended with the services at Quanah, Texas. Bidding farewell to our worthy Bro. Newberry, I took the train enroute to Carnegie, Oklahoma. I arrived at Snyder, at about 7:30 p. m., where I failed to make connection, and therefore had to remain over night at the hotel. Next morning at about 8:30, I took the train for Hobart, Okla., where another change had to be made. Arrived at Hobart at about 10 o'clock, a. m., and found the train had left, and so had to go to the hotel for the balance of the day and night. While at Hobart I met the celebrated Indian Chief Lone Wolf, and family. Left Hobart the next morning at about eight o'clock. I arrived at Carnegie, at about eleven o'clock a. m. Was met after dinner by Wm. Chandler, the husband of Sister Chandler, and conveyed to their home in the country.

Carnegie is located in the northwestern part of the Territory, and is known as New Oklahoma, which was recently opened up for settlement. The best part of the lands, however, was previously secured by the Indians, in their allotments. The lands secured by the white settlers is worth but little. Those lands are located mostly at the foot of the mountains, a portion of which is very rocky, with here and there a few acres which can be picked out for cultivation. In northwest Texas, southwest Oklahoma, Arizona, and New Mexico, rain is a very uncertain quantity. At Carnegie, previous to my going there, there had been a nine months drouth, and on account of this, the wheat crop was a total failure. After my arrival, heavy rains came, which insured the corn and cotton crops.

The place of meeting, and the Chandler family residence were on opposite sides of the Wichita river, and there being no bridge over that river, it had to be forded. The rains raised the river so high, that it could not possibly be forded, and so on this account, the meetings in the town of Carnegie had to be given up. Two meetings were held there, and two at the family residence, and one at a school house on the prairie. I think some good was done, but not as much as would probably have been done, if I could have given a connected course, at one place. I expect to visit Oklahoma again probably next December, when the circumstances may be better. I enjoyed my visit at Carnegie. The Chandler family I found to be a very hospitable and interesting family. Sister Chandler is an earnest Christian woman, and keenly alive to the one faith and hope of the gospel. Her meditations on these things are the joy of her life.

The Chandlers are pioneers, living almost alone, as far as white neighbors are concerned, there being but one near neighbor, the rest are Indians, belonging to the Kiowa and Apache tribes. There is a village of them in sight of their house, but a little way to the west. I visited the village three times while I remained at their home. These Indians are nearly all of them full bloods of large stature. I saw one woman who was a sight to behold, she was said to weigh 400 pounds. The men wear their hair about as long as the women. They usually braid it up in three braids, one on each side of their face, and one in the center in the back of their head. These braids are wound around with some bright-colored cloth, usually red, blue, or yellow. They pull their beard, moustache and eyebrows out with pincers, they then color the eyebrow with some bright color, to make themselves look pretty. They live mostly in tents, sometimes they use the roof tent, but probably oftener the round teppee. They put poles in the ground in a circle, and then bind them together at the top, and cover the poles with canvass. The place in which they worship is a large teppee, built after the same manner as the teppees in which they live. Myself and the Chandlers went up one Sunday afternoon, when Red Buffalo was preaching in the teppee, in the Kiowa language. In place of an organ they use bells while at worship. They ring them on perfect time. Their voices are pitched on the key of the bells. Their singing sounded strange and weird at times; it reminded me somewhat of the Thomas concerts we sometimes hear in our back yards at the night time.

One afternoon Eagle Heart came to the Chandler home to buy some "chuckaway." Some of you may not know what "chuckaway" is. It is a word the Indians learned from the cow boys. They had a combination wagon in which was a table which they could slide in the wagon, and pull out according as they wanted it, also drawers, etc., in which they kept their food. When their meals were ready the cook would yell out to the cow boys, "Chuckaway boys! chuckaway boys!" The Indian hearing this associated the word with food; hence, when they want food of any kind, they call it "chuckaway."

The clothing he (Eagle Heart) wore was quite scant. He wore a waist cloth, but left his pants at home.

They think that Sister Chandler knows how to make good "chuckaway." That they were not mistaken, I can abundantly testify, by personal experience.

Twice a year the Indians have a religious dance called a "ghost dance." I am told that it is better expressed by the phrase "Holy Ghost Dance." White men called entire sanctificationists have something of the kind, when they whirl around, jump and scream, and finally fall down exhausted. The two are for a similar purpose, although differently performed. This dance was to be performed in about two days from the time I left. Sister Chandler and husband wrote me a description of it, which I give to you in my own language.

They prepared a plate by [redacted] poles, and then stretched [redacted] them, for the purpose [redacted] shade. Under this shade [redacted] Indians in circle form. [redacted] they formed another ring o[redacted] dians, and in that circle was a large cross, made out of green cedar twigs, and near that cross a little fire was kept burning, the fuel being cedar twigs. Near this stood the chief and two other Indians. Red Buffalo was one of the three preachers, he was dressed in a buckskin suit, trimmed with beads and shells with a buffalo horn on each shoulder. The circle of 105 Indians dance around these three. They take hold of hands, and jump up and down. All their faces were painted in bright colors, and wore buckskin suits, and eagle feathers. They keep time in their dance by ringing bells, the same as they did in the teppee, and their singing was of the same tom cat order.

The dance commenced at two o'clock p. m., and lasted until five o'clock. They dance until they are exhausted, just like our whits sanctificationists do. There is a striking resemblance between the two.

Six of us went on a camping expedition to Mount Scott, the largest mountain in the range running through that country. It is thirty miles distant from the Chandler home. Near this mountain Mount Sheridan reared its rocky peaks. While camping there a heavy rain came, which detained us longer at Mount Scott, than we intended to stay. It raised Medicine Creek so high, that it could not be forded for sometime. I could stand camping very well in the day time, but the camp beds were hardly soft enough for my bones. We traveled through [redacted] Devil's Canyon in order to reach [redacted] Scott, which we found to be very rough and rocky. It was an interesting expedition.

After finishing my work at Carnegie, I left for Cedarville, Missouri, which is located on the top of the Ozark mountains. I arrived at Lockwood, (the railroad town,) at about eleven o'clock, a. m., the next day. Bro. Fyfe, jr., met me at the depot with his conveyance. Before starting for Cedarville, went to the hotel and took dinner.

The road to Cedarville was exceedingly rough and rocky, it reminded me of the experience I had while visiting our churches in the Massanutton and Blue Ridge mountains in Virginia.

After a ride of about three hours I arrived at the home of Bro. J. M. Fyfe, Sr., by whom I was heartily welcomed. The family were very kind to me, and [redacted] stay among them as pleasant [redacted] they know how. I shall long remember my visit at Cedarville, Missouri.

Meetings were held at the Union Church, and some interest manifested. Four people became obedient to the faith, by being baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus. This was encouraging. May God bless these dear people, and may they so live as to honor the sacred name they took upon themselves.

I expect to return to Cedarville to further wake up the interest created there.

A Baptist preacher visited me at Bro. Fyfe's home. We spent most of the day conversing on the gospel of the kingdom. He has learned enough in my opinion to soon spoil him for a Baptist preacher.

After concluding services at Cedarville, Bro. Fyfe, Jr., conveyed me to Lockwood, where I took the train for Chicago, by way of Kansas City. On arriving at home I was pleased to find my family in their usual health. I spoke for the Chicago church for two Sundays.

I then went to Fulton, Ill., to hold meetings for a week. Bro. Bare and family gave me a hearty welcome, and made my stay at Fulton very pleasant.

Meetings were held in the Christian Church, we had an interested and appreciative congregation all the way through.

Fulton is a neat place, situated on the Mississippi river, on the other side of the river is Clinton, Iowa.

Bro. Bare has a son who is studying for the ministry. He appreciated the instruction he received at the meetings.

He gave me his hand in pledge that he would always faithfully preach the truth, and never hide it to serve any purpose whatever. That is a manly thing to do. A time serving preacher, who [illegible] to simply please the ear, can never be trusted.

Last Saturday I went to Dixon, Illinois. I preached there on Saturday night, Sunday morning, and Sunday afternoon.

I enjoyed my visit to Dixon very much; the congregation are an harmonious body of people, and very much in love with the truth, they are hungry for Bible light. It is a real pleasure to visit with such people.

I am now at home arranging other trips in different directions. Those who wish my services when approaching their neighborhood, will please notify me as soon as possible.

While at home, it is my purpose to arrange Pine Woods Bible Class in book form if sufficient subscriptions are received to warrant the expense. In order to do so it will be necessary to hear from all who want it, at once, that it may be printed before I go out on another trip. Please bear this in mind, as it will not be as easy to do while traveling and preaching.

Looking for, In the Blessed Hope,

W. H. Wilson.

Prepare to attend the coming Ohio State Conference of the Church of God. It will be held again at Salem, O., beginning Thursday evening September 1, 1904, and continue over the following Sunday. Notify Bro. P. Neill 366 N. Main St. Salem, O. when you expect to arrive and he will arrange to meet you at the depot and see that you are taken care of. Salem, O. is located on the P. Ft. W. & C. branch of the Penna. Co. Good speakers will be in attendance. The programme will be published later.

The Conference of last year was the first held in Ohio in recent years. Much good has come from the organization of a Conference Body. An evangelist has been placed in the field and isolated organizations of the Faith have been visited. The Evangelist Bro. P. Neill reports that up to June 30, 1904, 21 visits have been made and 76 sermons delivered. Of this number Sister P. Neill delivered 7. Number of baptisms 2. They have also been able to keep up the work in Salem, O. having delivered 60 sermons, besides holding the usual mid-week meetings.

The Evangelist also reports many private talks in regard to the Faith and instructing many how to walk the narrow way. He has carried on a volume of correspondence, and has labored diligently in the cause of the Truth as he could find or make opportunity, and he is willing and anxious to do more.

Up to date about 425 dollars have been collected to be used by the Conference Body. Brothers and sisters, let us see if we can double this amount next year and do [illegible] more work for our Evangelist. Come to the meeting in September and enjoy the fellowship of the saints.

A Mighty Myth.

Some time since, a woman delivered a lecture in Lancashire, England, against Christianity, in which she declared that the gospel narrative of the life of Christ is a myth or fable. One of the mill hands who listened to her obtained leave to ask a question.

"The question," said he, "I want to ask the lady is this: Thirty years ago I was a curse to this town, and everybody shrank from me that had any respect for himself. I often tried to do better, but could not succeed. The teetulers got hold of me, but I broke the pledge so often that they said it was no use trying me any longer, then the police got hold of me, and I was taken before the magistrates, and they tried: and next I was sent to prison, and the wardens tried what they could do: but though they all tried, I was nothing better, but rather worse.

"Now, you say that Christ is a myth. But when I tried, and the teetotalers, the police, the magistrates, and the wardens of the prisons all tried in vain, then Christ took hold of me, touched my heart and made me a new man. And now I am a member of the church, a deacon over, a superintendent of the Sunday school; and I ask, if Christ is a myth, how comes it to pass that that myth is stronger than all the others put together?" The lady was silent, "Nay, Miss," said he, "say what you will, the gospel is the power of God unto salvation."—Christian Secretary.

Poetry.

My Refuge.

[These lines were written by Ellen L. Gooch, a Brahmin of the very highest caste.]

In the sweet of his presence how my soul delights to hide, oh how precious are the lessons which I learn at Jesus' side!
Earthly cares can never vex me, neither trials lay me low, for when Satan comes to tempt me, to the secret place I go.

When my soul is faint and thirsty 'neath the shadow of his wing
There is rest and pleasant shelter, and a fresh and crystal spring;
And my Savior rests beside me, as we hold communion sweet;
If I try, I could not utter what he says when thus we meet.

Only this I know, I tell him all my doubts and fears and tears;
oh how patiently he listens, and my drooping soul he cheers.
Do you think he never reproves me? What a false friend he would be,
If he never told me of the sins which he must surely see.

Do you think that I could love him half so well as I ought
If he did not tell me plainly of each sinful word and thought?
No! he is so very faithful, and that makes me trust him more;
For I know that he does love me, though he wounds me very sore.

Would you like to know the sweetness of the secret of the Lord?
Go and hide beneath his shadow; this shall then be your reward;
And whene'er you leave the silence of that happy meeting-place,
You must mind and bear the image of your Master in your face.

You will surely lose the blessing and the fullness of your joy,
If you let dark clouds distress you, and your inward peace destroy.
You may always be abiding, if you rest at Jesus' side;
In the secret of his presence you may every moment hide.

Communicated.

An Exhortation.

Therefore whosoever heareth these sayings of mine and doeth them I will liken him unto a wise man who built his house upon a rock. And the rain descended and the wind blew and beat upon that house, and it fell not, for it was founded upon a rock." What sayings was Jesus talking about when he uttered these never to be forgotten words? Let us see. Just before this Jesus had been going throughout all Galilee, teaching in their synagogues and preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God and healing all manner of diseases, etc. And for this reason his fame went throughout all Syria, and he healed all the sick people that were brought to him.

We find that a great multitude followed him. I used to think that Jesus taught the multitude that followed him from their different places of abode. But I believe it was only to his disciples that he preached this memorable sermon, for the multitude could not have understood at that time. The good book says, "And seeing the multitude he went up in a mountain, and when he was set down his disciples came unto him and he opened his mouth and taught them,"

How many good things did he teach them, and they have been handed down for our admonition. If we do not heed them, we stand in these days as the foolish man who built his house upon the sands. He told them that they were the salt of the earth. But if the salt had lost its savor it was good for nothing, but to be cast out and trodden under the foot of men. The multitude that followed him was not the salt of the earth, but the disciples, for they were the first that believed on the Lord. That is the reason he called them the salt of the earth. And so it is to this day, if the followers of Christ should loose their first love and go out to establish their own righteousness and cling to some hobby that has nothing to do with what our Savior was talking about, neither what he taught at any time. I should say without judging only by their fruits, that the salt had lost its savor wherewith it had been salted. Then again he tells them that they were the light of the world and told them that they were not to hide their light, but they should let it so shine before men that others might see their good works, thereby be led or brought to a knowledge of the Savior, and they too would glorify their Father which is in heaven. This too must be brought down to the present time. The church and the world cannot go hand in hand. The church must keep in the old paths. For thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest to your souls. But they said, we will not walk therein. Is it not so today, do not the churches of today say we will not walk in the old paths? We see in these days too much worldly pleasure among the church people, such as theater going, card playing and dancing, and other amusements not profitable to a follower of Christ, certainly not setting a good example for others to pattern by and turn to Christ. Think of it, whoever heard of a sinner turning to Christ through the example of a, shall I say Christian, at the card table, or in the ball room. This amusement has been allowed of late in some of the churches, but it looks as if they were like those spoken of in 2 Tim. iii. 4, 5, Traitors, heady, highminded, lovers of pleasure more than lovers of God, from such turn away. Such Christians are not the light of the world. David said I would rather be a door keeper in the house of the Lord, than to dwell in the tents of wickedness. Those that can say with the Psalmist, Thou wilt show me the path of life, in thy presence is fulness of joy, at thy right hand there are pleasures forever more, will not want to find pleasure in the ball room, theatre or at the card table.

Again, he said unto them, Ye have heard that it hath been said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor and hate thy enemy, but I say unto you, love your enemies, bless them that curse you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you. Why should we do this? Listen, That ye may be the children of your Father which is heaven. See what a promise is offered to those that can forgive as they would be forgiven. It is useless to pray for a person if we cannot forgive, because we have this principle laid down in what is called the Lord's prayer. Whenever we pray "forgive us our transgressions as we forgive those that transgress against us," let us remember to first forgive our enemies, then ask our heavenly Father to forgive us as we forgive. How many times does Jesus say, "But I say unto you," and he spake unto them as one having authority and not as the scribes. We have an old adage—and I think it is a true one—that practice is better than precept. Now our Savior, who is our great pattern, forgave those that condemned him before Pilate. It was not even before a court of justice that he was condemned and Jesus knew it, still he could pray, Father, forgive.

Read Mark's description of the trial, "And the chief priests and all the council sought for witnesses against Jesus to put him to death, and found none. For as many bear false witness against him, but their witnesses agreed not together. We know that in a court of justice when the witnesses cannot agree their testimony is thrown out of court, but in this court their testimony was taken if it was false. Still Jesus prayed, Father forgive, for they know not what they do. It seems to me that Paul came as near to being a perfect follower of Christ as any one I ever read about. He was stoned, scourged falsified in every way, yet he called them light afflictions, which is but for a moment, and tells the Corinthians, to whom he was writing, that they would work out for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. So what are our trials and tribulations to those of Christ or to those of [illegible] we ought to consider our afflictions light compared with theirs, and go to our Father to forgive [illegible]ve. Why he says, "Behold the beam in thy brother's eye and considerest not the beam in thine own eye." Now the definition to mote is a very fine particle, while a beam means something large, a good illustration. Let us do as the Savior told us to do, that is to cast out the beam in our own eye, then may be we will not find a mote in our brother's eye, or if there is one it will not look as large to us as it did before. How true it is that we are not apt to see our own faults as others see them. The Psalmist says, I have refrained my feet from every evil way that I might keep thy Word, I have not departed from thy judgments, for thou hast taught me; through thy precepts I get understanding, therefore I hate every false way. I believe we of the Church of God understand more of God's plan than any other people, and if we understand and do not do right ourselves others will not see our good works and glorify our Father in heaven, neither can we say with David of old, I hate every false way. Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them. This has been called the golden rule. How much trouble has been in the world because men would do just the opposite of this, we could have a heaven below if all would carry out this golden rule. Enter ye in at the strait gate, for wide is the gate and broad is the way that leadeth to destruction and many there be that go in thereat, because strait is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life, and few there be that find it. We cannot widen out the path, or take a side track, because if we do we cannot get back into the narrow way again, unless we go back to where we branched off. These side tracks never lead back in the main track we started out in. They may seem very pleasant at first, but we soon will get lost and so many paths will appear that we will get bewildered and wish for the old path again, and obstacles will arise that will hinder us from going back, or of ever finding it again.

Then he speaks of false prophets and tells the disciples to beware of them. If there ever was a time when false prophets were in full soil more at one time than another, it seems that now is the time. He said they would come in sheep's clothing. He knew there would be many abroad in the land. He told us how we should know them, By their fruit ye shall know them. The fruit of these false prophets is apparent. Those that teach a different doctrine than is taught in the Bible. Paul says, Now I beseech you brethren, mark them which cause division and offenses contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned, and avoid them; for they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ, and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple. Rom. xvi. 17-18. These false prophets will say, O you are afraid to investigate. For my part I believe if we all followed out the truths that we find in this wonderful sermon, we need not spend so much time in investigating and finally get lost in a maze. Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of God. But he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven. Then he spake these words that I commenced this article with. "Therefore whosoever heareth these sayings of mine and doeth them I will liken him unto a wise man who built his house upon a rock. And the rain descended and the floods came and the winds blew and beat upon that house, and it fell not, for it was founded upon a rock. And every one that heareth these sayings of mine and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man who built his house upon the sand. And the rain descended and the floods came and the wind blew and beat upon that house, and it fell; and great was the fall of it. No wonder that the people were astonished at his doctrine for it was so much unlike anything they had ever heard before.

Random Thoughts. No. 12.

Dear Restitution:

After some delay I resume Random Thoughts. In my last we saw that Israel including the ten tribe kingdom and the two tribe kingdom, the whole twelve tribes now scattered among the nations will be brought back to their own land, and will be subjects in the kingdom of God, the kingdom of Israel restored, where they will multiply and increase, all this in the flesh or mortal state—the present life. Jesus will be their King, who will judge, rule or govern them in righteousness, assisted by his saints or holy ones, who will then be also mighty ones, having bodies like Christ's glorious body, and will bless the people, not only Israel, but in time all the families of the earth, so that the whole earth will be filled with God's glory. God's will being done on earth as it is in heaven—that is his laws will be obeyed. But my topic at present is that the Israelites at first will be subjects in the kingdom of God—not rulers to rule but subjects to be ruled or governed by the Lord and his saints. I think I have already proved this, but I will add a little more evidence. I will now refer to Jer. xxxiii. 31-35, and Heb. viii. and other Scripture. Here we read, "Behold, the days come, saith the Lord, that I will make a new covenant with the house of Israel, and with the house of Judah; not according to the covenant that I made with their fathers, in the day I took them by the hand to bring them out of the land of Egypt; which my covenant they brake, although I was a husband unto them, saith the Lord. But this shall be the covenant that I will make with the house of Israel; after those days, saith the Lord, I will put my law in their inward parts, and write it in their hearts: and will be their God, and they shall be my people, and they shall teach no more every man his neighbor, and every man his brother, saying, know the Lord; for they shall all know me, from the least of them unto the greatest of them, saith the Lord; for I will forgive their iniquity, and I will remember their sin no more." Jer. xxxiii. 31-34. The writer to the Hebrews quotes the same passage, Heb. viii. Now what do we learn from this? We learn that God made a covenant with the Israelites when he brought them out of the land of Egypt—that the people failed to keep it, or to comply with its conditions, which was written partly on tables of stone, but wholly in a book. But finding fault with the people the Lord decided to make a new covenant, testament, or will with them different from that and better, but with the same people or nation. The parties to the covenant are the same in both cases, the Lord on one side and Israel on the other. But the Mediator or Medium is different. Moses being the medium in the first and our Lord Jesus of the second or new one, better promises also. The time when the first was made was when the Lord brought the Israelites out of Egypt. The time for the second or new one will be after the Lord comes and they are brought back from their captivity and their afflictions to their own land.

Will my reader turn and read Heb. viii. and note that reads, "After those days saith the Lord," etc. not before but after. Now after what days? Read the whole connection, Jer. xxxi. 38, and it will be seen that it will be after their return from their afflictions and distresses, and the Lord has returned, and built again the tabernacle of David; etc, Acts xv. and is their King for ever more. Till then the first covenant as made with their fathers will be in force. The Lord will then take it away, and establish the second or new one. I am aware that it is very largely held that the new covenant was made long ago by Jesus and the apostles. The church being the Israel and Judah with whom the covenant was made, and from that time (more particularly the day of Pentecost, Acts ii.) to the present, the new covenant has been in force, the old being abrogated, or done away with.

Now I do not so understand it. The church is neither Israel nor Judah, nor is it the party with whom the covenant is to be made. The new covenant will be made with the house of Israel and the house of Judah, the same nation or people as the first. The church will not be the party with whom the covenant will be made. It will occupy quite a different position. The church with its head, the Lord Jesus will be the Mediator or Medium, ministry, administration, or means by which the new covenant will be put in force. A mediator is not one of the parties, but God is one, the people of Israel the other. Moses was the mediator between the two parties of the first. But the Christ, when complete, including all the members of his body (the church) will be the Mediator of the second or new covenant, between the same parties, but will not be either of the parties. Such a mediator, etc. will know how to sympathize with the infirmities of the people, having once passed through the same trials and infirmities. Heb. iv. 14, 15.

Now let my reader bear in mind that the time here referred to is after Israel has returned from their captivity to their own land, and after the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first, then we who are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so (then) shall we ever be with the Lord, not up in the air, for "Behold the Lord cometh with ten thousand of his saints to execute judgment, etc. Jude 14, 15. He will come to Zion to reign on his throne as King of the Jews, and then there shall come out of Zion the Deliverer. He shall turn away ungodliness from Jacob (Israel, not the church) and this is my covenant unto them, when I shall take away their sins (as a nation).

Now I will ask my reader to turn to the Psalm cx., I will quote from Dr. Boothroyd's Translation, "To my Lord Jehovah said, Sit at my right hand, until I make thine enemies thy footstool."

2. From Zion Jehovah shall extend thy powerful scepter, and thou shalt rule amidst thine enemies.

3. Most willing shall be thy people in the day when thy power is displayed on these hallowed mountains; thy progeny shall be as the dew from the womb of the morn.

4. Jehovah hath sworn, nor will he repent. Thou (said he) art a priest for ever, (age) according to the order of Melchizedek.

5. The Lord at thy right hand, Jehovah, shall in the day of his wrath, smite kings, shall execute judgment among the nations, and fill the field with carcasses, and smite the chiefs of many countries. He shall drink of the streams by the way and shall therefore be exalted as chief."

Now a few words on this Psalm that we may rightly apply it. From verse 1 we see our Lord was to sit at God's right hand, not always but till his enemies be made his footstool, not till they were subdued; but till the time that he himself should subdue them. which will be when he shall return back from their captivity and their afflictions to their own land.

Verse 2 shows that [illegible] power displayed on those hallowed mountains, his people, (Israel and Judah) will be most willing to accept him as their King, not a few individuals, but the people as a nation. They will not then cry crucify him as they once did, but blessed be the kingdom of our father David, hosanna, etc.

Verse 4 Shows that the Lord will not only continue to be King, but more than a king, for Jehovah hath sworn, nor will he repent; thou (said he) art a priest for [illegible] according to the o[illegible] That is as Melchizedek was both king and priest, so should [illegible] And verse 5 shows that [illegible] would be subdued, and [illegible] cute judgment among the nat[illegible]

Now all this and more is said [illegible] Lord Jesus the Christ, but does [illegible] mean the one person Jesus who [illegible] born of a virgin, but Christ, Go[illegible] Anointed, including all his member[illegible] the church which is his body, Christ [illegible] the head, the saints his body, one [illegible] head, many members, one Christ, [illegible] God's Anointed, many members; each [illegible] a person, but only one Christ. All [illegible] are one in the Anointed Jesus, one [illegible] Christ, one body, and there should be [illegible] but one Spirit in that body, one hope, one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is above all, through all, and in all.

Much more may be said on this topic, but I must close for this time with this thought for my reader to consider. Where there is a testament there must also be the death of the one who made it. Heb. ix. 16.

Jesus speaks of his blood as being the blood of the covenant or testament, then is not he the testator, or the one who made the testament? And as Paul says, As often as we eat of that bread and drink of that cup, we do show forth his death till he come, then, so to speak to probate the testament or will. Then if God be the party making the testament or will, is it not necessary that in some way, God the testator must die? And as our Lord was born of a virgin, and is called Emmanuel, which means God with us, when he died was there not more than the death of a man?

Editor Restitution:

Will you permit me to say to those of like precious faith, that the Conference of the Church of God, of the state of Arkansas, met with the Ch[illegible] at George Town, Ark., on Thursday [illegible] before the third Sunday in July. It was certainly good to be there. The preaching was timely and sound. The business meetings were harmonious. The interest was good from the start. Up to the time I left, on Monday, six had put on Christ in baptism, and the brethren had gone to the water to bury another.

It was the writer's privilege to preach on Sunday, at 11 A. M. on the Great Salvation. The congregation was almost spell bound while I delivered the discourse showing that it was first spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them who heard him," and that he began to preach it at Galilee, after the baptism that John preached. Those who were baptized, certainly "believed the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ."

Bro. J. H. Luman and Bro. W. J. Sowell are going to evangelize the coming year.

I am going to have a discussion with one W. F. Ludlow, a Campbellite, at Atkins, Ark., beginning the fourth day of October on the nature of man, the establishment of the kingdom, the punishment of the wicked and state of the dead, and I want all the help I can get. So any helps the brethren can furnish me will be greatly appreciated, and I will return them paying postage both ways.

Some months ago when the United States made certain demands on the Sultan of Turkey relating to the right of Americans in his dominions, consent to the arrangement was freely given. However, since then the American representative has had difficulty in securing the privileges named. Our government has ordered some warships to proceed to Turkish waters, and by a demonstration of force endeavor to induce the Turks to behave.

The British "Mission" headed by Col. Younghusband, with 6000 troops has at last reached the Sacred City of Lhasa, in Tibet. The mission is supposed to be peaceful. It has had to fight most of the way, but pressed on and gained the point sought. England wishes to make a treaty of a commercial nature with these people, and whether it will be necessary to keep an armed force there to keep the peace is a question for the future. It is quite likely that under the peaceful commercial mission there is a desire to forestall Russia at the bottom of the case.

Cullom, who is ...irman of the foreign affairs com...ittee of our Senate, in discussing the war in the far east, and the interest we as a nation have in its outcome said:—"The eastern problem is not yet settled. A great war, both on land and sea, is now being fought in the orient. It is difficult to follow the intricacies of oriental politics, but the real cause of the war problem is the desire of Russia to possess Manchuria and the fear on the part of Japan that Russia's permanent occupation of Manchuria would not only endanger her supremacy in Corea but would also endanger Japan itself.

It is not strange that Russia should be contending for so rich a prize as Manchuria. Manchuria possesses one of the finest open ports in the orient—Port Arthur. In size it is equal to Germany and France together. In fertility its soil is equal to the most fertile part of the United States. It is rich in mineral resources.

Japan claims that in this war she is fighting to retain her western civilization and to preserve her national life.

Russia claims she is fighting the battle of the white race against the yellow peril: That if Japan is victorious she will form an alliance with China, that she intends to regenerate China, to awaken its four hundred million sleeping subjects; and that such an alliance will endanger the ... of the world.

The Japanese have not yet entered Port Arthur, though they are industriously pounding away at it. That the garison are in dire straits is evidenced by the appeal of the Russian government to Japan to allow the passage of a hospital ship loaded with sick and wounded soldiers. In Manchuria the Russian army is in serious condition. Haicheng has been captured, and the Japs are pressing on toward Liaoyang, where the Russians are fortified, and may decide to make a stand. The question with the Russians will soon be a battle or a siege. If Kouropatkin decides to withdraw his main army to the north, and leave ... small guard to check the advance of the Japs, he will thus save the bulk of his force. If he should be unable to do this, then he must draw his forces into his fortifications, have his line of communications cut off, and stand a siege, or else accept battle in the open as best he may. So far in such engagements the Japanese have shown their superiority over the Czar's troops, and as they out number them largely, it seems as if the result cannot be in doubt. If on the other hand the Russians stand on the defensive behind walls, and wait for relief from the north, they may succeed in beating off their assailants until they are rescued. St. Petersburg reports indicate that troops are being rushed to Harbin, on the main line of the Siberian railroad, and the empty cars then sent south for the exhausted troops at Liaoyang and Mukden.

Last week Bishop Henry C. Potter of New York was present at the "opening" of a saloon. He made a speech, prayer was offered, and the doxology was sung at the close. Of course there is much criticism by many church people, but the Bishop defends his course, the main point of which is to show that the saloon is here, and it being here Christian people must recognize it, and in the fight against the evils of drink, use the saloon as a weapon. In short make it "respectable," just like a "club" is. He would get rid of the "treating" custom in club rooms and at a bar. Let a man or woman go and drink what each wants, and go about their business. Bar-keepers not to sell too much to any one—must be expert and know when a man has had enough, and refuse to let him have more. He would get rid of the "hideous freemasonry of drink," so that men will drink only when they are thirsty. The Bishop says: "One kind of man goes to a saloon to get an intoxicant and for no other reason. Another goes there for any one of a half dozen purposes—refreshment, amusement, information, physical easement, business appointment, or mere change—for which last you, my brother, go next door to a club which all sensible people regard as wholly innocent. Now, then, the saloonkeeper has been keeping these different wants together. The wisdom of those who antagonize him will be in separating them." Many people will think the Bishop is like the child playing with fire.

Warships and the Dardanelles.

So much has been said concerning the status of the Dardanelles and the rights of Russia in passing ships through as merchantmen, and then converting them into regular cruisers, that we lay before our readers extracts from a letter published in the Chicago Tribune, and written by H. W. Wilson, giving an understanding of the various treaties, and showing how Russia has violated them. Mr. Wilson says:—

After the Crimean war, by the treaty of Paris, concluded in 1856, it was laid down in article xi. that "the Black sea is neutralized; its waters and its ports, thrown open to the merchantile ... of every nation, are formerly ... perpetuity interdicted to the flag of war either of the powers possessing its coasts or of any other power," thus forbidding the maintainance either of Russian or Turkish fleets in the ... sea.

Article xiii. of the same treaty laid down that neither Russia nor Turkey was to have dockyards in the Black sea.

A convention annexed to the treaty and having the same force as its provisions, declared in its first article that the sultan would allow no foreign warships to pass the Bosphorus or Dardanelles in time of peace. As there was no Russian navy in the Black Sea it was not then needful to consider the possibility of Russian warships demanding a passage in time of war. The second article allowed the sultan to grant firmans of passage to light vessels employed by the various diplomatic representatives—the so-called "stationnaires," maintained at Constantinople by the embassies. A second convention provided that Turkey and Russia might each keep a few small vessels of no fighting power for police duty in the Black sea.

Such was the state of affairs established, not without difficulty, by England in 1856. When the Russian representative at Paris endeavored to modify the restrictions, Lord Palmerston declared that sooner than recede from these conditions England and Turkey would continue the war, whereupon Russia gave way. But in 1870, with the tacit encouragement of Germany, she suddenly announced, at a time when France was struck down before the armed might of Germany and England was isolated and ruled by ministers who were known to be incapable of firm action, that she would cancel the provisions of the treaty and refuse any longer to admit that the Black sea was neutral. She acted, however, with so much violence and precipitation that her conduct was generally condemned, even by Germany, and finally was induced to submit her demands to a European conference at London, by which the wholesale status of the Black sea and Dardanelles was once more discussed.

The conference met in January, 1871, under the presidency of Lord Granville, and concluded its labors in March of that year. The treaty of London which it drew up was reaffirmed by the treaty of Berlin, and is the document which to this day governs the conditions of passage through the Dardanelles and Bosphorus.

The conference gave way to Russia on the question of permitting her to maintain a fleet in the Black sea. But at the same time it rigidly tied that fleet to the Black sea and refused to permit ships to pass in or out, either in peace or in war. It was signed by the representatives of England, Russia, Turkey, Germany, Austria, and Italy, who all guaranteed its maintenance.

The first article of the treaty states that articles 11, 13, and 14 of the treaty of Paris are annulled. The second article proceeds:

"The principle of the closing of the straits of the Dardanelles and the Bosporus such as it has been established by the separate convention, is maintained with power to his majesty the sultan, in time of peace, to open the said straits to the vessels of war of the friendly and allied powers, in the event that the sublime porte should consider it necessary, in order to secure the execution of the stipulations of the treaty of Paris."

The friendly and allied powers meant are England, France, and Italy. Russia is not included, and the straits can only be opened in time of peace. The third article of the treaty proceeds to state:

"The Black sea remains open as heretofore to the mercantile marine of all nations."

Finally, the Berlin treaty of 1878 in its 63d article declared that:

"The treaty of Paris of March 30, 1856, as well as the treaty of London of March 13, 1871, are maintained in all such of their provisions as are not abrogated or modified by the preceding stipulations."

None of the provisions affecting the use of the Dardanelles was dealt with in these "preceding stipulations," and thus the treaty of London today governs the right of passage.

Unofficially Russians are quoting some treaty concluded between the Russian and Turkish governments in 1901 as giving their volunteer cruisers the right of passage. Such a treaty has no standing in international law. It was not notified to the powers; it did not receive their consent; it cannot in any degree bind them. By the public law of Europe no Russian warship may pass the Dardanelles.

A further Russian suggestion is that the volunteer cruisers, by the fact that their passage in time of peace has been tacitly tolerated by Europe, have acquired the right to pass the straits in time of war. Here it seems to be forgotten that the conditions of peace and war are totally different. There is no reason why steamers built to carry passengers and cargo should not be allowed by the sultan to pass the straits in peace, even though he knows that these ships are so constructed as to be able to mount guns in war. No injury or annoyance is caused to any one in peace by their passage.

But the moment war begins the conditions change completely. In the first place, these vessels become warships—it is known that the Smolensk and St. Petersburg in February were under the naval flag. In the second place, they become a source of annoyance to neutrals and a positive danger to one of the belligerents if they reach the open sea. Even as things stand we may expect to see a Japanese fleet in European waters demanding satisfaction of the sultan when the war is over.

The annoyance caused to neutrals by ships from the Black sea emerging and playing the part of cruisers in the Red sea is now evident. I need only say here that it would be impossible for Russia to get genuine cruisers into the Red sea or harass neutral shipping in the way she has done if the Dardanelles were barred to her. The coal difficulty is such—she herself having proclaimed coal as contraband, to which proclamation she will be strictly held—that her cruisers from the Baltic could not well reach the Red sea.

As to the passage of the straits, Russia is confronted with a dilemma which cannot be evaded: If the St. Petersburg and Smolensk were merchantmen they have no right of search and are mere pirates from the standpoint of international law. Their molestation of British shipping cannot be tolerated. Neutrals have a right to demand:

(1) That belligerent vessels claiming the right of search shall be vessels possessing that right and fully controlled by the government; and (2) that such vessels shall not change their character and at one moment fly the merchant flag, the next the Red Cross, and finally the war flag.

If, however, the St. Petersburg and Smolensk were warships, the Russian government is convicted of a breach of the public law of Europe in passing them through the Dardanelles. Nor can this be evaded by the extraordinary official subterfuge that the Russian foreign office said the vessels were merchantmen and the Russian admiralty armed them (without the knowledge of the foreign office).

The point upon which all attention must be concentrated is that these vessels, having passed the straits as merchantmen, cannot exercise the right of search, and are liable to arrest for their violence on the high seas. Their "prizes" are no prizes, and wherever they touch their surrender can be demanded.

The Little Horn.

The correct identification of the "little horn" is so important and difficult that the angel interpreter gives special attention and much space to him, for the acts of the little horn form a large part of "what shall befall thy people in the latter days." There have been many wicked men, and will be, but this one is a great land mark in Israel's warfare, established for correction "in the last end of the indignation."

This person is referred to by many prophets and by Daniel, the statesman prophet, is described more fully than is any other power. He gives his rise, vii: 8; viii: 9; his character, vii: 20; viii: 23-25; xi: 21: 27-28; 36-39; John v: 43; 2 Thes. ii: 3-12; his acts, vii: 21-25; viii: 10-12; 23-25, ix: 27; xi: 21-39; and his doom, ii: 35; vii: 26; viii: 25; 2 Thess. ii: 8.

But particular attention is given to his time or epoch, for this is the most unmistakable part of his discriptive list.

Cautioning the prophet to understand viii: 17, "understand the matter and consider the vision" ix: 23, as did Christ when speaking on the same subject, Matt. xxiv: 15, the angel proceeds to locate the epoch of the little horn many times and in many ways.

He begins his first explanation of the vision of chap. viii, "the vision concerning the daily," with the broad statement, "At the time of the end shall be the vision." viii: 17. "The vision belongeth to time of the end, R. V. that is, "the vision of the evening and morning," viii: 26. "The vision concerning the continual burnt offering," R. V. its taking away by the little horn as related in viii: 11.

The evening and morning sacrifice was a rite performed at the tabernacle of the Hebrew nation, by the priests of the nation, Ex. xxix: 38-41; Num. xxviii: 3-10; 1 Chron. xxvii: 4; Ezra. iii: 3. The ceremony is so fully and positively described that it seems wrong to invent, seek for, or "spiritualize" a daily sacrifice for the Christian church.

Verse 19. "Behold I will make thee know what shall be in the latter time of the indignation, for it belongeth to the appointed time of the end." R. V. Verse 23 is remarkable. In it he gives two lines of history; the first line is Gentile. "In the latter time of their kingdom (singular number), kingdom of the four horns, that is, the brass, leopard, goat kingdom, which shall exist and be "broke... er" with the iron a... ond line is Jewish ... gressors have com... these two lines mee... horn, "a king of fier... vili: 23, the prince the... 2d, a vile person, xi: 21, the king xi: 36.

Now the last independant Grecian horn fell 190 B. C. and the last vestige of Russia to get genuine cruisers into the Red sea or harass neutral shipping in the way she has done if the Dardanelles were barred to her. The coal difficulty is such—she herself having proclaimed coal as contraband, to which proclamation she will be strictly held—that her cruisers from the Baltic could not well reach the Red sea.

As to the passage of the straits, Russia is confronted with a dilemma which cannot be evaded: If the St. Petersburg and Smolensk were merchantmen they have no right of search and are mere pirates from the standpoint of international law. Their molestation of British shipping cannot be tolerated. Neutrals have a right to demand:

(1) That belligerent vessels claiming the right of search shall be vessels possessing that right and fully controlled by the government; and (2) that such vessels shall not change their character and at one moment fly the merchant flag, the next the Red Cross, and finally the war flag.

If, however, the St. Petersburg and Smolensk were warships, the Russian government is convicted of a breach of the public law of Europe in passing them through the Dardanelles. Nor can this be evaded by the extraordinary official subterfuge that the Russian foreign office said the vessels were merchantmen and the Russian admiralty armed them (without the knowledge of the foreign office).

The point upon which all attention must be concentrated is that these vessels, having passed the straits as merchantmen, cannot exercise the right of search, and are liable to arrest for their violence on the high seas. Their "prizes" are no prizes, and wherever they touch their surrender can be demanded.

Now the last independant Grecian horn fell 190 B. C. and the last vestige of the horns, on Grecian kingdoms had disappeared long before Christ's time, and certainly the transgressors had not come to the full before the crucifixion; hence there has been no time since Daniel when these two lines could have met.

From the cleansing of the sanctuary, if we run back 2300 evening and morning sacrifices, we come to the time when the little horn takes away the daily and treads down the sanctuary and host.

From "the end of these wonders," if we run back, time times and a half or 3½ Hebrew years, anniversaries or festivals, in this case 1290 days, we come to the same event, and the abomination of desolation. This is the same period during which the woman, Israel, is protected from the wrath of the dragon, Rev. xii: 14; by being bourne again into the wilderness on eagles' wings, "after the manner of Egypt," Ex. xix: 4; Is. lxiii: 9, xvi: 1-5; Matt. xxiv: 15-20. I understand the abomination of desolation in Matt. xxiv, is given among the signs of Christ's coming, also that Paul gives the falling away and the rise of the man of sin as signs of the day of Christ.

A. S. Crouch.

Strive, but Strive Lawfully.

The argumentative battle now going on in various publications is more confusing than convincing, more smoke than shot.

1. Keep clear of the writings of the so-called Christian Fathers, they are a mixed up mess at best. Keep to the Word as we have it. God in his providence overrules the counsels of men, be they apostates or faithful witnesses, and as the result we have the best selections of ancient writings in our accepted English Bible.

2. It devolves on those who contend for the human paternity of Jesus, to show how Joseph could beget a son free from the feebleness and infirmities common to the race. How, when all others were "without strength" Jesus was strong. When no other in heaven or earth was worthy?

3. I suggest that the Editor of the Independent give more argument, and less criticism; more sound reasoning, and less concerning the opinions of the learned.

4. Give us some information how Joseph could beget a son intellectually and morally so strong as to be an exception to all others. Moses, David and Zacharias, all noble characters, all strong men; but not quite strong enough. John the Baptist even betrayed the weakness of the flesh, and yielded to it, but Jesus never did. When his mother's children reviled him, he did not revile again, but simply said, "the world cannot hate you, but me it hateth" for the reason that he testified of its deeds, that they were evil.

5. How did Jesus, if begotten after the will and pleasure of the flesh, as others come to be so mighty and strong, as to challenge the proof of sin?

6. Here is work for you? Perhaps you can show that Joseph was a man morally so stalwart, as to breathe into his first-born what he failed to do in his other children. Is it not strange that the Scriptures almost ignore the existence of Joseph, only making mention of him incidentally.

7. Jesus being exclusively the child and outgrowth of natural law, was none other than an infirm child of the flesh, possessing the weaknesses thereof in common with others, and that's all there is of it, speculate and reason all you may.

8. "Unto us a Child is born, unto us a Son is given." Isa. ix. Who gave the Son? Whose gift was it? Why hesitate to accept the answer Jesus himself gives, viz., "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son," etc.

9. It has come to be a well settled fact that every parent begets a child after his own likeness, and there is no evidence to prove that Joseph was an exception, while there is every reason to conclude that Jo... inherited in a greater or less ... the moral weakness common ... ily and kingdom (singular number), kingdom nor his trade as a carpen... exempt of the four horns, that is, the brass, him from human ... ubt-less he was an upright man, as uprightness goes, according to the record, if the record is not spurious. More than this cannot be affirmed, but it is not what is required, and what in the very nature of first principles is demanded. Human paternity is plausible enough on the basis of the flesh, but altogether inadequate to satisfy on the basis of the moral or Godlike character we see in Jesus. "The stream cannot rise higher than the fountain."

The Kingdom of God Like Unto Leaven.

Reading an article in this paper, The Restitution on this subject, I do not believe the interpretation as given. I cannot for one moment believe that the Lord Jesus Christ likened the kingdom of God unto an emblem of sin or hypocrisy; but this is the interpretation given us of the leaven to which the kingdom resembles or is a likeness of. Whatever is said of the one must be said of the other, for the leaven is like the kingdom and the kingdom is like the leaven. The only kingdoms that I know of that are anything like the interpretation he has given are the kingdoms of men which are full of corruption and unrighteousness. The kings and their rulers are full of corruption and unrighteousness, but when the kingdom of God comes upon the earth it will be an incorruptible and a righteous one, having a righteous king and righteous rulers and righteous laws to govern the people. It will be a time when the people will learn righteousness and those that follow out these laws will be blessed and those who do not will eventually be destroyed, so we pray, Thy kingdom come, when all these corrupt forms of government will be done away with and the will of God will be done on the earth as it is now done in heaven. I certainly believe that there is the leaven of wickedness and hypocrisy of various kinds spoken of in the New Testament, and we can see it very plainly because the reason is given, Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and Saducees. This was their false teachings and hypocrisy. There were also corruptions and forms of wickedness crept into the church in the days of the Apostle Paul and he exhorts them to purge out the old leaven or it would leaven the whole church, but the leaven to which Jesus likens the kingdom of God is not of that character because the kingdom is not like unto any thing that is bad; every thing about it is good and only good. I believe the kingdom and the leaven are alike in their results. The little stone that is cut out of the mountain without hands goes on and on till it fills the whole earth. The mustard seed though small when it is planted grows up to be a tree that birds can take shelter in. A great deal more might be said on this subject. This is my understanding of this matter, if not right, I shall be thankful to those who will show me wherein I err.

When the word of God comes to one whose heart is fixed on him, it does not fall on a deaf ear.

It is surely evident to all that we cannot well do business without means. It surely is likewise evident to those who have not yet renewed their subscription that we must be in need of what is due us. We dislike very much to mention this, and hope you will not compell us to repeat the hint.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending The Restitution to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the doners request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trust worthy.

Poetry.

The Fading and the Unfading.

Ah yes! your hands may grasp the fading crowns
With eager haste; and you may call them fair,
And put them on, and boast to wear at last
What men will praise.

But what of all that you
Have left undone, in this mad race for wreaths
Of earth? where words of holy faith and pray
-er
That filled each day, and cheered and helped the lone,
And traveler on life's desert way? (in Contrast the two:—Your life as then and now,
—Immersed in worldly schemes, in worldly talk
With worldly men; "bound in the bundles" of
This evil age, and caring more who wears
The symbols of power, than how God's truth
Shall be proclaimed. Can you be true? Can you
Love God as then? His people love? Are left
Your hands as free to give, your feet to travel
His holy courts? Go ask your heart in solemn gloom
Of midnight hour. Gaze at his stars—at all
The startling wonders of these latter days:
The moon, enwheeled in other circling rounds;
Amber-hued sun in tenfold heats lighting up
The northern skies; strange vision moving over
The western bounds of Parus, flushing out
With head and winding tail, then changing fast
To sickled form, in unseen hand engrasped,
As if, the ripened grapes of earth, now ripe
For wine press of God's wrath, it soon should reap,
Then, fading out—then gone.

Look to the East;
See sun and dew come down on Holy Land,
The wastes rebuilt, the watchmen set
On Zion's walls, to hold their peace no more
Till God doth make our Salem's praise resound
Through all the earth. Her sons, her maids from far
They crowd her gates, and soon will be fulfilled
The purpose of our God to make of them
"The head and not the tail of nations." Sons
Of strangers build; and ships of Tarshish bring
Their gold and silver there.

What answer now,
Gives back your heart oh man? Stand you unmoved
Upon the verge of doom?

Tear off the cerecm
Wherewith the traitors of your King have sought
To bribe. Give up your follies, break the silken chains;
Back to your post! The Master left that post
To you, oh faithless man! And loved enough to wish
While you wait, for eager hosts break through
The ungarded pass. With shouts and bristling spears
They rush upon the little flock, whose picket-guard
No warning gave. Oh no! They slay, the friend,
The child! They lead away unmanacled
For death the cure (true soldiers of the cross;
And leaving down on thinned and faltering ranks
Take all the field!

What! you a coward still?
Is it too much that all men's hate should burn
Against your name for his name's sake? Is this
The arrow that hath pierced your heart? The cause
Of your desertion? Have you loved the praise
Of men, their pleasures, more than praise of God;
And laid your gold a free-will sacrifice
Upon their altar fires, buying, with the loss
Of all God's precious things, precarious place
Within man's idol fanes?

Oh foolish trash!
The place, the crown, the name men praise,
'will soon
Be yours no more. The years press by with swift
And hurried feet, and when the last of these Shall say "good-by" to you; when all the full
Out-rounded hours of life are gone, and all
Life's opportunities for good are lost,
The birthright sold; what then of withered wreaths
And tinseled name, oh man?

Turn, turn your gaze,
Away from fading things to gem-built walls,
and stone,
And House of light, where manna sweets,
With hidden name, and glory's crown and throne,
Shall be for him who overcomes. All else
Shall fade, and be as nothingness to you.
If there, fast riveted, you keep your gaze,
While anguished heart cries out in tones that will Not be denied, for his return, who is
The only hope of earth

He long endures
Who waits for your repentance; suffers long
To call you back. Account this waiting-time
To your salvation; grieve your God no more;
For fast prophetic scrolls unwind and near
And nearer still, hastes on the day when wife
From husband's side; parent from child; and child
From parent's arms, shall all be snatched away;
The ready grinder at the mill, the friend
Toiling beside the friend in furrowed field;
The sailor at the helm; the fisherman
In lowly cot; the maid at household task;
The little hands at worship in the place
Of prayer; the wanderer on the wild,
Who lifts alone on bended knee, the cry
"Thy kingdom come;" the orphaned child; the lad
By bondman's hand oppressed, all drop their work
At the low call of him who bids them come
To marriage supper of the Lamb.
Be left behind, pleased with your tinseled toys,
will you,
While glory a weight transcendant passes by?
Lose life? yourself? lose all? be lost?

If not
Then heed the warnings now of faithful ones,
Their prayers, their tears. Redoubled toil
Will not atone for wasted hours gone by.

...sparkling stars that
...'s crown; but yet, to you
...though brief, wherein to
...of ever-during years.
...with fear and trembling now
...n out. Be sober, watch
...celess cry, that you be found
Worthy to stand at last before the Son
Of man.

The Hidden Gospel.

"If our gospel be hid it is hid to them that are lost, in whom the God of this world hath blinded the minds of them that believe not, lest the light of the gospel of the Anointed should shine unto them." 2 Cor. iv: 3, 4.

It is a sad fact that the Gospel may be hidden from the minds of men. God sent His gospel by his Son, who when "he came to his own, his own received him not." Was not the gospel hidden in such a case by men's own action?

"The God of this world" whatever it is, indicates an agency through which the unbeliever is blinded and has his "understanding darkened," and the result to him is the gospel is hid. The true believer has escaped the blinding agencies which prove fatal to the lost, and he "rejoices in hope of the glory of God."

Most persons are led to follow the "traditions of the elders," and become slaves to hereditary usages, and even so called principles of their forefathers. The Buddhist youth follows the creed of Buddha, and so of many professing bodies. Few individuals strike out, by personal investigation, an independent course for themselves. Some one has well said, on a secular subject, "Hereditary bondsmen! know ye not, who would be free, himself must strike the blow." The freedom of a believer of the gospel from the traditions of Judaism, Paganism, or a Spurious gospel, has its limits. He gets a new master. Paul repeatedly designated himself "the slave of Jesus Anointed." He wrote "He that is called in the Lord, being a servant is the Lord's freeman; likewise also he that is called, being free, is Christ's servant." Speaking of his mission he said "I am debtor both to the Greeks and to the Barbarians. So as much as in me is, I am ready to preach the gospel." Truly Paul did much to prevent the gospel from being hid.

Even in the days of our Lord the "gospel was hid." In many cases the Jews "made void the word of God by their traditions." To a certain lawyer our Lord said, "thou art not far from the kingdom of God." This lawyer evidently came short of the kingdom. He belonged to a class of men to whom our Lord said, "Woe unto you scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye shut up the kingdom of heaven against men; for ye neither go in yourselves, neither suffer ye them that are entering to go in." (Matt. xxiii: 13). Certainly here in the case of many "the gospel was hid." Well might the apostles ask the question "Are there few that be saved?"

In the early centuries of the Christian era there grew up a vast mass of error. This had a beginning even in the days of the apostles. In the fourth century under the emperor Constantine, the crowning error was reached, and the church was considered to be the kingdom. That error has been inherited by all sections of the so called Christian church; it is embalmed in the "notes" to the Roman Catholic translation of the Bible into English. Thus on Dan. ii: 44, the "note" is "A kingdom, viz. the kingdom of Christ in the Catholic church which cannot be destroyed." The Protestant Commentary by Dr. Thomas Scott has a long "note" to the same effect. Truly this is wide of the gospel of the kingdom of God," preached by Christ. It will not be disputed that here the gospel of the glory of the Anointed is truly hid from thousands of the human race.

In the sixteenth century Luther and the Reformers stopped short at a certain stage, leaving "the obedience of faith" of the New Testament entirely out of their creeds and confession. There become stereotyped as if perfection had been reached, and they have so descended and are held by many to present times. The immersion of a believer of the gospel, has been transmitted into a ceremony over a babe with a few drops of water along with a proxy faith professed by so-called god-parents or sponsors. Here surely the gospel is hid.

In the course of time some reached a stage a little beyond the so-called ... They practised immersion, ...emselves "Baptists." They ..."the faith of the gospel," ...gnore the declaration of Paul ... the children of God by faith in the Anointed Jesus, for as many as have been baptised into the Anointed have put on the Anointed." (Gal. iii: 26, 27).

An offshoot from the Baptists known as the "Reformation," originated in the United States of America. They did much to prune the current so called orthodox doctrines. But ignoring the original "gospel of the kingdom of God" preached by our Lord and his apostles, they became the agency of hiding the gospel from thousands of their followers.

Another class holding Millenarian principles may be said to have made a nearer approach to "the faith of the gospel." They came to read the prophets in a plain, natural sense, holding that the kingdom of God is to be restored, and established on the earth under the Messiah, the restoration of the twelve tribes of Israel, etc., all this has been set forth at great length in periodicals and volumes. The Rainbow magazine was carried on for some twenty years; the Quarterly Journal of Prophecy for twenty-five years. And yet no one intelligent in "the gospel of the kingdom of God," will affirm that "the obedience of faith" was practised by the large class of prophetic students who adhered to Millenarian doctrines. Is it not perfectly evident that here to a very large extent the gospel was hid!

Akin to the Millenarians, but very different in one respect, was the Wm. Miller movement in America. In the thirties the imminent Coming of Christ was widely proclaimed. Miller had fixed year and day for that event, thousands were awakened, wide-spread disappointment resulted from the failure of Miller's prognostication. Miller strenously denied the restoration of Israel. He wrote, "The return of the Jews could only be sustained by denying the positive declarations of the New Testament which assert there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek," etc. He did not perceive that the promises made to the nation are perfectly compatible with the higher glory to be bestowed upon the church, reigning with Christ over the nations, etc. Here again it can not be doubted that the gospel is hid.

A society termed "The Conditional Immortality Association," has existed for twenty-five years. As a general rule they assume that what is known as evangelical doctrine is sufficient as a passport to everlasting life. This fact is sufficient to stamp them as contributing largely to the hiding of the gospel.

It is doubtless quite possible for a vigorous advocacy of the plain reading and understand of the prophets, as well as of the the Conditional attainment of everlasting life, and at the same time to ignore and even reject those conditions which our Lord prescribed for salvation. Such advocates cannot escape the charge of hiding the gospel. Such might possibly be excused in many cases as blind leaders of the blind; but how inexcusable must those baptized believers of the gospel of the kingdom, and who have thus rendered "the obedience of faith," be; and who have been actually engaged for years in bearing testimony in favour of such "obedience." It is sad to contemplate the defraction of a good many in Britian who have taken up the position described in the preceding sentences. It is presumable that there are none in America who relapsed into such a state. It there are, they are unknown to the writer of this.

What has been advanced in this paper is respectfully submitted for the earnest consideration of all whom it may concern, by

J. CAMERON.

Dear Restitution:

We have been regular readers of THE RESTITUTION for several years, and are much interested in its teachings, and we inclose $1.50 to pay this year, which will expire March 5, 1905. We have read and enjoyed many good articles and letters in our paper and hope to continue to do so, for we enjoy true Christian fellowship with the brethren and sisters of like precious faith. Will Bro. W. H. Wilson please continue his explanation of the parable of the rich man and Lazarus? Who does the rich man represent? And who does the poor man represent? Please locate the hell in which the man lifted up his eyes, and also who the brethren? We like his explanation so far as he has gone. Hope he will take pleasure in granting our request as this is the first one we have made through THE RESTITUTION. May the good Lord abundantly bless you all in the good work.

Yours in hope of life in the kingdom.

Prepare to attend the coming Ohio State Conference of the Church of God. It will be held again at Salem, O., beginning Thursday evening September 1, 1904, and continue over the following Sunday. Notify Bro. P. Neill 366 N. Main St. Salem, O. when you expect to arrive and he will arrange to meet you at the depot and see that you are taken care of. Salem, O. is located on the P. Ft. W. & C. branch of the Penna. Co. Good speakers will be in attendance. The programme will be published later.

The Conference of last year was the first held in Ohio in recent years. Much good has come from the organization of a Conference Body. An evangelist has been placed in the field and isolated organizations of the Faith have been visited. The Evangelist Bro. P. Neill reports that up to June 30, 1904, 21 visits have been made and 76 sermons delivered. Of this number Sister P. Neill delivered 7. Number of baptisms 2. They have also been able to keep up the work in Salem, O. having delivered 60 sermons, besides holding the usual mid-week meetings.

The Evangelist also reports many private talks in regard to the Faith and instructing many how to walk the narrow way. He has carried on a volume of correspondence, and has labored diligently in the cause of the Truth as he could find or make opportunity, and he is willing and anxious to do more.

Up to date about 425 dollars have been collected to be used by the Conference Body. Brothers and sisters, let us see if we can double this amount next year and find more work for our Evangelist. Come to the meeting in September and enjoy the fellowship of the saints.

J. C. THOMPSON, Sec.

The Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Indiana is to be held at the Church of God near Hillsburg, Ind., beginning at 8 o'clock Thursday evening September 8, 1904, and continue over the following Sunday. Let all the churches be represented at this Conference. The brethren at Hillisburg are preparing for a large attendance and will make you welcome. Come to the Conference, and bring some one with you. Bring your Bible.

Take the Street Car for Cedar River Park and get off at the Campground. Tents will be furnished to all. Bring your straw ticks and a few comforters. Board at the Dining Hall 20 cents per meal, or three meals for twenty-five cents. This is cheaper than you can board at home.

Now Brethren and Sisters, can you not afford to go to meeting once a year? Some of you will come no doubt, others have not had the opportunity for a whole year. Let the words of the prophet sink deep into your hearts and create within you a stronger desire than ever before to be present at this meeting. Invite your neighbors and friends to come and spend a ten days vacation in this beautiful park. Beautiful Winona.

With the opening of the season at Winona Lake, May 10th, the sale of excursion tickets over the Pennsylvania Lines to that attractive resort in Northern Indiana will begin. Every summer passed there by thousands has only increased their desire to return. On the golf links, the tennis courts, the baseball or cricket grounds, the croquet field, or boating on the lake, fishing, camping, swimming, driving, or attending recitals and lectures by world-famed personages in the auditorium—whatever the diversion may be, the associations are of that congenial sort conferred by good society. This resort is noted as the site of Winona Assembly and Summer School, attracting teachers and students from educational institutions of this and other countries.

Fifteen-day and season excursion tickets will be sold from stations of the Pennsylvania Lines during the summer. For information about fares and time of trains, apply to local ticket agents, or to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Illustrated literature describing attractions of Winona Lake may be had for the asking. Address S. C. Dickey, Secretary and General Manager, Winona Lake, Ind., who will give particulars regarding camping facilities, hotel accommodations, program of addresses by noted speakers and all other details.—Sept. 30.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Marshall, co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money set loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the Bible restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the right-eous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

Rest Remaineth.

Rest remaineth—oh, how sweet!
Flowery fields our wandering feet,
Peaceful calm for sleepless eyes,
Life for death, and songs for sighs.

Rest remaineth—hush that sigh!
Mourning pilgrim, rest is nigh;
Yet a season, bright and blest;
Then shalt enter on thy rest.

Rest remaineth—rest from sin:
Guilt can never enter in;
Every warring thought shall rest—
Rest in purity and peace.

Rest remaineth—rest from fears:
Rest from parting, rest from tears.
Every sobbing thought shall be Lost, my Savior, lost in thee.

Rest remaineth—oh how blest!
We believe, and we may rest;
Faith, regaining faith, hath been
Mongst the things that are not seen.

Thus, my Savior, let me be
Even here at rest with thee,
And at last, by thee possessed,
On thy bosom sink to rest.

Pine Woods Bible Class.

Teacher. I would like to suggest a topic for our study tonight, in the form of a question:

IS THE CHURCH THE KINGDOM OF GOD?

This topic was suggested to my mind while delivering a series of discourses in the Christian Church, at Sherman, Texas. On invitation, I attended the Sunday school, belonging to that Church, and took my place in the Bible class. The lesson was taken from the eleventh chapter of Luke. The leader asked me to comment on verse 2, which reads as follows: "Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name. Thy kingdom come," etc. The question turned on whether the kingdom to be prayed for was not already set up, and as to what was the nature of that kingdom? I replied that it had not yet come, and that the kingdom of God could be none other than the kingdom which God had promised to Jesus. I quoted Luke i. 31-33: "And the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David: and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

Mr. Fuller the pastor of the church, was in the class, and he explained that the position of the Disciple Church was, that the kingdom of God was set up on the day of Pentecost, and that the Church was the kingdom.

The question was asked, that if the kingdom was set up at that time, would it be proper for us to still pray, "Thy kingdom come?" Mr. Fuller replied that it might be as the kingdom had not fully come, the church had not yet been established over all the earth.

A lady suggested that we might change the phraseology somewhat, and "pray for the extension of the kingdom."

I told the class that in the Greek language the word church is translated from ecclesia, and that the word kingdom is from basileia, and that each word had its own distinctive meaning, and in no case were they to be used as interchangeable words.

Now, Arlon, please tell us how many times the Greek word ecclesia occurs in the New Testament?

Arlon. About one hundred and fifteen times.

Q. What does it mean?

A. Church or congregation.

Q. In those 115 times is it ever translated by the word kingdom?

A. Not a single time.

Q. How many times does the Greek word basileia occur in the New Testament?

A. About one hundred and sixty times.

Q. What does it mean?

A. Kingdom.

Q. Is the word basileia ever translated by the word church?

A. Never. The Disciple or Christian church are very inconsistent in taking this position. They contend, and rightly so, with other denominations, that the words baptizo and rantizo are not interchangeable words, any more than their English equivalents, immerse and sprinkle. Yet they use ecclesia and basileia interchangably, when in fact, they are as distinct as baptizo is from rantizo. Don't seek to sustain your unwritten creed by such an untenable position.

Teacher. Albert, in what other way can such a position be shown to be unsound.

Albert. If those words are in fact interchangeable, they will make sense by substituting the one word for the other.

Q. Will you please give a few samples, taking that liberty?

A. I will.

1. Dan. ii. 44: "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a (church) which shall never be destroyed."

2. Dan. viii. 18: "But the saints (the church) of the Most High shall take the (church) and possess the (church) for ever, even for ever and ever." The church must take the church and possess the church, in other words, take and possess itself.

3. Verse 22: "And the time came that the saints (the church) possessed the church." Took possession of itself.

4. Verse 23: "The fourth beast shall be the fourth (church) upon earth."

5. Verse 27: "And the (church) and the dominion, and the greatness of the (church) under the whole heaven, shall be given to the people of the saints (the church) of the Most High, whose (church) is an everlasting (church)," etc.

6. Matt. xxv. 34: "Inherit the (church) prepared for you."

7. Luke xiii. 28: "Ye shall see Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, and all the prophets in the (church) of God, and you yourselves thrust out."

8. 2 Tim. iv. 1: "Who shall judge the quick and the dead at his appearing and his (church)." There is a long space of time between the establishment of the church and his appearing.

9. Matt. vi. 10: "Thy (church) come." Think of the church praying for the church to come.

10. Matt. v. 20: "Ye shall in no case enter the (church) of heaven."

11. Acts xiv. 22, "We must through much tribulation enter the (church) of God." Where does the tribulation come in?

12. 2 Pet. i. 11, "For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting (church) of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." This was given to the church some 33 years after Pentecost, that they may have an abundant entrance into the church.

13. 2 Thes. i. 5, "That ye may be counted worthy of the (church) of God, for which ye also suffer."

14. 1 Cor. vi. 9, "The unrighteous shall not inherit the (church) of God." You can have a prominent place in it, if you contribute liberally of your finance.

15. 1 Cor. xv. 50, "Flesh and blood cannot inherit the (church) of God." They are all flesh and blood without an exception.

16. Luke xxi. 31, "When ye see these things come to pass, know ye that the (church) of God is nigh at hand." How could it be nigh at hand, if it is already here, and has been since Pentecost?

17. "I will not drink of the fruit of the vine until the (church) of God shall come." Luke xxii. 18.

18. Verse 27, "I appoint unto you a (church), as my Father hath appointed unto me; that ye may eat and drink at my table in my (church); and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel," in his church.

19. Acts i. 6, "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the (church) to Israel."

20. James ii. 5, "Hath not God chosen the poor of this world rich in faith, and heirs of the (church) which he hath promised to them that love him?" If we are yet only heirs to the church, and the church as yet is only a matter of promise, then the church was not set up on Pentecost.

I have given these quotations at length, to show how inconsistent is the position of the Disciple or Christian church, that the church (ecclesia) is the kingdom (basileai) promised the church, and that interchange of those words makes complete nonsense of God's Word.

Teacher. Currie, is the idea that the church is the kingdom, prevalent among other denominations beside the Christian Church?

Currie. It is. Very frequently in their prayers, they pray, "Lord, extend thy kingdom," meaning the church.

Q. Such a prayer suggests the thought that the kingdom has come, and only needs to be extended does it not?

A. Yes, it does.

Q. Do these same churches, including the Christian Church, also pray, "Thy kingdom come?"

A. They do. You remember that you told me not long ago, that when you were at the Christian Church, at Sherman, that the superintendent displayed a large printed chart of the Lord's prayer, and that the superintendent, pastor, teachers and scholars, all prayed "thy kingdom come," when they teach that his kingdom did come on the day of Pentecost, and was already here.

Q. Is it not folly to pray for the coming of that which they say has already come?

A. Decidedly so, it is very inconsistent.

Teacher. I want to say that I called the attention of this Christian Church Bible class teacher to Acts i. 6, which reads as follows: "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" He said that this Scripture showed clearly that the disciples did not understand the nature of the kingdom. He could not see what the kingdom of Israel had to do with this theory of the Christian Church of a church kingdom. I will ask Lud to show what the kingdom of Israel has to do with the kingdom over which Jesus shall officiate as King.

Lud. See Luke i. 32: "He shall be great, and he shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

Q. Over what people did David reign?

A. The people of Israel.

Q. Over what people will Jesus reign?

A. "The house of Jacob."

Q. Who are they?

A. The descendants of the twelve sons of Jacob,—the children of Israel.

Q. Where are the children of Israel?

A. In dispersion, they were carried captive among all nations.

Q. If Jesus is to reign over them, on David's throne, they must return to their fatherland, must they not, and have the kingdom restored to Israel again?

A. He could never rule over Israel as their King, unless such an event should take place.

Q. Were the disciples then very far astray, when they asked the question: "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?"

A. The question is in perfect harmony with God's purpose concerning his Son. The Christian church Bible class teacher was the man who did not understand the nature of God's kingdom, and not Jesus' disciples, with whom he spent "forty days speaking of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God," after his resurrection. Before Jesus' death, he ordained them as ministers of the gospel of the kingdom, and "sent them to preach the kingdom of God."

Q. Could you conceive of Jesus sending them to preach the kingdom of God, if they were ignorant of the topic that he sent them to preach?

A. I could not conceive of such a thing for one moment. He had been their sole instructor, giving them years of instruction. A teacher with half of his capacity and knowledge would know the status of his pupils. Those whom Jesus personally commissioned to teach a certain message, you may rest assured, were perfectly competent to teach what their teacher sent them to teach. To affirm otherwise, is a sad reflection on Jesus, as a teacher.

Q. What did Jesus instruct his future heralds to do after his ascension to heaven?

A. He told them to tarry at Jerusalem, until they were endued with power from on high, then they should go forth as his witnesses.

Q. After receiving power, what message did they proclaim?

A. See Acts ii. 29-30, "Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him (David), that of the fruit of his loins, according to his flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne."

Q. The disciples were filled with the Holy Spirit at that time, were they not, to further qualify them as safe teachers of the gospel message, he sent them to preach?

A. They were.

Q. Did they preach a contrary message to that they preached before they received this qualifying power?

A. They did not. They still looked for the restoration of the kingdom to Israel. Peter says he (Jesus) was raised from the dead "to sit on his (David's) throne." Preachers and Bible class teachers ought to better acquaint themselves with God's Word before attempting to teach others.

Yours in the blessed hope.

Exhortations at the Breaking of Bread.

Only fear the Lord and serve him in truth with all your heart; for consider how great things he hath done for you. Our lesson says only fear the Lord, and serve him. He is the only one that is to be feared, for he is able to do with us whatsoever he may choose to do, but if we serve him with our whole heart and obey his commands, he is long suffering and of tender mercy, and will surely do great things for us. In good men and women the fear of God is a holy awe, or reverence of God and his laws, which spring from a just view and real love of the divine character, leading the subject of it to hate and abhor every thing that can offend such a holy Being, and inclining them to aim at perfect obedience. There are very few in this age of the world that take any thought or even think for a moment, that the Lord is the only one that can do great things, and him only. The fear of the Lord ought to cause us to shun all evil, or the very appearance of it, and walk in the straight and narrow way that will lead us eventually into the folds of Christ, the only true haven of rest. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge and wisdom. It certainly is something that we ought to be benefitted by, for it is mentioned so many times in the Scriptures. We are admonished time and again to fear the Lord, his tender mercy is over all that fear him in humbleness of heart. The Lord will have mercy and pity on those that fear him as a father doth his children. Samuel advised the children of Israel, that he had hearkened unto your voice in all that ye said unto me, and have made you a king over you. Samuel advised the children of Israel to turn not aside from following the Lord with all your hearts, and turn not aside from following the Lord for then would you go after vain things which cannot profit a deliverer for they are vain, for the Lord will not forsake his people for his great mercy's sake, because it has pleased the Lord to make you his people, but I (Samuel) will teach you the good and right way. The fear of the Lord is the beginning of knowledge, but fools despise wisdom and instruction. The fear of the Lord is to hate evil, pride, arrogancy and the evil way. The fear of the Lord is strong confidence and his children shall have a place of refuge, the fear of the Lord is a fountain of life, to depart from the snares of death, and his mercy is on them from generation to generation. If the Jews were admonished to fear the Lord and serve him in truth with their whole heart, when they were blinded and would not accept him as their king, we Gentiles ought to fear and serve him, even more, for we have had the New Testament given us, which is the end of the old Mosaic law, and which contains the preaching of the inspired apostles; and the revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave unto him to show to his servants things that must shortly come to pass, and he sent it by his angel unto his servant John. Now let us serve him fervently with our whole heart.

WAIT ON THE LORD.

Wait on the Lord; be of good courage, and he shall strengthen thine heart; wait, I say, on the Lord. Truly my soul waiteth upon God; from him cometh my salvation. And it shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God, we have waited for him, and he will save us; this is the Lord; we have waited for him, we will be glad and rejoice in his salvation. Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.

If a man die shall he live again? All the days of my appointed time will I wait till my change comes. Lead me in thy truth and teach me; for thou art the God of my salvation, on thee do I wait all the day. And therefore will the Lord wait, that he may be gracious unto you, and therefore will he be exalted, that he may have mercy upon you; for the Lord is a God of judgment; blessed are all they that wait for him. Therefore will I look unto the Lord; I will wait for the God of my salvation; my God will hear me. Rejoice not against me, O mine enemy; when I fall I shall rise; when I sit in darkness, the Lord shall be a light unto me.

Wisdom of Selrach.

CHAPTER 41.

1. O death, how bitter is the remembrance of thee to a man at peace in his possessions, to a man of mark undistracted and prospering in every way, and still strong to take sustenance.

2. O death, how good thy verdict is to a man praying for it and diminishing in strength, in extreme old age and distracted about everything, and who distrusteth and hath lost patient-endurance.

3. Do not revere a verdict of death; remember thy first and last experiences.

4. This is the verdict from the Lord on all flesh, and why refuse to acquiese in the satisfaction of the Most High? Whether ten or a hundred or a thousand years, there is in Hadees (the grave) no reproof of life.

5. Abominable children have been born, children of obdurate-sinners, and brought up along with them in the sojournings of the irreverent.

6. An inheritance of children of obdurate-sinners will be lost, and with their seed will reproach continue.

7. Children will blame an irreverent father because for his sake they will have suffered reproach.

8. Woe unto you, ye irreverent men who forsake the law of a Most High God.

9. Even if ye be begotten, ye will have been begotten unto a curse, and if ye die (judicially) ye will have been apportioned unto a curse.

10. All things whatsoever from earth will return to earth; even so irreverent men will go away from a curse unto loss.

11. Men's sorrows are in their bodies; but a name of obdurate-sinners not good will have been wiped out.

12. Be thoughtful about a name, for it will abide for thee rather than a thousand great treasures of gold.

13. The number of days of a good life and a good name abide unto an animate-age (forever?)

14. Ye children, Watch to keep chastening with you in peace; but wisdom that hath been hid away and an invisible treasure what profit is there in either?

15. Better is a man who hideth his folly than a man who hideth his wisdom.

16. Therefore give heed to my oracular-word; for there is no shame in guarding a good thing, and all things do not have the same value to all in faith.

17. Be ashamed of a father and a mother for fornication, and of a leader and a man of influence for a lie.

18. Be ashamed of a judge and a ruler for a discordant error, of a synagogue and a laity for transgression, of a partner and a friend for iniquity.

19. And of a place where thou dwellest for theft, and of God's truth and covenant for contemptuous taking and giving and for crooking the elbow for bread.

20. And of those who receive greetings for silence; of the sight of a woman who is a harlot.

21. And of the averting of the face of one's kindred; of the taking away of a portion in distribution and giving; and of too close a contemplation of a married woman.

22. Of too much attention to one's housemaid; and do not stand by her couch; of friends for words of reproach; and do not thou reproach after having given.

COMMENT.

What is said in this chapter on the question of the perpetuity of sin and its consequences in this mortal condition of things and as to whether death and the grave can change congenital results, is well worthy of careful study and consideration; and where will you find better advice for your conduct of life whether as a private citizen, a ruler, leader or a man of affairs than is given in the closing verses of the same chapter. Read and reflect.

CHAS. GARDNER.

Let Nothing be Done Through Strife.

Are we whacking each other, or making Christians?

Are we striving for self vindication or to get converts?

There was a great king that forgave [illegible] millions of dollars. But the same servant [illegible] found one of his fellow servants which owed him about fourteen dollars, and he laid hands on him, and took him by the throat, saying Pay me that thou owest me! Listen, not rendering evil for evil or railing for railing. "But I say unto you that ye resist not evil; but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek turn to him the other also."

"And now abideth faith, hope, charity, these three; but the greatest of these is charity."

Over thirty years I have been working in "the Lord's vineyard," for the Lord," and my greater mistake has not been that I have sometimes received blows from fellow servants, but that I ever struck back, and called it "self defense!" Can we say that we are working for the Lord if the burden of life becomes self vindication?

We are workers together for the Lord if we are working with him. "We then as workers together with Him beseech you also that ye receive not the grace of God in vain."

"Looking diligently lest any man fail at the grace of God; lest any root of bitterness springing up trouble you and thereby many be defiled." It is often better to ignore than fight.

Turks are again killing Armenians and destroying their villages.

Can any one supply us the present address of Wm. Nantze, late of Pleasanton, Kan.

As was expected when the United States war ships appeared in Turkish waters, the Sultan was willing to promise anything that was asked of him.

An heir to the throne of the Czar of Russia was born last week, but the disasters in the far east cast a gloom over what would have been a time of rejoicing.

It will be noticed that chapter 12 of Chas Gardener's current translation was given before chapter 11. This was caused by an error in the mails. Those who preserve these writings can transpose them easily.

It is surely evident to all that we cannot well do business without means. It surely is likewise evident to those who have not yet renewed their subscription that we must be in need of what is due us. We dislike very much to mention this, and hope you will not compell us to repeat the hint.

On August 11 a British cruiser landed sailors and guns on Bird's island, 127 miles east of the north end of the island of Dominica in the West Indies, fired a royal salute, hoisted the British flag, and formally annexed the island. As this interferes with our idea of the Monroe doctrine the United States may protest.

Across the battle between the fleets last week a Russian vessel managed to reach Chefoo, a Chinese port. It was followed by Japanese ships, who entered the harbor, boarded the vessel and took it away as a prize. According to the reports this is a breach of the law, and should have been prevented by [illegible] gives Russia a chance to accuse China of aiding Japan, and so breaking her neutrality contract. According to the treaty between Russia and France in case of any other power going with Japan, France must aid Russia actively. And on the other hand, in case any other power takes up arms with Russia, England must aid Japan. Of course neither France nor England cares to be embroiled in the affair, so it is likely this will be arranged without serious trouble.

There has been plenty of war during the past week. The Japs have taken commanding positions on the hills back of Pigeon and Louisa bays, and are so near to Port Arthur that the harbor and dock yards are in range of their guns. They are pounding away night and day at the beleaguered fortress, it being reported they have 450 heavy guns bearing on the place. It is presumed that this induced the fleet in the harbor to make a dash for the open sea on Aug. 10, where they were met by the Japanese fleet, and after seven hours of fighting in which the Russians were badly worsted, part of the vessels crept back into the harbor, and others fled. Some got as far as Shanghai in bad condition. Within the 48 hour limit such vessels must leave and run the risk of meeting Japanese vessels, or else they must disarm and remain till the end of the war, when the terms of peace determine who they belong to. Admiral Withoft, who commanded the Russian fleet was killed during the engagement. Meanwhile the armies of both sides in the north seem to be taking a rest. The main part of the Japanese forces are lost to the Russians, and it is supposed they will appear at an unexpected point to further harrass their enemy. The Russian Vladivostok squadron was out again on a raid, and this time Admiral Kamimura came up with them, and after five hours of battle sunk one cruiser with its crew of 700 men, and badly crippled the other vessels which turned back and fled. Reports say that from both sea fights the Japs came out with little serious damage, and that there fighting capacity is not diminished.

The New York Independent speaking of the socialism in Europe, and the conflict it has with Catholicism, has the following to say:—

It is an indubitable fact that, notwithstanding appearances to the contrary, Europe is now decatholicizing herself. One might even go further with safety and say that she is dechristianizing herself. Slowly but surely, with the irresistible movement of a geological subsidence, faith is waning among industrial workers, and even among the peasants. In Belgium, in France, in Germany, the workmen who follow no particular creed number hundreds of thousands—yes, millions—and as their hopes of any heavenly kingdom dissolve other hopes assert themselves with a growing intensity. Wherever free thought penetrates Socialism enters also.

Frightened by the socio-industrial consequences of free thought, an increasing section of the rich class leans towards the church, and especially toward the Roman Catholic Church, which is regarded by all as the strongest bulwark of the capitalists' interest. The apparent clerical reaction is thus shown to be in fact a corollary of the decline of faith amongst the masses. But it is nevertheless true that the alliance of priest and capitalist, the coalition of spiritual and temporal power, against Socialism and free thought, furnishes the conservative and reactionary parties with formidable means of action, and constitutes by far the most redoubtable threat against the immediate future of European civilization. It is a contest between the Black International and the Red International. On the one hand are all those who hold that authority should descend from above, and who find in the Roman Catholic Church the most perfect expression of their ideal, the most inflexible guardian of their class privileges; on the hand are those who insist that authority shall come from the people, and who, by the logic of circumstances, can found their hopes on nothing but Social Democracy."

Some Vital Questions.

1. Why did not Mark say, "The Beginning of the Gospel of the son of Joseph?"

2. Why is the subject of the blood of Christ so prominent in apostolic teaching if it is not vitally connected with our salvation?

3. Was it not a vital matter to dedicate the New Testament by the blood of Christ. No evasion allowed here.

4. Seeing the Ephesians (ch. ii. 13) were brought nigh by the blood of Christ,—have those been brought nigh, who deny the sacrificial character of that blood? If so, by what means, and by what authority?

5. Jesus said, this cup [its contents] is the new covenant in my blood," "Drink all of you out of it, for this is my blood of the covenant, that which is poured out for many for forgiveness of sins." And

This cup is the new covenant in my blood; this do for remembrance. Have those who deny the sacrificial nature of his blood shedding abandoned the memorial service? If not is it now with them a farce?

6. Do those we oppose baptize their converts into the death of Christ (Rom. vi.) after teaching that his death was supererogatory and, holding as they do, that God takes no account of past sin if men repent?

7. Do not the words, "Though being a son learned obedience from what he suffered," Heb. v. 8, prove him to be Son of God before his death and resurrection?

8. Do not the words, "By the which will we are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all, squarely contradict our Josephite authors?

9. Do not the words, "For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins," prove there has been one sacrifice for sins? If so, what do the Josephite statements do but contradict God's Word?

10. How do Josephites become dead to the law, if not by the body of Christ? Rom. vii. 4.

11. Why do Josephites allow the word FATHER to have its natural meaning when used of Joseph, and not so in reference to God?

12. When Peter in answer to a question from Jesus, said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God, do they not reject this testimony?

13. In rejecting the avowal of Peter, do they not reject the Lord's endorsement of it also? "Happy art thou Simon, son of Joseph; for flesh and blood has not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven? And I say also unto thee, That art Peter, (a rock) and upon this rock [this rock of truth the Father had revealed to Peter,—and which Peter had just given expression to, viz., Thou art the Christ the SON of the LIVING GOD] I will build my church; and the gates of hades [the grave] shall not prevail against it."

14. Does not Jesus here indicate that he would come under the power of death; but that he would overcome that power? Who can deny it? He avers that his church would be built upon the foundation truth, that he was the Anointed, THE SON OF THE LIVING GOD.

But although Son of God he would die, and the members of his body, the church, would also die, the gates of the grave would not always be closed upon them: and the subsequent announcement from heaven that he who was dead is alive, and holds the keys of death and the grave, Rev. i. 18, show we correctly understand his words to Peter. He will rescue them in due time.

15. Josephites see no need for the death of Christ; but the Spirit in Paul says, "For to this end Christ both died, and rose, and revived, that he might be Lord, both of the dead and the living." Evidently he would have been Lord of neither the dead nor the living, had he not died and rose again. The same apostle positively teaches this in 1 Cor. xv. 12-17. Are such men safe teachers? Take heed what ye hear!

16. In 1 Cor. v. 1, the apostle says of himself and the church at Corinth, "For even Christ our Passover is sacrificed for us." Those we oppose have no Passover—they think they do not need one; and, although he pleads to be allowed to become their passover, Christ will not force himself upon them. They must come to him.

17. Should not Josephites hesitate before they read "son of Joseph" into John xiv. 9, "He that hath seen me (son of Joseph) hath seen the Father?"

18. We are wondering if that zealous disciple of Marcion rejects the whole of the Old Testament as his master did; or, reads son of Joseph parenthetically into Psa. xxiv. 9, 10, "Lift up your heads, O ye gates; even lift them up, ye everlasting doors,—and the king of glory shall come in. Who is this King of glory? The Jehovah of hosts (or armies) he is the King of glory." All should know this is said of Christ.

19. And is there fitness or intelligibility in applying the sublime language of Psalm xlv. 1-6 to the SON OF JOSEPH? "I speak of the things which I have made touching THE KING.....Thou art fairer than the children of men; grace is poured into thy lips; therefore God hath blessed thee for ever. Gird thy sword upon thy thigh, O most mighty, with thy glory and thy majesty; and in thy majesty ride prosperously because of truth, and meekness, and righteousness, and thy right hand shall teach thee terrible things.. ...Thy throne, O God, is for ever and ever; the sceptre of thy kingdom is a right sceptre," etc. See Heb. i. 5-9, to prove the application is correct.

20. On what principle could the son of Joseph be called JEHOVAH OF ARMIES, (Isa. xxiv. 23) and JEHOVAH OUR RIGHTEOUSNESS (Jer. xxiii. 5, 6) when God swore to David that he (God) would be the Father of the Seed to whom these names and titles are here applied: and seeing, too, Jehovah here names his Son after himself, not after Joseph; and in addition to all this declares he shall be "our righteousness," precisely what those we oppose do not need, and will not have; each of them is independently righteous.

21. Is it not a serious matter to disregard the word of the Spirit in Isa. xl. 3, "The voice of him that crieth in the wilderness, prepare ye the way of Jehovah, make straight in the desert a highway for OUR GOD;" and repeated in Malachi iii. 1, and interpreted and applied to John and Christ by Matthew, Mark and Luke, yes; is it not a serious matter to allege that one of the greatest of the prophets was sent of God to announce the coming of one bearing Jehovah's name, and to prepare the way of him who is called OUR GOD, and that all this points to a son of Joseph who has neither DIED for us, nor risen for us, nor BOUGHT us with HIS PRECIOUS BLOOD, nor become to us wisdom, righteousness, sanctification nor redemption!!

22. Is it not a serious matter, when we realize that if Jesus did not DIE for us,—he was not raised again for our justification; and we are yet in our sins? 1 Cor. xv. 12-17. And we, under those circumstances have not been begotten to a hope of life by his resurrection, as Peter and his brethren are said to have been: 1 Pet. i. 3.

23. If Joseph had been the father of Jesus, we ask if Jesus could not have saved his life by acknowledging that to have been the case? Consult Matt. xxvi. 63, 64; Mark xiv. 61, 62; Luke xxii. 70; John xvii. 7. And see that this confession together with the confession that he was born to be a king, were the crimes for which it was pretended he was convicted and executed;—did not live half of his allotted time.

24. After the abundance of divine testimony already presented, showing the divine paternity of Jesus, would it not be gross presumption to read John xvi. 14 as follows:—he [Spirit of truth] shall glorify me, (son of Joseph) because he will take of mine (Joseph's son) and declare to you." ver. 15. All things that the Father has are mine (son of Joseph)?

25. Will our readers now turn to John v. 17, where Jesus says, "MY Father works till now, and I work." Did he refer to Joseph as his Father? No! The context shows clearly that he spake of God as his Father. He had just healed a man afflicted 38 years; and was found fault with for doing so. We have quoted his answer to them; then the fault-finders sought to kill him because he had made God his own Father." Diaglott Translation. To this he replied, "Indeed, I assure you, the son can do nothing of himself except what he may see the Father doing; for whatever he does, these things also does the Son in like manner."

What next? Why, he gives the reason for what he has just said, "For the Father loves the Son, and shows him all want he does; and greater works than these will he show him, that you may wonder. For as the Father raises up and makes alive the dead, so, also, the Son makes alive whom he will.

Editor Restitution:

I am 85 years of age, and I go to the city, one half mile almost every day to get my mail, and my food. I go on foot when I can't get a chance to ride. But I find the infirmities of age creeping on and I am almost blind, having had only one eye as you undoubtedly know I lost my eye when I was only 3 or 4 years of age.

I have been attending the class meeting of the M. E. church, and the doctrine of going to heaven as soon as they die is strongly believed and advocated, but I have told them plainly that they are mistaken in believing any one will go to heaven at any time; that such an idea depends upon the doctrine of the immortality of the soul. In regard to this doctrine of the soul, a little history from Mr. Gladstone the Historian may not be out of place in this connection. Mr. Gladstone says "From the sixth century the doctrine of the immortality of the soul spread rapidly and marvelously, culminating in the year 1513 by a Bull of Pope Leo X. condemning and reprobating all who should declare the soul to be mortal." Mr. Gladstone continues. "After Origen's time, and particularly from the sixth century, there was a change in the teaching of the church, wholesale change."

By this it is plain that the doctrine of the immortality of the soul is a harlot doctrine, and protestants in protesting against the many doctrines and practices of Popery, overlooked this great error, and adopted it into their creed, but it certainly is no less false because it comes from the catholic church than when it came from the Serpent in the Garden of Eden. These M. E. church people express the belief that they shall go to heaven at death. I have told them that none of earth's inhabitants will ever go to heaven at death. For even the Saviour told His disciples that they should not go to heaven. He said whither I go ye cannot come: and there is not a thought expressed by any of the New Testament writers of going to heaven. This is an age of Restitution, Earth is to be restored back to where it was when it was created. Earth was made good enough for all the inhabitants it could contain, but sin contaminated it and so the restitution became necessary.

The Religious Condition of the World.

The people are deceived and cursed with false, senseless religions, made up of false theories, isms and delusions. At present the most promising among them are Rationalism, Calvinism; Liberalism, Romanism, Mormonism, Eddyism, Dowieism, Spiritualism, Evolution, etc. There is a class of (so-called) wise men, ever trying to get rid of the fact of the living and personal God—the creator of all things—substituting for it the eternity of matter and the doctrine of eternal chance and inexorable fate.

Fatalism in various forms was the attempted philosophy of the ancient nations. Their literature, science and religion were full of it. Even their gods were supposed to be ruled by the fates. The idea of creation was far from them. Brahmanism, Buddhism, Confucianism, and Greek philosophers, were all fatalistic. Finally fatalism got into the Roman church. Then Calvin systemized it for Protestants, and Knox and others taught it all over the world. Till at last the Christian world is repudiating it. The dark night of Deistic fatalism is a thing of the past, and the rising sun of truth and light is fast exploding those old heathen notions.

During the nineteenth century a class of men (who reject the truth) conceived the idea of putting those Deistic, fatalistic ideas into scientific form, as the true philosophy, and into the place of a personal God, under the head of the phase, "persistent force." During the past one hundred years this same class of men have been united in a diabolical conspiracy to put out of mind the fact of a personal God—the only true and living God—and to put in its place the false doctrines of an impersonal God, or persistent force, and inexorable, blind, fatalistic chance-process—not law.

Darwin tried to prove the doctrine of evolution true, but failed. Huxley suggested the phase "persistent force," which was adopted by Spencer, and has been used since by his persistent disciples as the best term with which to displace the doctrine of the personal and only true and living God, and to put into his place the old and exploded heathen fatalistic conception of the cosmos based on the idea of eternity of matter and no creation. So now these modern (so called) wise men are running matters on this line, that the whole cosmic process consists of evolution and dissolution under this chance of fatalistic conception. They are trying to explain all the affairs of life with their science and philosophy. So they make the attempt to run all the world on that line—by means of their "persistent force."

But there is a waking up and a day at hand that will greatly change the aspect of affairs, when fatalistic philosophy and mongrel science will receive their fatal blow, together with the corrupt political "frog spirits," of which the world swarms to-day. (See Rev. xvi: 13.)

The characteristics of the frog spirit is peculiar, as it lives in two elements—in water or out of it, as best suits its interest. Religion and politics rule the world to-day. The frog spirits have gone forth to all the world to do their dirty, deceptive work.

The true church, composed of the saints of the Most High (see Dan. vii: 22, 25, 27), that was so long obscured during the dark ages, is now at the front with her banner of light and truth unfurled and thrown to the breeze, so that this dark world of sin and unbelief may know the true, personal and living God and his Son Jesus Christ, the only Saviour in whom only there is life everlasting.

The heathen are now beginning to see the light, as the dark shadows flee away, enabling them to extricate themselves from superstition and idolatry. Just at present there appears to exist a mixed state of things, but the mist is beginning to clear away. There is need of a change in the affairs of this world, and that change is at hand, when the nations shall bow to the rule and reign of the King of kings and Lord of lords. "Mene, Mene Tekel, Upharsin" is written upon the wall of the palaces of the kingdoms of this world, which are numbered, and soon will be finished, as they are "weighed in the balance and found wanting." "And the kingdoms of this world shall become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ, and he shall reign forever and ever" (Rev. xi: 18).—J. E. Clark in Crisis.

Poetry.

Strive, Wait and Pray.

Strive—yet I do not promise
The prize you dream of today
Will not fade when you think to grasp it,
And melt in your hand away;
But another and holier treasure,
You would now, perchance, disdain
Will come when your toil is over
And pay you for all your pain.

Wait—yet I do not tell you
The hour you long for now
Will not come, with its radiance vanished
And a shadow upon its brow;
Yet far through the misty future,
With a crown of star y light,
An hour of joy you know not
Is winging her silent flight.

Pray—but though the gift you ask for
May never comfort your fears,
May never repay your pleading—
Yet pray, and with hopeful tears;
An answer, not that you long for,
But diviner will come one day;
Your eyes are too dim to see it,
Yet strive, and wait and pray.

The Giving of Tithes

It is thought that the giving of tithes originated with Abraham, because he is found after his famous night battle with Chedalaomer and his confederates, "giving tithes of all" to Melchizedek king of Salem, the priest of the Most High God. But God was worshipped before the time of Abraham, and there were priests before Melchizedek—(who was doubtless Shem, the son of Noah.) And if the giving of tithes goes back to the flood would it not go still farther back to the beginning of patriarchal worship? Adam was the priest for his family, and his birthright, robe or stole, descended from one high priest to another until it finally, according to the Jonathan Targum, came into the possession of Jacob "as a badge of the birthright" with all its privileges and prophetical prerogatives.

Abraham gave tithes as if it were an established custom, and Jacob followed his example. So it seems as if tithe-giving, must go back to the time when men were first taught to look upward to God, and that the practice was intended to be continuous. It seems so from the vow that Jacob made at Bethel when on his way to Padan-Aram. Prof. Bush in his notes on Gen. xxviii: says, "It is clear that tithes were paid and set apart for religious uses before the giving of the law of Moses. To whom they were paid, or to what particular purpose applied in Jacob's case does not appear, but it seems very probable, that Jacob intended to lay an obligation upon his posterity to restore a tenth of the fruits of their labor for the maintainance of religious institutions." And Bush is right, for Jacob had the gift of prophecy, and his vow was a prophetical vow. God had promised not to leave him until he had performed all that he had spoken to him of. To keep him in all places where he might go, and to bring him again into that land, would be to keep him, by keeping loving guard over his posterity in all places where they might go, and by bringing them back to the covenant land. It is but a reiteration, in another form, of the covenant made to Abraham.

If the covenant is an enduring one, then is also the vow, for both are indissolubly linked together. The vow is therefore binding upon us, who being Christ's "are Abraham's seed according to the promise," and who are —both literally and spiritually—of the house of Jacob. For if the promise was before the law, and was not disannuled by the law, so was tithe-giving before the law, and not disannulled by it. This is shown by the parable of the vineyard. The husbandman—God—had for a time, let out his earth—vineyard to Judah. They had beaten, stoned, and slain, his prophets, and had crucified his Son. That vineyard was then to be given to a stone-nation against which, if other nations came, they would inevitably be broken or, if it went against others in war, they would be ground to powder.

This nation to whom the kingdom of God was to be given, after it was taken from Judah, can be none other than God's chosen people, Israel,—cast off for a time,—but recovenanted again to him through the gospel.

He has "let out his vineyard to other husbandmen which shall render him the fruits in their seasons." The vow, was a racial vow. It is applicable to Jacob's posterity, as nations. But with this phase of the question, we have not at present to do, only to say, that nationally the Anglo-Saxon race are amazing the world by what they are doing for India, Egypt, the Philippine Islands, and other lands, in caring for the health of these peoples, in giving them water so that their food-supplies may not fail; in teaching them the arts of civilization; schooling them in science; putting the Bible in their hands, and so preparing them to come under the rule of God's dear son.

These are the national fruits, or tithes that the newly chosen husbandmen are rendering to God in their season, and with which they are blessing the kindreds and families of earth. The law sanctioned tithe-giving, and yet tithe-giving has survived the law, as Jesus has taught us in this vineyard-parable. And if tithe-giving is obligatory upon the nation, much more is it obligatory upon the church as a part of the nation.

"Give," says our Savior, "And it shall be given unto you; good measure; pressed down and shaken together and running over, shall men give into your bosom; for with the same measure that ye mete withal, it shall be measured to you again." These words are too solemn to overlook. "With the same measure that ye mete withal, shall it be measured to you again!" What measure do you want meted to you again? What is it that you of all things desire most of God? You expect salvation from his hands. You look for him to give you a fadeless inheritance. You are hoping to have a life that will have no end. "Give," says the Savior, and "it shall be given unto you." Give not and lose all.

"Freely you have received, freely give." The gospel came without cost to you, let it go without cost to others. "Seek first the kingdom of God," before studying to gratify your own interest and pleasure, leave all personal and family interests in God's custody, while making it the supreme object of your life, to carry out the grand commission given by Jesus to the church, to "Go, disciple all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit." You have been choosen of God to be the Saviors of men, be about the work.

"It is required of stewards, that a man be found faithful." We have been made "stewards of the manifold grace of God." Let us act as honest stewards ought to act. As Mr. Conant says, "Let a man but honestly ask himself what he ought to do with the capital, machinery, goodwill and profits of business entrusted to him as agent by a principal and proprietor, and with the time, talents and labor, which he has pledged to that employer by contract. He will then have no more to do but to place himself and all that he finds in his hands, exactly in that same relation to the Lord that bought him." God has seen fit to impose upon us the responsibility of dividing between His and ours. Let it be done faithfully, let no mistake be made.

A certain man was in a dream suddenly brought into possession of great wealth, and led to study in the sight of God what to do with it. In his dream he thought, "I have lived comfortably and contentedly heretofore, and I will not change to greater self-indulgence or more imposing state. I will make it sure that no man can be so humble as to be awed at the door of my dwelling. The interests of architecture can be attended to by those who have nothing better to do.

I will choose for my children not all the accomplishments of art and refined culture that can be crowded into their lives by diversified and expensive instruction, foreign travel and the like, but the better, finer, higher culture of plain living with Jesus for the suffering and the perishing who have yet to know him." etc.

It is only "the liberal soul that shall be made fat;" and he that "watereth, shall be watered himself," what if we are not liberal—what if we water not? "There is that that scattereth and yet increaseth and there is that withholdeth more than is meet," but with what result? "It tendeth to poverty!" Poverty and leanness of soul. He who does not give loses all interest in the things of the Lord, for he has no partnership with him, in the saving of men and the bringing in of the grand age of restitution. He knows nothing of the joy of feeling, that, although he cannot preach himself, yet some one else is able to preach for him, by means of that money he has given, and that while he is quietly working at home, the glad tiding are being sounded out by the messenger he has helped to send.

Oh, I would not miss the pleasure for all the pleasures of the world! would you dear tithe-giving sisters of this Michigan conference? I know you would not.

J. August Smith, the general secretary of the Tenth Volunteer, A. C. denomination, says, "The regular giving of tithes is but a token of affection, because God is honored with the property disbursed to the many needy causes and institutions engaged in the lifting up of humanity, and the amount of our sacrifices, measures the extent of our interest." This is so, no one can be a true Christian and not give. We can give without love, but we cannot love and not give.

Some complain that the giving of a tenth is not proportionate giving. And yet it is, it equalizes all, because all give a tenth of what they receive in the way of income. The poor give according to what they receive, and the rich do the same, one is not "eased and another burdened," but each on the first day of the week lays by him in store as the Lord hath prospered him, not "grudgingly or of necessity" but cheerfully and lovingly and thankfully with a true sense of the blessedness of the privilege accorded him by the Lord.

The first thing that God asks is a willing mind. The gift is then accepted "according to that a man hath, and not according to that he hath not." God desires that there be equality; each tenant paying a rental proportioned to the amount of property placed in his hands, if five pounds, or two, or one, it must be put out to the bankers, that Christ at his coming may receive his own with usury.

No child of God is too poor to give: all are fellow workers with Christ, and are to share in the pleasure of hastening the coming of the day of God. The little gifts are counted by the dear Father as equal to the larger, because given at the same or greater cost. The widow's mite, was a more precious gift in the eyes of Jesus, than was the whole sum that had been cast by others into the treasury.

It is true that the giving of the tenth is not directly commanded in the New Testament, yet all who have adopted the rule with a sincere desire to honor God, and have proved the Lord, by bringing all their tithes into His store-house, have received the blessing promised by the prophet Malachi, going into partnership with God has been the best bargain they ever made, the poor have soon found themselves freed from debt while others have been blessed "in basket and in store."

Keep on dear sisters, in the way you have begun. I have been rejoicing with you over what you have accomplished, and am praying that you may accomplish more. Strive to enlist others in the good work. Show them that no one ever went honestly "into partnership with God, who did not succeed financially." And have more and still more to give.

Let none withhold his tithe and miss the blessing, lest it be to eternal loss. Take Jacob's vow and keep it,—"Of all that Thou shalt give me I will surely give a tenth unto Thee,"—and God will be with you and keep you in the way that you go and bring you in peace to your Father's house.

Thoughts on the Limitation of Human Knowledge.

We have been startled these few years past by the many wonderful discoveries in the domain of practical science. First there was the X ray that made things visible through otherwise opaque substance, then was the Bequorel ray and the N ray, and last of all the strange substance radium that has set the speculative philosophers to work again figuring on the age and the end of the universe on the strength of the little seven days' wonder that is said to be so many hundred thousand dollars a pound. As a matter of fact all matter is just as mysterious in its way as radium and quite as incapable of being comprehended, but its strange action is such a common occurrence that we take all the mysterious magic as a matter of course while the unusual attracts attention and rouses wonder.

Take the ordinary and prosaic operation of eating dinner for instance. There we turn a heterogeous substance into our interior and think no more of it, but this proceeding is only the beginning of one of the most wonderful processes imaginable. Immediately the various elements in the substances are disintegrated and assort and rearrange themselves into the chemical combination. Most of us no doubt have seen the cars of the postal service in operation as they are whirled over the country. At every new station a new lot of mail is taken in, spread out, sorted and bagged by busy clerks in their shirt sleeves while they still travel along,—and this service is the most perfect institution of man so far but still its absolute perfection it does not compare with the ordinary process of digestion, although somewhat analogous. In the latter case the mysterious missives have no written address to their destination but every one seeks its place as soon as it enters the combination whether it be to nourish the head, the heart, the hand, or the foot, close a rupture of the skin, or mend a fracture of the bone, each and all with a ready precision that intelligent beings, such as we consider ourselves, could never acquire with years of drill these various elements wend their devious ways to perform their several duties working, repairing, policing and directing the corporate body of which they now find themselves a part. And all this without any conscious part taken by the beneficiary of the process, and even without any consciousness at all, if he is in a healthy condition. No rattle, or jar, all quiet, smooth, easy, natural, like a gentle stream flowing down the valley. Yet to the thinking man it is a surpassing mystery,—to the genuine scientist more than any other, and therefore the learned professor writes that he "takes off his hat to the protids."

Then there are other mysterious properties of matter outside of ourselves in every department of nature's wonderful fairy tales. The various properties of the various plants all made out of the same simple element, like the magic bottle that pours out any drink you call for. The rose and the weed grew side by side, so also the the food and the poison. And all the strange chemistry of growth (organic chemistry) and all the various properties of the productions thereof are as much a secret apart from human ken as the resurrection of the dead.

Then there are physical and mechanical mysteries that are puzzling and yet occur before our very eyes. The sap for instance that nourishes a tree flows upward contrary to the law of gravity and for no known reason. Some ignorantly attribute it to capillary attraction in the pores of the wood but ordinary trees are nourished by some arrangement between the bark and the wood, and on a hot summer day when every leaf is shedding vapor to the breeze some large trees have to pump up tons of water to enormous heights, in the case of the big red woods of California, that lift their crests about 400 feet from the ground, we can calculate that the moisture to satisfy the topmost branches is raised against a hydraulic resistance of about a hundred and seventy six pounds to the square inch,—quite a full "head of steam." Then again a continual wonder ever present and apparent is the strange property of plant matter to know up from down a seed (acorn for instance) plants, upside down in the ground will send its root round down and its stem round up forming itself into a sort of S and when the developed stem is broken or bent down it always attempts to reject itself upward.

There is a beech tree near here that the west wind uprooted and laid low, but she took heart of hope and sent a strong upright shoot that grew to be a tree, then the north wind swept her down again and this lies prostrate, but still from new rootlets she is sending up brave branches and every one of them stretches straight for the zenith though the root is upside down.

There is no need to go to the stars for mystery or to find the presence of the living God. The shallow drivel of boasting science "falsely so called," is apparent to every thinking man, but still its arrogance and "bluff" are such that many that seem weak in the faith tremble even if they do not fail. It is to such that these few thoughts are addressed, to encourage them to look around and study more and more the mysterious Hand that directs the minutest and the most magnificent of works. "Whom no man hath see or can see." Moreover it is not necessary to go to a "dark spiritual seance" or to read ghost stories by candle light if one wants mystery in the open field and under the open sky is where to go in day light.

Prepare to attend the coming Ohio State Conference of the Church of God. It will be held again at Salem, O., beginning Thursday evening September 1, 1904, and continue over the following Sunday. Notify Bro. P. Neill 366 N. Main St. Salem, O. when you expect to arrive and he will arrange to meet you at the depot and see that you are taken care of. Salem, O. is located on the P. Ft. W. & C. branch of the Penn. Co. Good speakers will be in attendance. The programme will be published later.

The Conference of last year was the first held in Ohio in recent years. Much good has come from the organization of a Conference Body. An evangelist has been placed in the field and isolated organizations of the Faith have been visited. The Evangelist Bro. P. Neill reports that up to June 30, 1904, 21 visits have been made and 76 sermons delivered. Of this number Sister P. Neill delivered 7. Number of baptisms 2. They have also been able to keep up the work in Salem, O. having delivered 60 sermons, besides holding the usual mid-week meetings.

The Evangelist also reports many private talks in regard to the Faith and instructing many how to walk the narrow way. He has carried on a volume of correspondence, and has labored diligently in the cause of the Faith as he could find or make opportunity, and he is willing and anxious to do more.

Up to date about 425 dollars have been collected to be used by the Conference Body. Brothers and sisters, let us see if we can double this amount next year and find more work for our Evangelist. Come to the meeting in September and enjoy the fellowship of the saints.

J. C. THOMPSON, Sec.

The Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Indiana is to be held at the Church of God near Hillisburg, Ind., beginning at 8 o'clock Thursday evening September 8, 1904, and continue over the following Sunday. Brethren and sisters, bear in mind, this is the Annual Conference, at which the Annual business of the Churches in Indiana is transacted, officers elected, plans to be devised for the prosecution of the work, and also a spiritual feast enjoyed. Let all the churches be represented at this Conference. The brethren at Hillisburg are preparing for a large attendance and will make you welcome. Come to the Conference, and bring some one with you. Bring your Bible.

Lydia Railsback, Sec.

The 17th Annual Conference of the Churches of God in Iowa will be held at their beautiful campground at Waterloo, commencing August 20th and continuing over Sunday August 28, 1904. A rate of 1⅓ fare for the round trip on the Certificate Plan has been granted by all railroads from all points in Iowa. Full fare is paid on the going trip and ⅓ fare on the return trip, if you present your certificate properly signed by the President of the Conference. Be sure to get your certificate of Agent when you buy a ticket; otherwise you can get no reduction.

On arriving at Waterloo if the Conference Baggagemen is there give him your checks. If not there bring checks to the Campground. Our baggageman will have a badge upon his hat reading "Conference Baggagemen." Give checks to no other.

Take the Street Car for Cedar River Park and get off at the Campground. Tents will be furnished to all. Bring your straw ticks and a few comforters. Board at the Dining Hall ten cents per meal, or three meals for twenty-five cents. This is cheaper than you can board at home.

Begin at once to calculate on being at the meeting. We need your presence and counsel on the questions of vital importance which will come before the Conference. Come for the first day and stay all through the meeting.

Now Brethren and Sisters, can you not afford to go to meeting once a year? Some of you will come no doubt, others have not had the opportunity for a whole year. Let the words of the prophet sink deep into your hearts and create within you a stronger desire than ever before to be present at this meeting. Invite your neighbors and friends to come and spend a ten days vacation in this beautiful park. If we cannot interest them there are plenty of amusements to enable them to pass away the time very pleasantly.

Bracing Winona.

With the opening of the season at Winona Lake, May 10th, the sale of excursion tickets over the Pennsylvania Lines to that attractive resort in Northern Indiana will begin. Every summer passed there by thousands has only increased their desire to return. On the golf links, the tennis courts, the baseball or cricket grounds, the croquet field, or boating on the lake, fishing, camping, swimming, driving, or attending recitals and lectures by world-famed personages in the auditorium—whatever the diversion may be, the associations are of that congenial sort conferred by good society. This resort is noted as the site of Winona Assembly and Summer School, attracting teachers and students from educational institutions of this and other countries.

Fifteen-day and season excursion tickets will be sold from stations of the Pennsylvania Lines during the summer. For information about fares and time of trains, apply to local ticket agents, or to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Illustrated literature describing attractions of Winona Lake may be had for the asking. Address S. C. Dickey, Secretary and General Manager, Winona Lake, Ind., who will give particulars regarding camping facilities, hotel accomodations, program of addresses by noted speakers and all other details.—Sept. 30.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended.

The Restitution.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Poetry.

He Knows.

The sorrow that nobody mentions,
The sorrow no one may share,
Is the sorrow the dear Lord giveth
His sweetest, tenderest care.

He places his hand on the well-spring;
The quivering lips restrain,
And the eyes smile forth in defiance,
His love enfolding the pain.

He knows where the hurt is deepest,
The tears of night and of day,
And, whispering softly "I love you,"
Brushes the teardrops away.

The sorrow that nobody mentions,
The sorrow no one may share,
Is the sorrow the dear Lord giveth
His sweetest, tenderest care.

Pine Woods Bible Class.

Teacher. It is with heartfelt pleasure that I greet you, and express my gratification in that I am privileged to join with you in the study of the sacred Book.

I understand Ella wishes to present a topic for our study tonight. Please state it.

Ella. It is as follows:

"YE SHALL BE AS GODS."

Teacher. Where do you find the above phrase?

Ella. In Gen. iii. 1-5.

Q. From what original word do we derive the Saxon word "gods"?

A. It is from the Hebrew word elohim.

Q. Will you please quote some Scripture where the word "gods" (elohim) occurs?

A. See Psa. xcvii. 7: "Worship him all ye gods."

Q. To whom does the personal pronoun "him," in this text refer?

A. It refers to the first verse: "The Lord reigneth; let the people tremble."

Q. Is the word "Lord," the proper name to use to designate the great Eternal?

A. No. Prof. Young in his Analytical, says: "The incommunicable name of the God of Israel, in the Common Version of the English Bible, is generally, though improperly translated by THE LORD."

Q. Are words "God" and "Lord," applicable to others beside the eternal Father?

A. Yes. See 1 Cor. viii. 5: "As there be gods many and lords many."

See also John x. 34: "Is it not written in your law, I said ye are gods. He called them gods to whom the word of God came."

Q. Has the Father a name that is applicable to him alone?

A. Yes. See Psa. lxxxiii. 18: "That men may know that thou whose name is YAHVEH (not Jehovah) art the most high over all the earth."

See Isa. lxii. 2, "I am the Lord (Heb. YAHVEH) that is my name—the Lord (Yahveh) of hosts is his name."

See Exod. vi. 3, "I appeared unto Abraham, unto Isaac, and unto Jacob by the name of God Almighty, but by my name Yahveh, was I not known to them."

Q. Where did we get the name "Jehovah" from?

A. A well-known writer says the name "Jehovah according to Masoretic painting, was invented 600 years after the time of Jesus. It was devised by Jewish superstition, which did not permit an Israelite to pronounce this sacred name correctly."

Teacher. I will request Carrie to show us to whom the word "gods" (elohim) is principally applied?

Carrie. The phrase "worship him (Yahveh) all ye gods (elohim)" is by Paul, applied to angels: "Let all the angels (elohim) of God worship him."

See Also Exod. iii. 6, God appeared to Moses in the burning bush and said: "I am the God of thy Father, the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob. And Moses hid his face; for he was afraid to look upon God."

As to what God he was afraid to look upon, see verse 2, "And the angel (elouh) of the Lord (Yahveh) appeared unto him in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush." In this connection read Acts vii. 38.

See also Gen. xxxii. 30. Says Jacob: "I have seen God face to face." Jesus says: "No man hath seen God (Yahveh) at any time." As to the God (elouh) whom Jacob had seen see Hosea xii. 4, "Yea he had power over the angel (elouh) and prevailed."

Q. Who created man at the beginning?

A. See Gen. i. 26, "And (Yahveh) God said, let US (elohim) make man in our image"—the likeness of the elohim.

Q. Who were the "gods" the serpent alluded to, when he said, "Ye shall be as gods?"

A. Evidently the "gods," elohim, or angels, included in the plural pronoun US.

Q. What was the nature of the "gods," (elohim—angels)?

A. The serpent evidently regarded them as deathless beings, from his declaration "Ye shall not surely die," because, or for the reason, that ye shall then "be as gods," elohim—the creative angels.

Teacher. I want to ask Arlon, if Jesus regarded the angels; (elohim, gods) as deathless?

Arlon. I should judge that he did.

Q. Upon what Scripture do you base it?

A. Luke xx. 35, 36, "They which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world (age) and the resurrection from (among) the dead, neither marry nor are given in marriage; neither can they die any more; for they are equal unto the angels, (elohim—gods).

Q. Jesus' statement is, that all who become as the angels (elohim—gods) are proof against death is it not?

A. Yes. "Neither can they die any more," is his declaration.

Q. Did the serpent understand it the same way?

A. Yes. He says, "Ye shall not surely die," because "Ye shall become as gods."

Q. Was he mistaken?

A. He was mistaken as to HOW to "become as gods." He counseled disobedience as the way to obtain the unending life of the elohim.

Q. Was that the true way?

A. No. It was a fatal error. He selected the way to become as the "BEASTS" instead of the "GODS." As for instance "He is like the beasts that perish." "Like sheep they are laid in the grave," "thou shalt surely die." The course he pursued was to "surely die," and in place of becoming as "the gods," he took the course to become "as the beasts," which perish.

Q. Did Jesus teach us how to become as "the angels, (elohim—gods)?

A. Yes.

Q. By what means?

A. "They are accounted worthy to obtain that world (age) and the resurrection from (among) the dead, * * * neither can they die any more for (because) they are equal unto the angels (elohim—gods), and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." Being thus perfected they become the elohim of the future age. And none can be thus perfected until they shall first be "accounted worthy."

Q. When was Jesus perfected?

A. See Luke xiii. 32: "I do cures today and tomorrow, and the third day I shall be perfected."

Q. When are the "worthy" ones perfected?

A. See Heb. xi. 39, 40: "These all having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise; God having provided some better thing for us, that they without us should not be made perfect."

Q. Will these perfected ones become higher than the elohim—(gods) of this age?

A. Yes. See 1 Cor. vi. 3: "Know ye not that we shall judge angels?" They "are the children of God being the children of the resurrection." If children they are sons, and being sons they must be superior to angels. Heb. ii. 5, "For unto the angels hath he not put in subjection the world (age) to come." "The saints (sons, angels elohim) of the Most High shall take the kingdom."

Teacher. Will Lud kindly inform us as to who become sons?

Lud. See John i. 12, 13: "As many as received him, to them gave he power (free will choice) to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name."

Q. How or by what means do we become begotten sons?

A. See James i. 18: "Of his own will begot he us with the Word of truth (the gospel of the coming kingdom) that we should be a kind of first fruits of his creatures," (new creation). See also 1 Peter i. 23: "Being begotten again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the Word of God which liveth and abideth forever."

Q. What is this begetting word?

See verse 25: "But the Word of the Lord endureth forever. And this is the Word which by the gospel is preached unto you."

Q. What is the meaning of the word gospel?

A. Good tidings.

Q. Jesus is authority for the declaration, that it is the glad tidings concerning God's kingdom, is he not? Where do you find this?

A. In Mark i. 14, 15: "Now after that John was put in prison, Jesus came into Galilee preaching the gospel of the kingdom of God."

Q. Is it THIS gospel that we are to believe?

A. Yes. See verse 15: "Repent ye and believe the gospel,"—the gospel of the kingdom mentioned in verse 14. This is the way to become sons, to be equal unto the angels (elohim gods) as to life, but excel them as to rank.

How many would like to have the past lessons of Pine Woods Bible Class printed in a book?

Yours in the blessed hope.
W. H. WILSON.

Illogical Inference.

"We know that we have passed from death unto life (R. V. out of death into life) because we love the brethren. He that loveth not his brother abideth in death." 1 John iii: 14.

This and similiar texts are quoted in proof of the inherent immortality of the human soul, by men who hold the doctrine that all men are by nature, immortal. Many years ago I heard a Baptist minister in the town of Pierceton in a labored discourse endeavor to prove the proposition that all men are immortal by quoting this and texts of like import. "Logic is logic" and the Scriptures are often treated illogically.

Whoever brings forward this class of texts to prove natural immortality disproves the very proposition he starts out to prove. To affirm of the believer that he has eternal life, or is passed from death unto life, on the ground of love of brethren, as in the text at the beginning of this paper, or eating the flesh of the Son of God, as in John vi: 68, or drinking his blood, John vi: 54, or believing in Christ, John iii: 36 is plain proof that the unbelieving world at large have not eternal life; so negatively it is stated no murderer hath eternal life, and he that believeth not the Son shall not see life (eternal). Eternal life is a gift promised on conditions to a special class. It is not an inheritance by birth or natural descent. It was not bestowed at creation. A particular affirmation can not cover a universal proposition.

The passages of Scripture affirming that the believer has eternal life were not designed to mean that he has it in actual possession as a quality of his being. If such were an actual fact he would not die the Adamic death which passed upon all men. Nor would it then be placed before the righteous as an object of hope to be embraced in promise—something to be obtained by a life of obedience, a gift of God's grace for which one must make himself worthy. In hope of eternal life, which God who can not lie promised before times eternal. Titus i: 2. We hope for it. The time of hope is the whole of our present Christian life.

The hope is based upon the promise of God who cannot lie. The gospel proclaims this hope; therefore the apostle says; But hath in due times manifested his word through preaching. v. 2.

So the word, or gospel, is called the word of life, holding forth the word of life, writes the apostle to the Philippian church. Phil. ii: 16. Thou hast the words of eternal life, John vi: 68, was the truthful and hearty response of Peter to the question of the Great teacher. Will ye also go away? The word bears an important relation to the life. It promises it; inspires the hope of it, and is the means to this end if believed and obeyed. How important then is the word! Eternal life is the grand issue.

If eternal life is not a present endowment of our being where is it. We must stand in such relation to it, and it to us that it is affirmed that we have it, that it is in us, and that we have passed from death unto life. The answer to the question is found in this passage: This is the record, that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life (R. V. the life) is in his Son. He that hath the Son hath the life. The Son of God is the depository of the life that is finally, to be an attribute of our nature when we experience that marvelous change so clearly set forth in 1 Cor. xv: 42; 1 Thess. iv: 15.

The life is in reserve during the period of testing of the church, which period must last till the Lord of life and glory shall come. The life is secure on the part of God and his Son: on our part it remains a question more or less problematical, as may be gathered from the inspired word. The life as a matter of choice is rejected by countless multitudes and may be forfeited by many who for a time are in a fair way to obtain it. It is pending our trial faith. During the times of martyrdom the disciple lost eternal life by saving the present life, Matt. xvi. 25. "Be thou faithful unto death and I will give thee a crown of life." Rev. ii: 10. Faithfulness in every age wins the crown.

The primary source of eternal life is the Father: For as the Father hath life in himself; so hath he given to the Son to have life in himself. With the Father life is underived. To the Son it comes as a gift with the power and prerogative of imparting it to others who may be worthy of such a marvelous boon. But when will the eternal life be the actual possession of the believer? In John v: from which I have already quoted without giving reference, we read, Marvel not at this: for the hour is coming, in which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and live, and shall come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of condemnation. John v: 28, 29. The life of those whose deeds have been good is the eternal life, so much mentioned in the discourses of Jesus, according to John's record. The life conditioned upon believing in him. To this they are raised, so he says "I will raise him up at the last day." John vi: 40. In 39 v: he says, This is the Father's will who hath sent me, that of all he hath given me I should lose nothing, but should raise it up at the last day. The fact of to lose as stated here is not connected with death and the intermediate state, but with the resurrection. As additional proof of the believer's relation to the life I will quote Col. iii: 3, 4: For ye are dead, and your life is hid with Christ in God. When Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory.

It is affirmed here that Christ is our life. Life is to flow through him to us at his manifestation. It is not in the order of God's plan to bestow this priceless gift before the coming of the life giver: so the Christian's faith and hope must focalize in that event. Accordingly the N. T. Scriptures abound in passages relating to our Lord's coming. This event is the focal point to which the faith and hope of the believer must turn, for whatever the future holds in reserve for duties faithfully performed, &c.

No part of the Christian's reward falls to his lot at the moment death closes the present earthly scene. His gaze during his pilgrimage state is as intently fixed on the coming of the Lord as is that of the mariner on the polar star. He longs for the Master's personal presence. He knows the full meaning of the promise "I will come again and receive you unto myself that where I am there ye may be also." John xiv: 3. The unspeakable gift, eternal life will be his in actual possession, thrilling through every fiber of his being.

It is strange that the professed christian church does not see and acknowledge her mistake in substituting for the blessed hope the doctrine of reward at death, the doctrine of the great apostacy. One mistake or false view necessitated another. Holding the notion that the soul is by nature immortal there must be sought for it a place, a local habitation; and what better place than heaven; and once there what more fitting than that it should be invested with all that pertains to the future state. The effect of such a theory was to at once rob the doctrine of the Lord's coming of all the glory that clusters about it.

JOHN L. WINCE.

Bible and Science.

Are the Bible and true science friends to each other? Most certainly; warm, loving friends; and can never be otherwise. When Charles Darwin proclaimed that man came into existence by the law of evolution, instead of by direct creation, as taught in the first two chapters of the Bible, of course it followed, that if Mr. Darwin's theory was true, then the Bible record was false.

In 1877, Darwinism had gained such strength in Europe, that Hneckel, a noted scientist, "demanded that Darwinism should be taught in the public schools." This demand was made in "the annual international convention of scientists in Europe." Professor Virchow, one of the most distinguished scientists and anthropologists in the world, "in the name of science, resisted this demand so vigorously that the convention almost to a man voted against Hneckel." It is said that Darwinism has been condemned by scientists, and regarded as dead. At a later convention of anthropologists held in Vienna, Professor Virchow is reported as saying:—

"The attempt to find the transition from animal to man has ended in a total failure. The middle link has not been found, and will not be found. Man is not descended from the ape. It has been proved that during the past five thousand years there has been no noticeable change in mankind." Thus it becomes a settled fact that the Bible and true science are in perfect harmony with each other in relation to the origin of man.

A new issue has now come to the front. It is said: "This antagonism [between the Bible and science] has broken out with redoubled fury, chiefly through the address made at the seventy-fifth convention of the German naturalists, held in Cassel."

The president of the convention, Professor Ladesburg, is reported as saying: "There are no evidences for the belief in the immortality of the soul." Had I been in the convention I would have been pleased to have said, Amen! Thus the Bible and true science again embrace each other. The time has come when heroic lovers of truth should step to the front, with Luther-like courage, in defence of the Bible and true science.—Miles Grant in Crisis.

Who does not know what it is to rise up from a fault—perceived, confessed and forgiven—with an almost joyous sense of new energy, strength, and will to persevere?—H. L. Sidney Lear.

Rally Day, Niagara Falls, September 4th.

Upon invitation of the church at Niagara Falls, the church at Fonthill withdraws its regular appointment for Sunday, Sept. 4, to meet on that date at the former place where Bro. Austin will address the united congregations morning and evening. The foremost object in providing this all-day's meeting is to extend an invitation to all isolated brethren and friends to meet with us and share the enjoyment of Christian fellowship. For the benefit of all and especially those who seldom meet with others of like faith, an afternoon session will be held. All who can take advantage of this invitation are earnestly requested to so do. All who may come by rail, being unacquainted with the place, will be met at Suspension Bridge, N. Y., if they will previously notify Bro. P. L. Austin, 1340 South Ave., as to the time their train will arrive. Praying that all those looking for our Lord's return, may while waiting, "dwell together in the spirit of unity in the bond of peace," and so be called by the King of peace. We wait your arrival on the above date.

The third Annual Conference of the Church of God in Southern Illinois will be held at Moriah, Clark Co., Illinois, beginning October 1st, and continuing until October 10th, 1904. We have implored Bro. O. J. Allard, Iowa, and Bro. A. H. Zilmer of Plymouth, Ind., and Bro. S. T. Hook of Ind., and perhaps other speakers will be here to preach the glad tidings of the soon coming kingdom. Thus far our conferences have proved a feast of things and we trust that this one will be no exception. We hope to see a faithful attendance from home brethren and sisters and friends, and cordially invite all from other localities who can possibly come, and may the isolated ones grasp this rare opportunity of meeting with their co-laborers. We will arrange the program from day to day as we go along. We invite the Berceans all to come there for we will give you as much labor as you will want to occupy. Please write all that come by railroad write Bro. Z. E. Brant of Moriah, Ill., what date you will come to the Conference and he will meet you at Casey, Ill., and take you to the Conference. May the Lord not withhold his blessing from us at that time.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, AUG. 24, 1904.

THERE being five Wednesdays in this month Aug. 24th and Sep. 7th will be consecutive issues.

A NUMBER of subscriptions that expired the middle of the year, are not yet renewed. Please give this prompt attention.

IN the far east the war simply progresses. The Japanese sent a demand for the surrender of Port Arthur, but it was refused. They are bombarding the place, and assaulting the works as opportunity warrants. Sometimes repulsed, and again holding the step taken. How long the Russians can hold out with no hopes of relief coming, no one can tell. Their ships have tried to get out again, but were driven back. One of the best cruisers that got away on August tenth, and was making for Vladivostok, was pursued by two Japanese vessels and destroyed. In the north the Japs seem willing to leave a way open for the Russians to get away to Mukden. Rains have hindered operations somewhat, so there is little news from that source. The Russian vessels that took refuge at Shanghai have been notified by the Chinese officials to disarm or leave, but decline to do either. Japanese warships are at the harbor entrance. The Chinese have notified the foreign consuls that she is powerless to enforce her demands, as she has no vessels there. The American consul being the senior, has called a meeting of the consuls to confer on the matter, and perhaps strengthen the Chinese officials. Japan becoming impatient at the delay has sent a warship into the harbor and anchored near the Russian ships. As the Japanese was cleared for action the American admiral sent a vessel in which took a position between the Japanese and Russian vessels. Americans have large property interests that would be in range of guns should the Japs start to force matters, and the United States must protect these. So matters stand as we go to press, and what the next few days may bring forth we know not, but can only watch.

Believing and Contending.

Whatever is worth believing is also worth contending for. A man who says that he believes a certain thing but is too indifferent to defend his belief when it is attacked, has no right to be called a believer. Even a politician who believes his political creed will stand up for it when it is assailed. So will a scientist when his scientific theory meets with opposition.

The idea has become prevalent in many quarters that it is wrong to defend one's religious views with any degree of earnestness. Your cherished convictions may be sneered at or misrepresented; but if you show much zeal in their defense, you are supposed to be lacking in Christian charity. Your enemy may bring up his biggest guns for the attack, but you must immediately raise the flag of truce, or be satisfied with making a mild protest. Under such circumstances no wonder that the idea that it is of very little consequence what we believe is gaining ground. When people cease to contend for what they profess to believe, their profession will soon become very hollow.

An age of faith is also an age of contention. The apostolic age was emphatically one of contention. Stephen might have escaped arrest if he had not gone around disputing in the synagogues; and it is not at all probable that he would have been stoned if he had not told the learned doctors of the Sanhedrim that they were stiff-necked and uncircumcised in heart and mind. A preacher or an editor using such language nowadays would be told that he was lacking in Christian charity; but the Bible declares that Stephen was filled with the Holy Spirit.

When our Adventist people and preachers went everywhere preaching the Word, and, with the Word as their weapon, attacking everything they believed to be in opposition to that Word; ready also to defend their own convictions anywhere or everywhere, they were a power in the world; but when they began to be afraid of hurting the feelings of those whose church creed asserts natural immortality and a kingdom in the skies, and by their silence to tacitly admit that their own views were unimportant and non-essential, then the doctrines of conditional immortality, the saints' inheritance, and the soon coming of Christ began to take a place among the formal creeds of Christendom, and to cease to be a heartfelt belief, energizing the lives and conduct of its possessors. We do not mean to imply that all Adventists have fallen into a mere formal profession of Adventist teaching, but we fear that some have done so, and that in some quarters the tide is setting very strongly in that direction.

We confess we do not believe in union meetings in which what some call our "peculiar views" are barred out. A bird which has never been able to fly at all gets along fairly well with comparatively useless wings, but a bird which has learned to use its wings, makes poor work of locomotion with clipped wings. So a Methodist or a Baptist who has never known the joy of a living hope in the soon coming of the Lord to give immortality and a glorious, substantial home to his people, can often live an earnest Christian life without this hope, but for a genuine Adventist to get into a series of meetings where his tongue is tied concerning the "blessed hope," we do not believe is very good for him, and we doubt if he can do any effectual work for God in such a position.—Editor Messiah's Advocate.

We print the foregoing because we want to say Amen to the sentiments expressed. It has become the fashion in some places to join with other denominations, and hold "Union Services." Listening to a sermon by a Methodist preacher at such a meeting not long since, the writer heard an illustration given of the good results of this breaking down of denominational barriers, and of all "Christian" people uniting in their efforts. It was this way: A Chinaman who had been "converted" to Christianity had mingled with the different sects of Christendom somewhat, and was puzzled to know why they existed—why they were not all one—and speaking of it said that all the difference he could see was that some denominations were little wash, some big wash, and others no wash.

In talking with a brother of this meeting, he asked if the Chinaman said what he was, and ventured the suggestion that very likely he was "wishy-washy." We rather think this will take in the whole lot of them.

Is the "one faith" vital? If it is we must contend for it. If it is not then let us sit down and take things easy, for it makes no difference anyway—everything and nothing is all right. We wish to repeat what is said above "An age of faith is an age of contention, and when contention ceases faith dies." If our faith is worth believing it is worthy of every effort we can put forth to uphold it. Be something—be somebody—don't be "wishy-washy."

Some Vital Questions. No. 2.

Of course any one can believe all this of a son of Joseph if they choose,—as well as what immediately follows; but we are not one of such. It says, "For the Father does not even judge any one, but has given all judgment to the Son, so that all may honor the Son, even as they honor the Father." No we could not believe all that of a son of Joseph; when not even an archangel had been called a begotten son, nor addressed as in the prophetic word Jesus had, "Thy throne O God is for ever and ever."

26. In John i. 45 we are informed that Philip of Bethsaida said to Nathanael we have found him of whom Moses and the prophets did write, Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph. By law Jesus was Son of Joseph. And we have no doubt that people generally supposed him to be a natural son of Joseph, knowing nothing to the contrary. Being invited by Philip to come and see if any good thing could come out of Nazareth, Nathaniel soon discovered that there could; and more than that, he immediately discovered who his real Father was. On being told by Jesus that he had seen him under the fig tree before Philip called him, he immediately answered, "Rabbi, thou art the SON OF GOD; thou art the King of Israel." This was the truth of the matter, as the following words of Jesus prove, "Because I said unto thee, I saw thee under the fig tree, believest thou? Thou shalt see greater things than these. Hereafter ye shall see heaven open, and the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of Man." To prove that the fatherhood confessed by Nathaniel disclosed the source of his EXISTENCE, we have to turn to John iii. 16 to learn that not only was Jesus BEGOTTEN of God; but was his ONLY BEGOTTEN SON, prior to resurrection.

27. In John viii. 19 Jesus says to the Scribes and Pharisees, "Ye know neither me nor my Father. If ye had known me ye should have known my Father also." The Father referred to is the father who begat him, as he taught John iii. 16.

28. Jesus is called son of Joseph and supposed son of Joseph 4 times. He is called Son of God, and only begotten Son over 40 times.

29. To preach Christ is to preach that he is the SON OF GOD, and that every time means that Joseph was NOT his Father; because God was the direct cause of his existence,—no man intervening as before proven. This last proposition is sustained by the example of Paul, who after staying certain days at Damascus, we read in Acts ix. 20 that he "straightway preached Christ in the synagogues, that he was the Son of God."

30. In Gal. i. 6 Paul says "it pleased God to reveal his Son in me." Greek SON OF HIMSELF.

31. The Father calls his Son GOD in Psalm xlv. 6; Heb. i. 8; Psa. ii. 7; Luke i. 30-33.

32. The reason why NO SON OF JOSEPH could be the world's Redeemer, is found in Psa. xlix. 7, and reads as follows:—None can by any means redeem his brother, nor give to God a ransom for him; for the redemption of their life is precious (costly) and it ceaseth for ever."

33. Four thousand years produced no man who could redeem his brother, and the following Scriptures show the why, to be, that they all needed redemption themselves:—

"For there is no man that sinneth not." 2 Chron. vi. 36.

"Behold I (Psalmist David) was shapen in iniquity, and in sin did my mother conceive me." Psa. li. 5.

"WHO can say, I have made my heart clean,—I am pure from my sin." Prov. xx. 9.

"For there is not a just man upon earth, that doeth good and sinneth not. Eccl. vii. 20.

"For all have sinned, and come short of the glory of God." Rom. iii. 23; and verses 10, 11, 12 say, "There is none righteous, no, not one; there is none that understandeth, there is none that seeketh after God; they are all gone out of the way; they are together [en masse] become unprofitable, there is none that doeth good, no not one."

Here is a challenge to our author. Who can say, I have made "my heart clean"?

34. Happily a Redeemer was found by divine assistance. Jehovah says, "I have laid help upon one that is mighty. Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David; his seed shall endure forever; and his throne as the Sun before me." Psalm lxxxix. 19, 35-37. Psalm lxxx. 17 says "Let thy hand be upon the man of thy right hand, whom thou MADEST STRONG FOR THYSELF." In Isa. xlix. 8, 9 the following is recorded, "Thus saith Jehovah, in an acceptable time have I heard thee, and in a day of salvation have I helped thee,—and I will preserve thee, and give thee for a covenant of the people, to establish the earth, to cause to inherit the desolate heritages; that thou mayest say to the prisoners, go forth, [from graves]." etc. And in Isa. liii. 5-12 we find he was to be "wounded for our transgressions,—be led as a lamb to the slaughter, and pour out his soul (life) unto death," etc. This shows why it was necessary for Jehovah to strengthen a man for himself."

All, hitherto, have been in need of a Redeemer themselves,—were morally unfit for an offering for sin.

35. The method adopted to strengthen him is set forth in Luke i. 28 35. "Fear not Mary, for thou hast found favor with God; and behold thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name JESUS; he shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David, and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

36. The evidence that he was strengthened is found in the fact that although tempted in all points as we are, he sinned not,—was holy, harmless and separate from sinners; this is accounted for by the Word of the Spirit in Isaiah xlix. 5, where we are informed that some 700 years in advance Jehovah announced that he would FORM HIM FROM THE WOMB, precisely as Gabriel announced to Mary, Luke i. 31, 32.

37. From this it is again made clear, that the expunction of the first chapters of Matthew and Luke, by no means leaves God without a witness to his intervention in behalf of the world of mankind.

38. This should pre[illegible] reader to see that, although, as repeatedly shown, it was absolutely necessary for Jesus to be wholly mortal, so that he could actually and wholly die; his relation to God, through his intervention, as above stated, and the indwelling of his spirit, was such that he could truthfully say of himself, as he does in Matt. xii. 6:—

But I say unto you, That in this place is One greater than the temple;" and

"For the Son of Man is Lord (Master) even of the Sabbath day," verse 8. And

"Behold, a Greater than Solomon is here."

We from our heart pity any one who can attribute these declarations to the SON OF JOSEPH or think of a son of Joseph, while in the flesh, having the authority to say as he does Matt. v. 21,

"Ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not kill, and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment; but I SAY unto you, That whosoever is angry with his brother without cause shall be in danger of the judgment," etc.

"And ye have heard that it was said by them of old time, Thou shalt not commit adultery; but I SAY unto you, That whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her, hath committed adultery with her already in his heart," verse 28. And

"It hath been said, Whosoever shall put away his wife, let him give her a writing of divorcement. But I SAY unto you, That whosoever shall put away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery; and whosoever shall marry her that is divorced committeth adultery." Verse 32.

And "It hath been said,.....Thou shalt not forswear thyself," etc.,..... But I SAY unto you, Swear not at all;.....neither by heaven for it is God's throne," etc. Verses 33-37.

And "Ye have heard.....an eye for an eye," etc. But I SAY unto you that ye resist not evil," etc.

And "Ye have heard.....Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy; but I SAY unto you, Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you," etc.

It is surprising that men can be found who deny the sacrificial offices and work of Jesus, and yet claim that these words of tremendous import, if true, were uttered by the son of Joseph, notwithstanding the vast amount of testimony proving that the speaker was the Son of God. And be it remembered, the Scriptures last quoted are from the first of his sermons,—on the threshhold of his public career.

39. In the light of the confession or acknowledgement of Jesus that he was the only begotten Son of God, (John iii. 16) and many other places, there is a divine fitness in his assertion in John v. 26 that as the Father hath life in HIMSELF, so hath he given to the Son, to have life in himself; but it refers to a son of Joseph as having life in himself, when he had practically taken no part in any revealed scheme of redemption, to us it seems supremely ridiculous.

Why should a son of Joseph have been exalted to power, glory and dominion, surpassing angels and archangels and given honor equal to the Father, and be heir of all things, and

Who had not been lifted up as Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, as an object of justifying faith, and

Who had ratified no everlasting covenant; nor brought immortality to light by it.

Who had bought no one with his precious blood. Redeemed no one to God by his blood. Was not wounded for our transgressions. And

Was not raised again for our justification. And

Never commanded his apostles to baptize their converts into his name for the remission of their past sins, because no account is taken of them if they repent and live better lives.

This is just as matters stand with those who reject the sacrificial death of Christ.

Our readers will naturally wonder here to whom Josephites belong, if Christ did not purchase them by his blood?

And as those only can obtain eternal life who know the Father and the Son, how do Josephites who deny the divine Sonship expect to obtain eternal life? remembering it is the cause of his being and not a legal relationship that is involved. Jesus was by God FORMED of a woman; Joseph was not an instrument or cause.

40. The words "HOLY ONE OF GOD," Mark i. 2, tells the whole story of his origin.

The First Adam came into conscious existence by the energy of God acting on dust and causing him to live by breathing.

42. The Second Adam was also formed by the direct exertion of spirit energy upon a woman. Luke i. 30-33, and Matt. i. 18-23. And

43. Isaiah xlii. 21, predicted that he should magnify the law and make it honorable. The fact that he was raised from the dead proves that he magnified it by perfect obedience to it; because

44. He was permitted to take it out of the way; which would have been impossible had not some one fulfilled all its demands. The word of Jesus for this, Matt. v. 18, 19.

44. Now our readers may decide which of the leaders of Josephitism they prefer,—the one who says Jesus did not keep it perfectly in his youth, and had to obtain forgiveness, or the other who teaches that no account is taken of past sin after one has repented. Both cannot be true. And

45. Be it remembered, the Law had to be magnified, and made honorable. Could it be honored in its breech? Could it be magnified if it could be violated with impunity?

46. It is easy to see what a tangled skein these people are handling. They (1) can give no reasonable cause for the sinlessness of a son of Joseph. (2) They do not believe he was sinless. (3) If sinful and we follow his example in this respect, we can also repent as he did, and that ends all the difference; the reconciliation is complete. (4) There is no truth in the assertion that "Without the shedding of blood there is no remission." Heb. ix. 22. (5) Therefore Christ did not die sacrificially; and each of us has to save himself as he did; having perfect confidence that violations of God's law will be passed over.

SHOWING the vast scheme for reclaiming the waste lands of Egypt by the British government, we give the following from the Chicago Tribune:

"A blue book containing an exhaustive report by Sir William Garstin upon the basin of the upper Nile, wherein a gigantic program of public works in Egypt is recommended has been issued. It is well known how for scores of miles sudd or river weed marshes block the upper Nile. Garstin estimates that cutting a proper channel will cost $[illegible],500,000. The work likely will have to be repeated in a few years. Therefore, he suggests the cutting of a new wide course for the White Nile from Fox to Tanfikis, a distance of over 200 miles, at a probable cost of $22,500,000. By this means 80 per cent of the water from Lakes Victoria and Albert, now lost in the swamps will be preserved. The scheme includes dams for the regulation of the overflow from Lakes Victoria and Albert.

The cost of the total scheme, including raising the Assouan dam and completing the Suakim Berber railway, is estimated at $107,000,000. Fifteen years is suggested as the time for the completion of the irrigation works, which would bring 2,650,000 more acres into cultivation in Egypt and the Soudan, giving the former an additional revenue of $6,025,000 and the latter $2,500,000 per annum.

PROF. Richet of Paris, who is styled the Apostle of Peace, tells of the number of lives lost in the wars of the 19th century, as follows:

Napoleon is usually credited with having caused the death of two million men. As a matter of fact eight million men died for his glory. The war of the Crimea cost over three hundred thousand lives, the American civil war five hundred thousand. Prussia doomed eight hundred thousand to death between 1861 and 1871, the Russian-Turkish war four hundred thousand. The wars in the South American Republics are generally laughed at, but as a matter of fact they are far from ridiculous. In the 19th century they cost, all told, five hundred thousand lives, and the South American Republics are not overburdened with citizens are they? The various European colonizing powers sacrificed during the century three million men to obtain dominion in British India, Mexico, South Africa, the Dutch Indies, China, Japan, and other places. The estimate of fourteen million men lost embraces only those who were actually killed on the so-called "field of honor" and those who died in hospitals in consequence of wounds received. Add to these millions the sum of misery caused by illness, due to war and by death, due to economic conditions, fire, and violence of all sorts. I am sorry to say that the new century bids fair to rival the 19th century in this killing line.

Effects of Present War Far Reaching.

A dispatch from India a few days ago said that the people of India are taking a keen interest in the Russo-Japanese war and that the victories of the Japanese are hailed with delight simply because they are Asiatic and the Russians are Europeans. This suggests the possibility that the day may come when the people of India will try to throw off the British yoke. In this connection it is interesting to learn that for eight years past, the Hindus have taken great interest in the development of Japan. Since the wonderful victory of the Japanese over the Chinese in 1894, some of the Hindu papers have maintained correspondents in Japan.

The London correspondent of the Novoe Vremya, St. Petersburg, says that the people of India were further interested in the Japanese by the hundred-tongued rumor that in the operations against the Boxers the Japanese army proved superior in courage and in humane treatment of the conquered of all the European armies. "From this time on," says the correspondent, "the whole Hindu mass began to be fascinated by Japan and to place upon her hopes of deliverance. Hindus began to travel in Japan and to study in her schools. At present the fashion among well-to-do Hindus is to send their boys to Japan, where they formerly sent them to England. On the other hand the Japanese began to travel through India and to stay months and even years in its cities. The English observed and rejoiced at the sympathy of the Hindus for the opponents of her rival in Asia. The Japs they thought would serve them in good capacity for the estrangement of the people of India from sympathizing with Russia. But recently the English were thunderstruck by some sufficiently eloquent facts. An article on Japan, written by an Englishman returning from travels there, evoked a whole mailbag of letters to him from editors of other gazettes, nabobs, rajahs, etc. They had taken him for a Japanese and expressed their delight that at least one of the future liberators of their country had arrived. Some even sent presents, and offered subscriptions for the prosecution of the secret propaganda. The whole correspondence fell into the hands of the Anglo-Indian government which could not contain itself in its astonishment. Lord Curzon viewed the affair seriously, but smothered it in order to prevent its dissemination. But there is a plan afoot to prohibit Hindus from attending Japanese schools, and principally the University of Tokyo."

A Sensible Young Woman.

A young couple at Philadelphia were preparing for marriage—the day was fixed and invitations sent out. Just a week before the time the lady smelled whisky on her lover's breath. She at once declared the engagement off, and nothing could induce her to change her mind. He brought a suit for breach of promise. The judge instructed the jury that "It is a woman's privilege to annul her promise of marriage if she believes, in all good faith, that good reasons for doing so have arisen since she entered into the contract." The jury considered that whisky drinking was a good reason for breaking the contract, and found for the defendant. Wisely the brave young woman said, "I'd rather have to work all my life and then die an old maid than to marry a man who drinks whisky."

Solving the Great Problem.

A young man graduated with the highest honors of his alma mater. He was brilliant, he was the finest mathematician that had ever walked in the halls of a great university. Soon after he graduated, a minister, who had known him from boyhood, met him, and said: "I understand that you are celebrated for your mathematical skill. I have a problem I wish you to solve.

"Tell me what it is," said the young man, "and I will try."

The clergyman answered: "What is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul?"

The young man walked away in silence, saying to himself, "it is a great problem." The question rang in his ears, by day and night. Everywhere he went it seemed to sound louder and louder, "What if I gain the world and lose my soul?" Finally he said, "I will solve the problem." He weighed the matter carefully. He looked at the problem in a business-like way, and said to himself, "There is no profit if I gain all the pleasures, and all the wealth and all the honors of the world, and lose my soul." He at once surrendered himself to God, accepted Christ as his Savior, and afterwards became an eminent minister of the gospel.

Poetry.

Do Something.

If the world seems cold to you
Kindle fires to warm it;
Let their comfort hide from view
Winter that deforms it.
Hearts as frozen as your own
To that radiance gather;
You will soon forget to moan,
"Ah! the cheerless weather!"

If the world's a "wilderness,"
Go build houses on it!
Will it help your loneliness,
On the winds to din it?
Bring a hut, however slight,
Words and brambles smother,
And to roof and meal invite
Some forlorner brother.

If the world's a "vale of tears,"
Smile, till rainbows span it;
Breathe the love that life endears,
Clear from clouds to fan it.
Of your gladness lend a gleam
Unto souls that shiver;
Show them how dark sorrow's stream
Blends with hope's bright river!

The Subjects in the Kingdom of God.

In a tract which is before me the writer deals with "the kingdom of God" which he divides into "1. What? 2. When? 3. Where. 4. Who. The latter division is sub-divided into two parts, namely, "Who is the King?" "Who are the subjects?" To the latter inquiry his answer is: "Not Israel after the flesh.....The chance for that is passed away. Not every person among the Gentiles, for its subjects are 'taken out' of the Gentiles...'Saints,' holy ones, its citizens are called: 'the saints possessed the kingdom.' Dan. vii: 22."

First, let us consider the statement that "not Israel after the flesh" shall be subjects in the kingdom of God. Why should they not be? Will there not be Israelites "after the flesh" living at the time of the establishment of the kingdom? There can be but one answer to this question: An affirmative. Then what will become of them? Will they not be required to submit to the reign of righteousness under the Son of man when He shall sit upon the throne of His glory? Or will they all be suddenly slain and destroyed, as so much useless material, less fitted than many Gentiles to be subjects in the kingdom of God? Bear in mind, I am not speaking of the dead of Israel "after the flesh," but those who shall be living when Christ comes to reign.

What say the Scriptures? What did Jesus say? He promised His "followers," who continued with Him in His "temptations," that in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the throne of his glory, they also shall sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel. Matth. xix: 28; Luke xxii: 28-30. And He stated that this was in pursuance of an "appointment" from His Father. Will He not in His kingdom judge or reign over the twelve tribes of Israel, or the house of Jacob? Luke i. 30-33. If not, why not?

It is a historical fact that the nation of Israel "after the flesh" was divided into two nations, and also that they were scattered among the heathen: Israel (the ten tribes) cast out; and Judah (the two tribes) dispersed. Isa. xi: 12. It is also undeniably true that the Lord God has said, "Behold, I will take the children of Israel from among the heathen, whither they be gone, and will gather them on every side, and bring them into their own land; and I will make them one nation in the land upon the mountains of Israel: and one king shall be king to them all; and they shall be no more two nations, neither shall they be divided into two kingdoms any more at all...And David my servant shall be king over them; and they shall have one shepard: they shall also walk in my judgments, and obey my statutes, and do them. And they shall dwell in the land which I have given unto Jacob my servant, wherein your fathers have dwelt; and they shall dwell therein, even they, and their children, and their children's children forever: and my servant David shall be their prince forever." Ezek. xxxvii. 21-26. They have not yet been gathered from this dispersion, nor brought into their own land, nor united into one indissoluble confederacy under a prince of the house of David. Matth. ii; 6; Luke i: 30 33; ii: 11. Either these things will be done, or those prophecies can not be fulfilled, and God has spoken that which is not true. In the face of the foregoing prophetic statements, why dismiss this entire subject with a wave of the hand? Did not God promise to Abraham and his Seed (which is Christ. Gal. iii: 16) everlasting possession of the land of Canaan? Gen. xiii: 15. Neither Abraham, nor Isaac and Jacob have as yet taken possession of the promised inheritance. Acts vii: 5; Heb. xi: 8, 9, 13, 39, 40. Shall they never possess it, together with Christ? "Thou wilt perform the truth to Jacob, and the mercy to Abraham, which thou hast sworn unto our fathers from the days of old." Micah vii: 20. When God does "perform the truth," what will the "fathers" have? They will "receive for an inheritance" the "land of promise" wherein they "sojourned as in a strange country." Heb. xi: 8, 9. Into that identic "land" will the God of truth, according to His Word, take the children of Israel. Ezek. xxxvii: 25. They shall not only dwell in that land, but "they shall no more be pulled up out of their land which I have given them, saith the Lord. Amos ix: 14, 15. "The twelve tribes of Israel," over whom those that have followed Christ shall reign, will form the nucleus of the subjects of the kingdom of God, when the law shall go forth out of Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem. Isa. ii: 3. Then when the "many people shall go up" to learn God's ways and walk in His paths, "he shall judge among the nations and rebuke many people," of which judgment the result will be that "they shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks (or scythes); nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more." Isa. ii: 1-4. This is a consummation devoutly to be wished.

Second, as to the rulers. The trouble with the writer of the extract at the head of this article is, that he confuses the subjects of the kingdom with the rulers. If Christ is to reign in the kingdom of God, He must have subjects. Those subjects—what are they? Our author says, "the saints." According to Paul, "the saints shall judge the world." 1 Cor. vi: 2. And "this honor have all his saints." Ps. cxlix: 9. "If we suffer, we shall also reign with him." 2. Tim. ii: 12. To the "overcomer" is promised "power (authority) over the nations; and he shall rule them with a rod of iron; as the vessels of a potter shall they be broken to shivers; even as I received of my Father." Rev. ii: 26, 27.

Over whom shall the "saints" reign? If they do not reign over one another, they must have other "subjects," and these have been plainly pointed out to us. It is quite a difficult matter to rule out "the twelve tribes of Israel," "the nations," and "the world" as the subjects of the judging, ruling and reigning.

Editor Restitution:

Thinking that some who read The Restitution might care to hear from me, since I am beginning to be known as a commercial tramp, I will write a few lines from Springfield, Mass.

At our Thursday evening prayer meeting and Bible study in Plymouth August 4th, there seemed to be a difference of opinion as to Psa. xxxiv. 7. I will not give my opinion here, but will say that in these times of peril in travel, one feels truly thankful when one has reached the end of a journey of a thousand miles with no worse mishap than a covering of dust and a want of rest.

I left home Friday morning, August 5th, and at a few minutes after 10 the morning of Aug. 6th, I was in Springfield, Mass. The Twentieth Century Limited, over the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern is a marvel of speed and comfort, as is the Empire Express over the four-tracked road bed of the New York Central. We were about 19 hours from South Bend, Indiana, to Albany, New York, on the Hudson.

From Albany to Springfield I took a local train which stopped at every station. This was a passenger train, however, and very comfortable. It had been some eight years since last I had been over this line, and it was quite interesting to me. I have found no place east of Marshall County that needs rain as badly as there when I left. When I got up at 5 o'clock Saturday morning we were speeding down the valley of that beautiful river that is storied in song—the Mohawk. I never saw the hills look more beautiful. Everything is so green and nice, and in the valleys the crops seem to be bountiful.

New England or rather Massachusetts has put on her richest robes to greet the boys who in 1861 5 emancipated the slave, and will hold their annual reunion next week at the Hub.

I saw as we came down the Connecticut river as fine a field of tobacco as I ever saw in my life. Is it not a shame that of the best soil God has given us such an evil weed should be grown? All the way from Albany to Springfield is a good country, and there are few spots where nature has provided a better soil, or more pleasing to the eye than is found along this part of the Connecticut river. Holyoke is but 10 miles and Northampton not quite as far from here. One can go almost all over this country by trolley cars. It is 98 miles from here to Boston and the electric line can be had the entire distance.

But I must close. More anon.

J. H. Willey.

Dear Brother Underwood:

I have it in my mind to give some assistance to a preaching brother who would be willing to locate here. I think I might contribute to his support on certain conditions one hundred dollars per year, besides allowing him to occupy a six-roomed house I own free of rent. Perhaps some one could take this amount and do something else to make a living. There are only two or three individuals of our faith here, but I desire to help the cause in this locality in the way indicated above.

A. Robinson.

[Any one interested in the above proposition will address Bro. Robinson at Belleville, Ontario, Canada.—Ed.]

Promotion is often dangerous. Many a man who while living in obscurity and humble position lived unselfishly and walked with God, has become proud, vain, and selfish through promotion. His rise was a grievous fall. The honors of the world robbed him of the honor which comes from God.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending The Restitution to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the doners request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trust worthy.

To St. Louis World's Fair at Approximately One Cent per Mile.

World's Fair excursion tickets to St. Louis will be sold via Pennsylvania Lines at approximately one cent per mile each Tuesday and Thursday until September 29th, valid in coaches of through trains good returning within seven days. These are the lowest fares at which World's Fair excursion tickets to St. Louis are sold. Fifteen day tickets and season tickets sold daily at reduced fares, good in sleeping or parlor cars with required Pullman tickets. For full information, consult J. E. Hanes, Ticket Agent, Pennsylvania Lines, Plymouth, Ind.—Sept. 29.

Indiana's Great Day.

Present indications point to a record-breaking day at St. Louis Thursday, September 1st, when the Indiana Day takes place at the World's Fair. The large number of Indiana people intending to be present at this great State function is shown by the advance requisitions for tickets to St. Louis the ensuing fortnight. The special low fares from Indiana over the Pennsylvania-Vandalia Lines has stimulated such interest that every provision is made for handling larger crowds of excursionists than at first expected.

Representatives of Indiana interests having exhibits in the Exposition, public officials and citizens generally who have already signified their intention of being at the greatest of all Fairs on Indiana Day show that the next few days will see the heaviest movement from Indiana to St. Louis since the opening of the World's Fair. Governor Durbin and his staff will leave Indianapolis for St. Louis Wednesday, August 31st, over the Vandalia Line. On the evening of the same day, the Newsboys' Band of the Indianapolis News, consisting of about eighty members, will also go over the Vandalia Line to St. Louis, the youngsters going to the World's Fair as the guests of the News.

W. W. Richardson, Assistant General Passenger Agent, of the Pennsylvania-Vandalia Lines, has received more inquiries at his offices in Indianapolis from intending World's Fair visitors in the last week than at any time since the St. Louis exposition was thrown open, which is taken as the most striking indication of the widespread interest manifested in the great celebration in honor of Indiana.

Prepare to attend the coming Ohio State Conference of the Church of God. It will be held again at Salem, O., beginning Thursday evening September 1, 1904, and continue over the following Sunday. Notify Bro. P. Neill 366 N. Main St. Salem, O. when you expect to arrive and he will arrange to meet you at the depot and see that you are taken care of. Salem, O. is located on the P. Ft. W. & C. branch of the Penna. Co. Good speakers will be in attendance. The programme will be published later.

The Conference of last year was the first held in Ohio in recent years. Much good has come from the organization of a Conference Body. An evangelist has been placed in the field and isolated organizations of the Faith have been visited. The Evangelist Bro. P. Neill reports that up to June 30, 1904, 21 visits have been made and 76 sermons delivered. Of this number Sister P. Neill delivered 7. Number of baptisms 2. They have also been able to keep up the work in Sa[lem], O. having delivered 60 sermons, [be]sides holding the usual mid-week [meet]ings.

[The] Evangelist also reports many [pri]vate talks in regard to the Faith and instructing many how to walk the narrow way. He has carried on a vol[u]me of correspondence, and has labored diligently in the cause of the [Faith] as he could find or make opportunity, and he is willing and anxious to do more.

Up to date about 425 dollars have been collected to be used by the Conference Body. Brothers and sisters, let us see if we can double this amount next year and find more work for our Evangelist. Come to the meeting in September and enjoy the fellowship of the saints.

J. C. THOMPSON, Sec.

Now Brethren and Sisters, can you not afford to go to meeting once a year? Some of you will come no doubt, others have not had the opportunity for a whole year. Let the words of the prophet sink deep into your hearts and create within you a stronger desire than ever before to be present at this meeting. Beautiful Winona.

With the opening of the season at Winona Lake, May 16th, the sale of excursion tickets over the Pennsylvania Lines to that attractive resort in Northern Indiana will begin. Every summer passed there by thousands has only increased their desire to return. On the golf links, the tennis courts, the baseball or cricket grounds, the croquet field, or boating on the lake, fishing, camping, swimming, driving, or attending recitals and lectures by world-famed personages in the auditorium—whatever the diversion may be, the associations are of that congenial sort conferred by good society. This resort is noted as the site of Winona Assembly and Summer School, attracting teachers and students from educational institutions of this and other countries.

Fifteen-day and season excursion tickets will be sold from stations of the Pennsylvania Lines during the summer. For information about fares and time of trains, apply to local ticket agents, or to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Illustrated literature describing attractions of Winona Lake may be had for the asking. Address S. C. Dickey. Secretary and General Manager, Winona Lake, Ind., who will give particulars regarding camping facilities, hotel accomodations, program of addresses by noted speakers and all other details.—Sept. 30.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended

Poetry.

Not Understood.

Not understood! We move along asunder,
Our paths grow wider as the seasons creep
Along in years. We marvel and we wonder
Why life is life, and then we fall asleep.
Not understood.

Not understood! How trifles often change us!
The thoughtless sentence and the fancied slight
Ir, love's long years of friendship and estrange us,
And on our souls there falls a freezing blight.
Not understood.

Not understood! How many hearts are aching
For lack of sympathy! Ah, day by day,
How many cheerless, lonely hearts are breaking!
How many noble spirits pass away
Not understood.

O God! that men would see a little clearer,
Or judge less harshly when they cannot see!
O God! that men might draw a little nearer
To one another. They'd be more like Thee,
And understood.

The Snare and the Pit.

In Isai. xxiv: 17; we read. "Fear, and the pit, and the snare, are upon thee, O inhabitant of the earth."

In the wilds of Africa lion hunters dig in the earth deep pits, and carefully cover them over so as to perfectly conceal them. When the lion comes forth in the evening seeking his prey, he sometimes falls into the pit thus prepared for him in which he falls an easy prey to the hunter.

This is a literal pit from which the figure is transferred in the Scriptures to men falling into error and delusions holding them as in a pit, shutting out the light of truth as effectually as does the man's position in a literal pit shuts out the light of the noon day sun, leaving the occupant of the pit in utter darkness.

David fell into one of those pits dug by the enemies of truth; but the Lord delivered him, therefore he says, "He brought me up out of the horrible pit, out of the miry clay, and set my feet upon a rock."

In this pit there was nothing solid to stand upon: How easy the thought is transferred from the literal to the figurative, false theories, false doctrines, exists only in the mind of its advocates. Its foundation is like miry clay. Therefore in the later revelation, it is termed "the abyss" or "bottomless pit."

During the sounding of the fifth angel Rev. ix: "a star falls from heaven to the earth: and to him was given the key of the bottomless pit: and he opened the bottomless pit; and there arose a smoke out of the pit, as the smoke of a great furnace; and the sun and the air were darkened by reason of the smoke of the pit." This pit is not the literal but the mental condition none the less real than the literal pit, which by reason of its depth in the earth, the light of the sun is prevented from entering. Therefore the inhabitants of the pit are in darkness and confusion. The case of those in the mental pit is similar to those in the literal pit. The walls of their pit is composed of error and superstition which effectually shuts out the light of the Sun of Righteousness, who is "the light of the world."

The inhabitants of the pit are a savage, and a dangerous race. A beast that came up out of this pit made war on God's two witnesses—and killed them (Rev. xi: 7. And the question now is, why did the beast out of this pit, make war on Gods two witnesses? The answer is that now as ever there is an irrepressible conflict between truth and error; and the inhabitants of the pit by reason of the smoke of the pit are in darkness, making statements that are contradicted by God's witnesses. In the first place the inhabitants of the pit teach that there is—God the Father—God the Son—and God the Holy Ghost. Whereas the two witnesses stoutly affirm that there is but one God, and no more. The men of the pit also teach that all men have immortal souls that never die, but at death go to heaven, hell, or purgatory. Whereas the witnesses teach that God only hath immortality, and that the Priests of the pit have invented the foregoing errors on purpose to draw money from their deluded followers: That going to heaven at death is as void in truth—as their pit is bottomless.

That hell, or eternal torment, was borrowed from the Pagans in order to control the masses of ignorant dwellers in the pit. That purgatory was specially invented, by the priests to fill their coffers with gold. They also affirm that the dwellers in the pit are drunk with the false doctrine of the place they inhabit—So that they cannot reason correctly: And as evidence of this fact they refer to the—going to heaven or hell at death—before the judgment. The absurdity of this theory could only be equaled by our judges ordering prisoners to the state prison before giving them a trial.

The power designated the beast in the Revelation, is represented as the beast that ascendeth out of the bottomless pit Ji: 7. and again in xvii: 8. "And shall ascend out of the bottomless pit, and go into perdition." The beast and the false prophet are finally captured by the rider on the white horse and "both cast alive into a lake of fire burning with brimstone." xix: 20. Thus his end is perdition. Having indicated what the pit is, we may now enquire when did the beast "ascend out of the bottomless pit? In answering this question go to the days of the apostles and note what Paul says to the elders of Epheus, Acts, xx: 29-30. "For I know this, that after my departing shall grevious wolves enter in among you not sparing the flock. Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them."

This testimony agrees with what the apostle wrote to the church of Thessalonica, where he fortells the coming of the apostacy and the rise of the man of sin all of which came to pass as foretold by the apostle. But an apostacy from the truth, which produces a corrupt Church does not constitute a "beast" as represented in the Scriptures—as coming up out of "the bottomless pit.

But the apostacy did dig the pit—or establish the condition represented by the pit. In (Prov. xxii: 14) we read, "The mouth of strange women is a deep pit: he that is abhored of the Lord shall fall therein." And xxiii: 27. "For a harlot is a deep ditch; and a strange woman is a narrow pit." So this pit has its roots deep in the Hebrew Scriptures.

From the time the mystery of iniquity began to work, it took centuries before the pit was in condition so that the beast could be created—which was done before he could rise up out of the pit. The fourth beast of Dan. vii: is said to be "diverse from all the others," and in what respect did Rome differ from Babylon, Medo Persia, or Greece? In that it passed through seven different forms of government—and the beast that came up out of the bottomless pit, is neither of the seven—but is "the eighth, and is of the seven and goeth into perdition. Rev. xvii: 11. It is that phase of the empire when the ecclesiastical power ruled over the civil power—When the kings "agree, and give their kingdom unto the beast, until the words of God shall be fulfilled," xvii: 17.

This is in the past, for now and ever since the Protestant reformation the kings have been jealous of the harlot—and are fulfilling verse 16. "And the ten horns which thou sawest upon the beast, these shall hate the harlot, and make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and burn her with fire." It happened to the Papacy according to the words of the Master "He that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity: he that killeth with the sword must be killed with the sword." Rev. xiii: 10. The Papacy herself has confessed judgment by stating that the pope is a prisoner in the Vatican. Italy figuratively "eat her flesh and burnt her with fire," when in 1870 they despoiled her of her possessions—the states of the church. France today is engaged in the same work by expelling the monks from their positions as teachers, and in the Philipines the inhabitants are so hostile to the friars—that they have to sell their land and leave the country. Verily the mills of the gods grind slowly but surely.

Close reading, and a retentive memory of what is written is necessary to perceive God's hand in the affairs of our world. It takes two symbols to represent the Papacy because she was an ecclesiastical and civil power—a woman seated on a beast. The beast has now thrown the woman—She can no more say "I sit a queen and am no widow." The allotted 1260 years of her rule are in the past, the days of her widowhood has come; she has been and is being "consumed by the spirit of his (Christ's) mouth and will be destroyed by the brightness of his coming." Thus she "goeth into perdition." Thus it will be seen that the coming up of the beast out of the bottomless pit—is the rise of the Papacy.

GEO. FRANCIS.

The Gospel Recovered. No. 45.

That they all be one that the world may believe that thou hast sent me"—Jesus.

This subject was dealt with in the Restitution from October 1897, to November 1902, a period of five years, and extending to 44 papers. Number 44 concluded with these words "Some further remarks are still considered necessary to a complete sketch of this situation."

Following Number 44 of the "Gospel Recovered," it was considered desirable to contribute some half dozen papers entitled, "The Gospel of the Kingdom of God endangered in Scotland." The way for these was so far prepared by some "Reviews" by the writer of this of certain articles which had appeared in the Messenger, Glasgow, Scotland. These Reviews appeared concurrently with papers on "The Gospel Recovered." It is hoped that these Reviews sufficiently explained themselves, and fully justified their insertion in The Restitution.

It is certainly satisfactory that so far as the facts recorded in The Restitution show there is nothing in America corresponding to the "Gospel of the Kingdom of God endangered in Scotland."

It may be thought by some, possibly both readers and conductors of The Restitution, that some apology is due from the writer of such papers on elementary "gospel" matters, for the persistence shown in dealing with defection from first principles in Scotland. While he is willing to be judged by the sad facts he has brought forward in the papers referred to, he finds the example of the apostles even in the first century, on his side. Paul said "I am set for the defence of the gospel." The same writer spoke of certain who were "ever learning, and never able to come to a knowledge of the truth." "The truth" here is evidently the "Gospel of the Kingdom of God," as set forth for the belief of sinners of Jew and Gentile. Paul also spoke of the importance of "holding faith and a good conscience which some having put away concerning faith have made shipwreck." He even expressed anxiety as to his own stedfastness in "the faith." He said, "I keep under my body and bring it into subjection, lest that by any means, when I have preached to others, I myself should be a castaway." He spoke of some who had once been disciples but who had lapsed, evidently of the class indicated in Paul's mention of keeping the body in subjection—"whose god is their belly." Writing to Titus, and speaking of a certain class of disciples, he enjoined him to rebuke them sharply they may be sound in the faith."

Such testimonies as these and others that might be given afford the strongest reasons for the utmost anxiety which any one might feel disposed to entertain as to "the gospel in danger."

Coming now to the "Gospel Recovered," it may be recalled that papers numbering 42, 43, and 44, were occupied with remarks on the work entitled "Eureka." The author's claim to originality was placed alongside of his use and approval of many of the interpretations given by Mr. Elliott in his Horae Apocalypticae. I note one example taken from the preface to vol 2. of Eureka, where the author says—"The reason why no exposition (of the Apocalypse) was extant is that Jesus Christ, who is the Truth, had not given ability to the wise and prudent of the Laodicean apostacy." Naming Mr. Elliot among many others, he says, I am not aware that they have added anything that would at all increase the intelligibility of the Apocalypse." The fact is, however, and was shown by many extracts from both works, that, with a few trifling exceptions, the seven seals, seven trumpets, and the first six vials extending over more than ten chapters of the Apocalypse, are given in Eureka substantially as they are found in Mr. Elliott's work.

As regards the seventh vial, it has to be noted that its effects extended over chapters 16, 17, 18 and 19, in which is embraced a long period. The principal event is the destruction of Babylon. This both authors are agreed in interpreting as the ecclesiastical system maintained by the bishop of Rome, as represented by the woman on the scarlet colored beast, in which interpretation of which both Eureka and the Horae are agreed.

The "air" on which the seventh vial is poured is regarded by both authors as representing the political element. Eureka says Vol. 3. p. 697. "The air is the political firmament, or heaven, of the world." Elliot says, "I thus explain the air in the Apocalyptic vision to mean the European political atmosphere." Vol. 2. page 21-24.

There are possibly some differences in details between the two works. I note one peculiar to Eureka, that is, that the author places the Advent of the Lord in the desert of Sinai, and there the locality of his judgment seat, where all who have made a covenant with Jehovah by sacrifice" will be gathered and stand before this judgment seat in the desert of Sinai. There can be but little doubt that this is original. The reader who has access to Eureka will find in Vol. 2. p. 545-554 some eight pages devoted to an elaboration of this subject. He will be able to satisfy himself whether the evidence advanced by the author is adequate to support this opinion.

With regard to the seals, trumpets, and vials, which as we have seen, really form the larger portion of the Apocalypse, it may be interesting to note what previous expositors to either Mr. Elliott or Dr. Thomas had advanced. Thus regarding the seven trumpets we find Rev. Alexander Keith, D. D. in his "Signs of the Times," fifth edition (1834), remarking, "Commentators, with considerable variance in the details, are of one mind that the first four trumpets denote the successive events which caused the downfall of Rome, and that the fifth and sixth trumpets, or the first and second ones characterize the Saracen and Turkish power." (Vol. 1. p. 259). And again, "There is scarcely so uniform an agreement among enterpreters concerning any part of the Apocalypse as respecting the application of the fifth or sixth trumpets, or the first and second woe, to the Saracens and Turks." (p. 295). In his exposition of the trumpets, Dr. Keith, like Mr. Elliott quotes largely Gibbon's "History of the Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire."

Dr. Keith, who wrote previously to Mr. Elliott, is found of be in general agreement with him in his exposition of the seals, trumpets, and vials, with the exception that in the first and second seals, having adopted the earlier date for the writing of the Apocalypse, he applies these seals to Vespasian and Trajan.

With regard to Bishop Newton, his Dissertations on the Prophecies was written in A. D. 1754, before Gibbon's Decline and Fall, and before the French Revolution of 1789. He had therefore not the advantage of using Gibbon's work and the events of the French Revolution to illustrate his expositions. The same remark applies to Mede, Peter Jurieu, and others.

Referring to Mede's exposition of the seals and trumpets, Mr. Elliott says, "In most of which particulars I conceive Mede to have made advances to the true interpretation." And speaking of Sir Isaac Newton, he says, "Alike on the seals and trumpets, he expresses his general agreement with Mede."

The foregoing extracts show that the views concerning the seals, trumpets and vials propounded by both Mr. Elliott and Dr Thomas, had been partially pointed to a hundred years earlier, and had been growing among expositors up to the time when Mr. Elliott published his book in 1844.

Exhortation at the Breaking of Bread,

RELIGION.

Religion is a word derived from "religio" to bind, from the Latin word "religiare" which signifies to bind again.

Ever since the fall of Adam there has been a break between God and man. "By one man's disobedience many were made sinners, so by the obedience of one shall many be made righteous. Sin has reigned unto death, even so might grace reign through righteousness unto eternal life by Jesus Christ."

How does this righteousness affect us? Romans v. 1, explains. "Being justified by faith we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Religion is not a thing to be got, to get or to be given to us. It is something to be done. Not something put in our hearts.

Thousands today believe in modern religion of penitence at the mourner's bench, or in standing up for good people to pray for them, a plan so modern there is not one single example in the Bible, and not one command.

This procedure brings to the depressed mind a sense of relief and is called conversion. "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, to visit the fatherless and the widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world."

It is not something put in our hearts in answer to prayer, but by a living faith in the Word of God. A faith that worketh by love.

How does this faith come? "Faith cometh by hearing the Word of God." Rom. x. 17. Good works is obedience to the faith. A heart purified by faith in Christ the Anointed, King of the kingdom, faith in the gospel, the good news of this kingdom. "Faith without works is dead."

When one hears, understands, believes and obeys, and his faith worketh by love, Gal. v. 6, shows itself, and is made perfect by good works, Jas. ii. 22, then it is that the breach is healed, and when the breach is legally healed we have genuine religion which binds us again to God. Instead of there being anything in the Bible about getting religion in answer to prayer, it is salvation through faith. He that believeth the gospel of the kingdom, or the things concerning the kingdom and the name of Jesus Christ, and is baptized shall be saved. God has but one appointed way for man to obtain remission of sins and life eternal. Namely, by hearing, understanding, and obeying. In Acts ii. 38-47, "They that gladly received his word were baptized." They were bound to God by faith and works.

Again, "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women." No one was called upon to pray for them. They heard, believed, and obeyed. All that our merciful Father requires is obedience to the law of faith, take care of the poor and keep ourselves unspotted from the world. Thank God for a plan by which we are reconciled to him, and in this binding, this religion, which is not spurious, but pure and undefiled, we are brought out of bondage into liberty. We are no more strangers, but fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God. Blessed privilege, to belong to the household of God. We can truly say with Paul, "We count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus, my Lord, for whom I suffered the loss of all things and count them as refuse that I may win Christ, and be found in him. Not having my own righteousness which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God, by faith, that I may know him and the fellowship of his sufferings, being made conformable unto his death if by any means I might attain unto the resurrection from among the dead." Phil. iii. 8-11.

"Have you found him weary stranger?
Is he precious to your soul?
Has he spoken peace and pardon,
Touched your hand and made you whole?
Is he more to you than jewels,
Stocks, or mines, or flowing wells?
More to you than royal palace
Where earth's proudest monarch dwells?

Up! delay not! Life is going,
Swift the moments speed away;
Would you have the crown of glory?
Seek the Savior now—today!
Rich reward awaits the doer,
Wealth beyond what tongue can tell;
Crown, and throne, and life immortal,
And bright home wherein to dwell.

Sweet it is to work for Jesus,
Building for the ages long;
Where will come no pain or dying,
Nor be heard sad sorrow's song.
Work for him will prosper ever,
Widening, broadening, moving on,
'Till the world's last field of battle,
Shall for Christ, our King, be won."

To the Household of Faith.

In Paul's letter to the Col. iii: 12-13. we find an admonition on humility and brotherly kindness, that we would all do well to solemnly consider. "Put on the therefore, as the elect of God, holy and beloved, bowels of mercies, kindness, long suffering, forbearing one another, and forgiving one another. If any man have a quarrel against any even as Christ forgave you, so also do ye." Brethren and sisters can we do this?

I believe we can, we are not [illegible] to love the ways of the wi[illegible] should wish away down[illegible] and also pray that the[illegible] error of their way an[illegible] live.

We are also commanded [illegible] to them that hate you, and pray for them that despitefully use you, and persecute you." I know that this is contrary to human nature, but Oh, we gain such a moral victory by so doing, it makes us more like Jesus. Our Savior also said, if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Heavenly Father forgive you your trespasses. Surely we can forgive in order to be forgiven. Paul to the Ephesians iv: 31, 32, says, "Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamour, and evil speaking, be put away from you, with all malice, and be ye kind to one another, tender hearted, foregiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you."

If those admonitions were put into practice in the Church, it might be truly said, as of old, "Behold how these brethren love one another." It seems impossible for all to see alike on all questions that arise. Often the difference is on some point that has but little or nothing to do with our salvation. Instead of making a hobby of it, would it not be better to take Paul's advice "if thou hast (a peculiar faith) have it to thyself," and not seek to divide the church with it, we should all be more interested in our own salvation and of those that are still out of Christ.

I fear that many will put off coming to the Savior until it is too late, and will have to take up that doleful lamentation, the Harvest is past, the Summer ended and I am not saved. In the perils of these last days, how timely the Savior's admonition, in Luke xxi: 34-36. "take heed to yourselves, lest at any time your hearts be overcharged with surfeiting, and drunkenness, and cares of this life, and that day come upon you unawares. For as a snare shall it come on all them that dwell on the face of the whole earth.

Watch ye therefore, and pray always, that you may be accounted worthy to escape all these things that shall come to pass, and to stand before the Son of man. May it be the happy lot of both writer and reader to share with Christ in his reign and glory. Your brother waiting for the king in his beauty.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEP'T 7, 1904.

THE Editor and wife have just returned from the Ohio State Conference at Salem. Will write more about our trip later.

THERE is a brother in Oklahoma 83 years old. He is unable to work and earn anything, and cannot pay for his paper. Our "Helping Fund" is now $25.50 overdrawn. Does any one wish the privilege of paying for this aged Brother's paper?

SINCE our last issue the greatest battle in the world's history has been fought. Around Liaoyang the Japanese had about 200,000 men and the Russians a like number. The battle commenced August 24, and is not properly speaking over yet. The Japs have forced back the Russians, taking their fortified positions, pressed on to Liaoyang, which place was fired by the Russians as they passed out. No such severe fighting for so long a time is on the page of history. In another way it is unique. It is a fight between east and west. Troops of the most despotic nation of the west have met with nearly equal numbers, and in positions of their own choosing, troops of the freest people of the east, and the white has gone down before the yellow. This must stand high in the ranks of decisive battles of the world. The Russian generals have moved north along the railroad and north of the Taitze river. They are endeavoring to get away in orderly retreat and save a complete rout. Whether the Japanese General Kouroki can outmarch them, and cut the railroad remains to be seen. If he does it is hard to see how the whole Russian army can escape capture or annihilation. They are within 18 miles of Mukden. Meanwhile the direst assault on Port Arthur has ceased, and guns are being placed for a general bombarding of the place. Many rumors are current, but what has actually occurred may not be known for some days. It [illegible] Russia has received a fearful [illegible] was fortunate enough [illegible] attend the Iowa and Illinois Conferences. Leaving home on Wednesday morning, August 24, over the Pennsylvania Railroad, we arrived in Chicago, from whence we took the Chicago and North-western Railroad to near Waterloo, Iowa, arriving in the evening. Being new to that country a little mixup was occasioned by there being a camp meeting of Spiritualists holding forth near where our people were encamped. The mistake was soon discovered, and on taking a seat and listening while Brothers Cansdale, Hipshor, Allard, and others spoke of their hope, it was easy to understand we were in the right place at last. The railroad officials made our trip pleasant, and the brethren and friends gave us the glad hand and most hospitable welcome. The attendance at this meeting was larger than ever before, and the managers were much encouraged. The harmony of feeling, and the determination to contend for the faith the little time that remains was manifest in all the services.

They have a beautiful place to hold their meetings, and there seems to be no reason why good work for the Master should not be done. Brother O. J. Allard as presiding officer, is a man well fitted to fill the position, having push and energy in all he does. The brethren should do all possible to further the plans laid for the future. In this state they have a young brother, George E. Marsh, who is starting in the ministry, and judging from a sermon he preached, we think that every thing possible should be done to encourage him, and develop the ability he has.

The Berean Society of Iowa is in good working order, and tends to develop the young people, and cause them to take their part well in the work for Christ. We have three excellent papers that were read by them to publish later. A special report of their work will also be given.

Leaving Waterloo on Friday we returned as far as Oregon, where the brethren of Illinois hold their annual meeting. The Church is pleasantly situated on the bank of Rock River. Brother J. W. Wilson is the presiding officer of the Conference, and appears to have the work well in hand. Bro. S. J. Lindsay is in charge of the local work here, and is well qualified to carry it on successfully. We were welcomed with the same hospitality that characterizes our people wherever we have been, and enjoyed the fellowship of all most thoroughly. The general subject of all the sermons at this place was the coming of Christ, and each minister was assigned his particular phase of the subject. This assured a harmony and fitting in of each sermon, gradually unfolding the grand scheme of redemption for fallen man. Reports of these meetings will appear later from the different secretarys, so we will not entrench on their ground by details.

Here again the Berean Society took a prominent part in carrying on the work assigned them, and the result shows the training they have had, as they have studied the lessons mapped out in their course. It would be hard to find a company of young people who can do better work for the Master's cause than these Bereans of Illinois and Iowa, and if such systematic study will so develop them there is certainly a strong argument for extension of their society.

Returning to our home on Monday we were accorded the same gentlemanly and courteous treatment by railroad officials as when we went, and can commend most heartily both the Pennsylvania and North-Western systems to our friends who have occasion to travel.

During our trip we met some whose faces we have seen in past years, and to again greet them was a great privilege and pleasure. Many others whose names have been familiar to us for a long time but whom we had never met, seemed almost as if old friends at once. They seem to be endowed with the spirit of brotherly love that cannot help but manifest itself in their actions and faces. We wish to again thank you all for the courtesy shown, and hope to meet you each again, if not in this age, then in the kingdom of our God, in the Holy City, on the earth made new, where all will see eye to eye, and trouble never come.

Some Vital Questions. No. 3.

47. But, Jesus being authority, Matt. v. 18, 19, proves that if he did not fulfill the requirements of the law, and take it out of the way it is in full force today. And

48. If they cannot do better than they allege Joseph's son did, they may read their own doom and his, in Gal. iii. 19; Deut. xxvii. 26; Jer. xi. 3, 4. "Cursed is every one that continueth not in all things which are written in the book of the law to do them."

49. What effrontry, to claim to be Christians while repudiating the offices and work of him from whom the very name is derived; we read in Eph. iii. 10, 11, of the much diversified wisdom of God, according to a plan of the ages which he formed for the Anointed Jesus our Lord," conclusively proving that in the eternal mind, he was the very center from which all his purposes radiate. And

50. What do those deluded people mean when they speak of "Jesus Christ our Lord."

If his blood was not the blood of the everlasting covenant which made the resurrection from the dead possible; and

Was not shed for the remission of sins unto many and as the Great High Priest over the House of God, enabled him to enter the Most Holy Place, even heaven itself, to appear in the presence of God for them, HOW did he become THEIR LORD? Was it, do they think, because he was just the Son of Joseph? And, moreover,

51. As Jesus is said to be the Son of Joseph and heir of all things, and they are not sons of Joseph, by what process do they claim to have become his brethren, and joint heirs with him; seeing they have complied with no law of adoption? And

52. How do they expect to get out from among the dead, seeing it would be a farce to be baptized in the likeness of his death with that end in view, if it was [illegible] so sense sacrificial, Rom. vi. 3-5, and have rejected the blood of the everlasting covenant as a means to that end? In view of the fact that it was through the blood of that document JESUS HIMSELF was raised from the dead, by the God of Peace, this is a question of awful import! See Heb. xiii. 20.

53. It would be blasphemous, and doubly distilled foolishness, to think that the Creator and upholder of all things lacked the power to raise him, independently of the means he employed. And hence we have a lesson here, on the immutability of his counsels. He has formed a plan and he works to it; and woe to him who tries to circumvent it.

54. The Ephesians were without Christ, without hope, and without God in the world, when in ignorance of the covenants of promise; Eph. ii. 11-13, "But now, [having learned, believed and obeyed them] "But now, in Christ Jesus ye who sometimes were far off are made nigh by the blood of Christ.....For he is our peace.....Having abolished in his flesh the enmity, ...that he might reconcile both unto God, in one body by the cross." And yet

55. There was no necessity for his death we are told; but, as without THE BLOOD of the covenant, to confirm that document, it was useless for salvation purposes, and we have the clear testimony in Rom. xv. 8 that Jesus Christ was a servant of the Jews for the truth of God "TO CONFIRM THE PROMISES made unto the Fathers," have Josephites who rejected those covenants after once embracing them, any more hope than they had before they ever heard of them?

56. If denial of the blood of the covenant after one being once brought nigh by it, is not trampling under foot the blood of the covenant, and counting it a common thing, pray what is it? See Heb. xxix. 10.

57. What could stand more directly across the track of Josephite assertions than Hebrews ix. 26, "But now once, in the end of the world hath he appeared to PUT AWAY SIN, by the SACRIFICE OF HIMSELF." No argument is needed here. The truth stands out in bold relief. No twisting and turning of mortals can affect it. Surely such evidence will shield the honest of heart against the delusion we oppose.

58. In John iii. 8 we read, "For this purpose the Son of God was manifested that he might destroy the works of the devil." This comprehensiveness explains the object of his coming; and in John v. 43, he himself tells us that he came in his Father's name, just as predicted by the prophets he should; and also that his Father testified that he had sent him, by the works that he had performed; so that God was manifested to men, in the flesh of Jesus; not personally, but in name, in spirit, mind, character, power and purpose.

59. When we read in John iv. 14 that whosoever shall confess that Jesus is the Son of God, God dwelleth in him," we know absolutely that God does not dwell in those who do not confess that Jesus is the Son of God. And

60. We see from 1 John iv. 14 that it was A SON that the Father sent; not some one that he would later adopt as his Son; and the purpose was that he should be the Savior of the world,—as shown by scores of passages. And

61. We learn from 1 John v. 5 that ONLY those who believe that JESUS IS THE SON OF GOD overcome the world. And

62. When in the immediate connection the same truth is stated again in other words, it becomes very emphatic. It says, "This is the victory that overcometh the world—our Faith."

63. In 1 John v. 10, 11, 12 God gives a record of HIS SON! Not Joseph's! That record is "That God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in HIS SON! Not Joseph's son .....He that hath not THE SON OF GOD hath not life."

64. But adherents of Josephitism claim that they do believe Jesus was the Son of God. We fairly and squarely deny again, that they believe it Scripturally.

65. A son of Joseph would have no eternal life for himself, much less for others! How would he get it? Joseph was a child of wrath as were all other men. Beside that, all sinned personally.

66. A Redeemer of men must be one who had never sinned himself! and yet was willing to die as one of the race; not in the usual course of nature but he "CUT OFF", as Daniel said, "But not for himself." His corruptible existence might have continued 30 or 50 years longer, but he was death-doomed by nature, because he was made of a woman, under the law of sin and death.

One death was all that Adam was sentenced to, and Jesus only had one life to lose. When therefore he breathed his last, nature's debt was discharged. Countless millions from Adam to Christ had settled their accounts with nature in the same way. But their personal accounts, which may have been thousands of times more than the one act of disobedience of Adam, that brought death and innumerable ills into the world; were not settled for. Were not their sins as hateful to God as was the solitary sin of the first man? Who can doubt it? This personal sin is what holds them in death.

67. For a moment let us suppose that Joseph was selected as the father of the World's Redeemer. At the outset there must have been a miraculous intervention, or the second Adam would have failed as did the first. We know that like begets like. The universal inclination to do wrong from the dawn of intellect accounts for the absence of one sinless one from Adam to Christ.

68. A miracle is an event out of the established order of nature. Heredity is an established order of nature, and to suspend that law of nature is a miracle. Now, let that class of Josephites who believe that the son of Joseph did live without sin, and yet scout the idea of a miraculous conception, explain why, from their point of view, Jesus did not sin; when all others without exception did.

69. But the word of the Spirit furnishes abundant evidence of a divine intervention, and explains the nature of it, together with the grand result the thing born of Mary was a holy thing; and was named by his Father ere himself; and Simeon was inspired by the Holy Spirit to say of the infant that he was the Salvation of the Lord, and the child grew and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon him. At 12 years of age, Luke ii. 42-49, he already knew that God was his Father; and after that it says "and Jesus increased in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and man." From that time he was in obscurity till he was about thirty years of age, when he was pointed out by John to be the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world. At his baptism a voice from heaven said "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased," showing that his conduct as a Son, had been under superveilance up to that time, and that the Father was not only pleased with him, but he was well pleased with his beloved Son, who was then and there anointed to sit on the throne promised him a thousand years in advance. Though a Son, he had learned obedience—he had to be tested before he was christed.

70. Read the last two or three paragraphs again, in connection with this idea, that, if the obedience of Jesus was due to his nature the flesh would have boasted, and violated the fundamental principle that no flesh should glory in his presence; as the Psalm points out, Jehovah made him strong for himself.

71. But how did God do what the law could not do? Answer, by dwelling in his Son by Holy Spirit, and by the Son's clear insight into the word of truth, and an organism not biased as was those whose paternity was human. "The glory of God shone in the face of Jesus Christ." 2 Cor: iv. 6.

72. In Matt. xx. 17-19 Jesus informed his disciples of his approaching death at Jerusalem; this was not the first intimation of it he had given them. In chapter xvi. 21 he showed them that he must suffer many things of the elders and chief priests and be killed, and be raised again the third day. Out of love and sympathy Peter took exception to this. Said he He it far from thee, this shall not be unto thee. For this, though well intended, he received the severe rebuke "Get thee behind me, Satan, thou art an offence unto me, for thou savorest not the things of God, but those that be of men." This shows how completely the mind of Jesus had been wrought into conformity with the will of the Father, which he came to do, and did do.

Editor Restitution:

I wish to inform you that my uncle, Daniel Howard, while coming across the railroad the afternoon of August 24, was struck by a train, and so mutilated that he died in about an hour.

IDA J. FISHER.

The above message speaks for itself. Brother Howard was eighty-five years old, and has been before our readers so long and often that he is quite well known. Some years ago he made a trip to the Holy Land, and wrote a series of interesting letters which were published in THE RESTITUTION. After returning he was married to Sister Abbie A. Perry who died a few years ago, and he has since been living with relatives at Beaver Dam, Wis. The last letter we had from Brother Howard was published in our issue of Aug. 17, in which he tells of going to town for his mail, walking most of the time. He was quite feeble and had but one eye. We are sorry to learn of his accidental death, but he had a hope of living again, and believed that the time is near for the consummation of that hope, and as he prayed so can we, Lord Jesus come quickly, and end the suffering of thy children. While Brother Howard had his peculiarities as many others have, he was a good man and a Christian. We shall miss his name from among us, but we hope to meet him ere long on the other side of death's dark valley. Till then we say farewell.

What Is in Thine Hand?

What is in thine hand, Shamgar? An ox-goad, with which I urge my lazy beasts. Use it for God, and Shamgar's ox-goad defeats the Philistines. What is in thine hand David? My sling with which I keep the wolves from the sheep. Yet with that sling he slew Goliath, whom an army dared not meet. What is in thine hand, disciple? Nothing but five barley loaves and two small fishes. Bring them to me—give them to God, and the multitude is fed. What is in thine hand, poor widow? Only two mites. Give them to God, and behold, the fame of your riches fills the world. What hast thou, weeping woman? An alabaster box of ointment. Give it to God; break it, and pour it upon the Savior's head, and its sweet perfume is a fragrance to the church till now. What hast thou, Dorcas? My needle. Use it for God, and these coats and garments keep multiplying, and are clothing the naked still. You are a manufacturer, or a mechanic, or a man of leisure, a lady of fortune, or a student, or a sewing-woman. God wants each of you to serve him where you are. You have your business; use it for God. Order it in a godly manner. Do not allow any wickedness in it. Give goodly wages; preach Jesus to your clerks, not by a long face, but by being like him—doing good. Use your profits for God—feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, visiting the sick, comforting the wretched, spreading the gospel far and wide. Use your wealth, which in your hand is as easily moved as the pen which gives your signature, to keep that family in their home, and not to eject them.

What a field you have to glorify God in, just where you are! If you have nothing else, use your tools for him. He can glorify himself with them as easily as he could with a shepherd's stick, an ox-goad, a sling, or two mites. A poor girl who had nothing but a sewing-machine, used it to aid a feeble church. All her earnings above her needs were given toward building a house of worship, and in a year she had paid more than others a hundred times richer than she. So you can do if you will. Think of the widow with her two mites, the woman with the alabaster box, and Dorcas with her garments. You can do as much, and have as great a reward.—Free Church Record.

Nothing But Water.

There is a certain large boarding-school for boys in England, where we have seen sixty or seventy of them at their desks; and fine, merry, strong, clever lads they were. No intoxicating drinks whatever are placed on the table and yet several brewers and wine merchants send their sons there for education. This proves that dealers in strong drink do not regard it as essential to their intellectual activity and physical health. One of these young gentlemen had a white swelling in his knee, and was sent home for medical treatment. When the family doctor arrived and examined the limb he evidently thought it a serious case, and said:

"What sort of a school are you at?"

"Oh! a jolly school."

"What kind of a master have you?"

"Oh! a jolly master."

"But what sort of a table does he keep?"

"Oh! a jolly table."

"Yes, yes; but what does he give you to drink?"

"Oh! the governor's a teetotaler; he puts nothing but water on the table."

"Then," said the doctor to the patient's anxious mother, "we can save his limb. Do not fear; he will soon get better." And he did so, and went back to his desk, his games, and his "jolly table"—not less jolly to him now that he knew water drinking had been good for him.

It is not great calamities that embitter existence, it is the petty vexations, the small jealousies, the little disappointments, the "minor miseries," that make the heart and the temper sour. Do not let them. Anger is a pure waste of vitality. It helps nobody and hinders everybody. It is always foolish and always disgraceful, except in some cases, when it is kindled by seeing wrong done to another; and even that "noble rage" seldom meets the matter. No woman does her best except when she is cheerful. A light heart makes nimble the hands, and keeps the mind free and alert. No misfortune is so great as one that sours the temper. Till cheerfulness is lost, nothing is lost.—Public Ledger.

Married.

At the Camp Ground of the Church of God, Waterloo, Iowa, Aug. 24, 1904, Mr. Wm. L. Gibbs, and Mrs. Minerva Bently. Mr. Gibbs is the Editor of Word and Work of Abilene Texas, and his wife lived at Stratford, Iowa. The ceremony was performed by Bro. O. J. Allard at the close of the evening session.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the doners request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trust worthy.

Little Kindnesses.

If you were toiling up a weary hill,
Bearing a load beyond your strength to bear,
Straining each nerve nuthingly, and still
Stumbling and losing foothold here and there,
And each one passing by would do so much
As give one upward lift and go his way,
Would not the slight relt- rated touch
Of help and kindness lighten all he day?

If you were breasting a keen wind, which tossed
And buffeted and chilled you as you strove,
Till, baffled and bewildered quite, you lost
The power to see the way, and aim to move,
And one, if only for a moment's space,
Gave you shelter from the bitter blast,
Would you not find it easier to face
The storm again when the brief rest was past?

There is so little and there is so much,
We weigh not measure and define in vain.
A look, a word, a light responsive touch,
Can be a minister of joy to pain.
A man can die of hunger walled in gold,
A crumb may quicken hope to stronger breath,
And every day we give, or we withhold
Some little thing which tells for life or death.

Selected.

The Jew and his Persecutors.

In a recent sermon by W. Bruce Doyle, of Jackson, Ala., upon "The Jew," the preacher, taking for his text the words of Genesis xii: 3. "I will bless them that bless thee: and curse him that curseth thee; and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed," reviewed the fulfillment of this remarkable promise through history, from the earliest days down to the present time. We are enabled by the courtesy of The Hebrew Standard of New York, to reproduce the preacher's remarks below:

God in this passage promises three things: I will bless them that bless thee, and curse them that curseth thee; and in thee all families of the earth shall be blessed.

Come down the line of the peculiar people, the royal priesthood, the holy nation, and see if it has not been as true as the God who spake it. The sons of Jacob were great-grandchildren of Abraham. Joseph was one of the younger, and his brethren hated him. They put this meek child of Abraham in a pit to die. They found they could get money by selling him and, true to that money-making nature of theirs, they pulled him out and sold him to strangers, who took him away into slavery. And those men lived to see their land scorched to a crisp by drought and heat. They saw their cattle ready to die for want of food and waters. They lived to hear their children crying from hunger, and they became beggars of bread in a strange land. It seems that if even a Hebrew oppresses a Hebrew he must suffer.

Joseph went into Egypt as a slave and became virtual king. The Egyptians were kind to Joseph, the son of Abraham, and God was kind to them. They raised Joseph from one position of trust to another, and God blessed Egypt and prospered her every step. By Joseph being treated well the kingdom was saved from the awful famine. Through this Hebrew, God showed Egypt the coming years of plenty and marked out the dates of the famine. The Egyptians treated the Hebrews well and God saved them both. But when this Pharoah died there arose another king who knew not Joseph. Then the Hebrews were put in cruel bondage. Then it was that Joseph no longer ruled. There was another king who knew not Joseph, and that was the turning point in the history of Egypt.

From that day until now Egypt has scarcely seen a prosperous period of seven years. And in recent years Egypt has come under a western yoke and has seen a foreign people carrying away the embalmed bodies of her ancestors to make fertilizer for foreign soil. The promise was true in Egypt, "I will bless them that bless thee, and curse them that curseth thee; and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed."

The Assyrian power under Sennacherib oppressed the people of God. They smote the land and destroyed cities and came up near Jerusalem. They intimidated the Jews, scoffed at the rulers, made fun of Jerusalem and laughed at Jehovah. But they entered not the city. Sennacherib left and went back to Nineveh. Second Kings says in the nineteenth chapter that while he was worshiping in the house of his God, Nisroch, two of his sons slew him with the sword. Assyrian history says that Sennacherib's death came while he was on his third campaign to Egypt. Second Kings says, "Esarhaddon, his son, reigned in his stead." Assyrian history says that he requested that one son should reign on the home throne and another with some subordination should rule over the conquered ground of Babylon. Now, history says, that after twenty years these two sons became engaged in war, and while the home throne won the cause, it was greatly impaired and received a blow that gave it a downward turn, ending in its ruin. "I will curse him that curseth thee," it was spoken by Jehovah.

As a wave of the sea arises upon the beach, so Babylon arose as a world power. Babylon conquered people, gathered wealth, gained ground and won battles until she enslaved the tribe of Jews, and after that she lasted only seventy years and Cyrus came for her. She brought Jews to Babylon as slaves and saw God send them away rich. She laughed at them as they wept under her willow trees, and taunted them by saying, "Sing us one of the songs of Zion." And they saw a man friendly to the Jews sprinkling the blood of Babylon on the ground. "I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee," and Babylon found it so. It was spoken by Jehovah.

Forty years after the death of Jesus, Jerusalem was destroyed by the Romans. The Jews collected themselves and their provisions in Jerusalem. The siege lasted for months. While Jewish men stood on the wall fighting the enemy without, the wives in the streets of the city were exchanging babies and eating them, that they might hold out the siege a little longer. Jerusalem was doomed and fell into the hands of the Romans. Hundreds of thousands of Jews were butchered without mercy, and the others were scattered to the four winds of the earth. But what of Rome? It was only a few years until the dust in the streets of Rome was moistened with Latin blood, and Rome was buried in the grave that she was digging for herself when Roman soldiers crucified the King of the Jews at the place of the skull. She was covered in the grave that she finished when Titus pulled the last brick from Jerusalem.

In the thirteenth century the Jews in England were lying at the mercy of the natives. They were maltreated, given no voice in legislation, and getting no justice in courts of law. Finally, in 1290, they were driven from the shores by the actions of an infuriated mob. But what of England? Seven years later she saw Edward II. come to her throne—a man whose credit was not good. At twenty-four years after the expulsion of the Jews England lost in the great battle of Bannockburn, and a little later Parliament deposed the king and he was soon assassinated. "I will curse him that curseth thee."

For centuries England has been a peaceful home for the remnants of God's race; and where is there a nation upon which Providence has bestowed more fortune? There Jews are protected by the laws of the land as other citizens, and where is a better governed nation? England does no violence now to the Jews, and who does violence to England?

The most melancholy hour of modern Jewish history was probably in 1492, when a decree came from the Crown of Spain bringing down steel and fire upon all non-Christians and Jews. As astrologers, astronomers, teachers and philosophers, they had worked prominently in making Spain what she then was. And while the doors of most nations were closed against them they suffered terrestrial hell. Some went to Portugal, where children were torn from their mother's breast, and enslaved to Gentiles. We said the Jews worked prominently in making Spain what she then was. And Spain was great. Spain was rich—a monarch on land and a mistress of the sea. In 1492 she laid claim to one-half the world in a single day. But that was the year the crown sent out a decree against the Jews. That was the decade when Spain started down the louder of fame, down the hill of fortune, down the road of poverty, blood and ruin. Bit by bit her land was gone; dollar by dollar her money has been spent. Little by little her soil has grown poor; drop by drop her life blood has been drawn. But the Jews lived to see her fleet go down at Manilla, and her navy drowned at Santiago. "I will curse him that curseth thee."

From the first this country has been friendly to the Jews. They live here freely, dwell quietly, and are esteemed as citizens, and what nation has God treated better than our own? When did we have a famine? Our droughts have been of short duration. When have we had a great storm? Our storms have all been local. When have we lost a war? That one in 1812 was indecisive. May the time never come when this country shall raise her hand to smite the Hebrews. He who smites God's people, will God smite, for he has said, "I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee."

Gentlemen, you may stop building fences and begin to use your can fruit, you may mortgage your home and turn in your insurance policy for its face value. You may hunt up your sackcloth and sit down in ashes if ever you see this country shedding Jewish blood. If you live to see this country doing violence to the Jews, you may close your store and get a spade, for it is time to dig a grave for this nation. Jehovah is yet the lover of that people, and vengeance still belongs to him, and he says, "I will bless them that bless thee, and curse them that curseth thee."

Now what of Russia? If the Almighty God does not some time curse Russia with a mighty curse, then two things are true: History does not repeat itself. And I am not right in my mind on the promise of God to Israel.

We have a way of taking all the good promises to Israel and claiming them as being made to the spiritual Israel or to the Church. And we take all the threats and curses for Israel and apply them to the real Jew. If the Church takes the blessing promised to Israel, then tell me into whose back yard we shall dump the curses pronounced upon Israel?

But there has been many secondary ways in which they have been a blessing. What was Joseph to Egypt when he saved a whole nation in a seven years' famine, and with it the Church of God from starvation? They were a blessing in Babylon. They were a blessing to Spain, and have been to the United States and to England.

These people are the salt of the earth, the light of the world, the progenitors of all that is elevating in civilization. In business they have bridged the way to financial glory. They teach business, exemplify economy, practice industry and abolish pauperism.

Jewish laws have been copied by the senates, their legislation modeled by the world, and their rules of equity are chosen of men. The constitution adopted by them at Mount Sinai, thirty-four hundred years ago, contained the fundamentals of ours drafted at Philadelphia thirty-three hundred years afterwards. They came to fill our empty treasury in the dark days of our own revolution. History testifies that they largely fought the battles, built the cities, and founded the schools of the South American continent. They did more than their part in constituting that army which vindicated the equity of the Monroe doctrine by bringing Spain to her senses and liberating the Cuban people.

Where the Bible is not read there is no light, no justice, no morality, for in it the way of earthly happiness, the pictures of a reward to follow, and the penalty for sin are fully drawn. It is the inheritance of the Jew broken up among us.

The two pillars standing beneath the social and moral world are the Sabbath and marriage. They stand upon the earth reaching into heaven, and upon their summits are resting the destinies of men. They are the bulwarks of home, society, Church and State. For the preservation of them both we are largely indebted to the Jew. Have they not been a blessing to all families of the earth?

To-day woman is chained and libertined in every corner of the earth where the synagogue makes no shadow. By every Gentile tribe which has ever existed she has been fettered in shame until the dawn of Jewish influence, when the cords of slavery and bonds of servitude melted away, and Israel came to reveal her virtues and purity. They teach us laws of health. The average age of a Jew is said to be ten years more than that of a Gentile. The Black Death which carried off a quarter of Europes inhabitants, left the Jewish homes almost entirely untouched.

Not many years have passed since the peace of three worlds was hanging upon the Jewish Prime Minister of England. It was no long ago that an English Jew absolutely leased the ancient Persian Empire. The Rothchild family has arisen from a German Jew, which family now holds possibly more financial power than did ever the line of Pharaohs or dynasty of the Cesars.

Shall we forget Hirsch, Montefiore, or Beaconfield, for years the virtual ruler of England? Shall we not mention Mendelssohn, who was in his age the world's musician? Shall we not speak of Judah Benjamin who was loved by the Confederate States, and afterwards became famous in the English courts?

They have been a blessing, for they have devised for us laws to elevate, politics to raise, morals to purify, and a religion to save. Their potency is felt, their latent power immeasurable, and their destiny unseen.

The proudest, the purest, the most holy race which has ever blessed the earth, has been that of the Jews; and to their father, God gave the promise: "I will bless them that bless thee, and curse him that curseth thee; and in thee all families of the earth shall be blessed."—Christian Herald.

Unscriptural Experiences.

"To the law and to the testimony; if they speak not according to this word, it is because there is no light in them." Isa. viii: 20.

We are in an age when many theories are advanced and many discordant voices are clamoring to be heard. For this reason the necessity of an infallible standard was never greater. God has graciously given such a standard in his Holy Word and he holds none responsible for what he hears and for the way he chooses to go. This is true of the systems of so-called truth that bid for our acceptance with great array of the most plausible sophistry and "oppositions of science falsely so-called." We are constantly exhorted in the Word to take heed lest we be deceived and are not to accept any other gospel though an angel from heaven make it known unto us.

But it was my intention rather to refer to some items of Christian experience which I have recently heard given and endorsed by a people who hold some extreme views on "holiness." One testifies that her experience in its lightness and freedom from care and worry could be compared to nothing better than a butterfly. There was a time when her religious life might be likened to a "grub feeding upon cabbage leaves;" but now a complete transformation has taken place, and she was flying above the earth in the bright, free sunshine.

It is unnecessary to state that she did not quote any Scripture in support of this experience, nor can we recollect any that sounds like it. It is true, provision is made for us to live, in a sense, above earth's sorrows and worries and cares. It is ours to rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory; to cast all our anxious care upon him who careth for us; to always triumph through his all-sufficient grace. But there is too much said in the record of the experience of God's people about armor and warfare and trial and suffering and such things to compare it with anything like a butterfly existence. These false and fantastic conceptions of Christianity come from not considering closely enough the life and teachings of the great Founder, who "also suffered for us, leaving us an example, that we should follow his steps."

Some seem to think that holiness and sanctification consist chiefly in ecstatic emotions, and much that is said on these lines does not take into account properly the stern reality of Christ's life and words, as also those of the apostles. The experience we see most conspicuous is of tireless labor and deep longing for the welfare of others, self-denial and humility, trial and suffering and persecution.

Another strange position was taken by some who claimed that we may get beyond trials and suffering in this life. They sang,

Not a sorrow, not a care;
Christ doth all my burdens bear.

It would be rather inconsistent for Paul to sing that song and then write some of the statements we find in his epistles. Of his solicitude for his brethren according to the flesh, he says, "I say the truth in Christ, I lie not, my conscience also bearing me witness in the Holy Ghost, that I have great heaviness and continual sorrow in my heart." In his first letter to the Corinthians he says, "For out of much affliction and anguish of heart I wrote unto you with many tears." And in referring to the restoration to health of Epaphroditus he writes, "But God had mercy on him; and not on him only, but on me also, lest I should have sorrow upon sorrow." And above all we read of Christ that he was "a man of sorrow, and acquainted with grief."

As to the follower of Christ getting beyond suffering, there is nothing more opposed to Scripture testimony, nor to the experience of the great majority of Christians. There are, indeed, many professed followers who know nothing of suffering, but our faithfulness to God will measure the amount of our suffering as also our willingness and our desire to suffer. One Scripture is sufficient to show its importance and the Christian's attitude toward it: "Beloved, think it not strange concerning the fiery trial which is to try you, as though some strange thing happened unto you; but rejoice, inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's suffering; that, when his glory shall be revealed, ye may be glad also with exceeding joy."

Let us therefore thank God for his unfailing standard he has given us by which we may try the varied experiences and teachings that are presented. Temperament and education and environment effect us greatly, but all these are to be conformed to the Word of God. By that our thoughts are to be directed, our experiences measured, our affections and desires and wills regulated. To do otherwise is to be as a ship without a rudder, "tossed to and fro, and carried about with every wind of doctrine;" but by walking in the light God's Word supplies, and taking advantage of the means of grace he has given, we shall grow in grace "till we shall come in the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ."—Wm. Wolcott, in Herald of Life.

The Crescent of the Mohammedans.

The crescent symbol of the Mohammedans has nothing to do with their peculiar religious opinions and ceremonies. It was not originally a symbol of the followers of Mohammed at all, but was first used by the Byzantines. Thousands of coins have been found in all parts of Turkey which date back to the time when Constantinople was known as Byzantium, and on each of these the symbol of the crescent appears, proving conclusively that it was in use as an emblem among the people of that region long before Byzantium was overthrown and its name changed to Constantinople.

The story of the origin of the crescent symbol is as follows: When Philip of Macedonia besieged Byzantium he had planned to storm the city on a certain cloudy night; but before his arrangements were completed the moon shone out and discovered his approach to the besieged citizens, who accordingly marched out and repulsed his forces—something which would have been impossible in the darkness. After that event all Byzantine coins bore the symbol of the crescent moon, which was always alluded to as the "Savior of Byzantium."

After many years the hordes under Mohamed II. captured Constantinople. At that time the crescent was used everywhere and upon everything. Suspecting that there must be magical power in the emblem the Mohammedans appropriated it, and have since used it as their only symbolic decoration.

Obituary.

The Church at Rensselaer, Ind., is again grief stricken by the hand of death, taking from them our dearly beloved Brother Paris.

Berry Paris was born in Bourbon Co. Kentucky, June 26, 1825, and was moved while young, to Highland Co, Ohio, and came to Indiana when about 20 years old.

At the age of 27, he was married, in Grant Co., Ind., to Sarah J. Dwiggins, with whom he lived in happy unity, the long period of over 52 years.

She survives him, also six children and five grandchildren. The children are Mrs. Louisa Imes, of Rensselaer, Mrs. Lydia Kimball, John W. & Rob't S. Paris Brooklyn, N. Y. Mrs. Amanda Lewis and Mrs. Rose Ludd, both of Oxford Ind. All of them except Robert S. were present at the funeral, Aug. 28th. all of whom, including father and mother, composed a united family in the Faith and Hope of the Gospel.

Brother Paris by profession of faith and obedience thereof, was united with the Church of God, at Rensselaer in 1872, continuing faithful until death. It may truly be said of him that he ever honored his profession by a well ordered life in godliness, exhibiting to a marked degree virtue under trial, patience under suffering with charity for all. After a long continued struggle with the enemy death, he was overcome and passed into the silent sleep of death Aug 24th, 1904, at the age of 79 years and two months to await the call of the Master to awaken him to the life eternal.

He was held in high esteem by the community at large. The attendance at the funeral was very large, who listened attentively to the presentation of the hope of life and immortality, which had cheered and comforted him while living.

D. T. Halstead.

After an illness of only four days Brother Daniel S. Morrow fell asleep peacefully in Jesus, Friday Aug. 19th. aged 86 years.

He was born at Morristown, N. J. July 18, 1818, and came to Ohio, in early manhood, and located in Urbana afterwards moved to Springfield, where he has since resided.

Brother Morrow was one of the faithful in the Millerite movement. Though the Lord did not come as expected, he never let his faith waver in the Word of God. Under the teaching of Bro. L. H. Chase of Adrian, Mich., in Jan. of 1859, who had been called here by the writer's father, Wm. Fish, at whose house meetings were held, our Brother Morrow was convinced that his former baptism under Miller was not valid, he had not been baptised into the life Giver as a sin covering. Well do I remember the night when after a masterful discourse on baptism by Brother Chase how Brother Morrow arose to his feet, and said, "Every prop is gone, —Yes Bro. Chase every prop is gone upon which I had leaned. I want to go into the water this night yet." And he did—Living near by, he rushed home, changed his apparel, quickly returning, and together with some others who desired immersion, we all repaired to Buck creek near by and there the happy brother was immersed into the all saving name of Jesus. Yes he was happy, and O how he could sing; yes sing with voice clear and strong even to the end.

We miss the dear old brother, but sweet is thy sleep. Then rest, sweetly rest. He was faithful to his trust all through his active business life, generous to a fault. No one ever appealed to him for help and he turned away.

He was very prominent in the underground railway before and after the Civil War, and in the last years of his life regretted that his strength and means were not adequate to follow out his benevolence: especially for the cause of truth.

His wife died several years ago, since then he has been tenderly cared for by the Ecclesia and a daughter; at whose home he died. Service at the house Saturday afternoon.

Bro. B. F. Howell spoke very touchingly of the brother's beautiful faith in the promises made of God, and in the Gospel of the Kingdom that Jesus taught, and ultimate consummation as expressed by Paul in the latter part of 1 Cor. xv.

Would we meet our dear old brother again? Would we meet all our dear sleeping ones? O household of faith, then

No let our lips and lives express
The holy gospel we profess;
So let our works and virtues shine
To prove the doctrine all divine.

Thus shall we best proclaim abroad
The honors of our Maker, God,
When his salvation reigns within,
And grace subdues the power of sin.

Our flesh and sense must be denied,
Ambition, envy, lust, and pride;
While patience, temperance, truth and love
Our inward piety approve.

Martha Woodward.

Irene Delight Wilson died Aug. 19th, 1904, aged 3 years 1 month and 28 days. Sister Wilson was baptised by the writer last winter while wife and I were holding meetings in Warren Co. Ind., and it was our sad duty to preach the funeral sermon of their little darling, Aug. 21st, after which we drove to West Lebanon and laid her to rest to await the time when the children shall come with others from the enemy's land.

We sympathise with the young father and mother in the great loss to them of their only child.

Beautiful Winona.

With the opening of the season at Winona Lake, May 10th, the sale of excursion tickets over the Pennsylvania Lines to that attractive resort in Northern Indiana will begin. Every summer passed there by thousands has only increased their desire to return. On the golf links, the tennis courts, the baseball or cricket grounds, the croquet field, or boating on the lake, fishing, camping, swimming, driving, or attending recitals and lectures by world-famed personages in the auditorium—whatever the diversion may be, the associations are of that congenial sort conferred by good society. This resort is noted as the site of Winona Assembly and Summer School, attracting teachers and students from educational institutions of this and other countries.

Fifteen-day and season excursion tickets will be sold from stations of the Pennsylvania Lines during the summer. For information about fares and time of trains, apply to local ticket agents, or to F. Van Dusen, Chief Assistant General Passenger Agent, Pittsburgh, Pa. Illustrated literature describing attractions of Winona Lake may be had for the asking. Address S. G. Dickey, Secretary and General Manager, Winona Lake, Ind., who will give particulars regarding camping facilities, hotel accomodations, program of addresses by noted speakers and all other details.—Sept. 30.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, CO., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended

Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? Poetry.

Things That Never Die.

The pure, the bright, the beautiful,
That stirred our hearts in youth,
The impulse of a wordless prayer
The dream of love and truth,
The longing after something lost,
The spirit's yearning cry,
The striving after better hopes—
These things shall never die.

The timid hand stretched forth to aid
The brother in his need,
The kindly word in grief's dark hour,
That proves a friend indeed,
The plea for mercy, softly breathed,
When justice threatens nigh,
The sorrowings of a contrite heart—
These things shall never die.

Let nothing pass, for every hand
Must find some work to do;
Lose not a chance to waken love,
Be firm, and just, and true;
So shall a light that cannot fade
Beam on thee from on high,
And angel voices say to thee,
"These things can never die."

Communicated.

Pine Woods Bible Class.

Teacher. A request comes to us from Bro. Franklin Updike, of Virginia, requesting us to continue our study of the Parable of "The Rich man and Lazarus," as follows:

Dear Restitution:

Will Brother W. H. Wilson please continue his explanation of the parable of the rich man and Lazarus? Who does the rich man represent? And who does the poor man represent? Please locate the hell in which the man lifted up his eyes, and also who the brethren? We like his explanation so far as he has gone. Hope he will take pleasure in granting our request as this is the first one we have made through THE RESTITUTION. May the good Lord abundantly bless you in the good work.

Yours in hope of life in the kingdom. FRANKLIN UPDIKE.

I will request Elln to give the condition of these two men (rich man and Lazarus) as to life and death.

Elln. They were both of them dead. See Luke xvi. 22, "It came to pass that the beggar died  the rich man also."

Q. What is the condition of a dead man, with regard to personal consciousness?

A. The Bible says, "The dead know not anything." Again, see Psa. cxlvi. 1-4: "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish."

He ceases to think the day he ceases to breathe, and consequently if he ceases to think, he must as a natural result cease to retain knowledge, and ceasing to retain knowledge at all, he passes into the condition of knowing not anything.

Q. What is the condition of Abraham, the third person named in the parable?

A. Dead and buried. See Gen. xxv. 7-9. "And these are the days of the years of Abraham's life which he lived, a hundred threescore and fifteen years. Then Abraham gave up the ghost, and died in a good old age, an old man, and full of years; and was gathered to his people. And his sons Isaac and Ishmael buried him in the cave of Machpelah, in the field of Ephron the son of Zohar the Hittite, which is before Mamre." Then all three of these men have passed into a condition of knowing not anything on account of ceasing to think, the very day they ceased to breathe?

A. Yes, that is Bible teaching.

Q. Then what are we to understand by these three men who ceased to think, before they were buried, holding conversation, and making requests?

A. Just the same as we have accounts of trees, stones and hewn timbers conversing in other parables. Let me introduce you to a convention of trees, held to elect a king. See Judges ix. 8-15, "The trees went forth on a time to anoint a king over them; and they said unto the olive tree, Reign thou over us. But the olive tree said unto them, Should I leave my fatness, wherewith by me they honor God and man, and go to be promoted over the trees? And the trees said to the fig tree, Come thou, and reign over us. But the fig tree said unto them, Should I forsake my sweetness, and my good fruit, and go to be promoted over the trees? Then said the trees unto the vine, Come thou, and reign over us. And the vine said unto them, Should I leave my wine, which cheereth God and man, and go to be promoted over the trees? Then said all the trees unto the bramble, Come thou, and reign over us. And the bramble said unto the trees, If in truth ye anoint me king over you, then come and put your trust under my shadow, and if not, let fire come out of the bramble, and devour the cedars of Lebanon."

See Heb. ii. 9-11, "Woe to him that coveteth an evil covetousness to his house, that he may set his nest on high, that he may be delivered from the power of evil! Thou hast consulted shame to thy house by cutting off many people, and hast sinned against thy soul. For the stone shall cry out of the wall, and the beam out of the timber shall answer it."

Stones in a wall can cry out, and the beam out of the timber can answer the call of the stones, just the same as men who are dead and buried can talk while dead. Trees can hold elections and talk, just the same as dead men can. Men in death are no more conscious than stones are.

Teacher. Now, Bessie, please tell us who did the rich man desire that Abraham should send to his five brethren, with a message of mercy?

A. Bessie. Lazarus.

Q. Was Lazarus dead or alive at the time the request was made?

A. Dead. "And it came to pass that the beggar died."

Q. If dead, what would be necessary to have arisen before he could be sent to [illegible] never been [illegible]

[illegible] position [illegible] office; if by any means I may provoke to emulation them which are my flesh, and might save some of them. For if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead?" The Gentiles are not independent of the Jews. This can be seen by the conversation between Jesus and the Gentile woman of Samaria. John iv. 19-22, "The woman saith unto him, Sir, I perceive that thou art a prophet. Our fathers worshipped in this mountain; and ye say, that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship. Jesus saith unto her, Woman, believe me, the hour cometh, when ye shall neither in this mountain, nor yet at Jerusalem, worship the Father. Ye worship ye know not what; we know what we worship; for salvation is of the Jews." It is likewise the case today, that as long as the Gentile remains an alien from Israel's commonwealth, and is a stranger to the covenants of promise they are in the condition described in Eph. ii. 11, 12, "Wherefore remember, that ye being in time past Gentiles in the flesh, who are called Uncircumcision by that which is called the Circumcision in the flesh made by hands. That at that time ye were without Christ, being aliens from the commonwealth of Israel, and strangers from the covenants of promise, having no hope, and without God in the world."

Teacher. Now Lud, what evidence did the rich man think would be sufficient to convince his "five brethren?"

Lud. "If one went unto them from the dead, they will repent," he said.

Q. Was the request granted?

A. Yes. One of his own brethren "went unto them from the dead," over five hundred witnesses testify to the fact.

Q. Did they repent?

A. No. And as a nation they do not yet believe.

Q. What did they do with the rich man when he died?

A. "And the rich man also died and was buried." Ver. 22.

Q. Where did they bury him?

A. In hades (improperly rendered hell) which is the general receptacle of all the dead, both good and bad. Jesus when dead, was in hades (hell), just the same as the rich man was.

Q. As the rich man was buried in hades (hell) he was "dead," consequently he did not know anything. When did he become conscious?

A. When he "lifted up his eyes," in hades (hell) he was made alive again.

Q. When did he commence to be in "torment?"

A. When he "lifted up his eyes." Dead men have no power to lift up their eyes, or experience "torment."

Q. What did he see when he "lifted up his eyes." "He seeth Abraham afar off, and Lazarus in his bosom," (in the Abrahamic family).

Q. Will this bring torment upon them?

A. Yes. See Luke xiii. 28, 29, "There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, and all the prophets, in the kingdom of God, and you yourselves thrust out. And they shall come from the east, and from the west, and from the north, and from the south, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God."

Q. The rich man says, "I am tormented in this flame." Will he receive physical as well as mental torment after he sees Abraham, Isaac, Jacob, Lazarus, etc., in the kingdom of God, and himself "thrust out," "having no hope?"

A. Yes. See Mal. iv. 1, "For, behold, the day cometh that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch."

Teacher. Will Carrie please comment on the second phase of this question? What relation do the Jews sustain to the Gentiles?

Carrie. This may symbolize the [illegible] of dig[illegible] the [illegible] of these sy[illegible] both Jew and [illegible]

Q. Previous to the incoming of the Christian dispensation how did the Jew regard the Gentile?

A. They were regarded as "Gentile dogs," and they may consider themselves favored, if allowed to gather up the crumbs which fell from the rich man's table.

Q. What will the death of the rich man symbolize?

A. The death of the nation. See Amos ix. 8, 9, "Behold; the eyes of the Lord God are upon the sinful kingdom, and I will destroy it from off the face of the earth; saving that I will not utterly destroy the house of Jacob, saith the Lord. For, lo, I will command, and I will sift the house of Israel among all nations, like as corn is sifted in a sieve, yet shall not the least grain fall upon the earth." When the kingdom was destroyed, it was dead.

Q. What will the burial of the rich man symbolize?

A. The burial among all nations. See verse 9, "I will sift the house of Israel among all nations, like as corn is sifted in a sieve." They are in hades (hell). They are now seeking to emerge from their hades condition among the nations.

Q. Were they in "torment" while in hades (hell) buried among the nations?

A. They were in grievous torment as history shows, they have been tormented, as no other nation has been. God said they should be in torment. See Amos ix. 1-4, "I saw the Lord standing upon the altar; and he said, Smite the lintel of the door, that the posts may shake; and cut them in the head, all of them; and I will slay the last of them with the sword; he that fleeth of them shall not flee away, and he that escapeth of them shall not be delivered. Though they dig into hell, thence shall mine hand take them; though they climb up to heaven, thence will I bring them down. And though they hide themselves in the top of Carmel, I will search and take them out thence; and though they be hid from my sight in the bottom of the sea, thence will I command the serpent, and he shall bite them. And though they go into captivity before their enemies, thence will I command the sword, and it shall slay them; and I will set mine eyes upon them for evil, and not for good."

Q. When will they experience life from the dead as a nation?

A. For an answer see Rom. ix. 15, "For if the casting away of them be the reconciling of the world, what shall the receiving of them be, but life from the dead?" If "the receiving of them be life from the dead," then the reverse of this, "the casting away of them must be their death."

Q. What is the impassable gulf which exists between Israel and the Gentile nations, among whom they are buried?

A. Unquestionably the Mosaic law. That is still the middle wall of partition. It is somewhat amusing to see the attempts some of our Sabbatarian Josephites make, in trying to cross that gulf.

Q. Who are the five brethren? If the two tribes Judah and Benjamin, represent the rich man, may not the other ten tribes represent the five brethren?

A. That may be the case.

Teacher. While the national aspect, as between Jew and Gentile, may fit in some aspects, the case of the rich man and Lazarus, yet in my opinion, it has greater force in a personal aspect, as given in the first part of this lesson, recognizing the fact that "salvation is of the Jews," and that Jesus will be "the King of the Jews," and that God will "restore again the kingdom to Israel."

I will say that orders for Pine Woods Bible Class in book form, are coming in almost every day. Those who wait until the book is printed before ordering, may not get one, as I do not expect to print more than one thousand. All previous orders will be filled first.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

Wisdom of Seirach.

CHAPTER 43.

1. An awful object of sublimity is a canopy of purity, a sight of the heavens in a vision of glory.

2. A sun in vision-way proclaiming it, a wondrous instrumentality, a work of a Most High.

3. In its midday course it drieth up a country, and its scorching heat who will withstand?

4. Blowing an oven in works of scorching heat a sun causeth mountains to flame out in a threefold way; breathing in fiery breaths and shining out with active rays it dimmeth eyes.

5. Great is the Lord who made it and who with his words prepared its mode of going.

6. And the moon with all things in her season, for a proclamation of times and a sign of an animate age.

7. From the moon is a sign of a religious festival ("Pascha" probably meant) a light-bearer decreasing unto conjunctive completions.

8. "A month" (another name for "the moon") according to her name is the (one of these conjunctive periods namely) increasing wondrously in her changing way; an instrumentality for camps on high, shining in the canopy of the heavens.

9. A beauty of the canopy, a glory of stars, a cosmos (a world) that sheddeth light, a lord among high ones.

10. In the words of a saint they will stand according to a verdict rendered and they shall not be released in their gaurdian watches.

11. See a bow and eulogize the one who made it, a very timely beautiful thing in its lustre.

12. It hath bent a canopy with a curving of glory; hands of a Most High stretched it.

13. By his decree he hath hasted snow down and he hath made swift lightnings of his judgment.

14. Therefore treasures have been opened up and clouds have flown like things with wings.

15. In his majesty he hath made clouds strong, and hail-stones have crushed through things.

16. And in his ways of seeing mountains will have leaped; at his will a south wind will blow.

17. A voice of his thunder hath caused an earth to feel birth-pangs; and a cyclone from the north and a whirlwind sprinkle snow like things that fly with wings, and like a settling locust flight is the descent thereof.

18. An eye will be astounded at the beauty of its whiteness and a heart feel ecstasy at its moistening shower.

19. And he poureth hoar-frost like salt upon a land and tips of pointed things become frosted tips.

20. A cold north wind will blow and a crystal will congeal from water; over every synagogue of water will it pitch its tent and the water will clothe itself as with a breastplate.

21. He will devour mountains and make a wilderness flame out, and quench verdure like fire.

22. A healing of all things in haste is a foggy mist; dew that cometh will give cheer from scorching heat.

23. With his reasoning hath he assuaged an abysmal-depth of waters and a Jeremus hath planted it.

24. Those who sail the sea discourse its danger and we wonder at the hearing of our ears.

25. And there are the paradoxes and wondrous works, various kinds of living creature a creation of sea-monsters.

26. Because of him a prosperous journey is one's accomplished end, and in his word do all things become component parts.

27. We shall say many things and not attain, and a consummation of words, the whole thing is he.

28. Glorying in what shall we be strong? For he is greater than all his works.

29. The Lord is very great, and wondrous is his ability to rule.

30. When ye glorify the Lord exalt him as much as ye are able; for he will still exceed it; and when ye ex[illegible] may ye have been filled w[illegible] do not grow weary, th[illegible] not attain it.

31. Who hath seen him and will discourse it? And who will magnify him even as he is?

32. Many hidden things are there greater than these, for we have seen but few of his works. For all things did the Lord create and to those who truly revere him he hath given wisdom.

COMMENT.

Aside from the fine rhetoric of this chapter and the truth to fact of the natural objects and phenomena herein described there are esoteric hints and suggestions of deeper things to be seen and learned of God's wisdom in his works than appear to the natural vision, and that their highest utility in fact is not so much to serve these lower purposes which we all discern as to be great object lessons for all mankind in all ages leading us up to a personal recognition and glorification of their all-wise Maker, or, as old Seirach puts it he is in the 27th verse of which "he is the whole thing." Study out the signification of the 23d verse, reader if you can.

Baptism.

I have the pleasure of introducing to the brethren abroad the names of five dear ones who have just taken on the new life in Christ by baptism into his name. On Sunday morning, Aug. 28, the last day of our conference, we went to the banks of the beautiful Rock River where we baptized Miss Mabel Eaton, of Mt. Carroll, Ill., Mrs. Rosetta Johnson, of Oregon, Ill., Mr. Walter Miller and Mr. Frederick Hoover, of Adeline, Ill. On the following Wednesday evening our young brother, Raymond Smith, son of our secretary presented himself at the river where we buried him into the all-saving name. These scenes encourage us and fill us with renewed zeal. Let us not forget, however, that these dear ones need our prayers. May God help them to be faithful unto the end.

No truth can be exhausted because it flows from the perennial spring. All truth is related and leads back to God its source.—H. W. Bowman.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins as prerequisites to the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEP'T 14, 1904.

THIS item is for the person who has allowed his time to expire and has not yet renewed. We wish to hereby solicit you to at once send in your subscription money for the paper. At this season of the year our expenses are necessarily heavy, as we must get fuel and otherwise prepare for winter. The political campaign is on, and the attention of some is diverted by this cause. Brethren and sisters, do not allow anything to crowd out your duty in this branch of the Lord's cause. Hurry in your renewals at once.

THE Indiana Conference at Hillisburg was well attended, full of interest and encouragement to all who were present. Another year is commenced, and what its record will be in as yet unknown. Let all take hold of the work as if they knew is to be the last, and make this year a credit to the Master's cause. Let us do everything we possibly can—sacrificing self for Christ, and so be worthy to stand before him when he comes.

THE war in the far east seems to be at a stand still. The rains in the north have made the roads impassable. The Russians are moving men by means of the railroad, and do not mean to give up because they were beaten in the late great battle. Port Arthur is running short of ammunition, and the Japs are waiting the time to strike another blow. There is talk of the nations trying to force the combatants to end the war, but it is a delicate matter, and will have to be handled carefully. The report was that the Czar had ordered the Baltic fleet to the far east, and that it had started, and again comes the word that it was to be halted for a time to await further developments.

Some Vital Questions. No. 4.

[illegible] saw NO NECESSITY for [illegible]th for Jesus. The evi[illegible]e us, however, that to [illegible] necessity of his being slain [illegible] an offence to him then; and can [illegible]e anything else now? Our author, an ex-Christadelphian, he too, savors of the things of men, not the things of God; it would be expensive to heed him, surely.

73. "Adam's conscience was good before he sinned; he was naked and not ashamed; after sinning fear and shame seized him because he was uncovered, and undertook to cover his own sin, knowing nothing of the principle of blood-shedding in the covering of iniquity. A lamb was slain and his nakedness was covered with its skin.

"This was the lamb slain at the FOUNDATION OF THE WORLD, and represented him who is the lamb typically slain from the foundation of the world. As Yahweh Elohim clothed Adam and Eve thus, their iniquity was covered; this implies of course that they were instructed in regard to it, and accepted by faith the one typified." Jesus says Moses wrote of him; and we think this is where he begins to write about him. These are the ideas first given of Christ:

"1. He was to be born of Adam's race;

2. He was to be Seed of the woman and Son of God.

3. He was to be killed;

4. He was to rise from the dead; and

5. He was to destroy the power that killed him. All this is expressed or implied in Gen. iii. 15. It teaches by implication that he was not to be begotten of the impulse of the flesh, nor of the will of man, so that he would be directly Son of woman and indirectly Son of Man."

74. Another Scriptural reference that shows up the true inwardness of Josephitism is, Heb. xiii. 10-13. Verse 10 says, "We" [writer and those addressed] "we have an altar, whereof they have no right to eat, which serve the tabernacle; for the bodies of those beasts whose blood is brought into the sanctuary by the High Priest for sin, are burned without the camp; wherefore JESUS, ALSO, that he might sanctify the people with HIS OWN BLOOD, suffered without the gate; let us go forth therefore unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach."

75. "An altar was a structure of earth, undressed stone or brass on which slain animals were burned; and being whole burnt offerings,—TYPIFIED the destruction of the flesh of the sinner who offered it, by shedding the blood [the life] of the victim.

The permanent altar was of wood overlaid with brass; and when cleansed it was Most Holy; and whatsoever TOUCHED IT WAS HOLY.

"All this pointed to Christ, who was the end of the law; and, as we are informed distinctly in Heb. ix. 9-12, that it was a figure for the time then present.....But Christ being come an High Priest of good things to come not by the blood of goats and calves, but by his own, he entered into the Holy Place," etc. We refer to this to show why they say that not a drop of animal blood shed in the past typified the blood of Christ. Of course both type and antitype have to be rejected together, because the son of a sinner has been selected as the Savior (who also sinned) of some; and the rest have no need of a Savior at all. Do they know that the doom of those who despise the Word is destruction? Prov. xii. 13.

76. The "figure" mentioned in Heb. ix. 9 is explained by what occurred in the life of Christ in the flesh. The particular instructions regarding materials for altars needful of meaning; as also the sanctifying effect on all and everything that touched the altar.

"He was, indeed, the altar OF EARTH, or unhewn stone and in his making, or generation, he was begotten, "not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God."

"And, as has been affirmed, to say that he was begotten by Joseph, is to pollute him."

"To admit his altarship, and at the same time say Joseph was his father, and not God, as stated in Luke i. 30 is to make Joseph the builder of an altar of hewn stone—a polluted altar."

"The Word made flesh was at once the victim, the altar, the priest. He offered himself through the eternal Spirit,—"without spot—holy, harmless, undefiled and separate from sinners."

"The flesh made by the Spirit out of Mary's substance is the Spirit's Anointed Altar, cleansed by the blood of that flesh when poured out unto death on the tree. The flesh was the victim offered,—the sacrifice.

"When the blood which is the soul, or the life was poured out unto death, —the Spirit made his soul an offering for sin (Isa. liii. 10) and by it sanctified the Altar-Body on the tree. It was now an Altar Most Holy, and all that touched it are holy; and without touching it, NONE ARE HOLY."

77. As we are writing for the benefit of our brethren, we are loth to leave this matter of the altar without a reference to Rev. xi. 1,—it says, "And there was given me a reed like unto a rod; and the angel stood, saying, Rise, and measure the temple of God, and the altar, and them that worship therein," etc.

As every child of God ought to be familiar with Eph. ii. 21 where the household of God is represented as growing unto a holy temple in the Lord; in whom, (the apostle says) ye also are builded together for an habitation of God through the Spirit."

They should also be familiar with 1 Cor. ix. 13 where it says, "They which wait at the Altar are partakers with the Altar. These passages should to a great extent, explain Rev. xi. 1 already quoted.

"This is the Altar that decorates the court of the priest in the temple of the Apocalypse. Plainly it is the mystical Christ-Altar, to the horns of which the sacrifice is bound, (Psa. cxviii. 27) the magnitude of this Altar is equal to the ONE BODY of which the Lord Jesus is the head; so that all who are in him wait at the altar, and partake of the altar, because they eat of the sacrifice. The eating of his flesh, and the drinking of his blood is intellectual and spiritual eating and drinking; what we read or hear, and understand, and believe and digest, and assimilate, and grow thereby, Of these Jesus says, they dwell in him, and he in them. John vi. 56.

"When the enlightened believer has gotten into Christ, he is in the altar; and partaking with it. He has touched the Most Holy, and is therefore holy, or a saint.

"The only way to get into the Altar and be a worshiper is by believing the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of the Anointed Jesus; and if he believes these things with a faith that works by love and purifies the heart, and is immersed into the sin-covering name, and in doing this, his love working faith, is counted to him for repentance and remission of sins. In passing through the laver he is inducted into the Altar.

How can we help seeing how far off are they who dispense with the sacrificial death of Christ, which has grown directly out of the rejection of the divine Paternity of Jesus? They scuttle the gospel ship.

78. We now offer what we think to be one more absolute proof that God was the Father of Jesus, and therefore Joseph was not.

John i. 13, is rendered by Greenbach as follows:—"Who was not begotten of blood, or of the will of his flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God." This is also the rendering of one of the most learned Englishmen, Professor Hobbs, who is not fettered by a theological bias.

We are well aware of the numbers who agree with the common rendering. But unfortunately they know little of God's purpose with man and earth, or the nature of man himself. In the nature of things, their faith will influence their translations. With Paul we say, "To us there is ONE GOD, out of whom are all things, and one Lord Jesus Christ." And as the reading of the common version of John i. 1-14 cannot be made to harmonize with Paul's declaration, we will take a commonsense and grammatical view of it.

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. We see

1. God styled himself the First, the Beginning.

2. That he is careful to inform us that there were not two Gods, by saying that the Theos was the Logos,—not some one else, not another. The "Word" is so rendered from Logos, which means "the outward expression, or declaration of the inward thought." And hence we learn that God was both the thinker, or designer, and the revealer of his thoughts; or as Daniel declared him to be, the Elahh in the heavens who revealeth secrets, even the deep and secret things."

3. We learn from Hebrew xi. 3 that "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the Word of God; and this assures us that when the common version says, v. 3, "All things were made BY HIM," it should say, "BY IT," and when it says in v. 4, "In HIM was life,—and the life was the light of men," it should read, "In IT was life," because

It is a strictly defined rule of all [illegible] the same [illegible] Word or declaration [illegible] in this case. To use the masculine pronoun HIM here, is altogether wrong, it being in English, abstract and neuter, in agreement with its antecedent—"Word," or "declaration" and the fact that of the hundreds of places in which the word Logos occurs in the Greek Scriptures, only in this first chapter of John's gospel, and the apostle's explanation of the same in 1 John ii. 13, 14, in which chapter an attempt is made to establish the doctrine of the Trinity by an interpolation have they violated the law of grammar by using the masculine pronoun him, in connection therewith. In all other places the neuter pronoun IT is properly used in relation thereto.

In the 15th verse we read, "John bore witness of him, and cried, saying, "This was he of whom I spake," etc. To whom did John bear witness? V. 14 informs us as follows: "The ONLY BEGOTTEN of the FATHER, full of grace and truth." But why is he called the only begotten of the Father? Ans. This verse begins with the word "And," which connects it with the preceding verse, as if something had happened which resulted in the Word becoming flesh, and the flesh dwelling among them. And that something is described in the 18th verse, "Who was born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God." And God being his Father, explains how he could give power to become sons of God to them that believe on his name. We aver that the context and continuity of thought, and theme, demand that verse 13 should be read in singular relating to Jesus, instead of in the plural, as in the common version.

And we submit that we have proven that the first chapter of John teaches the SAME ORIGIN OF JESUS as the first chapter of Matt. and Luke—twice is he called the only begotten Son of God in this chapter, and once we are told he was not begotten of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but OF GOD.

And once in the 84th verse the Holy Spirit is said to have descended upon Jesus and "remained upon him," and John then testifies, "that this IS the SON OF GOD."

The Ohio Conferences.

Leaving home at 5:40 the evening of Sept. 2, the Editor and his wife arrived at Salem, where the Ohio State Conference was held, in time for breakfast the next morning. Having visited them last year, we met many whose faces had become familiar to us. This year the attendance was larger, and we made many new acquaintances. All of the warm hearted, earnest, studious kind of brethren and sisters, well versed in the Scriptures, and able to defend the gospel anywhere.

We shall not attempt a report of the meeting, as the secretary will supply that, and will say that the speakers were listened to with good attention, as they pointed the way to eternal life.

The young people of the Berean Society had a programme for Sunday afternoon, and we will give our readers a number of papers that were read, and all may be able to judge of the work they are capable of doing. They are live, energetic students, earnest workers, and a continuance in this course cannot fail to bring good results. Bro. Geo. Neill preached a sermon that will do credit to any of the older brethren, and the Ohio Conference should see that every opportunity is taken to encourage the brother to continue such work.

The Conference appointed Brother and Sister P. Neill evangelists for the State, and as they are both well qualified for the work, we may with good reason look for lasting results the coming year.

We returned home Sunday night, having enjoyed to the full the fellowship of the kind brethren of Ohio, and trust to have some of them visit us ere long, when we can return their hospitality.

This trip was made over the lines of the Pennsylvania Railroad; and for the uniform courtesy of officials and employers, who made our going and coming pleasant, we can commend this system of road to our friends everywhere.

An Appeal.

Brethren, brethren, listen! Are you making all preparation to attend the fall gathering of the "children of God?" Did you know they were preparing for a family re-union at Coats Grove? They are expecting many relatives at that time there, and will be to[illegible] and mine [illegible] fests, fo[illegible] very near relatives, [illegible] and [illegible] ters of those making ready the heavenly feast, sons and daughters of one common Father who will watch whether his children are true to his interests as well as their own. These opportunities are not to be repeated many times for some of us, and then what will all this saving, scrimping, toiling for the bread which perisheth amount to? A worse than wasted life, for it will be lost opportunities, a settled account in which there is no place to right any wrongs, or make good any sins of omission, or commission, eternal life missed, no "well done" heard. Come dear ones of precious Abrahamic faith, leave the sordid cares of life behind and listen to Bro. Zilmer's glowing accounts of "King Emmanuel and the celestial city," which none can afford to loose, and if Bro. Chase is present, and can give us just one sermon it will pay any one for time and money spent in attending the meeting. Brethren, this meeting has been appointed at Coat's Grove expressly for the brethren in eastern and southern Michigan, and it will be too bad for any of you to trump up some excuse to stay at home, when the friends there are working hard preparing for all who may come. Remember all coming from South of Kalamazoo take the C. K. & S. road from Kalamazoo (if it has not changed its name again) directly to Coat's Grove, via Hastings. May we meet you there.

Conference Report.

Those of our faith in Illinois have certainly had opportunity to enjoy a generous slice of good things this year at Oregon, our place of regular annual meeting.

First came the Bible Institute, beginning on Monday, Aug. 15, and lasting till the opening of Conference on the 24th. Under the management of our State Evangelist, S. J. Lindsay, this Institute is growing both in interest and attendance. No pains is spared to make it of practical benefit to lovers of the Word of God, as well as a spiritual uplift. We trust that as the years pass on this work may grow to great proportions as its helpfulness is more and more realized, especially by those younger in the faith, though it is by no means for these alone, the work being of a nature that it is most instructive and helpful to old or young alike. Let every one who can do so, begin now, to plan to come next year.

On Wednesday evening, Aug. 24, was the opening meeting of the annual Conference, the program being carried through as announced with scarcely a change, a thing which occurs but rarely as programs go.

The general topic was, "The Coming of our Lord Jesus Christ;" each sermon being devoted to a different phase of the subject, a connected thought of God's great plan being thus carried through the entire program. The sermons given were:

"The assurance of his coming." Mary A. Woodward. "What was the purpose of our Lord's first coming?" L. E. Conner. "His coming and mission. The redemption of the world." B. W. Woodward. "The mission of Christ to Israel. The unfolding of God's great plan for his ancient people." S. J. Lindsay. "When will Christ come?" Jas. W. Wilson. "His mission to his people. Heb. ix. 28. What is the salvation he brings with him?" Mary A. Woodward. "The Coming of Christ to his people. To raise the dead. Rev. xx. 6." L. E. Conner. "Behold I come quickly. Rev. xxii. 12. What is the reward the Lord brings with him?" S. J. Lindsay. "The mission of Christ as King. His kingdom." L. E. Conner. "The Coming of Christ. What shall we do to share in his glory?" B. W. Woodward.

The Question Box discussions were helpful and interesting, and the usual good social meetings were held by the Bereans.

At the business session the money and pledges raised for our work for the coming year caused a general feeling of thankfulness, but we believe there is yet more to follow; that we are only just beginning to learn to give as God would have us, and we are expecting greater things to be made possible in the carrying on of the Kings business in a future not distant.

On Sunday morning of our Conference session four were obedient in baptism, and one more on the [illegible] nesday following, making five [illegible] soon to [illegible] this [illegible] conference we ever have [illegible] it be time to close so soon?" "We will plan for next year, unless the Master should come." These were some of the expressions heard here and there as the farewell hand shakes were given, and the "Good byes" were said. Next to the love of God, there is no helping and sustaining power like to the loyal and holy "fellowship one with another," of true believers as "the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanses from all sin." This is found in its purity only when God's people are one with each other, and with God, in full consecration to his work of love for mankind. May this spirit grow and spread among us in the months before us, as we each work faithfully in our own small corners—or large ones, till we meet again in 1905.

EMMA L. SMITH, Sec'y.

The 17th Annual Conference of the Churches of God, held at Waterloo, Iowa, Aug. 19–28, 1904, commenced Saturday morning with good attendance.

That we adopt Brother Eychaner's motion regarding year book which is as follows: Believing that the publication of the condition of our state conference as regards statistics of the churches, officers and membership, in connection with other states will be a step in advance, and for the good of the cause of Christ, I move that the Iowa State Conference furnish Brother Eychaner with a general statement of our position in relation to our faith and practice, together with such statistics of membership as we deem advisable for the year book spoken of in his letter, and that we contribute our part toward its publication.

That Conference adopt articles of faith as follows: The Church of God of the State of Iowa advocates—The final restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began. As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with Christ as King of kings, and the immortalized saints as joints-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essentials for final salvation.

That Conference board grant ministerial certificates to H M Lucas, John Garton, A J Eychaner, G E Marsh, O J Allard, P B Stouffer, W L Crowe, Almus Adams and E Hawley.

That conference grant permission to members of the Church of God to build cottages at Camp Ground.

Pray.

If you never prayed before, pray!
Truth, hath need of prayers today—
Satan's minions crowd the way.
Pray! Pray!

Faint at sight of rushing tide,
Coward feet quick turn aside,
Loathe, with Jesus to abide.
Pray! Pray!

Leaders bend to siren hand,
Go at touch of golden wand,
Sell for pottage all the land.
Pray! Pray!

Many too, for tinseled toys,
Epaulets, and base alloys,
Trade the future's fadeless joys.
Pray! Pray!

Hear you not the Savior's call,
"Sources are not alike for all;
Watch and pray, lest ye thus fall!"
Pray! Pray!

"Cut away from living root,
Voice and life alike are mute,
Withered branch can bear no fruit."
Pray! Pray!

Budding flower lifts her head,
Eastern skies aglow with red,
Broken true what prophets said.
Pray! Pray!

Our redemption now is nigh,
Lift, oh lift the expectancy,
"Let the day-star dawn on high!"
Pray! Pray!

Religious Infidelity.

"The church like all human institutions is full of imperfections; it professes nothing else." The above was gleaned from a sermon delivered by Dr. Gladden, pastor of the First Congregational church of Columbus, O. The Doctor is a scholarly man and stands very high in church circles. In fact he has a national reputation. The church a human institution! If so how can we expect salvation from it. To me this is a very strange statement for a Bible student to make. A human institution is established by human agencies and has for its foundation a human structure. Was the church of Christ founded by human agencies? Let us see. The word church as used in the New Testament is derived from the Greek word "ecclesia" and means "called out." When Jesus began his ministry he called out twelve apostles whom he taught the mysteries of the kingdom of God. At one time as Christ and his apostles were nearing Jerusalem he asked them two questions, viz, (1) Whom do men say that I the Son of Man am? (2) Whom say ye that I am? The answer to these two questions illustrates the position held by the socalled Christian world and those who accept the truth as found in God's Word concerning his Son, the Christ. The answer to the first was of human origin and is as follows. Some say that thou art John the Baptist, some Elias, and others Jeremias, or one of the prophets. The religious world today do not agree as to whom the Christ was. Some say, God the Creator of all things, others the son of Joseph, again a very good man. But the answer to the second question came clear and strong, "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." No difference among the apostles as to this truth. The answer to the first question was passed with no comments but the second had the approval of Christ and he pronounced a blessing upon Peter for his confession. Note it please, "And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Barjona; for flesh and blood hath not revealed this unto thee, but my Father which art in heaven." Flesh and blood must have revealed the first answer, which was, I think, human knowledge. But the second answer came from God the Father and was divine knowledge. Now upon this truth will I build my church, said Christ, and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it. I am willing to admit that the sects have built upon human knowledge and therefore are human institutions and full of imperfections, not so the church of Christ. It is founded upon a rock and will prevail. If you wish eternal life when the Christ comes you must attach yourself to this church, built upon the rock herein spoken of. Paul in 1 Cor. viii. 6, says, But to us (those attached to the one body,) there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things and we in him (for him); and one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things, and we by him. This Scripture connects us to Christ. It admits of but one meaning, the unity of faith as we find it in the gospel. In Col. i. 18, Paul declares he (Christ) is the head of the body, the church. Can we have a human institution with the divine Christ as its head? We think not.

Again, you are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone. Eph. ii. 20. Other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ. When Jesus sent his apostles out he instructed them as to what they should preach and gave them the Holy Spirit which was to aid them in their labors. Human beings under the Holy Spirit would surely bring forth more than human results. It was not the apostles that spoke but the Holy Spirit through them. There is but one body of which Christ is the head and this one body is also called the church. Now this one body can have but one spirit which animates it.

James says the body without the spirit is dead, so is every body. The life of the one body is the Spirit of Christ. Paul wrote, "If any man have not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." As many as are led by the Spirit of God are the sons of God." These statements are true and to my mind very plain. But how do we get this Spirit? Some say God pours it out upon individuals who ask for it. Was this the way it was given to the apostles and disciples in the beginning as recorded by Luke. Let us see. And when the day of Pentecost was fully come, they (the apostles and disciples) were all with one accord in one place. And suddenly there came a sound from heaven as a rushing mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them cloven tongues like as of fire, and it sat upon each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit and began to speak with tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance. Acts ii. 1-4. This pouring out of the Spirit was promised previous to this event and its purpose was explained. Acts i. 4, 5, Commanded them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but wait for the promise of the Father, which saith he, ye have heard. For John truly baptized with water; but ye shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit not many days hence. When the Spirit came upon them they were to receive power and ye shall be witnesses unto me. From that day until the present the Holy Spirit has never been absent from this one body of the church. Divisions have arisen in the church but God has never been [redacted] enough to make each individual a member of the one body, so was the one baptism enough for the church. God poured out his Spirit upon the church on Pentecost and has never repeated it except at the house of Cornelius. The Spirit was given to the apostles to guide them in the truth. John xiv. He (the Comforter) shall teach you all things, and bring all things to your remembrance whatsoever I have said unto you. I will pray the Father, and he shall give you another Comforter, that he may abide with you forever. Even the Spirit of truth whom the world cannot receive because it seeth him not, neither knoweth him; but ye know him; for he dwelleth with you and shall be in you. This Spirit was deposited with the church at Pentecost and whosoever gets it must first become a member of the one body. I wish here to quote from Bro. Zilmer's tract on the "One Body and the One Spirit." When this body is edified (built up) by the addition of new material, each particle of new matter that is so introduced, by virtue of its coming into the body, necessarily partakes of the new life that was originally in the body. Just as with the living child each particle of nourishment assimilated becomes part of the person, and partakes of the same life. The Spirit at all times has been the life of the church. Therefore it is not required at this time to either ask or expect the Lord to send down the Holy Spirit from heaven upon any one. Let this be borne strictly in mind. I cannot doubt that Jesus fulfilled his promise that the Spirit was to abide with the church "to the age" in which we are now living; and he who truly apprehends the meaning of the gospel, and renders intelligent and hearty "obedience to the faith" (Rom. i. 5) drinks in, is led by, walks in, and brings forth the fruits of that Spirit. Thus for the collective body of believers there is and can be but one baptism, which is the baptism in Holy Spirit; and for the individual there is but one baptism in water." Christ in his teaching admonishes us to "take heed what ye hear." Mark iv. 24. And take heed how ye hear. Luke viii. 18. Beloved believe not every spirit, but try the spirits, whether they are of God; because many false prophets are gone out into the world. 1 John iv. 1. With these admonitions should we not study very carefully the record God has given of his Son that we may be able to discern the one body and become a member of the same that when the Anointed shall come we may be found able to stand and be among those who will ever remain with the Lord. Let us so labor that an entrance shall be ministered unto us abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

The Millennium. Rev. xx.

Is it in the past? Or is it in the future? For a number of years this question has been in dispute among Adventist writers. They are not agreed. Some holding the opinion that the vision of this 20th chapter relates to a period of time now in the past; while others hold the opinion that it relates to a period yet future, the beginning and ending of which is to be marked by literal resurrections. The question, it seems at present, is to be re-discussed in tracts advocating the respective theories. The first writer giving notice of his intention to put out a tract on the subject calls for proof on the opposite side in the following words: "I now request any who have positive proof that the one thousand years are in the past to please send me the evidence. I will thank them and confess and give up the book. I can find inferences without your aid." The other writer of the proposed book makes a similar request for any one who has positive proof that the thousand are in the future to send to him the evidence. On the receipt of such kind of proof he will confess and give up the book. He wants positive proof of the beginning and ending of that period. He does not want inference. Just what these writers regard as positive proof neither of them say. From what the gentleman holding the view that the thousand years are in the past, says, I may judge that he does not regard the language of this 20th chapter in the light of "positive proof." Just what these writers regard as positive proof neither of them say. From what the gentleman holding the view that the thousand years are in the past, says, I may judge that he does not regard the language of this 20th chapter in the light of "positive proof." He asks, What about this millennium any way? It is in Revelations twentieth chapter, a book that is universally acknowledged to be both symbolic and prophetical. How [illegible] says, I have proceeded to think we can [illegible] positively [illegible] chronological sequence by the way [illegible] into the mold of history. We will see how he will make this vision fit into the mold of past history. Can he do more than what has been done by equally able writers on his side of the question in former discussions? Which discussions I read and found them by no means convincing to me, an age to come believer. We will see how he will dispose of the many things in this vision. There are several things to be fitted into the "historical mold," that will give him vastly more trouble than age to come believers find in assigning to the prophecy a future accomplishment. The object in view by this class of writers in seeking for a past fulfilment is to dispose of one troublesome proof of the existence of nations in the flesh after the epoch of the Lord's second coming. The following points confront the expositor whatever view he may hold:

1. The binding of Satan by the angel to prevent his deceiving of the nations for the space of a thousand years.

2. A resurrection of a part of the dead, on whom a blessing is pronounced.

3. The statement that the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years should be finished.

4. The reign of a thousand years with Christ, of those specially favored.

5. The loosing of Satan at the expiration of the thousand years of confinement.

6. His deception of the nations after his liberation.

7. The destruction of the deceived host by fire from heaven.

8. The casting of the arch deceiver into the lake of fire and brimstone.

9. The final resurrection of the dead; their judgment and doom.

I shall not attempt an exposition of all these points, but shall endeavor to show the literality of some of the events predicted or foreshown in the vision, and shall begin with the resurrection. That a literal resurrection, and not a metaphorical one, is foreshown here is evident from the fact that the subjects of it or at least a part were beheaded; that they were such as refused to pay homage to the beast and his image. This brings before us the martyr ages, which in fact cover the very period which some writers claim is the thousand years of this 20th chapter vision. But be it particularly noticed that this resurrection is subsequent to the long period of martyrdom; subsequent to the cruel reign of the power denoted by the beast. The persecution cannot be the same with the period of the reigning with Christ. "If we suffer we shall also reign with him." 2 Titus ii. 12. This is the divine order. It is affirmed of these martyred ones and heroes of the faith that they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. There was a time when they did not live. The beginning of their living and reigning was their resurrection; hence the explanatory sentence "This is the first resurrection." This bars out the metaphorical notion. Seeing then that a literal resurrection marks the beginning of the thousand years, it is impossible to fix upon a past fulfilment of the prophecy. Age to come advocates can not be frightened by the fact that the book of Revelation is largely symbolical, for all expositors, whatever may be their views must face this fact, and seek to interpret the book according to the laws of symbols. All things considered, I think the expositor who assigns to this prophecy a future fulfillment has vastly the advantage over the one who seeks to fit it into the mold of past history.

The resurrections of this chapter as seen in the vision are the symbols of two resurrections which are to take place in the future as God unfolds his plan in its progressive stages. In symbolization the verbs are in the past tense. The 4th verse reads, And I saw thrones, and they sat upon them, and judgment was given unto them; and I saw the souls (persons Murdock's Syriac translation) of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, and for the Word of God, and which had not worshiped the beast, neither his image, neither had received his mark upon their foreheads or in their hands, and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. And so in reference to the second resurrection the verbs are in the past tense. The Revelator tells us what he saw in vision, and what he saw represented was what would take place future to the time of the vision. Here the fitting and appropriate symbols of the two resurrections are two resurrections in miniature seen in vision by the prophet. The [illegible] are of the same order or kind [illegible] gs symbolized. The names of these symbols as in all symbolizations in the Scriptures, are their literal and proper names. It is not unreasonable to say that these martyred saints are the subjects of a literal resurrection; and that they in person proper live and reign with their risen Lord, through the thousand years. In other passages where the language is literal a resurrection is taught and just as plainly affirmed that the saints are to reign with Christ and have power over the nations. This view is consistent and Scriptural. The theory that puts the thousand years in the past, though admitting the literality of the martyrdoms, that believers were really put to death in the manner described, must affirm the reigning with Christ to be that of the successive living generations of the church as each comes on the stage; that while some are put to death there are the living representatives of the faith who reign. It is said the church never dies. If those who are put to death are not the ones who reign, then the resurrection is not literal, and there must be something found in the history of the past of which the resurrection, as seen in the vision, is the symbol. What is there in the history of the church during the thousand years as between A. D. 530 and A. D. 1530 where these writers, who hold to a past fulfilment have placed the period, that looks like even a metaphorical resurrection? It surely is a task of great difficulty to select one event of those bloody centuries that could be fittingly styled by figure of speech a resurrection; and equally difficult to find any thing in the condition of the church that could bear the least semblance to a reign with Christ during that period of unparalleled suffering. It is suffering first and afterward the reigning. This is the order as stated by Paul. If that first resurrection of John's vision is metaphorical so must be the resurrection of that other class of which it is affirmed "They lived not again until the thousand years are finished." This would only multiply the perplexities of the bewildered expositors. But why confuse things to sustain the theory of a past fulfilment? The language is symbolical and not metaphorical. The dead here are literally dead—having been beheaded for their testimony of Jesus and their adherence to the Word of God. Being literally dead the resurrection affirmed of them is as literal. Notice, it is the resurrection of these martyred confessors; and of these same martyred ones it is affirmed that they reigned with Christ a thousand years. Neither the resurrection nor the reigning is affirmed of successive living generations of the church during that fancied millennium of the past. Why fix upon a thousand years between the fore-mentioned dates. The whole of such a period was one of bearing testimony and of suffering in consequence. John's thousand years succeeds the ages of martyrdom—the resurrection of martyrs dating their beginning.

Obituary.

Grace Hobbs-Miller was born at Argos, Ind., Nov. 16, 1884, and died at same place Aug. 24, 1904.

Quiet and peaceful was the short life of our Sister. Baptized into Christ Jan. 20, 1900, she was ever after a most faithful worker and helper in that cause which had thus helped her. She graduated from the home high school in 1903, and united with Lloyd B. Miller in marriage June 21, of same year.

Sad indeed was that full-house congregation which gathered in the morning of Aug. 26, drawn by the influence of that gentle character which had touched them all, but which now was hushed in death. The large amount of flowers, in tender memory, though it could not lighten the sorrows of husband, parents, sister, brother, and infant son, yet it did say that others, too, loved her, and mourn her.

But an heavenly voice is wafted to the ears of her bereaved ones, Christians all. It is the voice of our God, re-inforced by that of our Savior Lord. In tones more sweet and accent more assuring it sounds God's love for those who serve him. Not with roses sweet and waxen lilies has this love been demonstrated, but with the ever comforting fact that "God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him should not perish, but should have everlasting life," and the promise, "Because I live ye shall live also." This last, which hope inscribes across the lid of every Christian casket, and re-writes upon the crest of their every grave mound, is that which our bereaved brothers and sisters have as an anchor to their sorrow-tossed souls. May the anchor rope, faith in our God, ever be so strong and true in them as to bring them to a realization of the joy of that hope fulfilled, is the prayer of one who also mourns.

Time Rights Things.

Many ills and wrongs of this world are cured by time. Have patience and changes will come. The man who today stands on high and works evil, tomorrow is dead and gone and forgotten. The combinations which at the present time are the terror of good and honest men, and tend to hinder the rule of truth, and righteousness, and justice, will, in due time be broken up and scattered to the winds. Wrong in its nature is not abiding; right lives, and the great day will show that the barriers which seemed to be insurmountable, soon melt away, vanish, and are utterly forgotten.

Be patient, hold fast the right, bear testimony, do not be disheartened, nor faint in the day of adversity, maintain your integrity, and never be discouraged. If your life is hid with Christ you need not fear them that kill the body. If you serve God you will outlive a thousand troubles; you will outlive lies and liars, and when your persecutors are dead, and buried, and forgotten, you may yet fulfill your work and serve your generation by the will of God, and hear at last the Master's word "Well done!"—*H. The third Annual Conference of the Church of God in Southern Illinois will be held at Moriah, Clark Co., Illinois, beginning October 1st, and continuing until October 10th, 1904. We have implored Bro. O. J. Allard, Iowa, and Bro. A. H. Zilmer of Plymouth, Ind., and Bro. S. T. Hook of Ind., and perhaps other speakers will be here to preach the glad tidings of the soon coming kingdom. Thus far our Conferences have proved a feast of good things and we trust that this one will be no exception. We hope to have faithful attendance from home brothers and sisters and friends, and cordially invite all from other societies who can possibly come, and may the isolated ones grasp this rare opportunity of meeting with their co-workers. We will arrange the program from day to day as we go along. We invite the Bereans all to come that can, for we will give you as much time as you will want to occupy. Please let all that come by railroad write Bro. Z. E. Brant of Moriah, Ill., what date you will come to the Conference and he will meet you at Casey, Ill., and take you to the Conference. May the Lord not withhold his blessing from us at that time.

MISS. AMY V. WEAVER, Sec.

At the home of the bride in Chicago, Sept. 1, 1904, Mr. Chas. F. Gesin, of Forreston, Ill., and Miss Mary Anisken, of Chicago. These young people start out in life possessed of a rare fortune. They are rich in that they have been reared in Christian homes and under Christian influences. They start out in life together with their names written upon the book of life, which is the dearest inheritance to which any one may look forward. They will make their home upon the farm near Forreston. May this home be blessed of God and may these dear young people never depart from that narrow path in which they have placed their feet.

The Unknown Martyr.

It stood in the long gallery—
A picture of a maid
Crowned with a simple wreath of flowers,
In quaint old dress arrayed.

"The Unknown Martyr," it was called,
For, as tradition told,
The maiden died for Jesus' sake
In the dark days of old.

Holding the faith she knew was right,
Aye, even to the end.
Her very name was blotted out
By father, mother, friend.

Yet still her portrait hung in place
In the old gallery,
And lo! the lesson of her life
Was there for all to see.

For centuries those true brave eyes,
Taught every passer by,
For the dear Christ who died for us
How best to live or die.

"The Unknown Martyr," called they her:
Here is undying fame
As long as lasts this world of ours;
And Jesus knows her name.

OUR TODAYS AND YESTERDAYS.

Like the tree that owes the strength and symetry of its upper limbs, and the exuberance and beauty of its foliage to the healthful condition of the main trunk, and all are dependent on the care and nourishment of the tree from its earliest youth until maturity; so are the todays of our lives influenced by the accomplishments and acquisitions of our yesterdays. "Unless a tree has borne its blossoms in the spring," says the eminent Bishop Hare, "you will vainly look for fruit on it in the fall."

A disposition to do what is right, and a firm and steadfast resolution to overcome all obstacles that stand in the way of success, is the sap which nourishes, strengthens, and fills us as trees destined to bring forth useful fruit. Christian charity and a close adherence to honesty and virtue are the blossoms which brighten our lives and make the todays thereof pleasant to review.

As a gardener with his pruning knife trims off the crooked and unnecessary branches which are harmful to the tree, although it may seem at the present time to detract from its beauty; yet it is the only possible means by which he may in time pluck from its branches the ripened fruit. So we by self denial cut off, as it were, the crooked ways and unnecessary desires which are harmful to us as young trees, and although it apparently robs us of some present enjoyment, it will repay us with an abundant harvest in autumn.

The useful tree, besides supplying us with wholesome fruit for our nourishment, furnishes us with tools and instruments with which to carry on our labors. It provides us with implements for pursuing every vocation in life. The productions we obtain from the use of these tools that are placed in our hands today, be they good or bad, are the results of the improvement or neglect of the opportunities and advantages of yesterday. Sincerity and fortitude are the noblest instruments with which we can equip ourselves in undertaking the architecture of our own fortunes.

We must form the pillars which are in time to support that structure—Christian character. But what may we have for a foundation upon which the pillars may rest? Shall we build it of crumbling mortar or on drifting sand? No, let us take truth, that infallible rock which has stood throughout the decay of ages, and build on it for it will never fall.

Our todays, the material given us for building, are brought to us one by one, and although they are in the rough, yet, if we choose we may polish and work upon them until they shine like the purest marble; and as the todays pass into yesterdays they are placed one upon another, until at length we see the result of our workmanship, although not a sound of a hammer was heard.

How often in youth we think there are plenty more and better todays coming, with which we may build, and so let them go for a mere existence. Yes, how cheaply we would sell one. Oh, how low we do fix their value, but with each succeeding year the price increases, and never does man fully realize the true value of these precious jewels until his stock of them becomes almost exhausted. It is then we turn and look backward and as we view life's structure, we see here and there a stone of a dark hue, having had little work put upon it.

Then perhaps some weak place may be discerned caused by a missing stone. Ah, where is the day to fill that place? It has been lost, somewhere between the sunrise and sunset of our lives, but can never be replaced, for night has come upon us and our work is done. It is then we fully realize the old familiar saying

For the structure that we raise
Time is with material filled:
Our todays and yesterdays
Are the blocks with which we build.

Oh then, fellow students, let us as Bereans, so improve our todays that when for eternity we shall look back upon them as yesterdays, we shall have no vain regrets.

ELVA G. CHAPIN.

FAITH AND OBEDIENCE.

When we have read the first sixteen chapters of Kings which tell the melancholy story of the rapid spread and universal prevalence of idolatry in the favored land of the Ten Tribes, we might think that the worship of Jehovah would never again acquire its lost prestige and power. But when God begins to work he is likely to reverse all things that have been done without him, and write some pages of human history that will be a lesson and inspiration to all coming time.

After the death of Solomon, the kingdom was divided into two parts—the southern under Rehoboam, his son, the northern under Jeroboam, who had superintended the vast public works.

Jeroboam was eager to keep his hold on the people, but he feared to lose it if he continued to go two or three times in the year to the annual feasts at Jerusalem. He therefore erected two temples, one at Dan in the extreme north, the other at Bethel, in the extreme south. In each he placed a golden calf for the people of Israel to worship.

This sin broke the second commandment, which forbade the children of Israel to worship any graven image.

After many revolutions and much bloodshed, the kingdom passed into the hands of a military adventurer, Omri. After his death his son Ahab reigned, of whom it is said "He did more to provoke the Lord God of Israel to anger than all the kings of Israel before him." This was not because his character was more depraved, but because he was a weak man, and influenced by a cruel and unscrupulous woman.

When the young and beautiful Jezebel left the ceiled palaces of Tyre to become the consort of the newly crowned king of Israel, it was no doubt regarded as a splendid match. But like many a splendid match, it was fraught with misery and disaster. No one can disobey God's plain words against intermarriage with the ungodly without suffering for it at last. As she left her palace home, Jezebel would be influenced by the priests under whose influence she had been trained, to introduce into Israel the hideous and cruel religion of her people. Nor was she slow to obey. A temple for Baal was built in Samaria large enough to contain immense crowds of worshippers. Temples then began to rise in all parts, and the altars of Jehovah were broken down. The fires of persecution were built and began to burn with fury. The schools of the prophets were closed, and the prophets themselves hunted and slain.

Obediah succeeded in saving some by hiding them in the lime caves of Carmel, and feeding them at the risk of his own life. Of all the thousands of Israel only seven thousand remained who had not bowed the knee to Baal.

Such times have often come fraught with misery and woe, false religions have gained the upper hand, and iniquity abounded. So it was when the Turks swept over the Christian communities of Asia Minor, and replaced the cross by the crescent. Let us be prepared to meet the difficulties should such a calamity occur again.

But God always has a way. The land may be overrun with sin and everything run counter to his truth, but all the time he will be preparing a weak man in some obscure highland village, and in the hour of greatest need send him forth against his foes.

Elijah was an inhabitant of Gilead. This country was wild and rugged, its hills were covered with shaggy forests, its valleys and mountains the haunts of fierce wild beasts. The inhabitants of Gilead partook of the character of the country, wild, lawless and unkept.

Elijah grew up like all of the other lads, and as he grew to manhood his erect figure, shaggy locks, his cloak of camel's hair, and his muscular strength, distinguished him from those in lowland valleys. But we must not consider these as the secret of his strength. There were probably many as swift and strong as he. What was the secret of his strength? This splendid life was lived by sources of strength which are within reach of every child of God. Faith made him all he became, and faith will do as much for us, if only we can exercise it as he did.

As he grew in years he became characterized by his intense religious earnestness. When he found into what ways the children of Israel were drifting, he must do something, and prayed for a famine, that through suffering they might be brought to turn again to God. This seems a terrible prayer, but not more terrible than for the people to forget their God, and God in his love will inflict suffering as a result the sin may be cut off. This may be the reason for so much sorrow in our lives.

It was then Elijah's duty to go and warn Ahab. We will notice that in addressing Ahab he said, "As the Lord God liveth, before whom I stand." Although he was in the presence of Ahab, he was conscious of the presence of a greater than an earthly monarch. Let us cultivate this habitual recognition of the presence of God; it will lift us far above all other fear.

During this famine God took care of Elijah. He first received the message to go to Cherith. If he had asked what would be the outcome, and then waited for a reply, he might never have gone. God only shows us one step at a time, and bids us take it in faith, and we should step forward when we have some duty to perform and trust God to prepare a stepping-stone for the next. We will not receive our messages in the same way, but through the word of God, or by some impression of a sense of duty.

We next find Elijah at Zerapath sustained by the widow. Elijah, the widow and her son lived on their daily replenished store; but the prophet had other meat that they knew not of. "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." It was on that word he fed during those long and slow moving days.

There is no book that will so repay time spent in its reading as the Word of God. If then we neglect the study of Scripture, we cut ourselves off from the very vehicle through which God's Spirit enters human lives. This is the great fault of our times. Christian people will attend conventions, read many good books about Christian living, but give the Bible itself little heed. This is the reason it does not speak to them. We talk about the man of letters, the man of honor, the man of mark, but how much better to be known as the man of God.

We find the power of a holy man illustrated by Elijah on Mount Carmel. We are all familiar with this story of how Elijah called all of the people of Israel together and proposed that an altar be made, and each offer a sacrifice. Then each should call upon his God, and the one that answered by fire should be God.

When we can so lose ourselves in prayer as to forget our own personal interests, and to plead for the glory of God, we may hope to win anything from him. When the fire came down and consumed the sacrifice, and even licked up the water, it proved the power of God, and the people uttered "The Lord he is the God, the Lord he is the God."

The prophets of Baal were put to death, and Elijah's prayer was needed once more. He went up to the top of the mountain, and with his head between his knees prayed and waited for the rain.

Thus by faith and prayer he brought back rain to Israel. Why should we not practice this secret? Then we too might bring from heaven spiritual blessings. Only once did Elijah fail in his duty, when Jezebel's message came, "So let the gods do to me, and more also, if I make not thy life as one of them by tomorrow about this time."

Elijah's presence had never been so necessary as now. The tide had turned and was setting in toward God, and he was needed to direct its flow. We should have expected that he would receive the message with unruffled composure, but he arose and went for his life. Through the weary hours he plodded until anguish and fatigue overpowered him; when he lay down under a juniper tree, and like many a disheartened transgressor asked to die.

Although God censured him yet in his mercy he loved and cared for him until the old heroic faith returned. But God never reinstated him in just the position he threw away.

At last we reach one of the sublimest scenes of Old Testament history—Elijah's translation. We should be glad to learn the most minute particulars concerning it, but the historian contents himself with the simplest statement. "And it came to pass as they still went on and talked that behold, there appeared a chariot of fire, and horses of fire, and parted them both asunder; and Elijah went up by a whirlwind into heaven."

His life has been called a "One man ministry," and there is much to warrant the description. This man was as Elisha exclaimed "The chariot of Israel, and the horseman thereof."

Although he knew he was to depart he resolved to say nothing of it, and even tried to persuade Elisha from accompanying him. This may be a rebuke for ourselves, when we remember how eager we are to tell of what we are doing for the Lord. One of the commands that every servant of God should remember was given by God to Moses when he said, "See that thou make all things according to the pattern showed thee on the mount."

Would that we might be content to wait for God to unveil his plan, so that our life might be simply the working out of His thought. Let this be our cry, "Lord, show me thy way; teach me to do thy will. Show me the way wherein I should walk, for unto thee do I lift up my soul."

MISS BESSIE HOLLWAY.

OUR PRIVILEGES & RESPONSIBILITIES.

We have the great privilege of living in the most important period in the world's history, one teeming with great events, which follow each other in rapid succession, great prophecies being rapidly fulfilled, nation rising against nation, earthquakes in divers places, great pestilences, horrible accidents, men's hearts failing them for fear. Students of history, prophecy and political economy all agree the time is at hand for an important change in the world's history, and that is sure to take place in the near future. But all do not agree as to what kind of a change this will be, or by whom brought about. We as Bible students, believe that God will bring about this change as the culmination to his great plan, and will use men and women here on the earth to bring it about, these positions to be given to those who are prepared to fully comply with God's law and work in accordance with his great purpose. It is our privilege and responsibility as young people to prepare ourselves now that we may be ready when the call comes for workers.

If God had created man an irresponsible person powerless to do anything but right, and placed him on the earth with everything good, would he have enjoyed to the greatest extent this happiness? would he have developed the greatest resources the earth offered, and brought out year after year, new beauties to show the manifest greatness of an all-wise Creator? We would have been a mere automaton, a machine lower than the animals, instead of the image of God and sharing with him the creative and reasoning faculties.

What I wish to point out to the young people is, 1st, that man is the highest type of God's creative power, endowed with many of God's own attributes, and that God intended he should use them to help build up and perfect the universe he had created. What a grand privilege to share with God to be co-workers with him in his great plan. Ever since the creation God has been holding out to mankind this prize of the high calling, and Paul tells us in Phil. iii. 13, 14, 15,—and note what he says, "as many as be perfect be thus minded," for none attain unto this prize until we are perfect.

God's plan for the entire universe is perfection and nothing short of that in the most extreme sense will be permitted when his great plan is fully worked out. Gen. xvii. 1, 2, 7, 8.

Adam was given the choice of being obedient and enjoying the power, position, prosperity and plenty free from all the ills of life and all that goes to make this life so unhappy; but he chose the alternative of disobedience, with its punishment of sorrow, loss of position and a life of misery and at last death. We as the descendants of Adam would suffer the same penalty if God in his infinite mercy had not provided One, whom through obedience became perfect and suffered death, in his blood washing away our past sins and the curse of Adam's transgression and making us a free personality with the same choice Adam had.

God continued to look for perfect men to do his will and we will notice as we read and study the lives of the holy men of old, that just in the proportion of their obedience and faith in that ratio was their reward. Noah was blessed as long as he lived a holy life, but he was punished for drunkenness. Abraham through whom God promised to bless all nations of the earth, was punished for his transgressions. Moses was not permitted to enter the promised land because he disobeyed when he took honor to himself that belonged to God, and we could mention many others to show that no matter how good we may be, or how many good deeds we do, we will be punished for our disobedience just the same.

But all the time God is carrying out his plans and using men to assist him and it is our privilege to become one of these workers if we will.

God created all things for a great purpose and when we find what that purpose is and realize how great our part is in carrying out his plans then our life work will commence. Then, and only then can we realize our great privilege in being permitted to share with him the responsibilities of bringing about the consummation of his great purpose.

Where and how can we find what this great plan is but in God's message to man through the prophets and in the history of his chosen nation?

We as young people, as Bereans, and as professed followers of our blessed Master should "study to show ourselves approved, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth;" for it is only through a thorough knowledge of God's laws and the statements that show plainly and clearly what his plan is that will enable us to go about our work with that assurance that we are doing right and with that confidence in the ultimate outcome that will insure us success. You would not expect to become a first class lawyer, doctor or other professional man without thorough preparation, and how much greater should be our aim to study God's Holy Word and understand his laws when on it depends not only our own future happiness and immortality, but the privilege of being the means of bringing, we hope, many others to share with us in the inexhaustible riches of his kingdom, that will be given to us through his grace, by obedience to his will. We cannot be one of God's chosen workers until we have been through his school of trial, obedience and faith and been thoroughly prepared to take up our duties as co-workers with him.

God's attitude toward mankind may be likened to a great business house looking for men to take charge of its different departments. Do they take inexperienced, unprepared, incompetent men to fill these places of trust and responsibility, or do they require the applicant to give some evidence of their special features for the place they desire to fill.

God has greater positions of trust and responsibility open every day than any the world can give, positions that are not only greater but the reward is correspondingly more. Try and make the comparison for yourself. Put the work of the greatest men, from a worldly standpoint, ever known, such as Alexander the Great, Napoleon and others with their reward of honor, fame, prosperity and wrath, in the balance against that of such of God's servants as Martin Luther, John Tyndale and others, and notice whose life and work has the greatest and most lasting effect on mankind. God is very explicit in showing us the differences between the rewards offered the righteous and the wicked as we have seen in reading our lesson. This world offers us rewards that must terminate with death, Luke xviii. 29, 30. God's rewards are not only greater in this life, and in the world to come we are promised everlasting life. In 2 Tim. iv. 7, 8, Paul says: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous Judge shall give me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing."

We have compared God's positions and rewards with what the world can give and now we should awaken to the great privileges offered us and assume our responsibilities, take up our life work and press forward with an eye single to the accomplishment of God's work. Those who are prepared to take up the work God wishes done, when the time is ripe for its accomplishment, are the ones who will receive the great reward. Are we numbered among them? are we anxious to have one of those positions of trust and service? God is surely going to give to those who are worthy. It is a blessed privilege we are offered, will we accept it and assume its responsibilities and duties and receive the reward? Take the opportunities in our own state, and the work that should be done in our own community, surely the harvest is ripe and the laborers few. If we have the privilege of understanding God's plan better than others is'nt our responsibilities greater?

Young people, awake, let us arise in the strength of our youth and gird on the whole armor of God. Eph. vi. 13-18.

Married.

On Aug. 15, 1904, Bro. Harry Pott and Sister Jessie Nichols, both of Cleveland, Ohio, were united in marriage at the Evangelist's home. These loved ones having first sought the kingdom of God and his righteousness, we trust that while permitted to sail on the ocean of this life together, they will go on from one degree of favor to another, ever realizing the Divine presence and blessing, and at last enter into the joy of their Lord.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all things Which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME LIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, SEPT. 21, 1904. NUMBER 35.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the real "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

This item is for the person who has allowed his time to expire and has not yet renewed. We wish to hereby solicit you to at once send in your subscription money for the paper. At this season of the year our expenses are necessarily heavy, as we must get fuel and otherwise prepare for winter. The political campaign is on, and the attention of some is diverted by this cause. Brethren and sisters, do not allow anything to crowd out your duty in this branch of the Lord's cause. Hurry in your renewals at once.

Regarding the war in the Far East the last week has been spent in skirmishes, and preparing for future work. The impression seems to be that the Russians will not be able to hold Mukden, as the Japanese have received more reinforcements than the Russians have, and are consequently the stronger. Port Arthur is not much changed. Another order is made for the Baltic fleet to sail soon. So it is from day to day, with little definite and decisive to report.

The British have forced their way, as has been stated before, into Lhassa, and have made a treaty with the Tibetans. In short it provides for three marts for trade between English merchants and the people, and permits of trade along the routes now existing and those that may be built leading to India. The British get an indemnity of $2,550,000 to be paid in three yearly installments. To secure the treaty the English troops occupy the Chumbi valley for three years, or until all is paid. No foreign power can, without England's consent, either buy or lease any part of the territory of Tibet, nor concern itself with her affairs, or build roads, railways, telegraphs, or open mines in the country. Thus England has all the advantages of a protectorate, and the shadowy claim of China is abolished. To all of this of course Russia enters a protest, but as she is not in good condition to make a forceful protest it may be set down that for the time England has balked Russia in this direction.

Some Vital Questions. No. 5.

79. "Sonship depends upon begettal. No sound conclusions can be reached if this self-evident truth be evaded. Men must be "BEGOTTEN AGAIN" in order to become sons of God. James says, "of his own will begat he us with the Word of Truth," ch. i. 18; and Paul says in 1 Cor. iv. 15, "For in Christ Jesus I have begotten you through the gospel," and no one will deny that those begettals were moral and intellectual, —not physical.

80. We submit that Jesus could not have been begotten in that way; the angel said it should be a holy thing that Mary should give birth to. He never needed a change of mind or conduct. He never began to do wrong, or think wrong, and was entirely separate from sinners; and had no use for the means to be employed by those who had gone astray. And yet

81. Jesus said, "Except a man be (begotten or) born again, he cannot see (or enter) the kingdom of God." From this point of view his perfect isolation from sinners is easily seen, and yet

82. The very chapter in which the necessity of a begettal for others is recorded, Jesus is twice called the ONLY BEGOTTEN SON OF GOD. See verses 16, 18. Every one who wants to know God's truth in the premises, will admit that there is a DIFFERENCE between the ONLY BEGOTTEN, and EVERY ONE ELSE.

83. In view of the fact that "As the Father hath life in himself, even so gave he to THE Son, also, to have life in himself (v. 27;) and that THE Son quickeneth whom he will, (v. 21;) to an absolute certainty. The privilege of Sonship is derived from the ONLY BEGOTTEN SON.

84. Any theory, therefore, which places Jesus on a level with others, ignores the whole essence of the teaching in the Gospel of John.

85. His ESPECIAL relationship to the Father is expressed in almost every chapter of John's gospel—"I am from above—ye are from beneath." "I live by the Father." "I am the door of the sheep." I am the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman." "I am the Son of God."

86. In the illustration of the vine, the position of all others is described as branches drawing their life and sustenance from him.

87. In chapter xiv., he is seen to be the only way by which the Father could be approached.

88. In chapter xvii., he is the giver of eternal life to all whom God has given him.

89. And that all these passages indicate his lofty position, and were so understood, is evident from the final charge made against him in chapter xix. 7, "We have a law, and by that law he ought to die, because he made himself the SON OF GOD."

90. These are all signs by which we may discern that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and believing this concerning him, many find life,—that quickening power which now causes the relationship of Sons, and which presently swallows up mortality—through his name.

91. What a pitiable plight are they in, who ignore the offices and work which placed him head over all things to the Church; heir of all things, and to be King over all the earth! Why cannot they see that lineal descent alone from David would be of no avail when it was announced thousands of years ago, that "he who ruleth over men must be just, and Jesus was the only one who filled the bill! He needed no justification from any sin committed. A justified sinner would be no object for justifying faith to lay hold of.

92. In Gen. xlix. 22-25 Joseph is plainly seen to have been a type of Christ. It says: "The archers have sorely grieved him, and shot at him, and hated him; but his bow abode in strength, and the arms of his hands were made strong by the hands of the Mighty God of Jacob; from thence (the hands of the God of Jacob) yea; FROM THENCE is the Shepherd, the stone of Israel."

93. This naturally reminds us again that it is that same God of Jacob that we read, sent forth his Son, made of a woman. A unique expression this; it is generally BORN of a woman; it is only in reference to Christ that the word "MADE" is used. The fact is, that the words would have been an ABSURDITY, had Christ been the Son of Joseph. The language agrees with nothing in nature, because the fact of which it speaks is OUT OF NATURE. It is an out and out miracle. No one ever heard a person say of a child it was made of a woman, or that it was "made flesh." One would naturally ask, "What else could it be made of?"

94. In this connection, too we ask would it not be supremely ridiculous to read Phillippians ii. 8, 9 as if it said JOSEPH'S SON, that he was in the form of God and thought it not robbery to be equal with God; or meditate a usurpation to be like God;" Diaglott; but made himself of no reputation, and took upon him the form of a servant having been made in the likeness of men; and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, and became obedient unto death [obedient to whom, do our opponents say?] even the death of the cross?

95. Men must be profoundly ignorant of Jehovah's purpose as revealed in Moses, the prophets and the Psalms who undervalue, and even dispense with the offices and work of his first advent. Why do they pass by such clear references to the Branch, and the stone that he will engrave seven eyes upon? And Isa. xxviii. 16, where a precious and tried stone is to be laid in Zion for a foundation, and is to be the object of faith. In Zechariah iii. 9 Jehovah says, "For behold the stone that I have laid before Joshua, upon ONE STONE shall be seven eyes; behold, I WILL engrave the engraving thereof, saith the Lord of Hosts." Rev. v. 6, enlightens us in reference to the Lamb which had been slain,—and had seven eyes," and explains that the seven eyes represent the seven spirits of God sent forth into all the earth. We need no further proof that the stone to be engraved which was to have seven eyes, and the Lamb that was slain with seven eyes are identical.

"Seven is the symbol of unity and perfection. God is Spirit. He upholdeth all things, and in him we live, and move, and have our being.

96. But what of the Spirit's engraving upon the stone (Zech. iii. 39)? If this does not mean that Jehovah would allow Christ to manifest him through a being born of blood, or of the will of the flesh, or of the will of man, what does it mean? We do not ask this out of curiosity, or for the sake of asking a puzzling question, but in the light of Psalms cxxxix. 15; and other Scriptures equally pertinent.

"My body was not hid from thee which was formed in secret, and curiously wrought over in the lowest parts of the earth (the grave). Thine eyes did see my substance (embryo) yet being imperfect; and in thy books all of them were written in what days they should be fashioned when not one of them existed."

This quotation from the Word of the Spirit concerning the body he intended to shine through, or be manifested in, is very remarkable. Evidently the Spirit of wisdom contemplated this body with great interest and affection before it had a being, seeing he styled it "my soul," and "my darling" and by declaring wonderful things concerning it, which, before its creation, could only be affirmed of himself.

97. Reader, we trust this may assist you to a higher appreciation of words of the Spirit in Heb. ix. 13, 14, where it says, "For if the blood of bulls and goats, and ashes of an heifer, sprinkling the unclean sanctifieth to the purifying of the flesh, how much more shall the blood of Christ, who THROUGH THE ETERNAL SPIRIT offered himself without spot to God, purge your consciences from dead works to serve the living God." Verily he was a prepared Body. Heb. x. 5.

98. The Eternal Spirit walked and taught and accomplished mighty works in this Body for three years and a half. When in the temple he said to the Jews, "Destroy this Temple," alluding to his body, "And in three days I will raise it up." On another occasion "I am the living bread which came down from heaven; if any man eat of this bread he shall live in the age; and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world." 'I proceeded forth, and came from God," etc., etc.

99. If those we believe to be in error, and, indeed, if the Bible be what it claims to be, we have many times proved them in error, already,—if they have ever explained how Jesus could have died as God's Representative Testator? And so bring God's will into force, we have never seen it. They keep skimming the surface till it is bare,—but they will not get intelligent Bible students to live on such fare. And we do not think they want that class of converts.

100. Hebrews ix. 15, we have just quoted the 14th verse and so begin with the 15th, "And on this account he is the Mediator of a new covenant, so that death having taken place for a redemption of the transgressions against the first covenant, those having been invited might receive the promise of the Aionian inheritance. For where a covenant exists, THE DEATH of that which has RATIFIED IT, is necessary to be produced."

"Because a covenant IS FIRM over the DEAD victims, since it is never valid when that which ratifies it is alive. Hence not even the first has been instituted without blood," etc.

As we said, we have never seen it explained how a Son of Joseph could die to ratify GOD'S WILL. The presumption.

Obituary.

"In the hope of a glorious morning," William Pottle, fell asleep September 10, 1904. He was born in Hingham, England, in November of 1881. In April of 1854 he was married to Miss Harriett Goldson and they came to Chicago twelve years later. Since which time this city has been their home. Nine children have been born to them, but of these only two survive —a son and daughter who will be of inestimable comfort to the sorrowing mother. For more than half a century, these two have walked through the years hand in hand, with hearts so warm and close together that outside storms have beaten upon them apparently in vain. Their golden wedding day found them still together:

Hark! how the golden promise tells
Of other bells;
Of another wedding golden
Beyond the tide;
Of earth's garments gray and olden,
Glorified.
Foretells the dawning of that morning
The King beside,
Foretells the glory and the crowning
Of his bride.

Together they came into the faith of eternal life only through the Life-giver, and it was this hope which animated our brother's breast during his long illness. He often spoke of it especially to his life-long companion.

In accordance with his urgent request, often repeated during the last few weeks, words of comfort were spoken by H. V. Reed who presented the gospel hope to the friends who had gathered in the beautiful home of Brother Pottle beside the lake that he loved.

The theme of the speaker was the unfailing promises of God; "If in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. But now is Christ risen from the dead and become the first fruits of them that slept."

He dwelt upon the words of the Master; "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live." He showed how dark and dreary the earth would be—how hopeless death would become, without the unfailing promise of life

"I am he that liveth and was dead, and behold I am alive forever more, and have the keys of hades and of death." Because he liveth and holdeth the keys of the grave, therefore his dear ones shall come again from their dusty beds. The night is far spent and the morning cometh—the morning that shall never end in night. Then we shall meet with those whom we have loved and lain away—then we shall stand with them on the glory crowned heights of God's eternal mountains—then we shall walk with them on the banks of the beautiful river, and kiss their lips all fresh with the dews of immortality.

We laid our brother away beneath the evergreens and roses in the consciousness that his hope of the morning shall soon be realized—the morning when earth shall wear her bridal robes and be wedded to the glories of eternity.

'Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord."

To the Church of God in Ohio:

Brethren beloved in the Lord, by the Ohio Conference at Salem, Ohio, Sept. 8, we were elected evangelists for the State. We are ready, willing and anxious to preach the gospel of the kingdom, that others may obtain a hope of eternal life. Dear brothers and sisters, let us all strive to make our calling and election sure by self denial and sacrifice, that the truth to salvation may be freely preached. We will answer calls together or apart, and preach the glad tidings to few or many, in doors or out, but our chief desire is the welfare of the Church of God. Address us at 866 W. Main St. Salem, O.

past in the Jews' religion, how that beyond measure I persecuted the church of God, and wasted it." But now "preacheth the faith which once he destroyed." Ver. 23. The Church of God would not stand as a pillar and ground of the truth, if it stood for one part only. It must couple faith and practice together. The foundation upon which this pillar rests, is the declaration, "There is a God." See Dan. ii. 28, "There is a God in heaven that revealeth secrets." The proof of the existence of God is given in Rom. i. 20: "Because that which may be known of God is manifest in them; for God hath showed it unto them. For the invisible things of him from the creation of the world are clearly seen, being understood by the things that are made, even his eternal power and Godhead; so that they are without excuse." This fact, says the apostle, was so clearly seen "that they are without excuse."

He does not say that there are gods in heaven, but "a God." "God is one" not two, three or four. "There is none other God but one. For though there be that are called gods, whether in heaven or in earth, (as there be gods many, and lords many.) But to us there is but one God, the Father, of whom are all things, and we in him; and one Lord Jesus Christ, by whom are all things and we by him." 1 Cor. viii. 4-6. See Eph. iv. 6, "One God and Father of all."

The Trinity is not taught in Scripture. "I and the Father are One," says Jesus. The oneness is that indicated in John xvii. 20, 21, "That they all may be one, as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us; that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one." A oneness of body, but not of person.

Jesus could not be that one God in person, because he died. God cannot die.

We are told that the Trinity is a mystery, yes, such a mystery, that no one can believe it. A kindergarten child knows that one is one, and not three.

The oneness of God as taught in the Scriptures, the Church of God stands for. We believe in the restitution of all things, but the all things is limited to that [illegible]. The Church of God also stands for the doctrine of the restoration of Israel. We also believe that the "gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." We believe that baptism is for the remission of sins. It is because we believe the Bible that we do not believe in the immortality of the soul. No Bible character ever preached that. It sprung from the heathen Socrates and Plato, the Greeks that did not know God. They thought that Paul was a setter forth of strange gods, when he preached Jesus and the resurrection.

Bro. Zilmer then illustrated the growth and expansion of the intellect, the thinking part of man by a child, as it grew in stature, and the brain expanded, and the consequent decline in old age. If the body was one thing, and the man another, then, the body of a beast was one thing and the beast another. The Church of God also stands for the teaching that God's kingdom will be established on the earth. The Church of God believes in faith, repentance and baptism as the way men are to be saved, and not the human anxious bench methods of these last days.

On Sunday afternoon at 2:30 p. m. I preached again on the subject of, Who is your Father?

I find that my paper is growing so large, that I will give but a mere outline of this sermon.

This sermon was based on the controversy between Jesus and the Jews as to their respective fathers, as given in John viii. Jesus declared his convictions as to who their father was, in the following language: "Ye are of your father the devil, and the lusts of your father ye will do. He was a murderer from the beginning, and abode not in the truth, because there is no truth in him. When he speaketh a lie, he speaketh of his own; for he is a liar, and the father of it." We observe their father was a bad character, being a "murderer," "a liar, and the father of it," and this was his character "from the beginning."

In this beginning, God told Adam not to touch, or eat of the forbidden tree, if ye do, "Ye shall surely die." The Serpent said, "Ye shall not surely die."

The proof the serpent gave as to why they should not die, was that, [illegible] angels. [illegible] It could have been true that they could not die, if they in fact [illegible] elohim or angels in nature, because the gods, or elohim, were not [illegible] beings. In place of the disp[illegible] giving them the nature of "the gods," it gave them the nature of "beasts," and therefore they die. He lied when he said they would acquire the nature of gods.

Compare this with Luke xx. 35, 36: "But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage. Neither can they die any more; for they are equal unto the angels; and are the children of God, being the children of the resurrection." Jesus here recognizes the deathless nature of the angels, elohim, or gods, and the only way to become as the angels, or gods, is to become worthy of that age and the resurrection out from among the dead ones.

They way to become as the beasts is to follow the advice of the devil, to seek to become as gods or angels by means of disobedience, and believe the devil's message. Believe his message, and then you can claim him as your father, and die as the beasts.

At 8 o'clock p. m., on Sunday night, Bro. Zilmer, continued his discourse, as to what the church stands for in faith and practice. I regret that space forbids it being reported at this time.

He based his remarks on Eph. iv., as to the unity of the body, faith and hope. The church which has this unit faith and hope was the Church of God, or body of Christ, of which body he, himself, was the head. It was a collective body with a unity of spirit, faith and hope. In this body there are multiplicity of members each having its own function, yet working in harmony with every other part. In this body love is set to be the bond of union, which produces a harmony of action in all its parts. This unity of spirit must be preserved in the bond of peace, and prior to all this, there must be a unity of faith, then charity or love can then be the bond of perfectness.

Favorable comments by many members were expressed as endorsing this discourse.

I will close these notes by a brief notice of the reports of evangelists and churches, which showed a progressive tendency.

The Indiana evangelists had not confined their work to Indiana alone, but had crossed over the border into Illinois. Brethren Zilmer and Austin had both conducted meetings in Chicago, Ill., and baptized two. Bro. Hatch labored in central Illinois, baptized eleven, making thirteen baptized in Illinois, by Indiana Evangelists.

I gave in my report as the General Evangelist, from the Indiana Conference, which was listened to with much interest.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

Knew How.

All was quiet in the invalid's room, until a step was heard coming up the stairs. Then a faint voice called:

"Alfred, is it you?"

"No," answered another member of the family, looking in and then approaching the bed. "But what is it you are wanting? Can not I do it?"

"I only wanted to be lifted and turned a little," was the reply. "I think I'll wait a few minutes for Alfred to come. He knows just how."

Alfred was only a boy, a merry, healthy young fellow of eighteen or twenty, full of his studies and outdoor pursuits, wanted on the cricket field and in all parties of young friends; but he was no stranger in that sick room. He had thought it worth while to learn "just how" to minister to the sufferer, and his strong, young arms were the chosen ones to lift the grandmother's wasted, pain-racked form many times daily. Was not that tender little service the very crown of manliness?

It was Bayard Taylor who wrote:

"The bravest are the tenderest."

The True Church.

For centuries the waiting Bride
Has lit her altar fires,
And waited for the morning tide
To light the eastern spires.

Has looked to see her absent Lord,
Whose love inspired her song
And leaning on his faithful word,
Has battled with the wrong.

Through all the dark and cloudy day,
And through the lonely night,
The lamp of faith illumed the way
With more than earthly light.

And true as needle to the pole,
Has kept her fervent gaze
Intent upon the final goal,
With glory all ablaze.

Has stood amid the angry storm;
And borne affliction's rod
When death in every frightful form
Had barred the path she trod.

Her blood in torrents has been poured
On Roman hill and plain;
She fell by fire and by the sword,
And wore the felon's stain.

Beneath uncounted altars she
Has raised the martyr cry,
For vengeance on the Papal See—
For vengeance hear on high!

Full deep she's drank the bitter cup;
But this inspiring thought—
That with her reigning Lord she'd reign,
Made sweet the bitter lot.

And still she waits while shadows fall
Across the way she treads,
For Christ to break the mortal thrall,
And crown immortal heads.

Oh gladsome day, so near at hand—
That scatters all the gloom,
That hangs so thick o'er every land
And o'er the silent tomb.

Notes by the Way.

Having occasion to visit the northern part of the State of Illinois, I made a fraternal call on brethren James and William Tilton, and families, at Rochelle, Illinois, and enjoyed their warm hospitality.

"How sweet, how heavenly is the sight
When those that love the Lord,
In one another's peace delight,
And thus fulfill His Word.
"When each can feel his brother's sigh,
And with him bear a part;
When sorrows flow from eye to eye,
And joy from heart to heart."

Fraternal associations with those of like precious faith, I find to be very pleasant and helpful.

From Rochelle, I went to Franklin Grove, Illinois, being invited by our Sister Israel Zug, to come and visit her. This sister is living alone, with no one of like faith to confer with. I found the sister quite intelligent, and firm in the faith, and refusing to have any fellowship with those whose faith is founded upon the lie of the devil. How any Intelligent believer can do so, passes my comprehension. I enjoyed this visit and expect to meet this good old sister in the grand reunion when Jesus comes.

I then took the train for Chicago, and remained there until the morning of September 8th, when I boarded the train for Hillisburg, Indiana, to attend the Annual Conference of the Church of God. I arrived at Hillisburg at about three o'clock in the afternoon, and was met at the depot by Brethren Weaver and Hatch, and was taken to the hospitable home of Bro. and Sister Weaver.

The congregation at Hillisburg numbers about one hundred and twenty members. They own a good church building. The Church is presided over by Elder Huffer, a school teacher. Bro. Huffer is a bright man, and zealous for the faith once delivered to the saints. He has an important charge on his hands, and may God bless him in his work. On Thursday night the Conference assembled in this Church. Bro. Huffer made an address of welcome, which was responded to by our President Bro. Zilmer. His address took the form of an exhortation to stand close to the first principles of the faith and hope of the gospel. The exhortation is certainly timely when men who have departed from the faith, teach that we should look to, and trust the Son of Joseph as a Savior, while the Bible says it is the Son of God which taketh away the sin of the world.

I am not going to trespass on the report of our Secretary. My purpose is to give a brief sketch of the addresses given by our ministers who were present. Many precious thoughts were expressed, which I believe will be appreciated by our readers.

On Friday morning the first address was delivered by J. S. Hatch, on the topic: "Make your Calling and Election Sure." He stated that it could only be made sure by adhering closely to the way as given in Holy Scripture. There was

1st. The call and election.

2nd. Make the election sure after receiving the call.

1st. How called? See 2 Thes. ii. 14: "God hath from the beginning chosen you to salvation through sanctification on the Spirit, and belief of the truth: whereunto he called you by our gospel, to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ."

From this we learn that God calls only through the "belief of the truth," and that truth is "the Word of truth, the gospel of your salvation," (Eph. i. 13), "whereunto he called you by our gospel." All who receive and obey the gospel are called and elected of God, and none others are.

2nd. Make sure the call and election. That is clearly given in 2 Peter i. 10-12: "Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall. For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Wherefore I will not be negligent to put you alway in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and be established in the present truth."

What are the things which will make the call and election sure? See verses 5-7: "And besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge, and to knowledge temperance, and to temperance patience, and to patience godliness, and to godliness brotherly kindness, and to brotherly kindness charity."

When the call and election is made sure, God will gather in his jewels, see Matt. xxiv. 31: "And he shall send his angels with a great sound of a trumpet, and they shall gather together his elect from the four winds, from one end of heaven to the other."

Brother Hatch then dwelt on the purpose of the election, that it went further than simply being saved, that they were elected to official positions, and he showed what those official positions would consist of. Space forbids entering into the line of his argument. The main lesson for us to learn, however, is, How we are called and elected? 2nd, How to make the election sure.

The sermon for Friday night was to have been given by Bro. Wagoner, but he was unable to attend the Conference. The programme committee selected me to fill his place. I spoke on the topic, How to detect spurious gospels? I called attention to Eph. iv. 3-6, "Endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace. There is one body, and one Spirit, even as ye are called in one hope of your calling. One Lord, one faith, one baptism. One God and Father of all, who is above all, and through all, and in you all." If it is true there is but "one faith," and "one hope," and we should find 500 faiths and hopes in the world, then the Bible declaration being true, that there is but one faith and hope, then there must be 499 bogus faiths and hopes in the world. The question arises how can we distinguish the true from the false?

Eph. i. 18, says that the one hope can be known, and says how we can learn or know "what is the hope." Well how? Listen: "that the eyes of your understanding being enlightened; that ye MAY KNOW what is the hope of his calling."

Then if we "know" it, we are assured of it. Well, suppose that we do not know it, what is our condition? See Eph. iv. 18, "Having the understanding darkened, being alienated from the life of God through the ignorance that is in them." Then the "understanding" may be "enlightened" and "know what is the hope," or "the understanding (may be) darkened," and on account of the aforesaid "ignorance" be "alienated from the life of God." In what proposition are we to find the one hope? See Col. i. 22, 23: "And you that were sometime alienated and enemies in your mind by wicked works, yet now hath he reconciled in the body of his flesh through death, to present you holy and unblameable and unreproveable in his sight. If ye continue in the faith grounded and settled, and be not moved away from the hope of the gospel, which ye have heard, and which was preached to every creature which is under heaven, whereof I Paul am made a minister." We find the definite article "the" precedes the words "faith," "hope" and "gospel," which means that there is but one "faith," "hope" and "gospel." If there was more than one, the indefinite article "a" would have been used, a faith, a hope, a gospel, which would signify that there may be other faiths, hopes and gospels. The hope is found in the gospel. "Be not moved away from THE hope of our gospel." I then showed the proof that the faith and hope took hold upon the glad news of the coming kingdom. Space forbids giving the line of argument used. Suffice it to say I clearly showed that God's oath and covenant was the distinguishing mark between the true faith, hope and gospel. The true is sealed by God's oath, all others not so sealed are spurious.

At ten o'clock, Saturday morning, Bro. Wince spoke on the topic of the coming kingdom. Bro. Wince handled his subject in a workman like manner. He talked like a man who knew what he was talking about.

He first read and commented on the second chapter of Daniel. We are all familiar with the clearly spoken prophecies of that God-loving prophet, relating to the coming kingdom, so that I need not produce them here. These prophecies harmonize clearly with all the prophets, apostles, and those of our Lord Jesus Christ.

He said that the coming kingdom will differ from all other kingdoms, in its official administration, it would be one of righteousness, justice, and correct government. It would further differ as to its duration, as to all other kingdoms, they pass away, while God's kingdom will be eternal. He said that the word kingdom in the New Testament was from the Greek word basileia, which occurred about one hundred and sixty times, while the word ecclesia from which we have the word church, occurred some one hundred and fifteen times.

Some, he said, claimed that the kingdom came in the days of John the Baptist, while others said that it was not set up until the day of Pentecost. Furthermore these people affirm that the church is the kingdom. He said that the meaning of the word basileus (kingdom) did not permit of its being used as synonomous with ecclesia (church). He said that with regard to the Lord's prayer "thy kingdom come," could not with sense be expressed as follows: "Thy church come to the church." Again, in Acts xiv. 22: "We must through much tribulation enter, the (church) of God." He said the suffering came prior to the reign every time. "If we suffer with him, we shall also reign with him." No suffering with him, then there can be no reigning with him.

Another thing he said, that the church was now in existence, while the kingdom was still a future event. "Fear not little flock, it is your Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom," It being a future event, it could not represent that which now exists. The kingdom as yet, was still a matter of promise to the overcomer, and could not exist, until it had been preached in all the world as a witness. He said the kingdom must have all the essential elements which go to make up a kingdom, which the church did not possess. He said the Bible designated what those elements were in God's kingdom.

1. Jesus, the King of the Jews.
2. He should reign upon the throne of David.
3. The territory would be the land of Israel.
4. The subjects, the people of Israel.
5. Overcomers would share the throne with him.

He drew a contrast between Jesus' and God's throne. He stated that while God's kingdom would be a spiritual kingdom, yet it would be just as literal as the natural.

The time when Jesus would ascend the throne would be in the regeneration (new birth), then the twelve apostles would be assigned the twelve thrones over Israel.

When the kingdom of God really did come, the condition of mankind would be improved vastly over what it is today. He said if we leave Israel out of the gospel of the kingdom, then we will have a false gospel.

After the business session was over, Bro. S. T. Hook, continued to discourse upon the kingdom of God.

He read Psa. lxxii., which is a chapter treating of the time when the "king's Son" (not Joseph's son) shall ascend the throne of universal empire, and rule the people with righteousness and judgment, also a reign of peace, and also a time when the oppressor shall no longer oppress the poor. Righteousness, peace and abundance would obtain from sea to sea, and from the river unto the ends of the earth, which would culminate finally in the whole earth being filled with the glory of God.

He said that the phrases: The kingdom of God, kingdom of heaven, the kingdom of Israel, are synonomous phrases indicating the same thing.

He canvassed Dan. ii. much the same as Bro. Wince did, so I will not take space to repeat it here.

He showed conclusively that God's kingdom would be the kingdom of Israel restored. He cited Ezek. xxi. in proof. It was the kingdom of Israel which was overturned until he came whose right it was. He then called attention to Isa. ix. 6, 7, "For unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given, and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor. The mighty God, the everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even forever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this."

Luke i. 30-33: "And the angel said unto her, Fear not, Mary: for thou hast found favor with God. And, behold, thou shall conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest: and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David. And he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

In harmony with the above we have the enquiry: "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" He showed how literally God's Word was fulfilled in the past, he gave a sample as given by the prophet, as to how Jerusalem should be plowed as a field, and that those prophecies which still remained, will be as literally fulfilled. And as the Lord literally ascended, and clouds received him out of sight, just as literally will he come again. It would be nice to give a more extended report of these grand sermons, but space forbids.

At 7:30 p. m., Saturday, Bro. Zilmer spoke on the journeys of the Apostle Paul, illustrated by chart. This was considered a real treat by all who heard it. If we only had a cut of his chart to publish in THE RESTITUTION to trace Paul's travels as he gave it, it would be of vital interest to our readers. Without it, it would be impossible for me to properly report his sermon, it would not be intelligible to the readers. When he visits your neighborhood ask him to illustrate it by his chart.

At eight o'clock p. m. I followed Bro. Zilmer, on the topic of Impending Changes in Human Governments, illustrated by three charts. Why is a change desirable? The answer is, because all human governments are failures, they do not render perfect service to the people, because human nature, corrupted by sin, are incapable of rendering perfect justice. On account of the imperfection of frail man, justice often miscarries, even when he desires to execute justice.

God has a great change impending, It is his purpose that all the governments of this world should be incorporated in that of his Son. To be associated with him in this great work, God is now disciplining a corps of rulers. These are called out by the gospel of the kingdom. The discipline they are subjected to, is to learn to govern themselves. Should they succeed, they will be counted as overcomers, and he will grant that they may sit down with him on his throne.

David shows the approximate time when this change will take place. This was revealed to him in Nebuchadnezzar's dream. He saw a great image, whose head was of gold, his breast and arms of silver, his belly of brass, his legs of iron, his feet part of iron, and part of clay. Dan. ii. 31-35.

Q. What did the dream mean?

A. He said that the different parts of the image represented by the several metals, meant that four universal empires should arise in the earth. The feet describe the broken up condition of the fourth empire. Daniel ii. 41-43.

Q. What will follow the broken condition represented by the feet?

A. "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." Dan. ii. 44.

Q. Is it a fact that all the kingdoms represented by the image have appeared?

A. They all have become historic facts, and the next change now due is God's kingdom.

Let us examine the matter carefully, and see whether they have become historic facts, or not.

Babylon, the head of gold has now become an unquestioned historic fact.

Q. How about the second part of the image?

A. The second part, the breast and arms were of silver (Dan. ii. 32) are represented by the allied forces of the Medes and Persians. Dan. ii, 38. It is now a well established historic fact that those allied forces conquered Babylon.

Q. Did the Medes and Persians rule this conquered kingdom jointly?

A. No. Darius, the Median took the kingdom first, when he was about sixty-two years old, (Dan. v. 31) and reigned only two years, when he died. It is also an historic fact that Cyrus, king of Persia succeeded Dairus and his dynasty held possession of the kingdom two hundred and four years and nine months.

Q. Daniel dreamed about some beasts also. What about them?

A. See Dan. vii. 3-7:—"And four great beasts came up from the sea, diverse one from another. The first was like a lion, and had eagle's wings. I beheld till the wings thereof were plucked, and it was lifted up from the earth, and made to stand upon the feet as a man, and a man's heart was given to it. And behold another beast, a second, like to a bear, and it raised up itself on one side, and it had three ribs in the mouth of it between the teeth of it; and they said thus unto it, Arise, devour much flesh. After this I beheld, and lo another, like a leopard, which had upon the back of it four wings of a fowl; the beast had also four heads; and dominion was given to it. After this I saw in the night visions, and behold a fourth beast, dreadful and terrible, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth; it devoured and brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with the feet of it; and it was diverse from all the beasts that were before it; and it had ten horns."

Q. What did the beasts signify?

A. See Dan. vii. 17, 18, for an answer. "These great beasts which are four, are four kings (or kingdoms) which shall arise out of the earth. But the saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom for ever, even forever and ever." They represent the same kingdoms which are represented by the several metals in the image.

Q. Why are two sets of symbols given to represent the same thing?

A. The beasts represent details in the history of the four kingdoms, not seen in the image. As for instance, we are now considering the second (silver) part of the image, we have seen that two nations (Medes and Persians) conquered Babylon, and that Darius the Median, took the kingdom first; now the bear represents the Medes and Persians, one side of the bear represents the Medes, and the other side the Persians, and but one side at a time came into power. See Dan. vii. 5, "It, the bear, raised itself up on one side," representing that the Median side of the bear was raised into power first.

Q. Does any other beast show the same thing?

A. Yes. See Dan. viii. 3: "There stood before the river a ram which had two horns  but one was higher than the other, and the higher came up last."

Q. Please tell us what the two horned ram means?

A. I will let the Bible answer. See Dan. viii. 20: "The ram which thou sawest having two horns are the kings of Media and Persia." Now this Media-Persian ram has two horns (powers) the one horn represents the Medes, and the other horn the Persians, and the bear has two sides, one is the Median side, and the other side is the Persian, and as we have already shown the Median side was first lifted up into power symbolized by the bear being "raised up on one side," (Dan. vii. 5) and so also the ram with two horns tells the same story. It had two horns (Dan. viii. 3) "one was higher than the other, and the higher came up last."

Q. Which power was the short horn?

A. We must notice first that "the higher one came up last," (Dan. viii. 3) therefore the short horn must of necessity come up first. The length of these horns represents the length of time each of these two powers (Medes and Persians) held the government. History shows that Darius the Median (short horn) only reigned two years when he died. After which, Cyrus the Persian (the higher horn) succeeded him, and his dynasty held the power two hundred and four years and nine months." The higher or longer—Persia, came up last. Dan. viii. 3. The brass kingdom we are told should succeed the silver kingdom. See Dan. ii. 39, "After thee (the silver) shall arise another kingdom, inferior to thee (brass is inferior to silver) a third kingdom of brass, which shall bear rule over all the earth." History and the Bible show that the "brazen coated Grecia," attacked the "ram," which is further represented by as "he goat," attacked the Media-Persian two horned ram, Dan. viii. 6, and broke two horns off of the ram, Dan. viii. 6, 7, which means that the (Grecian) he goat conquered the (Media-Persian) two-horned ram.

Can you prove from the Bible that the "he goat" which broke the two horns of the Media-Persian "ram," is Greece?

Yes. See Dan. viii. 21, "And the rough goat is the king of Grecia; and the great horn is the first king."

Q. Now, who is this "first king?"

A. "The great horn that is between his eyes is (Alexander) the first king." Dan. viii. 21.

Q. What will happen when this "first king" shall die, or is "broken?"

A. See Dan. viii. 22, "Now that being broken, whereas four stood up for it, four kingdoms shall stand up out of the nation, (of Greece) but not in his power." This means that after the first king's death, "Grecia" would be divided into four kingdoms.

The above is also shown in Dan. xi. 3, 4: "He (king of Persia) shall stir up against all the realm of Grecia. And a mighty king (Alexander) shall stand up, that shall rule with great dominion, and do according to his will. And when he shall stand up his kingdom (Grecia) shall be broken, and shall be divided (into four kingdoms) towards the four winds of heaven."

These in turn were overrun by the iron kingdom of Rome. Then Rome in turn was divided into Eastern and Western Rome, answering to the two legs of the image. The feet represent the broken up condition of the iron Roman Empire, being a clay and iron mixture.

Q. What is the clay?

A. That is indicated in verse 43. "And whereas thou sawest iron mixed with miry clay, they shall mingle themselves with the seed of men, but they shall not cleave one to another, even as iron is not mixed with clay."

Q. Where is the clay indicated in this verse?

A. It is found in the phrase, "Seed of men." Clay is a symbol of man. Man is as clay in the hands of the potter. Iron here symbolizes absolute monarchy. The mingling of "clay"—the "Seed of men," in iron or absolute monarchy indicates that the iron monarchies of old Rome have become constitutional governments, in which "the seed of men," or the people have a part.

What is the next event due when we reach the iron and clay mixture in the feet of the image?

See Dan. ii. 44, "In the days of these kings (the iron and clay mixture) shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever."

We have now reached the iron and clay mixture, and the kingdom of God is the next event now due.

On Sunday morning at 10 a. m., Bro. Zilmer preached on the topic, What does the Church of God stand for in faith and practice?

His remarks were based upon 1 Tim. iii. 15: "That thou mayest know how thou oughtest to behave thyself in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth."

A pillar stands under the temple as its support. This figure teaches us that the Church of God is to be the support of the truth, not a truth. They are called out for that purpose. See Acts xx. 28 31: "Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood. For I know this, that after my departing shall grievous wolves enter in among you, not sparing the flock. Also of your own selves shall men arise speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them. Therefore watch and remember, that by the space of three years I ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears."

The grand old Apostle saw with a prophetic eye that the Church of God would suffer from perverse teachers, which he describes as "grievous wolves," which would endeavor to rend and devour the Church of God. Hence the "overseers" were to administer such nourishing food to the flock, that they may be strong enough to stand as a pillar, or support of the truth, both in faith and practice. This same apostle recollected how in time past he himself, wasted the Church of God. See Gal. i. 13: "For ye have heard of my conversation in time

Announcement.

The third Annual Conference of the Church of God in Southern Illinois will be held at Moriah, Clark Co., Illinois, beginning October 1st, and continuing until October 10th, 1904. We have implored Bro. O. J. Allard, Iowa, and Bro. A. H. Zilmer of Plymouth, Ind., and Bro. S. T. Hook of Ind., and perhaps other speakers will be here to preach the glad tidings of the soon coming kingdom. Thus far our Conferences have proved a feast of good things and we trust that this one will be no exception. We hope to have faithful attendance from home brothers and sisters and friends, and cordially invite all from other societies who can possibly come, and may the isolated ones grasp this rare opportunity of meeting with their co-workers. We will arrange the program from day to day as we go along. We invite the Bereans all to come that can, for we will give you as much time as you will want to occupy. Please let all that come by railroad write Bro. Z. E. Brant of Moriah, Ill., what date you will come to the Conference and he will meet you at Casey, Ill., and take you to the Conference. May the Lord not withhold his blessing from us at that time.

Z. E. BRANT, Pres.,
MRS. AMY V. WEAVER, Sec.

EMMA JACKMAN, Sec'y.

Dear Sisters of the "Evangelical Aid Society," do not forget your offerings for this quarterly Conference. The need of more money for more work is very apparent, more so now than ever. IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended

Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? Remember Thy Mother.

Lead thy mother tenderly
Down life's steep decline:
Once her arm was thy support,
Now she leans on thine.
See, upon her loving brow,
Those deep lines of care:
Think 'it was her toil for thee
Left that record there.

Never forget her tireless watch,
Kept by day and night;
Taking from her step the grave,
From her eye the light.
Cherish well her faithful heart,
Which through weary years
Echoed well its sympathy
All thy smiles and tears.

Thank God for thy mother's love,
Guard the precious boon;
For the bitter parting hour
Cometh all too soon.
When thy grateful heart can pay
Love's power to save,
Earth will hold no dearer spot
Than thy mother's grave.

The Bereans Column.

[Under this heading the society of "Bereans" of Illinois, will supply the copy, and endeavor to fill the space once a month.]

The Berean Society of Illinois held its annual business meeting on Saturday afternoon Aug. 27th, our President, Miss Anna Drew in the chair. The minutes of our last meeting were read and accepted. The Treasurer's report followed, after which came the report of the literary committee, urging each of us to remember that the Berean column in THE RESTITUTION belongs to each individual member of the Society, and hence we should always hold ourselves in readiness to supply its wants. Voluntary articles are the ones which are most thankfully received.

Our local societies have increased from five to seven in the past year. Encouraging reports from each of the following points were received: Adeline, Chicago, Dixon, Iota, Keltner, Marshall and Moriah. Letters of greeting from isolated members and one from the Bereans of Iowa were received and appreciated.

Our officers of the past year were all retained, and are as follows: President, Miss Anna Drew, of Dixon; Vice President, Almeda Mitchell, of Lanark; Secretary, Mary Aslaksen Gesin, of Forreston; and Treasurer, Edwin Renner, of Lanark.

The Bereans have a plan on foot by which 1000 pamphlets which will explain the Berean work in full, will be printed, which will very materially aid in introducing and organizing our work at new points.

A call for booklets from outside of our State has come and a notice will appear in our column in the near future, telling how they may be obtained.

The literary committee for the ensuing year is as follows: Anna Adams, of Dixon, Elizabeth Eaton, of Mt. Carroll and Anna Aslaksen of Chicago.

The programme committee for next Conference consists of Mrs. Filson of Dixon, Sam Smith of Chicago and Mary Aslaksen Gesin of Forreston, Ill. Miss Lindsay was appointed to select suitable tracts and send them to different points in the State during the coming year. Our meeting was then adjourned.

MARY A. GESIN, Sec.

Dear Bereans:

Believing that much good may be done through tract distribution, at our business meeting this year, a committee of one was appointed to select and purchase tracts, and mail to the Bereans at different points. When you receive these tracts, we ask you to assist in this work of sowing the seed, giving them where you believe they will do good, enclose a tract in the letters you write. Miss Emma Lindsay, German Valley, Ill., R. F. D. 3, was appointed to take this work in charge. She will try to keep a supply on hand, in case you need a tract on a certain topic, write her. These are sent to you free of charge, but in order that we may not have to use funds from the State treasury for postage, we give you the privilege, when you have a few cents or stamps to spare, of assisting in this way, such funds to be sent Sister Lindsay. Let us make greater efforts to scatter the seeds of truth by this means, than ever before.

ANNA E. DREW, Pres.

Please bear in mind that the Berean column belongs to each Berean, personally, and consider it not only a duty but privilege to contribute thereto. Articles wanted and needed at all times. All communications should be sent to Anna L. Adams, 603 Peoria Avenue, Dixon, Ill.

To the Bereans met in Conference at Oregon:

Since I am debarred from a chance to be with you in this meeting, however much I would enjoy to be with you, I shall attempt to write a few words and tell you how we are getting along in the Lord's work in Southern Illinois. Of course our assembly is small, consisting of wife and myself. We are very lonesome at times and long for company of some faith, but we do the best we can. We read the Bible and get letters from brothers and sisters of like precious faith, which gives us new courage and we strive on. Dear Bereans, if you have any friends that are isolated, don't neglect to write to them. A kind letter to an isolated brother and sister is very soothing to a lonely heart. When we have company we hardly realize how a lonely heart feels. Let us comfort one another as much as we can and let us be true to one another and love one another, we can do this if we are separated by hills and valleys and let us be true to the cause of Christ. Let us do for the Master all we can and then when he comes we will receive our reward. As I pen these few words my thoughts go out to the dear ones at the Conference, a few of which I have met. Oh, how glad I would be to meet you again and clasp hands with you. Although I cannot be with you in person I am with you in spirit. May Bro. Lindsay's Bibleschool be of much benefit to you all, and may the good Lord repay him for his efforts and his labors. Now, dear Bereans, let us draw our columns closer and closer, we must do it, the enemy is close and is getting closer; he is making his best attempt and if we don't show a solid front he may overpower some of us and what a great loss it he should be successful to take just one of our ranks. No, I say we cannot spare one, no, not one. Oh, dear ones, the end is near, let us fight and defend the cause we espouse, soon the victory will be won, and what a glorious victory that will be. So let us not falter by the way, hold out a little while longer, and allow me to repeat, encourage one another by word or letter. In conclusion I will say, let us watch for the glorious appearing of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Your brother in that blessed hope.

A. O. LENZ.

Dear Bereans:

Deprived of the privilege of being personally present with you, I yet feel that I can make one of your number by making use of my pen and help you in some slight measure in this way to honor the name of our God and to forward his cause. We desire to honor that high and holy name, you have met together for this purpose. You strive to spread the truth that his name may be exalted in the earth, his kingdom come and his will be done on earth as it is done in heaven. How manifold are the duties resting on the true followers of the meek and lowly Jesus. But what a pleasure it is to work for such a loving Master. Let us keep constantly busy. Dear Bereans, let us make greater efforts to persuade others to become daily searchers of God's holy Word, that more may become better acquainted with God's plan of salvation and more active workers in his vineyard. May we be characterized by the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace, by deep earnestness and firm devotion in the presentation of the gospel of peace. Let us be united and sound out the Word of life in unison. In unison there is strength. We can hardly appreciate the blessings that have come to us in the light of the gospel and how earnest and how careful we ought to be in the presentation of the glad tidings. Let us work more loyally and faithfully than ever. We know, to begin with, that the faith of the gospel is not popular, but do not get discouraged, for the truth faithfully and lovingly presented reaches hearts and wins affections. Brave hearts, fight the good fight of faith, lay hold of eternal life, contending earnestly for the faith once delivered to the saints, bringing forth the works which testify of our faith, for faith without works is dead. Finally, dear ones, be strong in the Lord and in the power of his might. Oh, let us put on the whole armor of God, that we may be able to withstand in the evil day, having our loins girt about with truth, wearing the breastplate of righteousness and our feet shod with the gospel of peace; above all taking the shield of faith that we may be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked. Take the helmet of salvation and the sword of the Spirit, which is the Word of God. Farewell. Be perfect, be of good comfort, be of one mind, live in peace; and the God of love and peace shall be with you. Grace be with you all then that love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. Amen.

Your Sister watching and waiting.

FRUITS OF THE SPIRIT.

The fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. We find the first is love. In Acts iv. 32, we read, And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and of one soul; neither said any of them that aught of the things which he possessed was his own; but they had all things common.

In this verse we find an example of love. The followers of Christ have showed ready obedience to the one great law of the kingdom which includes all others—love. But one will, the will of God, is to regulate and continuously control the universe and that will or law is expressed in one word, Love. God is love, and love is the fulfilling of the law.

If this fruit of the Spirit was abroad today the present distress would soon disappear. As the best commentary on this heavenly word Love, read 1 Cor. xiii.

The fruits of the Spirit may be seen in every act and move of the life of a true follower of Christ. Love, joy, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance. Charity suffereth long; endurance of sin, or transgressions of some known Christian grace. God's love has been forgotten, the child has disobeyed. Must we, shall we forget the great law of love, and condemn this erring one? or with the attributes of a God point them once more to the Great Advocate, who is now ready as ever to forgive.

Suffereth long, Oh so long! Charity or love, which is a stronger word, vaunteth not itself, or lifts not its head loftily, and with words of braggadocio says I am better than thou. We will never be puffed up over any goodness we think we possess, but patiently love, or with deep humility of purpose.

The fruits of the Spirit of love, or of God, never behaves itself unseemly, or it will shun the very appearance of evil. Seeks not its own pleasures—when these are contrary to God's will, as some have said, my conscience is clear, and I do not care what the preacher says. Remember our conscience is a thing of education, and unless it is educated by God's word it is not right or approved of God. Do we ever rejoice when others fall? when we think it served them right? They brought it on themselves, but, but the word says "Rejoiceth not in iniquity, but rejoiceth in the truth."

This wonderful subject is inexaustable, we must not carry it any farther, for God is love, and if we are of God we are love.

Wisdom of Solrach.

CHAPTER 44.

HYMN OF FATHERS.

1. Let us praise renowned men even our fathers in their generation.

2. Much glory hath the Lord generated, his majesty from an animate-age.

3. They are men who rule as lords in their kingdoms, and men who have made names with ability; they will give counsel in their understanding announcing things in prophecies.

4. Leaders of a laity with advice, with the understanding of the scribe's office of a laity; wise words are theirs in their chastening instruction.

5. Seeking out as they do poetic expressions (lit. stains of music) discoursing words in writing.

6. Wealthy men who furnished choral supplies voluntary public offerings) with strength, promoting peace in their sojournings.

7. All these were glorified in their generations and in their days were a boast.

8. There are some of them who have left behind a name whose praises have been discourned.

9. And there are some of whom there is no remembrance and they have perished as though they had not been, and they have become as though they had not been born; and their offspring after them.

10. The former though were real men of mercy whose acts of righteousness have not been ignored.

11. With their seed a good inheritance will abide, their progeny in the covenants.

12. Their seed hath been made to stand and their offspring for their sake.

13. Whilst there is an animate-age their seed abideth and their glory will not have been wiped out.

14. Their body hath been buried in peace and their praise a church declareth.

15. Enooch pleased the Lord and he was translated, an example of repentance for the generations.

17. Noos was found to be a justified adult; in a period of wrath he became a ransom-price, whereby there became a remnant for the earth, when because of it (the wrath) there became a flood.

18. Covenants for an animate-age were made with him that all flesh should not be wiped out with a flood.

19. Habraam was a great father of a multitude of nations, and there hath not been found his like in that glory.

20. He who watched to keep a law of the Most High, and came to in a covenant with him, and in his flesh establish a covenant, and in his trial-test was found faithful.

21. Therefore with an oath 'is established it with him that in t he would bless nations in his seed, that he would multiply him as the dust of the earth, and like stars would exalt his seed, and give them to inherit from sea to sea, and from river to the end of the earth.

22. And in Isaak for Habraam his father's sake he established a blessing for all men and a covenant.

23. And made it rest upon Jakoob's head; he recognized him with his blessings, and gave unto him in the way of an inheritance; and he distributed his portions; in twelve tribes he apportioned them; and he led out of him a man of mercy who findeth favor in the eyes of all flesh.

COMMENT.

We have in this chapter a sample of "Hebrew poetry" as it is called by "the Hebraists." The heading designates it as "a hymn of fathers" and we would expect to find metre and rythm in such a composition if anywhere in the Bible; but we do not, and it is a well known and well established fact which any thorough musician of today will confirm that metre and rythm were inventions and accomplishments of a very much later age than that of any of the books of "the Old Covenant." Of course true poetry consists of things vastly more important than "metre or rythm." Much prose of the present day is decidedly more poetical than the average so-called poetry; and the "Revisers" of the Bible have sadly blundered in changing and distorting the thought of many oracular passages of the Bible by putting them in "blank verse" as they call it. They have frequently made a blank of the heavenly-teaching in doing it or have read something into the text that is not in it at all.

CHAS. GARDNER.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Ohio Conference Report.

Doubtless readers of THE RESTITUTION have read and enjoyed the remarks of the editor on the Ohio Conference. You have also had the business report, and still there is more to be said that may be interesting to the brethren in Ohio and elsewhere.

The Spirit of unity and progress that prevailed at the Conference of a year ago, and the result of the work done during the year, induced a larger gathering this time. The same spirit intensified prevailed to the full benefit and enjoyment of all present.

While the time was long enough to carry out the provisions of the programme, the hours seemed to speed along. There was one regret, that Bro. Wagoner was not present to take his part. The extra work was put on Bro. Zilmer who, with his usual good nature cheerfully said he would do what he could. And the messages of salvation to life eternal in the kingdom of God and our Lord, delivered by our brother left nothing to be desired from him, but a sincere desire from the household that fruit to the glory of God might result.

Bro. Joblin spoke earnestly and tenderly on the subject "God is love." It was a rare treat to the faithful. Bro. Robison almost surprised us by the way in which he grouped and presented the good Word of God. We were edified and encouraged. Bro. Tomlinson held the close attention of his audience, and proved by his earnest work, that he fully understood and must surely believed the message of peace to be the offer of God to men.

The mention of these brethren in a special manner does not in any way detract from the value of the efforts of others who helped to make the meetings a season of spiritual upbuilding, and a pleasant success.

All present were edified by, and fully enjoyed the remarks of Bros. Farley, Ongley, Hall, Moore, Goss and others at the social meetings, not forgetting the few pointed words by Bro. Underwood.

It would take too much space to tell of the many excellent things presented at the Sisters' meeting, led by Sister Lang. Suffice it to state, that it was little short of astonishing to hear the report of the good work done, and to see and hear them doing more.

It may be that more than half was told at the Berean meeting, led by Bro. Buell Nutt, though the time was all taken up there were others to hear from. It can be truly said, that if the young people of the church continue their efforts and work from the heart they will grow in knowledge and favor with God, and that the church will also continue to be "the pillar and ground work of the truth."

The fine anthems sung by the young people were grand and inspiring features of the occasion.

It was very gratifying and pleasant to hear the clear voice of Sister Underwood leading in the hymns and songs of praise.

Much more could be added about the general sayings and doings. The pretty effect of the groups gathered here and there over the lawn enjoying each others company and talk, or listening to some special topic by a speaker they surrounded. We believe the meeting was first and last to the glory of God. The prevailing feeling was that they desired never to part and wished that the kingdom of God had come.

This Item is for the person who has allowed his time to expire and has not yet renewed. We wish to hereby solicit you to at once send in your subscription money for the paper. At this season of the year our expenses are necessarily heavy, as we must get fuel and otherwise prepare for winter. The political campaign is on, and the attention of some is diverted by this cause. Some Vital Questions. No. 6.

Sad are we to say it, but we have proved from the writing of those we oppose that they care nothing for the New Testatment or Covenant. They recognize no blood of the new covenant; and expect nothing from the new covenant, although they know they are mortal by nature, and have sinned personally; and they know, too, that it is recorded in Heb. xiii. 20 that even Christ who knew no sin was raised from the dead by the God of Peace through the blood of the everlasting covenant made with Abraham. They know it reads that way,—but the presumption is that they do not believe a word of it, or they would govern themselves accordingly.

101. We have never seen our opponents explain how Jesus could get rid of the nature of Adam, that is, the corruptible mortal nature of his mother, without dying, nor

How he could obtain a release from the death-doom hanging over the whole race without dishonor to the law of God, seeing

It had never yet been strictly obeyed; and as yet the covenant that gives enduring life was not in force because not ratified by sacrificial blood.

102. We have not heard, either, how they explain how eating and drinking of the emblems of one NOT SACRIFICIALLY OFFERED, would eat and drink condemnation to themselves, because of not discerning the Lord's body,—or become guilty of the body and blood of the Lord? Do they explain it, or do they reject this Scripture also?

103. We have never seen it explained how Jesus could be a Son over his OWN house, if Joseph had been his Father.

In 1 Tim. iii. 15; Heb. x. 21; and 1 Peter iv. 17 we have the testimony that the house of God was the church of God,—and, in Acts xx. 28; and 1 Cor. i. 2; 1 Cor. xv. 9; 1 Thes. ii. 14 we have proof that the church of God is the house of God. Positively the church of God and house of God are identical.

As we are told in Heb. iii. 6 that Christ was a Son over HIS OWN HOUSE, we want to ascertain how he became the owner of the house. Heb. iii. 3 says that although Moses was faithful Jesus was worthy of more glory than Moses, because he who builded the house had more honor than the house that was built.

In 1 Cor. vi. Paul tells the church at Corinth that they were bought with a price.

In Eph. v. 25, we are told that Christ loved the church, and gave himself for it.

In Eph. i. 17, 22 we find "the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, put all things under subjection to him and constituted him Head over all things to the church, which is his body, the full development of him who is filling all things in all."

How in the name of truth could there be a darker outlook than that of those who to all intents and purposes reject the conditions offered and the means provided for redemption from sin and death, and undertake to save themselves!! What on earth do they mean by salvation, when they discard the only covenanted blessings of God's kingdom and glory, by a resurrection from the dead through Jesus, who, through perfect obedience unto death and satisfaction of the everlasting covenant, became the author of eternal salvation to all who believe in him?

104. We hope our readers will consider the one point of this paragraph, "That the gift of God which is eternal life, cannot be bestowed upon those who are trying to secure it by their OWN exertions.

105. LOVE is everywhere displayed in the Word of truth as the motive power of the gospel.

106. If as we were told that there was no necessity for the DEATH of Christ, then there was no necessity for his RESURRECTION: no necessity of our JUSTIFICATION through faith in him after he was raised (Rom. iv. 25), and if he has not ratified the everlasting covenant by his blood; and is therefore not the Mediator of that covenant, and did not love the church and give himself for it. Eph. v. 25.

Then what gospel have these people? And what is the motive power of that gospel if they have one?

The apostles said the love of Christ constrained them to love him. 2 Cor. v. 14.

If Christ has not manifested his love as above described, what moves these people to love him?

Is not the towering conceit that they can save themselves without his sacrificial death,—yes: is not that proof that they have little love for him?

If they do not love him for doing his Father's will in this respect, how can they love God, who, says Jesus, "So loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him might not perish, but have everlasting life?"

107. A message from him who declares himself to be the one who was dead, but now liveth to die no more, and moreover possesses the keys of the grave and of death, says Rev. iii. 11, "But that which ye have already, hold fast till I come." What were they holding fast to, at that time?

Answer, they still had a little strength; and were holding fast to his Word, and to his name, verse 8. The speaker was Christ, and therefore the expressions, "my Word" and "my name," must relate to him.

To hold fast or not to deny his name is the same as saying they had not denied him; and when we read in Malachi iii. 16, and iv. 2 of those that thought upon his name, it means that they thought of HIM; because Jesus says Matt. x. 33, "But whosoever shall deny ME before men, him will I also deny before my Father which is in heaven."

And to hold fast to him is to hold fast to his Word and work throughout his public ministry, and to all subsequent communications through the apostles, for, to hear his messengers is to hear him. Luke x. 16. It also embraces the divine truths and predictions through the prophets; for Christ having become the embodiment thereof, is now the "Word of God." Rev. xix. 3.

Hence the "Word of Christ dwells richly in all wisdom," (Col. iii. 16) in those who are "filled with the knowledge of God's will in all wisdom and spiritual understanding," (Col. i. 9) and they who believe and obey all the inspired Scriptures pertaining to the present dispensation, are keeping the Word of Christ.

108. The "name" of Christ is the name of salvation which was given to him as the result of his obedience to the death of the cross. Phil. ii. 8, 9. It, therefore, represents all that is involved in his redemptive work—the death which he abolished, the immortality which he "brought to light;" the way in which death came, and the principle on which immortality is bestowed.

To embrace error in regard to any portion of this work is, to that extent, "to deny" "the name" of Christ, and thereby jeopardize the crown of life," to which every believer is entitled when baptized into that saving Name.

The Lord knows with what sorrow of heart we have watched the destructive work going on, the last decade or two. There is only one aspect of the turning aside from the truth, and the universal religious declension of these days; and that is, it betokens a change; the conditions prevalent are just what the Lord predicted for the time of his coming.

109. To ignore the promise of the woman's Seed, and the principle of remission by blood-shedding, is to practically teach that there was no means of salvation for four thousand years.

110. But thank God, this delusion was anticipated; and the answer written out for us in Rom. iv. 3, "Abraham BELIEVED GOD, and IT, (his belief of God) was counted to him for righteousness."

We quote as follows from pamphlet: "If we consult the Old Testament, we shall see that all the wisest and best men recorded therein expected salvation solely on account of the good deeds they had done, or on account of their own personal righteousness and their repentance of what they had done amiss in the past."

We are not able to judge whether the writer does not know that a justified man is a righteous man,—or whether he simply rejects the Scripture which so flatly contradicts him. In either event he is in need of first principles himself, rather than an audience.

What a pity that the writer did not know something of what he was writing according to the Scriptures, he would t' . have been ashamed to have left the matter where he did.

He certainly ought to know that death passed upon all men because of Adam's sin: unless he disbelieves that story, too.

If God has lately abrogated that law of sin and death he ought to give us the date, and r'ow us his signature.

If he knows nothing about that,—then, after arranging a plan of his own for getting rid of PERSONAL offences, he should, in all honor, have explained to us what advantage to us it would be for PERSONAL sins to be passed over, if the original "Dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return," be in full operation.

If he has devised a plan whereby dead men can in some way back themselves out of the pit wherein there is no water, he certainly should have let us examined it, and pass upon it for ourselves.

111. From the fact that more than six thousand died in Cleveland in 1903, we know that death is still reaping a great harvest. But, although out of pure love, God devised a way by which his law would be honored, and yet death relinquish his hold upon his victims; our author is not pleased to accept it. He says the wisest and best men in the past expected to be saved by their good deeds. We have found him in error as to Abraham,—and now turn to Job. He said he would wait in the grave all the days of his appointed time,—and that some one would call, and he would answer. He was in no doubt whatever of the final issue. "I KNOW that MY REDEEMER LIVETH, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth, and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God, whom I shall see for myself, and mine eyes shall behold, and not another though my reins be consumed within me."

At fault again Mr. Author. Job probably lived near the commencement of the divine remedial scheme and had implicit faith in one who would redeem him from death.

Strange that our author has not been impressed with the deep solicitude Job manifested in him, and all like him, when he cried out, "O that my words were now written; that they were printed in a book! That they were graven with an iron pen and lead in the rock for ever."

The great God has taken care to give us his words; but apparently they do not suit our author. He needs no redeemer; although he, by special messenger from heaven, has informed us that he has the keys of death and the grave, showing that he intends to do just as he promised, raise up at the last day all who believe in him. John vi. 39.

112. The foundation of a new creation has been laid in one who is styled "the beginning of the creation of God." Rev. iii. 14. Without him there could be no new creatures; because in Eph. ii. 10 we find this language:—"For we are his workmanship CREATED IN CHRIST JESUS."

Now we are at the source of the changed condition of those said to be "washed," "sanctified," "justified," "reconciled," "purchased," "people of God," "heirs of salvation," "heirs of the kingdom," "heirs of the grace of life," "vessels of mercy," "sons of God," "the Lord's freemen," etc.

113. The life of the new creation is the result of Christ having abolished death. It was SUBSEQUENT to his death, that he "brought life and immortality to the light through the gospel." 2 Tim. i. 10. He brought life and immortality to light by illustrating them practically in his own person.

114. John in his first epistle, first chapter verses 1-3 testifies as follows respecting the life and immortality brought to light by Christ. "That which was from the beginning, which we have seen with our eyes, (not by faith) which we have looked upon (the real thing) and our hands have handled, of the Word of life.

"For the life (brought to light) was manifested, and we have seen it, and bear witness, and show unto you that eternal life which WAS WITH THE FATHER, and was manifested to us; (in the Son) that which we have seen and heard declare we unto you, that ye also may have fellowship with us (by believing our word, although ye did not witness it yourselves, as said the Lord, John xx. 29.) And truly our fellowship is with the Father, and with HIS SON," (not Joseph's).

115. The apostle further testifies chapter v. 12 that "He that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God HATH NOT LIFE."

116. Have they Christ, who deny that they are HIS by purchase? And deny that there was an absolute necessity for his death and resurrection; deny by implication the necessity for baptism into his death and into his name, for the remission of past sins? If not, have they any fellowship with the Father? Have they any claim upon the Son for life or inheritance? Is it not madness for men to allow the idea of the human paternity of Jesus to drive them to reject the salient points of the redemptive scheme? And practically call God a liar besides? John v. 10.

But even this rash and presumptive act is proof that they see that no mere son of Joseph, or any other man, born of the will of the flesh, could carry out the Bible scheme to put away sin; and so cast out the scheme, and invent one of their own.

117. It is as true now as when Jehovah said it, (Isa. lv. 8) "For my thoughts are not as your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith Jehovah." The statement "that the best of men in Old Testament times expected salvation by their own personal righteousness, reminded us of the passage just quoted; and also that in Isa. lxiv. 6, "But we are all as an unclean thing; and all our righteousness are as filthy rags; and we do all fade as a leaf, and our iniquities, like the wind have taken us away."

118. Line upon line seems necessary still; and so we call attention to the words of him who spake as never man spake, Matt. vi. 33, "But seek ye first the kingdom of God and HIS righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you;" [these temporalities shall be added].

When any man is justified from all sin, (by faith) Rom. v. 1., God counts him righteous, as he did Abraham, long ago. Rom. iv. 3. God's prescription for justification or righteousness is faith; the reason it is called his righteousness, is that it is his method of constituting men righteous. Rom. iv. 25. Our author locks the door against himself, and throws away the key.

Concerning the war there is little to be told. The past week has seen the Japs take a few steps forward and so tighten the lines about Port Arthur. Their positions enable them to pour their fire into the fortress, which is becoming daily more and more untenable. The Russians are fighting stubbornly, and the impression is given to them that the Japanese kill all their prisoners, so they may as well fight to the last. Around the neighborhood of Mukden the Japanese are as usual keeping their own counsel, but are supposed to be working round to get in position to strike at an unexpected quarter. The Czar has called for a large number of men, creating the idea that he will have 600,000 men in the field by next spring. Meanwhile Japan is hurrying as she must have a large advantage both on land and sea, if she is to maintain the struggle. There is excitement again regarding the Black Sea fleet, as a number of the ships have started on a cruise, and it is surmised they may pass out under cover of the night. An incident that gives color to this is that a number of coal ships have passed the Dardanelles, provided with apparatus to coal vessels at sea. So many reports come from day to day that are often contradictory in character, that we can only wait patiently for the outcome. The peace talk is still kept up by outside nations, and whether any combination of powers would be of sufficient weight to force Russia to accept peace, is an open question.

Love is the greatest thing that God can give us, for himself is love; and it is the greatest thing we can give God, for it will also give ourselves and carry with it all that is ours. The apostle calls it the bond of perfection; it is the old, and it is the new; it is the great commandment, and it is all the commandments, for it is the fulfilling of the law.

Have these three things always present in your minds: What you were, what you are now, and what you will be.

Diligence is a balm for grief.

The 2300 Period. Dan. viii. 14.

2300 what? (C. V.) "Days, mar. evening, morning" (R. V.) "evenings and morning" (Leesers ver.) "evenings and mornings." "This shall be a continual burnt-offering throughout your generations at the door of the tabernacle before the Lord." Ex. xxix. 38-42. This sacrifice was a national ordinance, performed by the priests of the nation, at the national tabernacle. It was not the act of, or for an individual. Each sacrifice of the continual burnt-offering was alike and complete, it did not take a pair to make a whole one. The original name "continual burnt-offering" and "evening and morning" were the proper names of his particular sacrifice, as distinguishing it from other sacrifices.

The 2300 period consists of evening and morning sacrifices, and not of days. "Daily sacrifices" is not found in Dan. in the R. V. Therefore in using this sacrifice for a measure would be one sacrifice and not a pair, so that 2300 sacrifices would be 1150 days.

What does the 2300 period measure? It was given in answer to a question concerning the duration of certain calamitous events mentioned in v. 13, which the prophet had seen. Vs. 10-12.

"How long shall be the vision concerning the daily sacrifice and the transgression of desolation to give both the sanctuary and host to be trodden under foot?" (C. V.)

"How long shall be the vision concerning the continual burnt-offering and the transgression that maketh desolate, to give both the sanctuary and host to be trodden under foot? (R. V.)

How long is the vision concerning the continual sacrifice and the wasting transgression to give up both the sanctuary and host to be trodden under foot?" (Leeser's Ver.)

Therefore it seems that the 2300 measures the vision or sight concerning the six things mentioned in the question. It does not measure the life or career of the little horn or any of the events seen in verses 3-9. All the things mentioned in the question, the sacrifice, transgression, desolation, sanctuary, host, treading under foot, were real literal things, none were symbols, therefore their measure 2300 would not be symbolic. Moreover the question and answer were a part of the explanation of the vision, and explanations are literal.

Some quote the question thus: "How long shall be the vision?" thereby making the question and period include all the things seen in verses 8-12. I believe this is not a full or fair statement of the question, and it does not harmonize with the four emphatic statements, 'The vision belongeth to the time of the end." v. 17. "Behold, I will make thee know what shall be in the latter time of the indignation, for it belongeth to the appointed time of the end," v. 18. "It shall be for many days to come," v. 26, (R. V.)

The 2300 evening and morning period probably commences at the taking away period of the continual burnt-offering, v. 11. (R. V.) as do the periods in xii. 11-12, but is not as long as they for the things seen in viii. 12 do not reach to "the end of these wonders." xii. 1-3.

Read at Indiana Conference.

Dear brethren of like precious faith and hope in Christ, in Conference assembled at Hillsburg:

I had earnestly desired to enjoy with you this gathering together in person, but conditions of ill health, while not serious, nevertheless render it imprudent to do so. Though absent in person, I shall be with you in spirit, beholding your spiritual edification and enjoyment. Unable to mingle with you in living voice, permit me to do so in few words by the pen. When I think of this annual gathering from many places in Indiana, wherein years past I have enjoyed sweet communion with kindred spirits, some of whom I had been the humble instrument in assisting them in the way of adoption into the family of God through him who is our righteousness, wisdom, sanctification and redemption; O how sweet it would be to see you, grasp your hands and greet you again face to face and heart to heart while yet in the flesh. But then we would have to part and say "good bye," and continue the fight of faith. But when we contemplate the general assembly (or, "full assembly and congregation of first borns, having been enrolled in the heavens, Diaglott), when the warfare shall be ended and the spirit birth accomplished, when we shall nevermore say "good bye," O how inexpressibly more joyful will this assembling be, even the hope of which is full of joy. Let us each ask ourselves, Is my name written there? Will my name be blotted out of the book of life? Rev. iii. We have the assurance that to the overcomer it will not, but instead the promise, "I will confess his name before my Father and before his angels." "And this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." 1 John v. 4. Not a mere profession of faith, but a live, working faith. A "faith that worketh by love" (Gal. v. 4): a faith that overcomes the selfishness of the fleshly mind, a faith begotten through the word of truth and developed through exercise, so that we may become one in spirit, mind and purpose with the Christ, as he and his Father are one. John xvii. If we really and truly believe in him, it must engender in us a like spirit of love, of humility, of service, of self sacrifice and obedience through love. Thus are we sanctified by God the Father, and preserved in Jesus the Anointed, and called. Jude 1. Yes, he has called us according to his own purpose and grace. 2 Tim. i. 9. He has called us by the gospel to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. 2 Thess. ii. 14. He has called us to his glory and kingdom. 1 Thes. ii. 12. It is his purpose that his kingdom shall break in pieces and consume all others and stand forever, and that it shall be so administered as to rule the world in justice, equity and love, until God's will shall be done in earth as it is in heaven. It is also his purpose and promise that those who suffer with him now for righteousness' sake, shall reign with him in righteousness and glory, to bless all nations, as written in the covenant. What a calling! Truly, as written, a high and heavenly calling. Let us give all diligence, endeavoring to walk worthy of the vocation, with all lowliness and meekness, with longsuffering, forbearing one another in love. To this end, may this Conference prove an inspiration and lasting help, by inciting to love and good works. The day of deliverance is nearing. We are not left in darkness as to its approaching. The Master said, referring thereto, "Many false prophets shall rise and shall deceive many. And because iniquity shall abound, the love of many shall wax cold." Thus we see it today. Therefore let us remember with especial heed the exhortation of Jude to the called, when speaking of the scoffers in the last time, walking after their own lusts, "But ye, beloved, building up yourselves on your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Spirit, keep yourselves in the love of God, looking for the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life."

D. T. Halstead.

Let the Light Shine.

It is our duty to let our light shine brightly and constantly. As the moon shines the brightest when it is full, with none of the earth between it and the sun; so it should be with our lives—none of the earth between us and Christ. I have been told that ships are built covered with brass, and when brightly polished by the sailors, so reflect the sun that it blinds ones eyes to look upon them. It requires a great deal of labor to keep the brass polished, and it requires a great deal of perseverance to constantly obey our Savior's command to "watch." The command is: Arise, shine. How? By being filled with the Spirit, keeping humble, watching that self does not get in for a single moment, and obeying constantly the Spirit's leading. Where are we to shine? Wherever there is darkness, ignorance, or misery of any kind, yes, everywhere we go. I feel that I should be very careful in every sentence I utter, that it be exactly what God wants me to say; but how very many times I fail.—C. S. W., in "Words of Faith."

Life means more to a man who knows the Scriptures. It has more in it, and above it. He knows that he has a Redeemer, and, come what will, that Redeemer will be with him. He knows that he is God's child, away from home it may be, but still his child. He knows that he has a home that no one can take from him, and no matter what comes to him in this world, that home is sure and his happiness is sure and his fellowships are sure, and the more he thinks about it all the more grateful he is for it all; but what would he know about it, and where would his hope be, if it were not for the Word of God, "the infallible and only rule of faith and practice."—United Presbyterian.

Poetry.

Patience.

Ye have great need, O weary hand
When sunset's gold shall flood the land,
And find thy daily task undone
While evening shadows slowly come,
But rest is here, and rest is thine
"It shall be light at evening time."

Ye have great need, O watchful eye
So often raised to one on high.
Watching for light to rift the cloud
While earth is wrapt in night's dark shroud,
Though tears may fall like ceaseless rain
Thine eye shall brighten soon again.

Ye have great need, O weary feet
Whose restless fevered pulses beat
O'er thorny path and rocky height
In noontides heat, or starless night:
But on the crystal river's shore
Is peace and rest for evermore.

Ye have great need, O weary heart
Whose quiv'ring cords would gladly part
If but the burning cross be given
Beneath the loving hand of heaven—
Today forget the cruel strife
And crown with patience all your life.

"Rest in the Lord, and wait for him"
Though days be dark and hope be dim,
Through mantye-fires with naked feet
Be loyal still, while heart shall beat,
For hope and promise both are shine
"It shall be light at eventime."

The Way of Obedience.

The way of obedience is the way of life. There is no other. We cannot take our own way and hope to live forever. To build on our own righteousness is to build on the treacherous sand by the sea. Guilt must be covered by a stainless robe. There is only one such robe, and only one way to get to it on. It is formed by the blood and righteousness of Christ; the blood washes away the guilt, the righteousness of the sinless one covers every stain. How precious the little lake or river where we may be buried into the name of Jesus! And rising know that God has forgiven! Believe the gospel; believe that your heavenly home will be the earth made new, believe that this same earth is to be the seat of Christ's glorious throne, go be baptized and work in the vineyard of the Lord, and find salvation and rest. Never, my young friends, say that if you do not lie, or steal, or do any other wicked thing, God ought to save you. Why had he? You do not belong to him; he has not promised to save you, until you do become a prospective citizen of his commonwealth. His terms are absolute. You must obey, obedience is the test.

Multiplied thousands have stumbled here. They could not give up. It was too hard a thing to go under the water; too dreadful a death for pride and self will to endure. And yet, how small the matter when we think of what is beyond! A few moments and the act that makes us God's is done, the cross has been borne, the crucifixion is over. And when once bound to God, we become strong to go on doing his will and his work. Why then stop at the gate? Why refuse to obey? God wants obedient subjects and obedient rulers. Disobedience makes anarchy. That home is a hell where children disobey, that State a place to flee from, where the citizens break the laws with impurity, who ever disobeys is a rebel. We may refrain from doing things that God tells us not to do and yet sin in refusing to do things that he tells us to do. There is the positive as well as the negative side. We may be all right as to the negative side, or feel that we are and yet be all wrong as to the positive. Feeling happy does not give us assurance of eternal life, but God's Word does. How many have said, "If I could only know that I was forgiven and was God's child how happy I would be." It is the language of unbelief. God means what he says, when he utters the words, "Be baptized for the remission of sins, he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." There is absolute certainty here if there is faith and obedience. But obeying the ordinances of men will not do, believing a gospel not taught in the Bible will not save. We do not find Jesus, we do not come to him as our Savior until we come to him in God's way, believing the gospel of the kingdom and being buried in the likeness of his death and resurrection. This is plain language and may seem harsh, but it is the only really kind and charitable way to talk to the lost, if we do not, want the blood of souls on our hands. It is too solemn a matter to trifle about. God help us one and all to be faithful to our calling! The wicked one cannot be saved until he turns from his evil way and does that which is lawful and right, and if he becomes not obedient now after hearing the message of love and life, he never will. He chooses death, and will die a second death from which he will never rise.

AUNTIE WINCE.

What Next.

In my opinion we are now in the time of the end, and will soon reach the time when Jesus will come for his saints. The war in the far east is the most terrible in the destruction of human life of any war of modern times. Think of it, in the battle of Liaoyang there were 400,000 troops engaged, using 600 cannon, which were fired at the rate of 60 shells per minute for twelve hours. Think of 43,200 of the most murderous and destructive shells ever manufactured, being fired into the ranks of 400,000 human beings within the short space of twelve hours How long can the world, to say nothing of Russia and Japan, stand this awful destruction of human life.

When the present contestants are exhausted, then what? Will the strife cease? There may be a lull for a time, but ere long the conflict will go on with renewed vigor.

The question is asked, Can it be true that our good, kind, peace-loving Father is permitting all this destruction of human life? Yes, it is true. He has a great purpose to accomplish. He is going to bring peace out of war. He will remove the evil and preserve the good. He will take sin out of the world and fill it with righteousness. He will bind and imprison Satan, and establish a righteous rulership under King Immanuel. He will cause the knowledge of the Lord to fill the earth as the waters cover the sea. He will cause all to come to a knowledge of the Lord, whom to know aright is life eternal. God still rules, and will continue to rule, in the affairs of the human family. We stand appalled at the magnitude of the mighty works of God. From his standpoint the death of 100,000 persons counts but little. With one wave of the hand, with one spoken word, he can bring them all to life again. He does great things as easily and readily as he does small things.

It is a sad thing to contemplate the terrible suffering which is coming upon the Japanese and the Russians as the result of this war. They are in the hands of a just and generous Father, who doeth all things well. There is no hope of the world becoming better until Jesus comes. While it makes us sad to witness the great suffering caused by this terrible war, let us rejoice in the statements of Jesus when he said Lift up your heads and rejoice when you see these things come to pass, for your redemption draweth nigh.

Come Lord Jesus and come quickly.

Table Talk.

THE SHEPHERD'S PSALM.

The Lord is my Shepherd; I shall not want.

I shall not want rest.—He maketh me to lie down in green pastures.

I shall not want drink. He leadeth me beside the still waters.

I shall not want forgiveness. He restoreth my soul.

I shall not want guidance. He leadeth me in the paths of righteousness, for his name's sake.

I shall not want companionship. Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death. I will fear no evil, for thou art with me.

I shall not want comfort. Thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me.

I shall not want food. Thou preparest a table before me in the presence of mine enemies.

I shall not want joy. Thou anointest my head with oil.

I shall not want anything—My cup runneth over.

I shall not want anything in this life. Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life.

I shall not want anything in eternity—for I will dwell in the house of the Lord forever.

MRS. S. A. CRAWFORD.

THE GREAT SHEPHERD.

The Great Shepherd, our Lord Jesus Christ, is also called the Chief Shepherd. The word shepherd is used so many times in both the Old and New Testament, as the shepherds were the leaders of the flocks in that country, and to care for the sheep was a great responsibility, for the hills were full of beasts and robbers. Ezekiel reproves the leaders, and calls them shepherds. Woe be to the shepherds of Israel, that do feed themselves. Should not shepherds feed the flock? My sheep wandered all through the mountains and upon every high hill my flock was scattered upon all the face of the earth, and none did seek or search after them. Thus saith the Lord, I am against the shepherds. I will require my flock at their hands. Behold, I even I, will both search my flock and seek them out. I will bring them to their own land, and feed them in good pastures. He shall gather the lambs with his arms, and carry them in his bosom, and gently lead the flock. I will bring back that which was driven away, and I will set up one shepherd over them, and he shall feed them. And ye my flock, ye are men and I am your God.

Israel had many false shepherds that led the sheep astray, but God promises to bring them back to their own land, and give them one shepherd; even my servant David, he shall feed them, and he shall be their shepherd.

But the Great Shepherd, our Shepherd: what has he done for us, the sheep of his pasture? When I think of all he has done and will do for his flock, I am lost in wonder. Tongue or pen cannot express his goodness, his love, for he gave his life that we might have eternal life. When the Chief Shepherd shall appear ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away. Yes, our Great Shepherd gave his life and was raised from the dead, for God's covenant is sure, for all nations are to be blessed in Christ, all the flocks that are scattered will be brought back and found, for it is written He came to seek and to save that which was lost, to bind up the broken hearted, to proclaim liberty to the captives.

There were shepherds in Israel that fed the flock on the true words of life, that told of the coming King; yet when he came he was despised and rejected. But God promised his blessing to the true shepherds, and his blessing will be upon those today who are telling of the coming of the Great Shepherd, who are feeding the flock on the sure word, who are telling of the glorious promises; when Israel will be gathered, and there shall be one shepherd and one fold.

May God hasten the day.

In Memoriam.

Having been personally acquainted with the late Brother Daniel Howard, the notice of whose sad death I saw in THE RESTITUTION of Sept. 7th, I will say that during the time he lived in Virginia, soon after his marriage to Abbie A. Perry, now deceased, they lived quite near us in Winchester, and in the time of my husband's pilgrimage, we with Brother Howard and family, spent many pleasant hours. They were both dear Christian friends with whom we took sweet council, and walked to the house of God in company. They often spoke for us at our place of worship, and we missed them sadly when they moved away.

I know he must have spent a lonely life after her departure. I read his letters in the paper, which serve as gentle reminders of our assembling together to listen to his interesting descriptions of the Holy Land. I have several articles which he brought from there, among them a folding basket made of olive wood, with Hebrew inscriptions, which Sister Howard gave me. She was very loath to leave Winchester, but Brother Howard seemed to be of a traveling disposition, and they moved to Dover, Delaware, and lived there a few years, and from there to Connecticut, where Sister Howard died in January, 1900. We had been correspondents long before we ever met, and I enjoyed her letters very much until the enemy death separated us. Now our only hope of meeting again is in the resurrection morning; then it is that we hope to meet our loved ones who have long been sleeping in the death state.

We look to Him who is the resurrection and the life to unlock the prison house of the grave, and bid us come forth, as he did Lazarus of old. Our Lord said, I am he that was dead and behold I am alive forevermore; and he also said, As I live ye shall live also.

Let us all strive to attain to the resurrection of the just.

Yours in hope.

Conference Report.

Promptly at 7:30, Thursday, Sept. 8, the annual Conference of Indiana was called to order at Hillisburg by the President. Meeting was opened in a manner befitting the occasion and an address of welcome was given by Brother Wm. Huffer, Elder of the church at that place. Bro. Huffer spoke of the pioneers of this country coming to worship God according to the dictates of their own conscience, and this freedom being what permits us to assemble in the present Conference.

At 7:45 Bro. Zilmer spoke on the subject of "Christian Character," a very fitting subject to exhort those already in the faith. A few short extracts of the sermon are, "We will be safe as long as we feed on the truths of the Bible." "Let the Word of Christ dwell in you richly." "Whatsoever you do whether in word or deed, do all in the name of Jesus."

Friday 10:00 a. m. sermon by Bro. Hatch, subject, "Making our calling and election sure." Do this by giving heed to the Scriptures. Give all diligence to make our calling and election sure."

Your Evangelist Committee organized by selecting A. R. Underwood, Chairman, T. O. Taber, Treasurer, and J. F. Wagoner, Secretary. During the year orders have been drawn on the treasury for $235.80. We find that it has been impossible to secure the services regularly of Bro. Zilmer for exclusive evangelist work. His visits to various churches demonstrate the fact that many of the weak churches need more preaching and we recommend that you take some action to secure an evangelist that can devote a large share of his time to the work in this state.

Respectfully submitted.

Report of Rally Meeting.

The band of workers at Niagara Falls were much pleased over the meeting held Sept. 4th. On Saturday evening Bro. and Sister McClennan of Woodstock, Bro. and Sister Robinson of Hatchley, and Sister Beamer of Hamilton, Ont., as vanguard arrived, which showed at once that there were some looking with anticipation to the day's gathering. Sunday morning visiting brethren came in from all directions, several from Fonthill, Welland, Virgil, Ransomville, North Pelham, Buffalo, Bro. and Sister Evans from Paris, Bro. Mason, Toronto, and others were present.

The religious studies began with Sunday school, 10 a. m., followed by speaking by Bro. F. L. Austin, subject, "Man shall not live by bread alone. But by every Word that proceedeth out of the mouth of the Lord shall man live. Bro. Bouk officiated at the communion table at 12 noon. At 3 p. m. Bro. Oakley of Buffalo took charge of the services, and introduced the following brethren, Reece, Evans, Mason, who each spoke with earnestness. The largest house gathered in the evening at which the subject, "God shall cause righteousness and praise to spring forth before all nations," was very ably presented by Bro. Austin, the audience listening as if fastened to their seats. It seemed that it was a joyful day for all. Truly it was good to be there. After the singing of the hymn, "God be with you till we meet again," Bro. Austin dismissed the meeting by prayer. During the time we were all taking leave of each other many were the good wishes bestowed upon the resident brethren and their pastor, prophesying great things for the peculiar people at Niagara Falls.

We regretted very much the absence of Bro. and Sister Platts. Sister Platts was present at the morning service, but had to return at once about four miles, where she had left Bro. Platts, who had been taken sick on his way to the meeting. It is with much satisfaction that we announce to all who were present, that the said brother has entirely recovered. We hope some time again to be able to invite all interested to a similar meeting in the near future. Meanwhile may the Father's blessing attend all, and may we be kept steadfast in such close union as to prove to all men that we are children of God, zealous of good works. We thank God with all of like precious faith, that through him we have victory in and through Christ. Therefore my brethren be ye steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the works of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord. 1 Cor. xv. 58.

"We" are a body of religious people who, as such, "believe" something. We believe the teaching of the Word of God. This is our rule of faith and practice. But what does the Word teach as essential matters of "faith and practice?" Do we as a people uniformly hold to the great foundation principles of faith as set forth in the Word of God? Are our public ministers a unit on the things to be taught and believed in order to salvation? In short: Have we a faith? If so, what is that faith? What does the Word of God teach us as essential to true faith and practice? We have answered these questions in a very concise and yet comprehensive way in the upper right hand corner of our paper, THE RESTITUTION. The object of these lines is to say that, since writing a series of articles for THE RESTITUTION on "What We Believe," quite a number of requests, both verbal and written, have come to the undersigned asking that said articles be published in book form. They will make a book of about 60 pages, making 15 chapters in all. Such a book should sell for 15 cents per copy. Now, brother and sister, this concerns you. Do you desire the publication of this work for distribution among such who ask, "What do you believe?" If so, please write to the undersigned at Plymouth, Ind., saying how many copies you want at 15 cents per copy. Write on postal. Send no money until notice is given that the work will be published.

A. H. ZILMER.

Editor Restitution:

Please find post office order for $1.50 for THE RESTITUTION for another year. There are only three of us and we all read it. My daughter said yesterday she did not believe she could keep house without it. When we read of all the good meetings we get heart-hungry to hear the glad tidings. When Bro. Wilson visited Louisiana, he seemed so near. We longed to have him come, but were not able to send for him. I believe he could have done good, but we must wait the Lord's time. Pray for us. I have been in the truth for over twenty years, but the others are new converts.

Your Sister in Christ.

F. L. BENDY.

To the Church of God in Ohio:

Brethren beloved in the Lord, by the Ohio Conference at Salem, Ohio, Sept. 3, we were elected evangelists for the State. We are ready, willing and anxious to preach the gospel of the kingdom, that others may obtain a hope of eternal life. Dear brothers and sisters, let us all strive to make our calling and election sure by self denial and sacrifice, that the truth to salvation may be freely preached. We will answer calls together or apart, and preach the glad tidings to few or many, in doors or out, but our chief desire is the welfare of the Church of God. Address us at 300 W. Main St. Salem, O.

P. NEILL & MRS. MATTIE NEILL.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the doners request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trust worthy.

Announcement.

The third Annual Conference of the Church of God in Southern Illinois will be held at Moriah, Clark Co., Illinois, beginning October 1st, and continuing until October 10th, 1904. We have implored Bro. O. J. Allard, Iowa, and Bro. A. H. Zilmer of Plymouth, Ind., and Bro. S. T. Hook of Ind., and perhaps other speakers will be here to preach the glad tidings of the soon coming kingdom. Thus far our Conferences have proved a feast of good things and we trust that this one will be no exception. We hope to have faithful attendance from home brothers and sisters and friends, and cordially invite all from other societies who can possibly come, and may the isolated ones grasp this rare opportunity of meeting with their co-workers. We will arrange the program from day to day as we go along. We invite the Bereans all to come that can, for we will give you as much time as you will want to occupy. Please let all that come by railroad write Bro. Z. E. Brant of Moriah, Ill., what date you will come to the Conference and he will meet you at Casey, Ill., and take you to the Conference. May the Lord not withhold His blessing from us at that time.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended

Popular Lectures by M. Joblin.

Brethren and Sisters, Have you loved ones who think sincerity will save them? Have you friends who think they worship acceptably while ignorant of God's promises? Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? If so, send for Popular Lectures by Bro. Joblin, entitled:—"The Kingdom of God;" "Old Mother Earth to Be Born Again;" "Strangers from the Covenants of Promise;" "Vain Worship;" "No Immortality Out of Christ;" "Hope Begotten by the Resurrection of Christ;" "God's Love and Solicitude for Mankind;" and "What Shall We Do to be Saved?"

VOLUME LIII. Read PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCT. 5, 1904. NUMBER 37.

The Restitution

THE RESTITUTION advocates the restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PEACE.

There is a peace that cometh after sorrow,
Of hope surrendered, not of hope fulfilled:
A peace that looketh not upon tomorrow,
But calmly on a tempest that is stilled.

A peace which lives not now in joy's excesses,
Nor in the happy life of love secure,
But in the unerring strength the heart possesses
Of conflicts won, while learning to endure.

A peace there is, in sacrifice secluded,
A life subdued, from self and passion free;
'Tis not the peace that over Eden brooded,
But that which triumphed in Gethsemane.

REPORT OF SISTERS' MEETINGS.

Thinking that some of the sisters from different parts of the State might be interested in the work of our Society, that they might be inspired to meet together in the same capacity, I will give a condensed report of the work of our meeting.

Since assembling here last year definite changes have been made in the manner of conducting our meetings. Instead of meeting in the morning and sewing, the proceeds from which was used in defraying church expenses; we now meet in the afternoon, but in order to keep up a fund which the sewing created, the sister at whose house the meeting is held contributes fifty cents, which being added to the regular dues of ten cents for each member, has proven sufficient to meet all demands thus far. We are endeavoring to have our meeting more of a spiritual character that we may edify and build each other up in our most holy faith. The change seems to be satisfactory to all the members as we have more time to devote to our spiritual needs.

Our meeting is always opened with prayer and after the usual routine the reports of the visiting committee is heard. We try to look after any who are sick or in distress, sending some little delicacy to the sick and giving financial aid where it is needed. We try to heed the apostle's advice and do good unto all as we find opportunity, wherever they are found. We have several times assisted a worthy brother in Canada also a sister in England, besides contributing to the helping fund of THE RESTITUTION. By co-operating in this way we have been enabled to perform many benevolent acts which we otherwise could not have done.

At the close of our business meeting we have a Bible study which has been very interesting and beneficial to all. We are now studying the book of Acts. After reading and commenting on a chapter one or more papers are read on some practical points of the lesson. Many have expressed themselves as being benefited spiritually by these little gatherings. Much of the success of our meetings is due to the efforts of our Sister Neill who was for years president prior to her removal to Salem, since then to our Sister Lang who has very effectually filled her place.

CONFERENCE LESSON.

"Let us labor therefore to enter into that rest." Heb. iv. 11. Paul has been speaking of the rest awaiting the children of Israel, when they should reach the promised land. For forty years they wandered in the wilderness, murmuring and complaining against the God who had brought them out of their bondage, and even wishing they had remained in Egypt; but though they so often deviated from the commands given them, God had promised them their own land where they would have rest from their wanderings and their enemies. Only two of the original number who left Egypt entered into the rest promised them. The others could not enter because of unbelief and died in the wilderness. What a sad record. A rest had been promised them but they proved themselves unworthy of it.

Dearly beloved, a rest has also been promised to us. Paul says, "There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God." A rest far more refreshing than that pledged to the Israelites of old. Do we desire such a rest? I am sure all here would answer in the affirmative. Jesus said, "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest, take my yoke upon you and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy and my burden is light." Jesus is the medium through whom this rest can be acquired. We must learn of him, learn his commands and his promises; believe and obey them from the heart, then labor to enter into that rest. We are to labor diligently. After long and severe toil how sweet and refreshing is our rest. It is the same in the spiritual, if we labor ardently to overcome the many, many temptations that beset us on every side and "purify ourselves even as he is pure," how sweet and satisfying will be our rest. But it will require strenuous effort on our part to fit ourselves for that blessed and eternal rest. A rest from all care and anxiety, from all sorrow, sickness and death. Is it not worth striving for?

Paul suffered the loss of all things, but he counted it as nothing, if by any means he might attain unto the resurrection of the dead and enter into that rest. So we must be willing to suffer many things too, for they who will live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution, but it will only be for a moment in comparison to an eternity of joy and peace and rest.

Let us use the talent that is given us so we may present it to our Master with a tenfold increase. There is always work to be done. This brings to mind one of our Sunday school hymns.

Oh, while the moments linger,
There's work for us to do;
The Master bids us labor,
And to his cause be true.

Oh, plead not vain excuses,
There's work for every one;
There are kind words to be spoken,
And kind deeds to be done.

Let us strive to know and to do all his commands. What are some of those commands? I will mention but two or three. Jesus tells us that pure religion and undefiled is to visit the fatherless and the widows in their affliction, and to keep ourselves unspotted from the world. This one command will give us plenty of work to do. It is a constant struggle to keep ourselves from being contaminated with the evil on every hand, but the command would not have been given were it impossible to comply with it.

Then great good may be done by visiting the fatherless and the widows in their affliction; the sick may also be mentioned, for Jesus speaks of this and says, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these my brethren, ye have done it unto me." This is something us sisters can do. We are apt to plead vain excuses, but this is a labor of love we can all do, to visit those in distress and speak words of comfort and encouragement to them. How it lightens a heavy heart to see the smiling face of one we love and hear a few words of comfort from their lips. Dear sisters, let us do more visiting in the household and always direct our conversation as becometh the gospel of Christ.

Again we are commanded to preach the Word. But some may say, "I cannot preach," true, we are not all preachers but we can help to hold up the hands of those who can. Some of us have duties of this character at home and indeed we should esteem it a great privilege to have the Word delivered to us each first day, and we must not neglect our obligations then. But the help derived is principally for our own enlightenment and encouragement. What are we doing for the thousands around us who are in darkness? We now have an evangelist who can go from place to place preaching the Word of life. Ought we not to deem it just as much of a duty and a privilege to help him proclaim the glorious gospel of the kingdom to others? I think so. Then let us one and all give freely and cheerfully, that he may be kept busy in the Master's vineyard during the coming year. Oh let us all labor diligently in whatever is given us to do, that we may have that sweet rest promised to all those who now labor in his vineyard.

May we all be there is my prayer.

MRS. MATTIE TOMLINSON.

WOMEN OF THE BIBLE.

Dear brothers and sisters:

I am rejoiced to meet so many of you here at this meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society of the Cleveland Church.

Some of you were members of the society when we first organized some nine years ago. You remember we were desirous of becoming better acquainted with one another, and thus be able to help bear one another's burdens, and also thought if we took up a small collection each meeting, we would be able to do more for the cause of God collectively than individually, and moreover, the sum collected was not to be kept, but was to be placed where it would relieve distress, or do good, or advance the cause, and so the Aid Society of the Cleveland church was organized. What a happy thought it was, and what pleasure we have had together in meeting to talk of the good things in store for those who love the Lord, and how thankful we have been that we could relieve distress, as well as give to advance the cause we love so much, and because I am now deprived of meeting with you regularly I am the more pleased to meet so many of you today. Since we have proved that in unity there is strength, let us go on with the good work, and occupy till the Master comes, and dear sisters, for our special encouragement I wish to mention a few of the women we read of in the Bible, and trust it may stimulate us to still greater efforts for God and for truth, and steadfastness of purpose on our part. Turning to the book of Judges we read of Deborah, the prophetess, who judged Israel. She sent word to Barak, that the Lord God of Israel had commanded that he take ten thousand men and go up against Jabin and Sisera. Barak said to her, if thou wilt go with me, then I will go, but if thou wilt not go with me, then I will not go. She did not say she would not go, for she trusted in the God of Israel, who, she said would go before him and deliver them into his hand, so she said, Surely I will go with thee, but it will not be for thine honor, for the Lord will deliver them into the hand of a woman, so Deborah and Barak delivered Israel. Deborah was a woman of ability and courage, and had all faith in the God of Israel.

Turning now to the book of Ruth, we read of Naomi who went with her husband and two sons to dwell in the land of Moab because of the famine in Judah. Naomi's husband died, and her sons married two of the women of Moab. After dwelling there about ten years, both sons died, and then Naomi determined to return to her own land for she had heard that God had visited them again, giving them bread. She called her daughters-in-law to her, kissed them and told them to go each to her mother's house. They wept and said, surely we will go with thee, but Naomi said, not so, go your way. Ruth pleaded to go with her, but Naomi replied, see thy sister-in-law is gone back unto her people, and unto her gods, return thou after thy sister-in-law, but Ruth said, Entreat me not to leave thee, or to return from following after thee, for whither thou goest I will go, and where thou lodgest, I will lodge; thy people shall be my people and thy God my God; where thou diest, will I die, and there will I be buried. Although Naomi had dwelt more than ten years in the land of Moab, she did not forget the one living and true God, the God of Israel, and had taught her daughters-in-law to worship him. One returned to her people and her gods (worshiping of idols), and the other remained faithful to Naomi and to the God of Israel. Ruth was mother of Obed, who was grandfather of David. In this story of Naomi and Ruth is a beautiful lesson of devotion to God, and love for each other, which we can read and profit by.

Another woman is Queen Esther who offered herself a sacrifice for her people. She had neither father or mother, and was taken by her uncle Mordecai and brought up as his own. When king Ahasuerus made Esther queen, he did not know her people were Jews, for Mordecai had instructed her not to tell. There was one Haman whom the king promoted and gave him a seat above all the princes in his house, and had commanded that they all bow to him and give him reverence, but Mordecai would not do so, and Haman was full of wrath, and determined to destroy him and all his people. So he went to the king and told him there was a people scattered throughout his kingdom whose laws were different, they did not keep the king's laws, and that it was not to his profit to keep them, and if it please the king, let it be written that they be destroyed. So it was written that they were to be given to Haman, to do with them as it seemed good to him. He then had letters sent by post into all the king's provinces to destroy and to kill all Jews, young and old, little children and women, in one day, and a copy of the writing was to be published unto all people that they should be ready against that day. When Mordecai heard it he rent his clothes, and put on sackcloth and ashes and went to the king's gate and cried with a loud and bitter cry. Esther sent to know what was the matter, and Mordecai sent her a copy of the writing, and told her she must go to the king and supplicate him and request that he save her people. Esther sent back word, that the law was, that no man or woman was allowed to go into the inner court to the king, on penalty of death, and that she had not seen the king for thirty days. There was but one escape and that was, if the king held out to any a golden sceptre, they were not to be put to death. So Mordecai sent word to her again, who knows but thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this? Now was her time of trial, did she fail, no, she sent word back, I will go to the king and if I perish, I perish. So you see she offered herself to save her people; and the result was, the king held out to her the golden sceptre, and she was able to save her people, and Mordecai was placed next to the king, and the Jews had joy and gladness, and the wicked Haman was hanged on the gallows which had been prepared for Mordecai.

We now turn to Luke and read the angel's message to Mary, fear not, thou hast found favor with God; when we read what she said to her cousin Elisabeth, we know why she found favor with God. She said, My soul doth magnify the Lord, for he that is mighty hath done to me great things, he hath holpen his servant Israel in remembrance of his mercy, as he spake to our fathers to Abraham, and to his seed forever. So, then, Mary knew, and they had faith in the precious promises made by God to the fathers, and lived in hope of them. Oh, let us too continue in the faith of Abraham, and wait for the fulfilment of God's promises.

We turn next to Acts xvi. 14, and we read of Lydia, a seller of purple and fine linen. After she and her household were baptized, she said to Paul, If ye judge me to be faithful to the Lord, come to my house and abide there, and he did, this was what she could do to help Paul, and she was willing to do what she could.

Then Paul speaks of Aquila and Priscilla, whom he met at Corinth and with whom he stayed, because they were of the same craft as he, tent-makers. They went with Paul to Ephesus and there remained, and when Apollos came, of whom it is written, He was mighty in the Scriptures, was instructed in the way of the Lord, was fervent in spirit and spake and taught diligently the things of the Lord but knowing only the baptism of John, whom when Aquila and Priscilla heard, they took and expounded to him the way of God more perfectly. And Paul says of them in the 16th of Romans, Greet Priscilla and Aquila, my helpers in Christ Jesus, who have for my life laid down their own necks, were willing you see, to be living sacrifices for the cause of God.

Then again Paul says, Salute Tryphena and Tryphos who labor in the Lord, also the beloved Persis who labored much in the Lord. Speaking of those who labor in the Lord, there is always need of them as much today as when Jesus said to his disciples, The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few, pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he send forth laborers into the harvest. So then, dear sisters, let us take fresh courage, and may the example of these faithful women of the Bible inspire us with renewed zeal, that we be rooted and grounded in the truth, and continue to labor for the salvation of some both by precept and example, and when Jesus comes to reward his servants, may we all be among that happy number who will hear the Well done, good and faithful servants, enter into the joy of thy Lord. Amen.

MRS. P. NEILL.

Dear Sisters:

I have chosen for my subject the 5th verse of the 17th chapter of Luke, "And the apostles said unto the Lord, Increase our faith." We know that without faith it is impossible to please God and what the apostles asked for let us not be afraid to ask for ourselves, for the more faith we have the more we will cherish our blessed hope. It will bring an increase of every spiritual grace and blessing. For what do we want this increase? 1st, For knowledge. We are told in I Peter iii. 18 to grow in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ and by studying our views of the Savior will be enlarged. Eph. iii. 17-19, "That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye being rooted and grounded in love, may be able to comprehend with all saints what is the breadth and length and depth and height; and to know the love of Christ which passeth all knowledge, that ye might be filled with all the fullness of God. When we have knowledge we will become established in the simplicity and fulness of the gospel. 2nd, For duty, that we may maintain a more abiding love of God, and a more fervent love of the brethren. Love is the motive power of the gospel and it is the bond of perfectness. Col. iii. 14. We also need faith to maintain a daily victory over the world and a practical exercise of Christian graces. We should live up to our high privilege, as no longer a citizen of this world, and take our place continually as a member of our risen Head "sitting together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus."

3rd, For patience, Lord increase our faith that we may steadfastly endure the worldly cross. 2 Tim. i. 12. There are many snares laid in our pathway to turn us from the narrow path but God will come to our assistance, even here, if we but trust him, for he tells us through Peter that he will care for us. Then, brothers and sisters, we need more faith that we may wait for the joy of the coming of the Lord. This is a happy privilege for us and let us, as believers enjoy it, for the Lord is good unto them that wait for him, to the soul that seeketh him. Sam. iii. 25. The joy of faith is fixed we read of Lydia, a seller of purple upon the grand consummation, the personal coming of the Lord. Every exercise of faith, every Christian grace is quickened in energy by the contemplation of this event. Let us mark distinctly that we indeed possess this precious faith and ask daily for the increase of it. Let us pray for more faith in God's kind, wise, overruling and never-ceasing providence, so that we may learn to trust all that we are and all that we have into his hands. And whether in prosperity or trial, let the recollection that we are his, make us look to him and glorify him in all things, Amen.

SARAH NEILL.

PATTERN OF GOOD WORKS TITUS ii. 7.

In all things showing thyself a pattern of good works: in doctrine showing uncorruptness, gravity, sincerity. Being patterns requires us to possess wisdom. In our experience we all frequently feel the lack of this, for wisdom is the best use of knowledge. Knowledge applied to practical things in daily life so that we may live as becometh those professing to have the high calling. We read in the first chapter of James, 5th verse that "If any of you lack wisdom, let him ask of God, that giveth to all men liberally, and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him." And in the 2nd, 3rd and 4th, "My brethren, count it all joy when ye fall into divers temptations. Knowing this, that the trying of your faith worketh patience. But let patience have her perfect work that ye may be perfect and entire, wanting nothing." How to take trials joyfully and wisely is our great need, and we want to know how best to arm ourselves against them and where to look for them, that we may guard against them. Paul, the faithful apostle teaches us that they are from within ourselves, through our natural desires, ambitions and even the flesh nature. The need of restraining and overcoming these is shown in Titus ii. 11, 12, 13, "For the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men. Teaching us that denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly and righteously and godly in this present world. Looking for that blessed hope, and glorious appearing of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ."

"Teaching us," who, every man that hath both heard and learned of the Father. John vi. 45. Godliness implies bearing some resemblance to the Father in works and words. Ungodliness the reverse, see 2 Tim. iii. 1-5, men "having a form of godliness, but denying the power thereof; from such turn away." The wrath of God is revealed from heaven against all ungodliness and unrighteousness of men who hold the truth in unrighteousness. Because that when they knew God they glorified him not as God, neither were thankful, but became vain in their imaginations and their foolish hearts were darkened. Worldly lusts or desires especially distinguish those of the world. We are told to love not the world, neither the things that are in it. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, (or natural appetites of mankind) and of the eyes and pride of life is not of the Father, but of this world.

How often temptation enters through the eye, what we see we desire, many temptations come to us in this way. It is so natural and easy for the flesh to imitate worldly ways and the eyes of man are never satisfied. Therefore we are told, "Blessed is the man that walketh not in the council of the ungodly, nor standeth in the way of the sinners, nor sitteth in the seat of the scornful." We must turn away from such and by so doing we avoid many such temptations. "Evil communications (or company as the revised version gives it,) corrupt good manners."

To walk godly and become a pattern we must delight ourselves in the Lord and in his law meditate day and night; must follow our dear Savior's example, which necessitates a great and continued fight within ourselves. We must aim to be followers of him at all times and be looking for the blessed hope and glorious appearing of our great God and our Savior Jesus Christ who gave himself for us that he might redeem us from all iniquity and purify unto himself a peculiar people, zealous of good works. Thus thinking on these things will be the means of keeping us a peculiar people. The peculiarity consists in not being worldly people. We talk or ought to think different things; yet how easy it is to let one's self fall into the habit of using language of the world, allowing the slang expressions to creep into our home language, if we are not on our guard. We often become living exponents of the truth uttered about "evil communications corrupting good manners." Our great desire with ourselves, to live godly in the sight of God, to fight the good fight and doing our best to bring others to a knowledge of the truth. I know I could never be tempted to believe any other gospel than that of the glorious kingdom of God. Oh, that we may appreciate God's great favor to us by being willing to obey his commands and become worthy of our high calling. That we may so live as to adorn the gospel of Christ by good works. Pure and unselfish living in this present world needs continued watchfulness, and that wisdom which cometh down from above, is our great need in order that we may become patterns of good works.

THE war in the east still drags on with no startling change since our last issue.

BROTHER ZILMER attended the Conference in Michigan last week and reports well of that gathering. This week he is at the Southern Illinois Conference at Moriah.

MOST of our space this issue is given the Sisters meeting at the Salem, Ohio, Conference. The good results shown but demonstrated what may be done in many other localities if the effort is only made. Why not try it, and see if another year we may hear of like work in other churches.

A LETTER from Brother Neill, Salem, Ohio, dated Oct. 3d, informs us that an accident happened to Brother Ira R. Hall. According to the accounts he was visiting on his way home from the Ohio Conference, and near Sugertown, Pa. was thrown from a buggy, his right leg was broken, and three ribs, also a severe scalp wound. He is now in the Spencer Hospital, Meadville, Pa. The accident happened over two weeks ago, and he has been unconscious most of the time since. He seems to know his folks, but does not realize he is hurt. The physicians give no hope that he will recover. Brother Hall is quite old, but at the conference he appeared to be well and in good spirits.

Some Vital Questions. No. 7.

119. Another Scripture here comes forcibly to mind, "But there were even false prophets among the people, as also there will be false teachers among you, who will PRIVATELY introduce destructive heresies, even denying the sovereign Lord who BOUGHT them, bringing on themselves SWIFT DESTRUCTION."

120. If we cannot reach those who have gone astray on this matter by calling attention to a distinction in Heb. i. 1 between the prophets of old and Jesus, it may be helpful to some: "God who at sundry times and by various methods spake unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by A SON." The prophets were selected sons of Adam, Jesus Son of God. It is claimed by one writer that it was the pos... the spirit that constituted ... of God. We reply, that the ... had the Spirit also, (1 Peter ...) and yet were not sons, Jesus was. What made the difference? He was the only begotten of the Father, full of grace and truth.

121. The fact that the Jews regarded Jesus as the natural son of Joseph is tak... as proof of the matter. How ... at be when Jesus repudiated ... entertained of him by the ... stigmatized them as fleshly. ...is words were,—

"I know whence I came and whither I go; but YE cannot tell whence I come and whither I go. Ye judge the flesh." John viii. 14, 15, 23. These last words show there was a spiritual aspect to the case.

122. In John viii. 48 Jesus says, "I proceeded forth and came from God, neither came I of myself, but he sent me. Why do ye not understand my speech?" This, by no law of language could have reference to anything but his ORIGIN. Supposing him to be a son of Joseph the Pharisees could not understand it. But believing his paternity was direct from Heaven we can see great point in it.

123. Recent utterances prove that the words of Jesus apply accurately to our authors. He said, "If ye believe not Moses, how can ye believe me; for he wrote of me." This is what is the matter with those who say there was no typical blood shed in the Old Testament times; it would seem that they have been left to their own reasons.

124. It must not be forgotten that we have the proof that the fatherhood of God did not affect the nature of his existence, because after being forsaken of the Father on the cross he still existed for a time, and then died.

125. The anointing and baptism did not change his mortal body; it invested the flesh born of Mary with the wisdom and power of God, who discoursed and worked through it. John xx. 31; xi. 4; xix. 7. He was holy before he was anointed.

126. He was given power over all flesh while he was still flesh himself. "Thou givest to thy Son jurisdiction over all flesh, that everything which thou hast given to him, he might give to them, aionian life. And this is the life of the Aion that they should understand thee, the only true God, and Jesus anointed whom thou sendest." John xvii. 2, 3. Proving

(a) That the life of the aion is not for all mankind.

(b) It is for those specially donated to the Son.

(c) That the attainment of this life by those given to him is consequent upon their intellectual enlightenment concerning what constitutes the only true God, and the true relation of the Father.

127. It has been charged against the first chapters of Matthew that while it purports to show the fulfilment of the prophecy of God. Isa. vii. 14 in the person of Jesus, he was never called "Immanuel." We read in Prov. xxv. 2 that "It is the glory of God to conceal a Word; but the honor of kings to search out the Word." "A word is concealed when it is enigmatically expressed; and should it not be the glory of those whom God has chosen for his kings in the future government of the world, to search out the wisdom which he has hidden from the wise in their own conceit. "The world by wisdom," says Paul, "knew not God.....but we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, the hidden, which none of the chiefs of this Aion know; for had they known they would not have crucified the LORD OF GLORY." 1 Cor. i. 21; ii. 7, 8, Lord of glory was crucified in the flesh.

Paul was sent to turn the Gentiles to the knowledge of the true and living God; and in so doing taught them the mystery which it was the glory of the apostolic preaching to explain or reveal.

Hence their preaching came to be styled "The Revelation of the mystery," and is thus alluded to by Paul, who taught "the gospel which God promised through his prophets in the Holy Scriptures, in Rom. xvi. 25, "To him that is of power," says he, "to establish you according to my gospel and the preaching of Jesus Anointed; according to the revelation of the mystery concealed during Aionian times, but now made manifest, also, through the prophetic writings according to the commandment of the God of the aion for obedience of faith among all nations; to God only wise, through Jesus Anointed, to him be glory for the Aions. Amen.

"The mystery, which, as we see, was the burden of the apostolic preaching, was a great enigma,—an enigma dramatically explained on the cross, as well as doctrinally explained.

"Without controversy," says Paul, "great is the mystery of godliness—God manifested in flesh; justified by Spirit; made visible to messengers, preached among nations, believed on in the world, taken up into glory. 1 Tim. iii. 16. These six points are constituent parts of the mystery of God-manifestation in flesh as far as at present developed.

Paul and Moses declare "there is no other God but one," and then goes on to say, "For though there be those that are called gods, whether in the heavens or upon the earth, as there are gods many and lords many; but TO US there is one God the Father, out of whom all things, and we for him; and one Lord Jesus Anointed, on account of whom all things, and we THROUGH HIM. Howbeit, the knowledge is not in all." 1 Cor. viii. 4-7. Painfully evident is it there has been no improvement since.

We trust it will be seen from this how God was with men,—the Son represented the Father in flesh when he tabernacled with men; and we suggest, that seeing now all the fulness of the Godhead dwells in him, bodily, when he comes again in majesty and power, he will then emphatically or literally be God with men.

128. In Dan. ii. 34 we learn that A STONE was to be cut out WITHOUT HANDS, and to smite the image com... period of the four ... day development, ... it to pieces.

This stone is again brought to view in Zechariah iii. 8, 9 as The BRANCH. He will have seven eyes, which are declared to be the eyes of Jehovah. Concerning this stone already mentioned the reader may consult Psa. cxviii. 22; Isa. xxviii. 16; viii. 14; Gen. xlix. 24. And also read Matthew's account of the Paternity of Jesus in connection with Daniel ii. 34 and it will not be difficult to understand why the Jews rejected him. They wanted a military commander who would strike a death blow to Rome and do what Daniel said the stone would do. They were oblivious of the intervening events,—and were dazzled by the conquering hero; but blind as to the Lamb to be led to the slaughter: and of the cutting out WITHOUT HANDS!

This stone is Jehovah's signet, the inscription upon which is "HOLINESS TO JEHOVAH."

129. The biography of Jesus is the very thing the people ought to be acquainted with, so as to compare him with what the prophets had predicted respecting him.

130. Let our readers contrast what Zecharias full of Holy Spirit said (Lu. i. 67-76) with what our author says respecting the finding of a person to be the Lord's Anointed:

"Blessed be the Lord God of Israel, for he hath visited and redeemed his people; and hath raised up an horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David, as he spake by the mouth of his holy prophets.....To perform the mercy promised to our fathers, and to remember his holy covenant, the oath which he sware to our father Abraham," etc., and then addressing his own Son, said, "And thou child, shalt be called the Prophet of the Highest, for thou shalt go before the face of the Lord to prepare his ways." Be it remembered John's mission was to prepare the LORD'S WAY, and as yet there was no Lord. But the promise and covenant had said he should come, and how his forerunner had arrived. See him described in Is. vii. 14; ix. 6, 7; Psa. lxxix.

131. Elizabeth also when filled with Holy Spirit, said to Mary, "Blessed art thou among women, and blessed is the fruit of thy womb,—and whence is this to me that the mother of MY LORD should come to me? How would a son of Joseph not yet born be called ELIZABETH'S LORD?

132. No reasonable explanation has ever been given as to why the genealogy of Matt. did not proceed one step further and say Joseph begat Jesus. Nor the reason why no similar case occurred all down the patriarchal, Mosaic or prophetic ages? Never explained why no other woman is mentioned in all the genealogies from Adam to Mary!

133. Would it not have been a most absurd thing to say that Jesus was made of a woman if Joseph had been his father? And beside being absurd, it would have been UNTRUE.

134. John i. 14 says "the Word was made flesh and dwelt among us,—and we beheld his glory,—the glory as of the Only Begotten of the Father full of grace and truth." If Josephitism be true,—the Word was not made flesh. And John does not tell the truth when he says he and others beheld his glory; and describes that glory as of the only begotten of the Father full of grace and truth; and it is not true that God ever begat a Son of the human family; and it is not true as stated in verse 18, that the only begotten Son ma le the Father known.

135. The truth of Josephitism would not only invalidate the testimony of John in this first chapter of his gospel, but also that in his first Epistle fifth chapter 10-12th verses, because Jesus in John iii. 16, shows it is the only begotten Son that God gave as an object of faith to enable us to secure everlasting life. So that it is unbelief of God's record of the only begotten Son that makes God a liar. And it is of this only begotten Son that God says: "He that hath the Son hath life; and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life."

By denial of the divine begettal of Jesus Josephites effectually close the gate of life against themselves, these Scriptures being true. If true, Josephitism is NOT TRUE; there is life only in the only begotten Son of God; begotten by Joseph and adopted by God is no part of the record.

136. John was filled with the Spirit from birth,—so was Jesus, but there was only one spotless Lamb. The advocates of the doctrine we oppose have never, to our knowledge, given a reasonable explanation of this fact. Some of them believe Jesus did not sin; but they never tell us how it happened that he who they say was a son of Joseph did not go astray like other children as soon as they are born, speaking lies?

137. As far as we know, Josephites who believe Jesus did sin in his youth have never explained by what means his youthful sins were remitted, seeing they deny the truth of Jesus' words in Matt. xxvi. 28, "This is my blood of the new covenant, which is shed for the REMISSION OF SINS." Is it not surprising to find men of intelligence, in other things, teaching that the Savior of sinners was himself a pardoned sinner? Or, that he never said what we have just quoted from Matt. xxvi 28; or that there was no necessity for the shedding of his blood? Or, that the whole story is without foundation? It looks as if they were bereft of their senses to deny the sacrificial shedding of Christ's blood, and then expect to be called brethren by those who believe that Jesus told the truth about his blood in Matt. xxvi. 28.

138. We are informed that those in this country who have for years held to the views we oppose, have been baptizing their converts. Why did they do this? WAS IT HONEST to do that while believing that Jesus' blood was not shed for the remission of sins,—and therefore there was no necessity of being baptized into HIS DEATH because they needed no interest in his death,—and that there is no truth in what Paul teaches in Romans vi. 5, that a resurrection like Christ's depends upon being "planted together in the likeness of his death?" Had they private reasons of their own for immersing their converts, or were the converts kept in the dark about something?

WE clip the following from an exchange showing the sad state into which the nominal church of today has degenerated. Brethren, let us keep God's true church well above this condition:

The Christian church is being starved to death by its friends. Emaciated and weakened, this once regal figure stands with outstretched hands pitifully pleading for the privilege to live. Once dominant, now dependent; once autocratic, now apologetic; once loved and respected, now lonesome and rejected. There have been ebb tides of religious interest before, when public favor has set away from the church; when the ministry, surrendering to worldliness, have rendered but perfunctory service and by their carelessness and moral decrepitude, have encouraged indifference and infidelity. We are persuaded that we are not merely approaching one of these ebb tides in religious history, the religious waters are already far out, and the world is stranded on the rocks of sin, in imminent danger of appalling disaster. We witness today the abandonment of one after another of the civic virtues, until our municipalities are the reproach of the world; our legislatures, state and national, corrupt almost beyond belief. In fact, we are eye witnesses of public degeneracy which should appall us. The world has gone pleasure mad; the object of all work is to get money for physical gratification; the cars and steam boats are jammed with crowds seeking artificial excitement, and in the summer the churches are closed, once for weeks, now for months, once to give the minister a rest, now to give the people an opportunity for cheap pleasure. Thought is given alone to physical gratification until all moral sense is paralyzed, and the desire is to keep up with the procession of revelers headed by the Newport group, where we have the exhibition of the best educated, the most highly cultured, the best fed and best dressed and wealthiest fruit of our national life, and are forced to say of it that with all these envied advantages, that not in the worst slums of a great city, nor yet in the deepest wilds of savage Africa, is there to be found greater debasement of human life or more unparalleled debauchery of morals; where reverence for that is holy is destroyed, the sacredness of the home violated by its progressive polygamy, where days are spent in idleness and nights in gambling and drink and licentiousness.

"How dare I read Washington's campaigns," wrote Emerson once, "when I have not answered the letters of my own correspondence?" Self-culture is gained first by fulfilling scrupulously every daily obligation of duty, and next by ...idy and thought. To reverse this order is not to be cultured, but only varnished with a selfish and surface knowledge. Culture means sincerity and completeness, and the young man or woman who neglects common daily duties will never win it.

Jesus Saves.

One man says he believes he can live such a good life that he needs no Savior; he believes that he can save himself. Another man makes no attempt to live a good life, but realizes, at its close, his miserable failure and the hopelessness of himself. He cries out that he needs a Savior, and commits himself to Christ. There is no question here of belief or disbelief in something called an "atonement." It is a question between supreme confidence in one's self, and supreme confidence in a Savior outside of self. Horace Bushnell once defined faith as "that act by which one person, a sinner, commits himself to the care of another person, a Savior."

This is very different from mere intellectual belief in a doctrine. Doctrines do not save; Jesus only saves. Let the objector bear one thing in his mind: neither he nor any other man living believes that he can save himself. Men may bolster themselves up with knowing talk about their futures not depending on what they believe or do not believe. All men know in their hearts that they are miserably insufficient of themselves, both here and in the world to come. To such men, "moral" or immoral, full of good works or full of evil works, the Savior's offer of salvation is extended. They may take it, or they may simply reject it.

Think Before You Speak.

No rational man expresses an opinion about any scientific matter unless that matter has been made the subject of intelligent study and some familiarity with the facts has been secured; but in the gravest questions affecting character, men and women do not hesitate to express opinions on the slightest possible basis of knowledge; and so it happens that the gravest wrongs are inflicted by mental slovenliness and moral obtuseness. The sensitive and high-minded suffer as much from the stupidity of the obtuse as from the keen-witted. Most of the misrepresentations, eight-tenths of all the personal criticism, and the great mass of miscellaneous misinformation which floats about in every community are set in motion and kept in motion by people whose opinions are entitled to no weight because they never take the trouble to base them on facts. Responsibility for the tongue is constantly evaded, but no man can escape it; and there are heedless men and women of every community who are walking straight on to a day of reckoning, the terrors of which will not come out of any external punishment, but from the consciousness of irreparable wrongs committed carelessly and stupidly, without even the palliation of temptation. —Outlook.

The Cross said to me: Christ the Son tasted death for every man; he died, the Just for the unjust; he died that you might live; cast yourself upon him in faith; and as I did so, yet with some fear, there came a peace into my heart, and in a broken but joyful way I began to sing the wonders of "free grace and dying love." In that holy transport I saw the meaning of the word "blood," which is objectionable to some persons. The "blood" was the very life of Christ. Blood is no prosaic or limited term. Properly understood, it may be the foundation word of all the highest language of the soul. —Jos. Parker.

There are silver books and a very few golden books; but I have one book worth them all, called the Bible.—John Newton.

Editor Restitution:

We trust it will be gratifying to the household of faith to learn that our esteemed Brother and Sister C. C. Ramsay, of Philadelphia, visited among the brethren in the Shenandoah Valley of Va. We regret, however, to say that our dear Brother was robbed of much of the pleasure of his stay on account of bodily afflictions. Notwithstanding these infirmities he preached in Immanuel, three successive Sundays very edifying discourses, and we are greatly rejoiced to say that one young man made the good confession and they both went down into the Shenandoah, where he was baptized into the Name that saves. May he prove an ever faithful servant. The time came for leave-taking and good-by all too soon. Still we are buoyed up with the hope that we shall meet again.

The Road to Jerusalem.

The path is narrow and straight and strewn with many fragments of broken castles, and of treasures that once seemed dear. Sometimes the path leads through deep ravines darkened by sorrow and the mist of hushed tears, until we can scarcely see the face of our guide. We halt trembling and fearful when we hear the loving voice calling from beyond the shadows "It is I, be not afraid." "I am with you always," "I will lead you through the valley." How the voice of our guide gives us courage. We press on with firmer step knowing he who promises is able to fulfil, and knows the way.

Pressing on through the darkness, footsore and weary for rest, we suddenly come to a gate across the narrow way. Then our hearts sink with fear lest we have missed the way. The gate swings back, and the familiar voice of our guide, which we have heard so often in the darkness calls a welcome, "Enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

Into the joys of the Lord! Such glory has not entered into the heart of man. The temples and towers arise on every side in dazzling brightness. Broad streets of shining gold extend far beyond our eager gaze. The pure waters of the river are sparkling beneath the shadows of the trees of healing, which adorn its beautiful banks. The chords of the angel swept harps float on the fragrant breezes. The dark and narrow way is forgotten as the songs of the redeemed roll forth from immortal tongues.

Who could be an idle spectator! Who could refrain from swelling the long chorus of the glad hosannahs and praises of our King, who hath said "I go to prepare a place for you, enter into the joys of thy Lord. I will load you. It is I, be not afraid."

SADIE SKEELS.

Dear brothers and sisters.

I thought I must write a few words for the good old paper. The faith, one God, the eternal Father, dwelling in heaven, in light of glory inconceivable, one universal, irradiant spirit, by which the Father fills all and knows all and when he wills performs all. One Lord Jesus Christ, Son of God, begotten by the spirit of the Virgin Mary, filled therewith at his baptism, put to death for sin, raised from the dead for righteousness, and exalted to the heavens as a Mediator between God and man, man a creature of the ground, under sentence of death because of sin, which is his great enemy—the devil, deliverance from death by resurrection and bodily glorification at the coming of Christ, and inheritance of the kingdom of God, offered to all men on condition of believing the glad tidings of Christ's accomplishments at his first appearing and of his coming manifestation in the earth, as King of Israel and Ruler of the whole earth at the setting up of the kingdom of God, of being immersed in water for a union with his name, and of continuing in well doing to the end of this probationary career.

Your Sister in the faith.

Dear Brother Underwood:

I write to renew our subscription to the paper as I see our time has almost expired and we do not want to do without the dear RESTITUTION, as it contains so much that is good and helpful to us as we pass through the deep waters of affliction. We are still holding on to Jesus and his blessed Word, but we need the good word of cheer from all of the brothers and sisters which we can get only through the good paper, as we are so scattered. We send $3:00 to pay for our paper and for some one that is not able to pay. God bless the paper and all the household of faith, is the prayer of your Brother and Sister,

J. W. & MIRIAM SUTTON.

Editor Restitution:

Inclosed you will find money to pay for the dear paper, for which I look just the same as I would look for a dear friend. It is more than a friend—it is filled with the news of the times all over the world, and best of all the good old gospel, which is life eternal if we believe and obey. Every week it is full of truth just suited to build one up and help us to bear our trials.

I have been much benefitted by reading of the paternity of Jesus and the Pine Woods Bible Class, and many others. I will close for this time.

In hope of life eternal when Jesus shall come.

October.

The months have had wings, not feet, this year!
The beautiful summer has sped away,
And brown October has hurried here;
Oh, things were fair if they would but stay,
And if life were long
It were full of song.

Yet 'tis fair to look back to the primrose spring,
To the nightingale's lay and the cuckoo's call;
The promise is now a forgotten thing,
For the gifts foretold are bestowed on us all,
And the blossoms of May
Are the fruit of today.

We have had our summer of light and song,
And our fields and orchards filled with food;
If the days are shortened they have been long,
And God has covered the land with good.
O, give him praise
For the summer days!

And the beautiful things are not wholly gone!
Some roses there are on the generous trees,
The sun in its splendor still shines on
Though some flowers are killed to death by the freeze,
And the leaves in the town
Are faded and brown.

My life is like the October time!
The prodigal season is past and gone,
And over for-ever the wealth and prime
Of the long, glad day when high deeds were done,
And quiet and rest
Are for me the best.

And I cannot afford to lose an hour
Of the shorter day that is left to me,
Nor carelessly fritter away the power
Of head or of hand, since there soon shall be
No moments here
Of my life's short year.

But I thank my God for that which has been,
Of strength and sunshine, of flower and song;
And I will not shrink from the wintry scene,
Though the days are short and the nights are long.
Let the shadows fall,
For this life is not all!

SEARCHING THE SCRIPTURES.

Jesus said search the Scriptures for in them ye think ye have eternal life and they are they which testify of me. John v. 39. I would like to mention a few of the lessons it has taught me. 1st, it has taught me what I must do to be saved, all I know about right and wrong, all I know of my own origin and destiny, and the origin and destiny of our world, and also of the boundless love of God, and of the precious Savior's dying love for all mankind and especially for those that love and obey him. It has saved me from many sins and hateful ways. Its promises have cheered and encouraged me and given me a very pleasing hope. Yes, a glorious hope both for myself and others of a blessed immortality. It teaches the way of peace and salvation, and among its richest blessings already given is that of Christian fellowship, and it offers the same blessings to all who will earnestly seek for them. We are told to seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness. For the Lord giveth wisdom, out of his mouth cometh knowledge and understanding. In searching the Scriptures we read of the best covenant ever agreed on, the best deed that was ever sealed; to understand it is to be wise indeed, to be ignorant of it is to be destitute of wisdom. In searching the Scriptures we read the good news of the redemption of man from this present state in which sin and death reign, which leads us back to promises made by God to Abraham. Gal. iii. 8. God has appointed his way and it is well for us to take heed to his divine Word, for the Scriptures were given for man's benefit and God's glory, for he set before us life and death.

In searching we read we must believe that Jesus is the Christ the Son of God, our Savior, prophet, priest and king, and we must depend upon him for salvation, which means to submit, to confess, consecrate, obey and be faithful to him in all things. Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things we have heard lest at any time we should let them slip. And Paul speaking to Timothy says, But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived. But he goes on to say, But continue thou in the things which thou hast learned and been assured of, knowing of whom thou hast learned them.

In searching I find another of Paul's instruction to Timothy. All Scripture is given by inspiration of God and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works. For the Scriptures tell us that every man's work shall be made manifest, for the day shall declare it because it shall be revealed by fire, and the fire shall try it of what sort it is. For faith without works is dead and those who by patient continuance in well doing God will reward, for God is not unrighteous to forget your work and labor of love which ye have shown toward his name in that ye have ministered to the saints and do minister. Heb. vi. 10.

Brethren, if we have confidence in our God, we may unreservedly throw ourselves away in his service. We may exhaust our energies, our substance, our all, and be happy in the thought that every service rendered is carefully entered to our account. "Behold I come quickly and my reward is with me to give every man as his work shall be." Rev. xxii. 12.

He who searcheth the hearts and trieth the reins of the children of men will send his Son and make him of quick understanding, he will not judge after the sight of his eyes, neither reprove after the hearing of his ears, but with righteousness shall he judge the poor and reprove with equity for the meek of the earth, righteousness shall be the girdle of his loins and faithfulness the girdle of his reins. Now, dear brothers and sisters, let us study the Scriptures more and more that we may be faithful witnesses for God and truth, for we have not been enlightened for ourselves alone but that we may be of help to others, lifting them out of darkness into the marvelous light of the gospel of that glorious kingdom in which we are all rejoicing. We may be very sure that there is no disappointment in the work of the Lord, for if ye are faithful over a few things he has promised to make us rulers over many, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord. Yes, those better days are coming and it behooves us to be watchful, though at times we find it hard to follow our Guide because the way is so narrow. You see the more we study the Scriptures the more narrow the way seems. But looking forward to what is promised to those that endure to the end gives us hope and courage to press on toward the mark of the prize of our high calling in Christ Jesus, and he that doeth the will of God abideth for ever. Brethren, may these thoughts move us to increase our zeal and be found worthy and crowned with everlasting life when our Lord and Savior comes is the prayer of your sister in that blessed hope.

MRS. EMILY GROVES.

Dear Sisters:

I have chosen for my subject Matt. v. 14, 15, 16. How true these words are we all know and how essential it is for us to let our light shine. Does my light shine brightly I often wonder, or is it only a dim flicker ready to go out at any moment. God forbid. I think of the five foolish virgins who had no oil in their lamps when I say God forbid. Who among us would want to hear those words, "I know you not," fall from the Master's lips? But awful as it is such parables were written for our guidance that we come not into the same judgment, of course some are more privileged than others. Some of us have only one talent, some five and some ten, but he who sees in secret will reward us openly and we can all wear the meek and quiet spirits and so set an example to those around us whether in our home, the workshop or wherever it pleases God to call us. Then too we can help those who are willing, nay even anxious to give their time and talents in the Master's cause. This is certainly a most fruitful way of letting our light shine and only our reasonable service. Perhaps it may mean a trifling sacrifice, what of that, just think of the thousand and one blessings we enjoy from day to day, and all flowing from the bountiful hand of God. As I write these words my heart overflows with gratitude and love to the great All-giver and I feel like exclaiming, Lord, what am I that thou art so mindful of me? I tell you, my dear sisters, we must bestir ourselves, the night cometh when no man shall work, and we who have the privilege of meeting from week to week with others of like precious faith and listening to such beautiful, uplifting talks, surely ought not to hide our light under a bushel, but rather set it upon a hill to give light to the world. It is an old saying, where there's a will there's always a way, no matter how small the effort may be at first God surely will bless it. I remember once reading a little incident about a lady going after nightfall through the arched court of a newly finished building, stumbled over two or three steps which stood midway in the court, and gave her ankle a severe sprain. Is there no light under that arch, asked an indignant friend, condoling with the sufferer. I believe so, but it was not lit this evening. Was the electric light not burning? Oh yes, indeed, it was doing its best, but the steps were out of its range. There was a great lesson in this for me. It is a solemn thought indeed, that if that part of the world where God meant us to shine is dark, some one may stumble and fall, because our light failed them when they needed it. Brothers and sisters, it is an easy going age we are apt to think. Oh, I can't influence any one, that is the elders and deacons' work. Yes, but a hundred feet away from the spot where the lady fell the great electric light was burning to its full height, yet it could not make her way safe, her security depended on the one insignificant burner which ought to have been lit under the arch and was not. Let us then keep our lamps trimmed and burning so that we will be ready to go into the marriage supper of the Lamb. Hearing and doing we build on the rock, hearing alone we build on the sand, both shall be tried by the storm and the flood, only the rock the trial will stand. May we all whatever our talents are so use them as to enable us to meet in God's glorious kingdom is my prayer.

SISTER COWELL.

Dear Sisters:

I have written a few thoughts on 2 Pet. iii. 18, "But grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." It has been one year since we have all met here to hold a Conference, and have we all endeavored to become more spiritually minded or have we taken a backward step? We know that with the children of God there is no standing still, we must either grow or else the reverse. I hope we can all say that we have at least tried to live nearer to God. If we would be a holy, happy, fruitful Christian we must be a growing Christian. "Grow in grace." Let us enquire, What is the manner of growth in grace? To me it seems we must grow in the measure, exercise and fruitfulness of grace in order to become more like him who has offered us so great a reward, if we are but faithful. If we so strive, then the evidence of our growth will be seen. We will grow in the knowledge of the gospel, and be always ready and able to talk about our hope, we will become more devoted to the work of God, and become bolder in the profession of the gospel. We will also have a discriminating love for divine things and have a more spiritual perception of our path of duty. Col. i. 9. But there are hindrances to our growth in grace, such as self indulgence, neglect of religious advantages, want of brotherly love, lukewarmness of spirit. Rev. iii. 15, undue connection with the world and the neglect of the throne of grace. This is very important, brothers and sisters, for without God we can do nothing. We must pray for strength to continue in the narrow way. What are the means of growth in grace? We must abide in Christ, for we read in John xv. 5, "I am the vine, ye are the branches; he that abideth in me and I in him the same bringeth forth much fruit, for without me ye can do nothing." Again we must have an appetite for the Word of God. 1 Peter ii. 2. As new born babes desire the sincere milk of the Word, that ye may grow thereby. And lastly we must walk in the fear of God. Mal. iv. 2. And after all this we have the assurance of our hope of glory. 2 Pet. i. 10 11, "Wherefore, the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure; for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall. For so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." May we all gain that entrance is my prayer. Amen.

ANNA BULLOCK.

CONVERSATION.

I have selected for my lesson at this time the subject of conversation, taking for a text the words of the Psalmist, "To him that ordereth his conversation aright will I show the salvation of God." A good deal depends upon our conversation, then, doesn't it? We do not have to study very far in the Scripture before we see plainly that we as Christians are not allowed to talk as we please and we are known largely by our conversation. Whatever the affections are set on will be the chief talk of our daily lives. Again where our treasure is, there will our heart be also. And it is out of the abundance of the heart that the mouth speaketh. "Let your conversation be as becometh the gospel of Christ." Phil. i. 27. We are no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow citizens with the saints and of the household of God, and as God has raised us up and made us sit together in heavenly places in Christ Jesus, we must be examples of believers in word and conversation, [illegible] good work and sound speech [illegible] cannot be condemned. Our blessed Lord says in Luke vi. 45, "A good tree bringeth forth not corrupt fruit, neither does a good tree bring forth corrupt fruit, for every tree is known by his own fruit."

Now, let us make a personal application of this. Each one of us is a tree, and what we say and do, is the fruit we bear. Doesn't this make things look very serious to us, and show us what a narrow way we have to walk in? I am sure we never willfully do wrong in this direction, and if we would always keep these things in mind it would help us to be more guarded, and more spiritually minded, lest at any time our conversation should have an unhealthy influence upon those who are weaker, and are disposed to lean upon others, rather than upon Jesus. Doesn't it make us tremble to think we might be the cause of stumbling to any one?

But how are we to cultivate this purity of speech, words slip out many times before we think, and we would give much to unsay what we have said. Let us then try and think of pure things and if our thoughts are guarded our words are pretty sure to be so too.

Again, Jesus says in Matt. xii. 37, "Of every idle word that man shall speak, they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment, for by thy words shalt thou be justified and by thy words shalt thou be condemned." The word "idle" in this passage has always been a little hard for me to understand, that is whether every word spoken outside of what pertained to gospel would be called idle. I could not quite decide. But by reading the Diaglott translation of this passage I think I have a little light, and it may be a help to others, who do not fully understand it. It reads, "Of every pernicious word that men shall speak, etc." This word "pernicious" means wicked, malicious, evil-hearted or hurtful. If our motives come from the right source and if we speak from the abundance of a pure heart, I believe we will not be found guilty of speaking pernicious words.

In Psa. cxxxix. we read, "Not a word in my tongue, but thou knowest it." If then, God takes cognizance of every word his children say, how careful we ought to be of the topics of conversation in which we indulge. God's wise man has said, "Life and death are in the power of the tongue." Prov. xviii. 21.

We must strive to prove ourselves worthy of the dear name we bear and of that wonderful high calling to which we are called. This is the time to build characters, and we must discipline ourselves in self-denial, so that we can overcome the flesh in our words, thoughts and actions, and as the poet has expressed it,

"So let our lips and lives express
The holy gospel we profess."

And, dear sisters, let us take this one thought home with us, that our greatest safeguard lies, in expelling the spirit of the world from our minds, and letting the Spirit of Christ dwell in us richly in all wisdom. And if we have that wisdom, which is from above, James tells us, it will make each one, pure, peaceable, gentle, easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality and without hypocrisy.

Oh, let each one of us, strive to walk in closer communion with God and Jesus, give close attention to the living Word, and exert a close watch over ourselves, so that when the dividing heavens reveal Jesus, we may have unfading crows of glory. Amen.

EMMA LANG.

To the household of faith:

I regret not being with you to enjoy the feast of good things from the Word of life, but I "rejoice that I have confidence in you in all things." 2 Cor. vii. 16. "And though I am absent in the flesh I am with you in spirit, joying, and beholding your order and the steadfastness of your faith in Christ." Col. ii. 5. Yes, faith in Christ the Anointed. Faith in the covenants of promise, that faith which purifies the heart in obeying the truth as it is in Jesus. That faith which esteems all things but loss, for the excellency of the knowledge of the anointed Jesus, my Lord. Diaglott. A faith that considers all things vile and refuse, that we may win Christ. A faith that will not cling to our own righteousness, but which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness, from God on account of the faith. Diaglott. A faith that knows him and the power of the resurrection, and the fellowship of his sufferings, being conformed to his death. If possible we may attain unto the resurrection from among the dead. Diaglott. Paul says, "Not that I have already received it, or have been perfected, but I pursue this one thing I do; I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God, in Christ Jesus." This faith draws near in full assurance. That faith does not waver. It considers one another to provoke unto love, and good works. And neglects not the assembling to commemorate the Lord's death till he come. A faith that knows the exceeding greatness of his power to usward, who believe in his mighty power which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead." The faith in which if we continue grounded and settled, and are not moved from the hope of the gospel, will present us perfect in Christ Jesus. What is the means by which we are grounded and settled, and cannot be moved from the hope of the gospel. It is a living faith, a faith that works by love, faith without works is dead. Then let us see that our faith lives by works, not works we prescribe, but that laid down in God's Word, assembling for worship, and constantly holding up the lamp of life to others. Thus our faith will be a living faith, otherwise it will be a dead faith. O may we be strengthened by the Word dwelling in us richly, teaching and admonishing one another in Psalms and hymns, and spiritual songs, and all be better fitted to encourage and assist the evangelist in the second year's work, than in the one just past. The times are ominous, this may be the last work of faith. Soon the Master will come. Then, we will no longer be the household of faith, but "The earthly dwellings will be taken down." Diaglott. And the household of faith will be "the house made with hands." For indeed, in this we are groaning, earnestly desiring to be invested with that habitation of ours from heaven." Diaglott. We are groaning, being oppressed. We desire not to be divested, but to be invested, that the mortal may be swallowed up of life. Diaglott.

"A thrilling cry—we hear the sound;
The faithful watchmen lift their voice;
From land to land the world around,
It bids the saints rejoice;
Ye virgins, rise, break forth and sing
The glorious coming of your King—
The thrilling cry—we hear it sound
Go forth to meet your Lord."

"Blow, watchman, blow the certain sound,
For dark and dangerous is the night;
And daring scoffers gather round—
The evil servants smite.
Ye faithful ones, the strict watch keep,
With lamps well trimmed, and do not sleep,
The thrilling cry, we hear it sound,
Go forth to meet your Lord."

Behold he comes, the mighty one!
Ye virgins, haste! Him now you'll meet;
The watching and the waiting done,
He enters his bride to greet.
The trumpet sounds along the skies,
The earth it shakes, the dead arise;
The thrilling cry, the world around;
The Lord, the Lord has come."

MRS. NANCY BARBER.

Brethren, let us say with David, Praise the Lord, O my soul, and all that is within me praise his holy name, for bringing us out of darkness into this marvelous light. Praise the Lord for he is good and his mercy endureth forever. His promise to us will never fail, will ours to him? Have we put our hand to the plow, and are we looking back? If so, we are not fit for the kingdom of God. O, let us have our lights ever trimmed and burning that we may see his approving smile, and hear his welcome plaudit, "Well done." Let our praise to him ever be, Make me more worthy of thy many blessings. Brethren, may we all be among the worthy ones when the Lord comes to claim his bride. Amen.

NELLIE HUDSON.

Dear brothers and sisters and friends:

I have written a few lines in regard to what we should be ready for. Now in 2 Peter i. 10, it says, "Wherefore the rather, brethren give diligence, to make your calling and election sure, for if ye do these things ye shall never fall. Now to make our calling and election sure we have to be ready. Yes, and be more ready to hear, than to give the sacrifice of fools, for they consider not that they do evil. Eccl. v. 1. Brothers and sisters, let us not be like the foolish virgins who had no oil in their lamps; let us be ready, for ye know not the day, neither the hour wherein the Son of Man cometh. Matt. xxv. 13. They that were foolish and took their lamps, and took no oil with them, they you see were not ready, but the wise who were ready took oil in their vessels with their lamps, and while the foolish virgins went to buy oil the bridegroom came; and they that were ready went in with him to the marriage and the door was shut. And after the door was shut the foolish virgins came, saying, Lord, Lord, open to us, but the Lord said, Verily, I say unto [illegible] brothers and sisters, [illegible] therefore for ye know not [illegible] your Lord doth come, Matt. 25:42. Stand fast in the Lord, rejoice in him always. Let your moderation be known unto all men, for the Lord is at hand. Brothers and sisters, set your affections on things above, work diligently for our Master. When you see the evil of this world going on around us every day don't it draw you closer to God, it does me. Hold fast to his precious truth, do not let any one rob you of your crown, so we can all meet in God's kingdom and sit under our own fig tree. Then brothers and sisters, we won't have to say, I'm sick or disheartened. O may it be our happy lot to be ready and hear our beloved Savior say, Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter into the joy of thy Father's house, prepared for you from the foundation of the world. God grant that we may all be there.

MATTIE FRANKHONER.

I have made a condensed report of our Treasury fund from the last [illegible] ference, held in August, 1903. [illegible] been in the office of Treasurer since last July, the other officers are the same as last year.

During the last year we have held twenty-two meetings, all of which have been at the homes of the sisters, with the exception of the last two which we had in the parks. We meet once in two weeks on Thursday afternoon, for the purpose of disposing of the business and building each other up.

In the period of time stated, we have collected a total amount of $66 75; $11.02 of which is from donations and honorary members. The money has been used to help those who were in distress, the poor, the needy, for buying dainties and flowers for the sick and afflicted. We have also been able to use some funds for the spreading of the gospel. The total amount disbursed is $63 35, having at the present time a balance of $3.37 in the treasury. Our disbursements are never far behind our collections. We always seem to have a place for all we collect. And it has been decided that we put $3.00 of our balance in the Conference fund. We are anxious for this good work to go on, and to this end we are combining all our energies and we ask an interest in all your prayers.

Household of the One Faith:

I have had the blessed privilege of meeting some of the faithful ones in conference, at Oregon, which I enjoyed very much, and I believe all that were present felt that it was good to be there. I have been so isolated, I can't express the happiness and love I have in meeting with those of our Heavenly Father's family. I also visited at Adaline and Lanark those of the living faith, which I enjoyed very much. I feel more like praising my Lord more every day. "Give thanks unto the Lord, for his mercy endureth forever. I will praise the Lord. While I live will I praise the Lord." I am waiting the King's return.

Your Sister, in Christ.

SARAH BOWMAN.

…s a body of religious people … such, "believe" something. We believe the teaching of the Word of God. This is our rule of faith and practice. But what does the Word teach as essential matters of "faith and practice?" Do we as a people uniformly hold to the great foundation principles of faith as set forth in the Word of God? Are our public ministers a unit on the things to be taught and believed in order to salvation? In short: Have we a faith? If so, what is that faith? What does the Word of God teach us as essential to true faith and practice? We have answered these questions in a very concise and yet comprehensive way in the upper right hand corner of our paper, THE RESTITUTION. The object of these lines is to say that, since writing a series of articles for THE RESTITUTION on "What We Believe," quite a number of requests, both verbal and written, have come to the undersigned asking that said articles be published in book form. They will make a book of about … pages, making 15 chapters in all. Such a book should sell for 15 cents per copy. Now, brother and sister, this concerns you. Do you desire the publication of this work for distribution among such who ask, "What do you believe?" If so, please write to the undersigned at Plymouth, Ind., saying how many copies you want at 15 cents per copy. Write on postal. Send no money until notice is given that the work will be published.

Obituary.

But a few short months ago we laid our much loved Brother W. J. Orem, in the grave to wait for his change to come. This time death claimed his grandchild, infant daughter of O. M. & Rebecca Orem Anderson, who died on Sept. 7. Having passed through the same ordeal, I could understand a father's sorrow but will never be able to understand the grief of a mother. A goodly number of friends and neighbors came to show their sympathy. I talked a short time on the purposes of God, and the necessity of a resurrection; and reading Heb. xi. reminding them of the strong faith God's children had in olden times, even to children coming from the enemy's land.

Married.

Married by the probate judge at Winfield, Kan., July 23, 1904, Mr. H. M. Williams of Portland, Kansas, and Mrs. Dr. L. Hicklin of Rollin, Kan. The contracting parties are quite well known to many readers of THE RESTITUTION, as both have been earnest advocates of the truth for many years, both in public and private life, and it is still their desire to work in the Master's cause, and to that end they are striving to so arrange their business affairs, that they may give their time to the ministry, realizing that what we do must be done quickly. Their many friends wish for them a happy, prosperous journey through life.

HOPE.

Much woe is ilk and dreary,
Of better days to come,
To'ard happy, gold'n shine.
They look, they chase, they run.
The world will old be, and will again be young,
Yet still they hope some better lot may by and by be won.

Hope guides man on through life,
And flatters still the boy;
Her inviting lure,
The crowds of youth decoy.
When aged men their weary course have finished in the grave,
She will not them be buried there, a clouded and helpless slave.
But planted out above the mound, her colors,
brandest wave.

Hope is no fancy vain,
An empty, flattering thing,
Produced in thoughtless brain
Of fools that prate and sing.
Each born of heart the truth declares,
That we to better things are born,
And what the inner voice says here,
Deceives us not of brighter morn.

Random Thoughts. No. 13.

Dear Restitution:

In my last I left with my readers a thought for their consideration concerning our Lord Jesus the Christ, seeing his blood is the blood of the new covenant, was he not then the Testator, or the one who made or will make the new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah? And was not the death of our Lord Jesus the death of one more than the death of a man? Many wonderful things are said of him that can be said of no other person or being. Of him it is said Isa. ix. 6, 7, "For unto us a child is born, to us a Son is given, and the government shall be on his shoulder; and his name shall be called, Wonderful, Counsellor, the Mighty God, Father of the future age, the Prince of peace, of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end; he shall rule upon the throne of David, and over his kingdom, to fix and establish it, with judgment and justice henceforth and forever. The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will do this." Many other things are said of him that I wish to call attention to, but inasmuch as it would bring up the subject of his "divinity" and "pre-existance" etc., words not found in the Bible, I will leave that topic till some future time, after I get through with my present subject, that the Israelites will be subjects in the kingdom of God. I mean Israel in the flesh, the mortal state, after they return from their captivity among the nations. Perhaps enough has been said already, but I will add a little more. To save space I will ask my readers to turn and read the 72nd Psalm, read it as applying to the kingdom of God, when the King's Son, not Solomon, but one greater than he, I mean the Son of David that was born of a virgin, shall reign on David's throne as in Luke i. 31. And as when he comes to reign his saints will have been raised from the dead caught up to meet him, so that he will come to his throne with ten thousands of his saints, to judge, rule or govern his kingdom, especially the apostles as per Matt. xix. 28, when Jesus shall sit on his glorious throne, they also will sit on thrones judging or ruling the twelve tribes of Israel.

Now read the Psalm through slowly with this in your mind, and see how beautiful it is. We often fail to see its beauty by failing to rightly divide or apply the Word of truth. Now let us try to rightly apply another beautiful passage. Turn to Isa. lxv. and we will begin with the 17th verse, I will quote Boothroyd's Translation. Verse 17, For lo, I create new heavens, and a new earth, and the former ones shall not be remembered, neither shall they again be brought to mind. Verse 18, But you shall rejoice and exult for ever in what I create. For, behold, I create Jerusalem an exultation, and her people the subject of rejoicing. Verse 19, And I will exult in Jerusalem, and rejoice in my people, and there shall not be heard any more therein the voice of weeping, nor the voice of crying. Verse 20, No more shall be there an infant short-lived; nor an old man who hath not filled his days; for he that dieth a hundred years old shall be considered only a boy; and the sinner that dieth a hundred years old, shall be regarded as one accursed. Verse 21, And they shall build houses and inhabit them. And plant vineyards and eat the fruit thereof. Verse 22, They shall not build and another inhabit; they shall not plant and another eat: for as the days of a tree, are the days of my people, and the work of their hands shall they enjoy. Verse 23, My chosen shall not labor in vain; they shall not generate a short-lived race; for they shall be a seed blessed of Jehovah, they and their offspring with them. Verse 24, And it shall be, that before they call, I will answer; and while they are yet speaking, I will hear. Verse 25, The wolf and the lamb shall feed together and the lion shall eat straw like the ox; but as for the serpent dust shall be his food. They shall not hurt, nor destroy, in all my holy mountain, saith Jehovah."

Now a few remarks as with the 72nd Psalm, so this passage applies to the time after our Lord comes, when he sits on the throne of his glory or on his glorious throne, and the apostles also on thrones judging or ruling the twelve tribes of Israel.

And what James says in Acts xv. 16 will be fulfilled. But let us look through these verses. Ver. 17 says, "Lo, I create new heavens and a new earth," etc. When will he do this, before or after his coming? We need be at no loss on this question. Will my reader just read 2 Peter iii. where Peter tells us of the coming of the day of the Lord in which the (present) heavens and earth will pass away and the new be introduced according to the promises (that is this in Is. lxv. 17). I understand the day of the Lord to refer to the time when the Lord shall reign, just as we speak of David's day or Solomon's day, Cæsar's day, Napoleon's day or the day of Queen Victoria. So Psa. lxxii.; Is. lxv. 17-25, and other Scriptures described the state or condition of things in the day of the Lord when he shall reign. The new heavens and earth will be made new in that day or time. What is meant by new heavens and earth, whether literal or political, etc? I take it to mean that he will make the earth new and the heavens new. Literally "Make all things new. Will remove the curse from off all the earth, so that it shall yield her increase, i. e. thorn or thistles or weeds as now, which make labor necessary to obtain a crop, and so with the heavens. There will then be no storms or cyclones to destroy the crops, etc. So that the people of that day will not remember or call to mind the state or condition as now existing. All will be new. Jerusalem will then be a happy city, and her people the subjects of rejoicing.

Verse 18, And even the Lord himself will exult in that city, and rejoice in his people, and Israel will be the people still in the flesh, not the saints, they will be like the Lord reigning over the people. And in that city there shall not be heard any more the voice of weeping or crying, and one reason for that will be because the cause of much of the weeping of today will be removed.

Verse 19, For no infant will die then. At that time the one who sins will die for his own sins, not a child for the sins of its parents. Nor will an old man die before his time, or prematurely, and he will be like a boy at a hundred years old! If one die at that age it will be regarded as one accursed.

Verse 20, Those who build will live to occupy the same, and those who plant will live till what they planted shall bear fruit. They will not build nor plant exclusively for their children, for they will live long enough to enjoy it themselves.

Verse 22, They will not labor in vain, for the work of their hands shall prosper both in the city and country, as per the 72nd Psalm 16th verse. They will multiply and increase, and their children will be strong and healthy, not short-lived, for they shall be a seed, blessed of Jehovah, them and their offspring with them. So we see they will marry and be given in marriage, etc. All this refers to Israel according to the flesh, who are now among the nations, especially in the northern countries, but who will return to their own land, where they will be subjects in the kingdom of God, and will be there blessed by the Lord reigning over them, as the One seed of Abraham, including all his members. Gal. iii. 16, 27-29.

I know much is said about spiritual Israel, and spiritual seed, etc., being heirs to the promise. I know nothing of any spiritual seed. The Christ was the seed of Abraham and David according to the flesh. Those who believe are baptized into Christ, and thus put him on, and thus because Christ is the Seed of Abraham and as they are baptized into Christ, they become the seed of Abraham, because Christ is. Now Christ is the seed of Abraham according to the flesh, and so all who become Christ's are the seed according to the flesh, not their own flesh, but Christ's flesh. I know of no other way of becoming the Seed of Abraham and joint heirs with Christ but by believing and obeying him. Heirship stops with him. He does not have children and grandchildren, and generation after generation, he has no succession. All who become his members become such by putting him on.

This is just as true today as it was in the days of the apostles. We are baptized into Christ; not into his succession. We are then as near to him and to the Father now as they were then. Now then, just as Jesus when on earth had power over all things so will the members of his body (the church) when they reign over Israel. So we need not wonder at the happy state of Israel when (Isa. lxv. 24, 25) it shall be, that before they call, I will answer, and while they are yet speaking, I will hear. The wolf and the lamb shall feed together; and the lion shall eat straw like the ox. But as to the serpent dust shall be his food. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain, saith Jehovah. This will be the state of things in Israel after the Lord returns and restores the kingdom of Israel.

Much more may be said, but I think I have said enough to show that mortal Israel will be at first the subjects in the kingdom. But the Gentiles will also become subjects as we will see in my next. More anon.

Wisdom of Seirach.

CHAPTER 45.

1. Beloved by God and men was Moousees the remembrance of whom is acts of blessing.

2. He likened him to a glory of saints and he magnified him in fears of enemies.

3. With his words signs ceased; he glorified him before the face of kings; he commanded him in relation to his laity, and showed him his glory.

4. In his faith and meekness he sanctified him, and chose him from out all flesh.

5. He made him to hear his voice, and led into the thick gloom, and gave commandments to him face to face, namely a law of life and of exact knowledge, to teach Jakoob a covenant and Israel his judicial renderings.

6. Aaroon his brother of the tribe of Leusis (Levi) he exalted to be a saint like to him.

7. He stood a covenant of an animate-age with him, and gave unto him a priestly office for a laity. He made him blessed-happy with a truly cosmic apparel, and girded him with a flowing robe of glory.

8. He endued him with a consummation of boasting, and stayed him up with vestures of strength with leg-coverings; a flowing outer-robe and shoulder-pieces.

9. And he bordered it with golden pomgranites and more bells round about, to echo a sound with his footsteps, to make an echo in the inner-sanctuary heard for a reminder to the sons of his laity.

10. A sacred flowing under-garment ("a stole") with gold and hyacinth and purple, a work of variegated art; a breast plate for judging with manifestations of truth, spun with scarlet, a work of an artist with very precious stones for the graving of a seal, in a setting of gold, a work of a stone-workman for a reminder in writing set in order according to a number of Israel's tribes.

12. A garland-crown of gold, upon a turban, a model in relief of a seal of sanctification, a boast of glory, a work of strength, cosmically patterned, beautiful things, desirable in one's eyes.

13. Before him such things had not come to pass since there was an animate-age; one of another race had not clothed himself with such things; only himself and his sons and his progeny in continuity.

14. His sacrifice will have been offered twice a day in continuity as front offerings.

15. Moousees filled his hands and anointed him with sacred olive oil; it became for him an age-lasting-covenant, and with his seed in days of heaven, that he should publicly serve him and be his priest, and bless his laity in his name.

16. He chose him out from all the living to offer a fruit-offering-service unto the Lord, an incense-offering and an offering of sweet odor for a reminder, to expiate for thy laity.

17. He gave him with his commandments official-power in covenants of judgments-rendered, to teach Jakoob the testimonies, and to enlighten Israel in his law.

18. Men who had become alienated conspired against him and envied him in the wilderness, men about Dathan and Abeiroon and the synagogue of Kore with anger and wrath.

19. The Lord saw and was not satisfied, and they were brought to an end with anger and wrath; he did prodigies to them, to lavishly destroy them with the fire of his flame.

22. However in a land of his laity he will not inherit, and there is no portion for him in a laity; for he is thy portion, thy inheritance.

23. And Phineas, son of Eleazar was third in glory, when he became zealous with fear of the Lord, and stood in the discomiture of the laity with the goodness of his soul's enthusiasm, and expiated for Israael.

24. Therefore a covenant of peace was instituted with him and with his laity as a promoter of sacred things, that the majesty of the priestly office should be unto him and his seed for the animate ages.

25. And a covenant with David a son, of the tribe of Joudas, an inheritance of a king's son of an only son, an inheritance for Aaroon and his seed.

26. May he have given you wisdom in your heart to judge his laity in righteousness, that he may not have caused their good things to disappear and their glory in their generations.

COMMENT.

The reader will be interested in this quite minute description of the chief-priest's or Aaronic priestly vestments, the most particular and accurate any where given in the Scriptures, even in the books of Moousees. As these vestments are all typical, "antitypes of the true" investiture of righteousness every truth-seeker will see the importance of bringing the symbol accurately before the mind's eye. The Aaronic chief-priest was of course the personal representative under the old covenant of law of the Christ as our Chief or Great Priest under the new covenant of grace, and the investiture of each is the investiture of enablement under God. This is all brought out and made clear in the "Epistle to the Hebrews" which the reader will do well to review in the light of this chapter of old Seirach. The type is "a priest after the order of Aaroon,' the true is "a priest after the order of Melchisedek."

"The Restitution of all things Which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME LIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCT. 12, 1904. NUMBER 38.

The Thief on the Cross.

"Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom." Luke xxiii. 42.

The foregoing expression has caused a great amount of controversy among professed Christians, one taking the position that it teaches the immortal soul theory, and that it is infallible proof that Christ's and the thief's soul immediately entered a state of bliss. Others take altogether a different view of it. While they may all be honest in their views, they cannot all be correct, so let us examine the four witnesses, and notice how they agree, and how their testimony agrees with other Scripture.

We learn by the teachings of Christ and the apostles, that after the teaching of John that Jesus went through all Judea and the coasts round about, preaching the gospel of the kingdom. I will not give the references, as they are well known to all Bible students. Great multitudes went out to hear it, and a great many believed, and many believed not, and I think no one can doubt from the expression of the thief but what he had heard the gospel of the kingdom that both John and Jesus preached. They had been taught that Israel once was in possession of the kingdom. It had been taken from them and given, in prospect, to him whose right it was to reign. I say, in prospect. See Isa. ix. 6, 7. Right here let me draw your attention to the expression of Isaiah. He says, "To us a child is born, to us a son is given," all in the present perfect tense. Then he goes on "His name shall be called the Wonderful," etc., all in the future tense.

Now let us turn to Rom. iv. 17, "As it is written, I have made thee a father of many nations, believe him when he believed even God who quickeneth the dead and calleth those things which be not as though they were." Now we know by Usher's chronology that it was about seven hundred years before the child referred to was born, and he, the child Christ, said that his kingdom was not of this world, or age. John xviii. 36.

The kingdom referred to was in the future, so it was very appropriate for the thief to refer to it at Christ's appearing and kingdom, 2 Tim. iv. 1. What was the substance of the thief's prayer? He wanted to be remembered at his appearing. Christ gave him the promise that he should be with him—when? The answer is plain—when Christ comes in the power of his glory to judge the quick and dead, and to restore what was lost in Adam and bring the creation back to an Eden state. Then is when the thief will be with Christ in Paradise.

If the reader will carefully read the account as given by Matthew, Mark, Luke and John, they will see that the thief confessed his guilt and feared God, and rebuked the other one for his contempt. You will also see that the thieves were not dead when their legs were broken, and here we may enquire why their legs were broken. There was a reason for this being done, and that reason was because they were not dead, and it being unlawful to let them remain on the cross over or on the Sabbath, their legs were broken before they were taken down to prevent them from getting away.

We have no direct evidence that they ever died, but as it is appointed unto man once to die, we take it for granted that they died. I have read in some ancient writings, I do not remember where, that they were thrown over the precipice with the garbage, and were seen alive four days after they were crucified. It will also be noticed that the four witnesses differed in language as well as form in relating the incident. That is not strange in telling of an occurrence as people use their natural mind and way of speaking, and the historic part is given as is seen by the natural outward man. In quoting they use the same language of the author, and I think it will not be denied that the historic part of the Bible is human, or given in accordance with the laws of existing society.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Every age and locality has phrases differing. We have phrases that we understand that cannot be explained either by our grammar or dictionary. We pick up a stock journal, and read that the Bulls and Bears had a desperate fight at the stock yards last Saturday. The Bulls had the best of it at first, but later the Bears succeeded in evening. We know that it was a contest between the buyers and sellers but what would a Mexican understand it to mean? The reader may decide. Again there are superfluous and erroneous expressions in the Bible. In Luke xix. we have the account concerning Zacheus. It states that he was small of stature, and could not see Jesus for the Press. What kind of a press was it? A modern hay press, or a wine press, or was it because the multitude was so great? Let common sense decide.

He ran ahead and climbed up into a sycamore tree. Notice he climbed into a sycamore tree. Was it a hollow tree he climbed up into, and looked out of a knot hole like a squirrel? Or did he simply climb a tree? Common sense must decide.

Why was the historian so particular to say a sycamore tree? Is there any particular significance about a sycamore tree? It teaches nothing except that there were sycamore trees in that country.

In 2 Kings xix. 35 we read that the "angel of the Lord smote a hundred four score and five" Assyrians one night, and in the morning they were all dead corpses. According to the law of opposites the night before they were all live corpses.

It is a very easy matter if we have a hobby to ride, to twist the Scriptures to suit, but there is no profit in doing so. It may give us a little worldly fame, but that is not what the true disciple of Christ is seeking. Take a logical view of all the Scriptures, and strive to rightly divide them, and we will keep in the straight and narrow path that leads to life eternal.

C. P. GRAHAM.

What We Believe.

"We" are a body of religious people who, as such, "believe" something. We believe the teaching of the Word of God. This is our rule of faith and practice. But what does the Word teach as essential matters of "faith and practice?" Do we as a people uniformly hold to the great foundation principles of faith as set forth in the Word of God? Are our public ministers a unit on the things to be taught and believed in order to salvation? In short: Have we a faith? If so, what is that faith? Which does the Word of God teach us as essential to true faith and practice? We have answered these questions in a very concise and yet comprehensive way in the upper right hand corner of our paper, THE RESTITUTION. The object of these lines is to say that, since writing a series of articles for THE RESTITUTION on "What We Believe," quite a number of requests, both verbal and written, have come to the undersigned asking that said articles be published in book form. They will make a book of about 60 pages, making 15 chapters in all. Such a book should sell for 15 cents per copy. Now, brother and sister, this concerns you. Do you desire the publication of this work for distribution among such who ask, "What do you believe?" If so, please write to the undersigned at Plymouth, Ind., saying how many copies you want at 15 cents per copy. Write on postal. Send no money until notice is given that the work will be published.

"Spiritual transformation begins in the heart, in the renewal of our minds. If the heart is made right, the whole life will soon become right. We cannot change ourselves, however, from the outside. Reformation is not enough—there must be regeneration. Lopping off our bad habits and getting better ones, changing our rude manners into due manners, will not really transform us. The inner life must be made like Christ, and then the outer life will shine with his beauty."

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCT. 12, 1904.

THIS item is for the person who has allowed his time to expire and has not yet renewed. We wish to hereby solicit you to at once send in your subscription money for the paper. At this season of the year our expenses are necessarily heavy, as we must get fuel and otherwise prepare for winter. The political campaign is on, and the attention of some is diverted by this cause. Brethren and sisters, do not allow anything to crowd out your duty in this branch of the Lord's cause. Hurry in your renewals at once.

ANOTHER rumor says the Baltic fleet is to move and be ready to pass through Danish waters Oct. 16.

AT Port Arthur the Japanese are treating the Russians to a shell fire every day, but no changes have been made in the position of either party.

CHINESE uprisings are reported on the borders of Shantung, Chili and Honan provinces. The uprising has 10,000 adherents, and foreign missionaries are seeking refuge.

WORD comes to us through two sources that Brother Robert McLaughlin of Cleveland, Ohio, died Oct. 2. We would be glad if some one could send a suitable obituary for us to print, as we have no data from which to prepare it.

THE article on "Mysteries of the Bible resolved into figures" in this issue was sent to us, and we give it place as it shows how various lines of reckoning lead to the same result. We have nothing to do with the question of setting definite time for the Lord's coming, and do not believe that any man can ever determine that, as we do not believe it is revealed. However computations are valuable as a means of showing to what time the lines of reckoning will end, and so we give what this writer has on this line.

A CHANGE has come in the war situation. The Japanese had advanced well up toward Mukden, when last week General Kouropatkin turned the tables by attacking all along the line, and has driven the Japs back to within a few miles of Liaoyang. The Japanese fell back rapidly for some days, but have now made a stand and are holding their ground at last reports. General Kouropatkin made a speech to his troops encouraging them to fight, declaring he would drive the enemy back and relieve Port Arthur. He is certainly taking great chances. If he succeeds of course he will be a great General, if he fails and is forced back again it will be a disaster that will likely cost him his command. It was announced that the second army to be sent out by Russia would not be placed under him, but have a different commander. This may have induced Kouropatkin to risk all in an effort to regain what he has lost. The next few days will likely tell, as the two armies are quite evenly matched in numbers, though the Japs have heretofore shown that they are the best mountain fighters.

THERE is a rumor afloat that Germany intends to soon intervene to make peace between Russia and Japan, and at the same time further her own interests in the far east. The plan is to make peace and then form an offensive and defensive alliance between the two opposing powers, settling it so that Japan shall dominate Manchuria and Coren, but let Russia retain Port Arthur. It is quite likely that Russia and Germany might try to work together, but that Japan will join the combination seems far off. When one stops to think what Japan is now fighting for, we can hardly conceive of any settlement that would allow Russia to be a close neighbor, unless she be beaten back and defeated. Russia at Port Arthur would still be the thorn in the flesh for Japan, and a menace to all China. However, events that we little think of come in a perfectly natural manner, and the speed with which such matters are unfolded, keeps us on the watch. Soon we shall see with fuller and clearer knowledge, so we can patiently wait the little time yet remaining.

WE ask any brother or sister who knows the time paid for on subscription is expired, to please renew today. We need it.

Dear brothers and sisters:

A word of cheer to you who have gathered in Jesus' name today. Though not permitted to meet with you, I stand on the tip-toe of rejoicing to think of the good times you will have together and of the happiness you will give and receive. And not only this—there is "a heart to heart" feeling as I think of what the result of this meeting may be in souls won for Christ. You come not here merely for the blessing you yourselves may receive but for a higher, nobler purpose, —that of drawing others from the paths of sin and folly to the safe road of righteousness and peace.

Did you ever study to know what is meant by the word "servant"? What it is to be a servant of Jesus? A servant of God? That it is to be enslaved, or bound, not to "please men," but to do the will of your Father in heaven and that to do his will, is to do his work; not to sit down with idly folded hands, you have been called for this very purpose. God made you his bond-servant, not to please and pet and save you, but that through you his loving kindness might be made known to a lost and ruined world. You can eat at his table, but you must also work in his vineyard. Only in doing this can you be the friends of Jesus and true sons of God.

The Master has "delivered unto you his goods," see that you are faithful. Let this meeting be a genuine revival for "that is the greatest blessing that ever fell upon any place." Plead earnestly with God many times a day "for strength and courage and wisdom to see and use every opportunity," to get men and women to leave off sinning and to believe and obey the gospel. How my heart goes out to the restless, pleasure-seeking throng that so often come to our set apart groves, only to see and be seen! They stay outside and hear nothing. No thought of the inexpressible value of the message that God's servants are delivering comes to them; no thought of what the Bible is, nor of its power to save! Can you not devise some plan to reach these lost and sinning ones? Try. Do not go away condemned for neglect of duty. Lose something yourselves, rather than miss blessing these. Come humbly and unitedly and prayerfully to God. Your strength is but weakness, yet through you he can show his power. You can do nothing without him, but all things with him. But that he may be with you and that to bless, you must do as the Israelites were commanded to do when going out to battle; you must "put away every wicked thing." Your camp must be a clean camp. Sinners cannot save sinners, nor will God hear you and come to your help, if you are living in the practice of sin.

Confess your sins; hold back nothing that belongs to God; restore all that rightfully belongs to another. The consistent, sanctified life is the life that tells. A young girl was anxious to bring a friend to Christ. Both were living in a working girls' home. The godly one did not know how to approach her companion, and asked the advice of the matron. She replied, "Miss Florence says, the only thing that can change her attitude toward Christianity will be to find a Christian she wants to belike. So we must pray that she may find such a one and try ourselves to be Christians, that those who are not Christians, will want to be like." Six months passed away, the young girl had said not a word to her friend, but she had grown more Christ-like day by day, more kind, more gentle and sweeter tempered. One night Florence called the matron into her room and told her "she had found a Christian she wanted to be like," that "she had never heard her speak a cross word, give back a sharp answer, shirk any duty, or do any little, mean thing, but had seen her when abused, though blameless, bear it patiently, and if being a Christian made Etta like that, she wanted to be one too and would like to know how to begin; she had already been reading her Bible." And so it is, "Ye are the salt of the earth, the light of the world." Act as salt, give forth the light! The blameless lives, the gentleness and patience of early Christians were what drew men to listen to the gospel in their days; they will draw men now. Our lives must be lived for God. Not a word must be spoken, not a thought indulged that is not for him. If we are to be "a whole burnt-offering," no part of us, no part of our time, no part of our money must be withheld from the altar. We must sow the seed though we with tremulous pencil dipped in the flesh to draw the tents, sowing in tears! It is what farmers in the Holy Land do and if we do the same, "we shall doubtless come rejoicing, bringing in our sheaves." Let not, your hearts be troubled because the wicked seem to triumph and because the hosts of error mightily increase. "Though small our numbers seem, the victory is ours, hallelujah!" God is with you —who can fight against him?

Thy Word is Truth.

JOHN XVII. 17.

To all generations of mankind God has given unmistakable evidence to the truth of his Word. To our first parents he made the law that, "The wages of sin is death." And every time that death enters the abode of any of Adam's posterity, it proclaims the truth of God's Word. Israel going into Egyptian bondage, and after their allotted time, their deliverance by the hand of his servant Moses, proclaims in thunder tones,—the truth of God's Word. After this Israel was disobedient and Jeremiah foretold them that they should serve the king of Babylon 70 years. Zedekiah their last king "did evil in the sight of the Lord".....They mocked the messengers of God, and despised his words, and misused his prophets, until the wrath of the Lord arose against his people, till there was no remedy." 2 Chron. xxxvi. 16. Therefore they were given into the hand of the king of the Chaldees until the reign of the kingdom of Persia.

Then according to the Word of the Lord by Jeremiah; Cyrus as the servant of God released them from the seventy years captivity, all according to the Word of the Lord. A notable instance of the truth of God's Word is seen in what was foretold of Cyrus, long before Cyrus was born, it was written. "He is my shepherd, and shall perform all my pleasure: even saying to Jerusalem, Thou shalt be built; and to the temple, thy foundation shall be laid." Isa. xliv. 28.

Again, "For Jacob my servant's sake, and Israel mine elect, I have even called thee by name; I have surnamed thee, though thou hast not known me." Isa. xlv. 4. From the time that Jerusalem was destroyed A. D. 70 and her people slain by the sword of the Romans, or led into captivity. They in bondage without a country, a city, or temple, have been a monument to the truth of God's Word.—A few passages from Israel's Prophets will show how literally God's Word has been fulfilled. When God would deliver Israel out of boudage, he by an angel appeared to Moses, "in a flame of fire out of the midst of a bush; and Moses looked, and behold, the bush burned with fire, and the bush was not consumed. And Moses said, and see this great sight, why the bush is not burnt." The burning bush typified Israel in bondage—but not consumed. As it is written, "Though I make a full end of all nations, yet will I not make a full end of thee," Jer. xxx. 11. "For, lo, I will command, and I will sift the house of Israel among all nations, like as corn is sifted in a sieve, yet shall not the least grain fall upon the earth." Amos ix. 9.

Thus saith the Lord, which giveth the sun for a light by day, and the ordinances of the moon and of the stars for a light by night, which divideth the sea when the waves thereof roar; the Lord of hosts is his name. If those ordinances depart from before me, saith the Lord, then the seed of Israel also shall cease from being a nation before me forever." Jer. xxxi. 35-36. Who that has any knowledge of the history of Israel for nearly two thousand years, and is acquainted with what the Hebrew prophets have said concerning their dispersion; who I say, will not say, "Thy Word is truth." How true is that written in Hosea iii. 4, "For the children of Israel shall abide many days without a king, and without a prince, and without a sacrifice, and without an image, and without an ephod, and without teraphim." Our Lord being fully acquainted with what was in store for Israel on account of her sins, in his parables pictured her future misery,—"The rich man also died and was buried; and in hell he lifted up his eyes, being in torments." Luke xvi. 22-28. That the parable has reference to Israel represented by the "rich man." See Deut. xxxii. 22. "For a fire is kindled in mine anger, and shall burn unto the lowest hell, and shall consume the earth with her increase, and set on fire the foundations of the mountains..... They shall be burnt with hunger, and devoured with burning heat, and with bitter destruction."

See also Isa. v. Under the figure of [illegible] 7, "For the vineyard of the Lord of hosts is the house of Israel, and the men of Judah his pleasant plant; and he looked for judgment, but behold oppression, for righteousness but behold a cry.....Therefore my people are gone into captivity, because they have no knowledge; and their honorable men are famished, and their multitude dried up with thirst. Therefore hell hath enlarged herself, and opened her mouth without measure; and their glory, and their pomp, and he that rejoiceth, shall descend into it." Verses 13 and 14, As has been said, our Lord fully understood the punishment that was coming on the Jews for their sins; therefore his pathetic lament: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, thou that killest the prophets, and stonest them which are sent unto thee, how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not: behold your house is left unto you desolate. For I say unto you, ye shall not see me henceforth until ye shall say, Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord." Matt. xxiii. 38-39. And further he says, "And they shall fall by the edge of the sword, and shall be led away captive into all nations; and Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles, until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled." Luke xxi. 24. Now cast your eyes abroad and behold Jerusalem "trodden down of the Gentiles" for most two thousand years; and the Jew scattered among all nations and say, Does not truth proclaim in your ears, "Thy Word is truth."

Furthermore the words of our Lord are being fulfilled in our day. Hesays concerning the apostasy the head of which is the "man of sin," "He that leadeth into captivity shall go into captivity; he that killeth with the sword must be killed with the sword." Rev. xiii. 10. Our Lord being the one that communicated the revelation to John in Patmos; therefore these are his prophetic words. The Papacy is the power referred to who led the saints of God into captivity—and killed with the sword. Now the fulfilment of Christ's words and that in our day.

In A. D. 1870 during the war between Germany and France, France withdrew her soldiers from Rome leaving the Pope to his own resources, the king of Italy taking advantage of the condition of the Pope, took possession of Rome; thus ending the civil power of the Papacy. The Papacy has from that time to this claimed that the Pope is a prisoner in the vatican. Thus acknowledging the truth of Christ's words: and this was done by the sword of the king of Italy. Fulfilling the words of the Master. "He that leadeth into captivity. He that killeth with the sword must be killeth with the sword."

Again in chapter 17 it is written concerning the ten kings, "These have one mind, and shall give their power and strength unto the beast.....until the words of God shall be fulfilled." Every student of history knows that this Scripture has been fulfilled. But now comes another phase of the ten horns, "These shall hate the harlot, and shall make her desolate and naked, and shall eat her flesh, and burn her with fire." Eating her flesh, and burning her with fire, are figurative expressions, and amount to making her "desolate and naked."

These events foretold by him who knows the end from the beginning, have and are transpiring before the world; but they come as a natural consequence of the conditions existing at the time of their fulfilment. Therefore they are not perceived by the mass of mankind—but are "spiritually discerned," in the light of the divine testimony.

John Huss, Jerome of Prague, and Wickliffe in England, in the beginning of the 15th century were premature in their efforts to unmask the deformity of the apostasy, and lost their lives in the attempt. But in the forepart of the 16th century, "Martin Luther in Germany, John Knox in Scotland, John Calvin in Switzerland, Hugh Latimer and Thomas Cranmer in England, had better success." The kings had become tired and jealous of the claims of the Papacy to interfere in the affairs of their states. The time had come in the divine purpose for the kings to hate the harlot. Luther was shielded by prince Frederic the Wise of Germany from the ghostly thunder of the Pope; his successor openly advocated the cause of Luther and Melanchton and promulgated it throughout his dominions in 1527. This example was followed by all the princes and states of Germany unfriendly to the Papal supremacy.

The dawn of truth soon arose in Sweden; their ruler Gustavus declared publicly that he would lay down his scepter and retire from the country rather than rule a people enslaved to the orders and authority of the Pope, and more controled by the tyranny of their bishops, than by the laws of their monarch. Thus the Papal empire was overturned in Sweden, and the king became head of the church. The Danes also opened their eyes upon the beams of liberty, and abandoned gradually both the doctrine and jurisdiction of Rome. And all countries now Protestant in time threw off the papal yoke, and Catholic countries have and are curtailing the pretentions of Rome to interfere in their civil affairs. France lately has had considerable trouble in closing the schools of the monks.

The following is an extract from the Christian Standard of Aug. 18, 1904. "The rupture between France and the Vatican is almost complete. The French minister addressed a note to the Papal Nuncio to the effect that in consequence of the relations between France and the Vatican, his mission in Paris no longer has an object. The occasion of the final breaking off of diplomatic relationships was the command of the Pope to the bishops of Dijon and Laval to come to Rome. The cabinet forbade the bishops to obey. One of them yielded to pressure from Rome on threat of excommunication, and thus created the present situation. The Pope claims that these dealings with the bishops are purely matters of ecclesiastical discipline. The government holds that as the bishops occupied an official position in the Republic, derived from the joint agreement of Church and State, their functions cannot be interfered with unless the civil authorities are first consulted. To make the rupture complete, it is necessary for parliament to sanction the denunciation of the concordat or agreement between church and state. How serious the affair is for the church of Rome is partly indicated in the fact that the government pays over $8,000,000 annually for the support of Roman Catholic worship. When the agreement is broken the church will be thrown upon its own resources."

The kings one after another are "eating her flesh, and burning her with fire." As revealed in the divine purpose, there is drought upon her waters. Her springs are being dried up. Ere long the brightness emenating from our Lord's presence, will dispel the darkness from the minds of her dupes, and she will disappear—as darkness does before the rising sun.

Conference Report.

Pursuant to the call the Churches of God in Michigan met for the Quarterly Conference at Coats Grove, Sep. 30th, 1904. All the officers were present except one. Our President, Brother B. Lake, of Millbrook, could not meet with us.

Ministers present were Bro. A. H. Zilmer, Plymouth, Ind. Bro. L. C. Chase, Raisin, Michigan, and B. W. & M. A. Woodward, Dutton, Michigan.

All were much pleased to have Brother and Sister Good, of Rockwood, Tenn., meet with us. Formerly their home was at Dutton, Mich.

The following churches were represented with delegates, Meudon, Brady, Vicksburg, Richland, Byron Center and Dutton, and many of the isolated brethren were present. We felt that we had a good beginning for a profitable meeting.

Conference opened with singing. Brother H. C. Hammond calling the house to order. Prayer by Brother B. W. Woodward. Brother Zilmer was introduced and read Titus ii. The Subject, "The Unity of the Spirit."

Saturday 9:30 a. m., a short business session followed by a sermon by Bro. L. C. Chase. Lesson Acts xxvi. 4–7, Subject, "The Hope of the Christian." Lunch at noon.

1:30 p. m. Bro. Woodward gave us a very able sermon from 1 Cor. xv. 47, 48. "The first man is of the earth, earthy, the second man is the Lord from heaven. As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy; and is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly." Lesson Psa. xxxiv.

6:30 p. m. Social meeting led by Sister Woodward. Subject, "God is Love." 7:30 Sermon by Bro. Zilmer, Subject, "The Gospel."

Sunday 9:30 a. m. We enjoyed a good Bible reading given by Sister Emily Barnum.

10:30 Sermon by Bro. A. H. Zilmer, a continuance of "The Gospel" concerning "The Kingdom of God." So vividly did he portray the past, present, and future that one could almost imagine themselves past all this heartache and disappointed life, into the era of God given joy and gladness at its close. Bro. Zilmer spoke most eloquently and instructively on the subject, commanding diligent attention of the audience, and completely capturing the admiration of all who heard him. He is indeed "A workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the Word of Truth."

12:00 Lunch at the Church. Had a pleasant social time.

1:30 p. m. We enjoyed a good sermon from Sister Woodward, Subject, "The advantage of the foreknowledge of the second coming of Christ," followed by the communion, which was administered by Brother Zilmer and Brother Woodward, after which we sang a hymn.

7:00 p. m. Social meeting led by Brother Woodward. Lesson Rom. xii. followed by a very instructive sermon by Bro. L. C. Chase. Subject, "God's Covenant with Abraham." All were much pleased to have Bro. Chase with us, and to have the pleasure of listening to him once again. He has a beautiful way of presenting the Bible truths in that plain and forcible manner, so characteristic of him.

It is indeed a great pleasure to chronicle another good and profitable gathering at Coats Grove. We were royally entertained, and all received such a hearty welcome that all felt thankful to our Heavenly Father that we were permitted to meet with the Church at Coats Grove. The brethren at this place are always alive and at work.

There is always a tinge of sadness at all of our meetings; for some are not there who have met before with those of like precious faith. Some of the dear ones are silently sleeping, waiting. May God comfort those made lonely.

The best of feeling prevailed among the brethren during the meeting and those present were well repaid for any sacrifice caused by attending, while those who remained away lost the opportunity of attending an excellent meeting. There were no additions, but we were all encouraged to press towards the high calling of God in Christ Jesus. The attendance was good all through and all seemed to be benefitted by this gathering together. May God bless you all, is my prayer.

EMMA JACKMAN, Sec'y.

Editor Restitution:

I am still on the land and among the living, still firm in the faith of the gospel which is the power of God unto salvation and through obedience leads all into eternal life. And as we are living in perilous times how close we should heed its warning. Through the trials of this life I keep my eyes Zionward, but as yet we can only behold it by faith, but if faithful we shall see it in fact when the mists have cleared away. It was a great pleasure to read Bro. W. H. Wilson's Notes by the Way in THE RESTITUTION of Sept. 21. O how I would like to be at some of the good meetings, but as I am one of the isolated ones and debarred of that privilege I hope to be in the grand meeting when the Bridegroom comes. Oh, may it be our happy lot to hear that welcome voice, Come ye blessed of my Father, enter into the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. Oh may the time soon come when Christ will take his seat on his throne and restore the kingdom to Israel again. Oh, would it not be rejoicing to live in a time when men shall beat their swords into plow shares and their spears into pruning hooks, and learn war no more. So come Lord Jesus and come quickly is my prayer. Yours waiting for our Lord.

Doing Wrong.

The lines of suffering on almost every human countenance have been deepened, if not traced there, by unfaithfulness to conscience, by departures from duty. To do wrong is the surest way to bring suffering, no wrong deed ever failed to bring it. Thosesins which are followed by no painful pain are yet terribly avenged in this life. They abridge our capacity of happiness, impair our relish for innocent pleasure, and increase our sensibility to suffering. They spoil us of the armor of a pure conscience, and of trust in God, without which we are naked amid hosts of foes, and are vulnerable by all the changes of life. Thus, to do wrong is to inflict the surest injury on our own peace. No enemy can do us equal harm with what we do ourselves whenever and however we violate any moral or religious obligation.

Poetry.

"The Night Cometh."

An angel passed through a busy street;
His step was swift, and his smile was sweet,
And he sped in the path of the rising sun,
Saying, softly, "The day is begun,
The night cometh."

He met a child, who laughed and ran,
Chasing the butterflies with her fan,
A circlet of lilies, white and fair,
Crowning her waving yellow hair:
And, stopping, he asked in gentle tone,
"Do you love the Master, my little one?"
She raised her beautiful, sunlit head,—
"I am one of his little lambs," she said.
"Then do," said the angel, "as he commands;
Your work is ready, it waits your hands!"
The child made answer. "I'll not forget,
I shall do my work ere the sun has set;
But 'tis going to be such a long, long day;
It is morning now and I want to play!"

The angel watched her in sad surprise,
As she flitted away with the butterflies;
And he sped in the path of the rising sun,
Whispering soft, "Will the work be done?
The night cometh."

An hour flew by, and the child lay dead—
A stain on the beautiful, sunlit head,
A stain which the lilies could not hide,
Though they spread their waxen petals wide;
And the weepers heard, in a voice divine,
Like the solemn moan of a wind-stirred pine,
"The night cometh!"

The angel passed through the busy street,
And met a man with hurrying feet:
"Stay!" he cried; "are you one of those Who love the Master and hate his foes?"
"Oh, yes!" he replied; "my name is enrolled
In the books of the church, I am safe in the fold."
"Then do," said the angel, "as he commands;
Your work is ready, it waits your hands!"
"Good sir," said the man, "I shall do my work
All in good season, I'm never a shirk;
Just now I am busy, as you must see,
But sometime—yes, sometime—I hope to be free
To work for the Master; I'm still in my prime,
With life before me,—there's plenty of time!"

The angel watched him speeding along
With a troubled brow through the jostling throng;
And he followed the path of the setting sun,
Whispering soft, "Will the work be done?
The night cometh."

The years rolled on. Through a city street
A man walked slowly, with tottering feet;
His form was bent, and his face was old,
And his heart was as hard as his silver and gold;
But he seemed to hear, like a mournful rhyme,
"Life is before me, there's plenty of time!"
And those who were nearest him heard him say,
"It is growing dark,—I have lost the day!
The night cometh!"

Mysteries of Bible Resolved into Figures.

Based upon figures calculated to a nicety, with such precision, in fact, that the centuries in all their countless numbers pass before one, on his chart, like the simple maneuvering of mimic army of tin soldiers in the mind of the child in the nursery, Edmund Scribner Stevens has compiled some startling data on biblical history.

He has spent ten years working on what might be termed the "mathematical" side of religion in an endeavor to compute time of the prophecies as given in the Bible in order to reconcile it with out method of notation.

How well he has done this must, of course, be left to the individual to decide for himself, but it may be said in passing that if the figures which he claims he has proved true as regards things in the past hold good when applied to things to come they may well be taken serious note of.

Mr. Stevens is not a stickler for any particular creed and he has no new method to put forward for the saving of souls. He has worked nearly all his life in the printing shop and did his reading in spare moments, and, as he says, "since figures won't lie" he has done some figuring and leaves the result with you.

As is well known there have been many and diverse theories advanced for both the beginning and the end of things. Perhaps no subject is quite so fascinating as the one which delves or attempts to delve into the future.

It is conceded among theologians that the Old Testament, besides being the history of a people, is almost entirely prophetic and necessarily the thing to do would be to find a unit upon which to base calculations.

Mr. Stevens starts with the death of Saul in 2946 1-2 A. M. that is the year of the world and finds that the Kings of Israel reigned for 390 years, or until the Ten Tribes went into captivity in 3336 1-2 A. M.

He argues that when Saul became king it signified that there was an end of Theocracy upon the earth, that is the end of God's reign through the judges.

He holds that 390 is the equivalent in figures for the expression "time" in the Bible which has always caused so much discussion. Following up this lead he contends that when God told the Jews that if they went against his will he would punish them seven times he did not mean seven different kinds of punishment, as one would inflict upon a child, but seven times, that is their punishment was to last that long.

Now seven times would be 360 multiplied by seven, or 2,520 years, and this figure is one of the great measuring units upon which Mr. Stevens bases his calculations.

Let us see where this will bring us, assuming the figure to be correct according to the calculation made by Stevens. The captivity began in 3336 1-2 A. M. or 390 years after the first king began to reign and as it was, according to the Word, to last "seven times" or 2520 it would end in 5826 1-2 A. M. This of course, brings us over into A. D., so subtracting 4,000 from the last figure we have 1826 1-2 A. D.

To this he adds seventy years, for according to Scripture there was to be a generation which would "see the signs of the time," also thirty years, the length of time Christ lived up to the time he was baptized, and seven years typified by Noah and the Ark and we have 1933 1-2 or the date of the first resurrection.

To uphold this date Mr. Stevens arrives at it by another method, namely, he takes the date when Ezekiel saw the vision of Messiah reigning and the vision of the dry bones which is 587 B. C. according to the accepted date fixed by that distinguished authority, Archbishop Usher.

He adds to this 2520, the length of the punishment as before and it brings us to 1933 1-2. The date of the First Resurrection which marks the beginning of the Thousand Years to the Second Resurrection.

He offers still another method to substantiate the reliability of the date. In 605 B. C. Judah went into captivity under the Babylonian rule. Adding to this the "seven times" which the punishment was to last, or 2520 years, and we have 1915 A. D., and as the Lord promised to save Judah first Mr. Stevens adds 18 years or the time it took to rebuild Jerusalem and he finds 1933 again.

To uphold the figure 360 as the basic principle upon which to build Stevens points to a fact in history, namely, that in 637 A. D. the Saracens took Jerusalem and upon the very site of Solomon's temple began the building of the Mosque of Omar, which stands there today.

In 623 B. C., Nabopolasser founded the Babylonian empire and in the twelth chapter of Daniel we read that the prophet had a visitor and asked when "this abomination of desolation" would be destroyed and Daniel is told that it would be a "time, times and a half a time." Now, taking a "time" as 360 years, adding twice that for "times" or 720 and 180 for "a half a time," we have 1,260 years.

Strange as it may seem, if we add 1260 to 623 B. C., we have exactly 637 A. D., the very year the Saracens took Jerusalem and began the building of the Mosque of Omar.

To prove that these figures are correct even beyond the facts of history, Mr. Stevens takes another of Daniel's visions in which the prophet asks when these things would be made plain, but he is told "to seal up the book until the time of the end."

When is the time of the end? is the eternal question. "As a day is as a year and a year as a day in the sight of the Lord, Stevens adds the 1290 days or years, which was to begin the time of the end and he has 1927 A. D., and adding seven years, for according to Luke, "it was to be as in the days of Noah," we have 1,934 or approximately the 1,933 1-2 again, the time of the beginning of the end.

But Daniel wanted to know when the book was to be made plain, and as Stevens asserts it now is plain from his deductions he takes thirty years from 1934, the age of Christ when he was baptized, and we have 1964, the present year. Mr. Stevens practically finished his labors in March of this year, but he arrived at nothing definite before that time.

Mr. Stevens has employed another unit of measurement taken from the Great Pyramid of Gizeh in Egypt, which in Isaiah xix. 19 we are told would become "a sign in the border of Egypt in all generations."

From Prof. Celsus's work on the Great Pyramid, Mr. Stevens found that the gallery leading to the King's chamber measures approximately 3842 inches and in this fact he says "that he finds the secret of the Lord" in the longer measure of all time.

Now Mr. Stevens begins to look into the future even farther than by the shorter measure. In 2 Kings ii. 11, we are told that Elijah was translated in 896 1-2 B. C.

As this typifies when the immortal state is to begin, according to Mr. Stevens, he adds 3842 to that date and we find ourselves at 2946 1-2 A. D. To corroborate this, Mr. Stevens goes back to the vision of Daniel in 574 1-2 B. C., when he saw the temple restored at Jerusalem, and adds 2520, the "seven times" the punishment was to last, which brings us up to 1946 1-2. To this he adds 1000 years, the length of the millennium, or incorruptible age, we are at 2946 1-2 again, or the immortal age, which is the same as that typified by Elijah's translation, hegoing to the immortal.

As one listens to the man with the snowy white hair as he runs his fingers familiarly here and there over his chart and perceives the nicety with which he works to the end by his different methods, one is compelled to wonder.

But he is not done, for he has more methods to hold his arguments together if one cares for them. For instance: in 1810 B. C. there occurred the great battle of four kings against the five in the valley of the slime pits before Jericho.

This Mr. Stevens takes as prophecy of what is to come and adding 3842 we have 1924 A. D. and seven years typifying Noah and the Ark we come to 1931; once more, adding 2 1-2 years the interval between Saul's death and David's reign we come again to the old date 1933 1-2, at which time Mr. Stevens asserts marks the end of Kings upon earth that Christ may take up the reins.

In 1924 Mr. Stevens looks for a great battle which will as far excel in point of numbers engaged anything that has occurred in history as the heavens are above the earth.

But one more example. In 1931 B. C. Abraham gave tithes to Melchisedec, King of Salem, known as the King of Peace. Adding 3842 we come to 1929, when Christ is to be a priest forever after his order, according to Mr. Stevens.

Lamech, who was the type of the Holy Spirit, died five years before the flood so he asserts the spirit will be taken away five years, consequently he adds five to 1929 and we are back again to 1934 or approximately the same 1933 1-2 again.

In 588 B. C., after reigning eleven years, Zedekiah was dethroned and his people taken captive to Babylon. Adding 2,520 to the time the punishment was to last we come to 1921 A. D. According to Scripture God made the covenant with Abraham in 1921 B. C. Adding the long measure 3842 to this we came to 1921 A. D.

The marvel is that the dates work out exactly, but is there not strong support for the punishment and the covenant ending at the same time? Adding eleven years that Zedekiah reigned we come to 1932, and adding to this the age of Christ when he came up out of Egypt (two years) we have 1934—so Mr. Stevens claims that at the Passover in that year the Messiah of the Jews will appear to rule over the House of Jacob for 1,000 years.

Mr. Stevens had made some interesting comparisons in which he makes the tribes of the Children of Israel become types of present nations. Thus England is Judah, Scotland is Zebulun, Ireland is Issachar, Wales is Asher, and Canada the land north of Ephraim, which was alloted to Zelophad's Daughters.

The United States he makes Ephraim, the House of Joseph, and strange enough Canada is north of the United States as was the daughter's land north of Ephraim. Furthermore the allotting of the land to the seven daughters has established the precedent for women to hold property which up to that time they had not done.

Japan Mr. Stevens calls "Little Benjamin," the smallest but the pluckiest of all the tribes. Venezuela he calls Simeon for he always had a sword in his hand typifying that he was looking for trouble.

Denmark he calls "Dan," who was to be a judge among the nations and peculiar as it may seem the dispute between England and Venezuela was referred not to the United States as was expected but to the King of Denmark. Asher, typifying Wales, served the delicacies for the King's table and this Wales does today for King Edward.

So on down the line he apportions out the twelve to Norway, Sweden, Armenia and Macedonia. He then points to Scripture and shows that "the scepter shall not depart from Judah nor a law giver from between his feet until Shiloh come again." Then he draws attention to the fact that King Edward dispenses law from the Parliament House which is about eight blocks from Lombardy Street where the Jews put up the money which runs the government.

Mr. Stevens has been in consultation with some of the most widely known authorities on biblical and ancient history with the result that his chart and a pamphlet explaining it will soon be published.—Buffalo Courier.

MISSION OF CHRIST AND HIS DISCIPLES.

The purpose or end in life, or mission of man in this world, has been an all-absorbing theme throughout the world's history. And why not? Man was created and given this earth for some purpose. Each individual has his own part to perform however exalted or however humble that may be. Let us, who have accepted Christ as our Savior, think seriously about this matter, and learn through Christ, our great Example, what the work of disciples or followers of Christ should be. This is a busy age, when all is hustle and a seeking for wealth and fame, ambition for greater attainments, striving for supremacy in power and knowledge, an age of inventions, and wonderful scientific discoveries. The poet has truly expressed it thus—

"We are living, we are dwelling,
In a grand and awful time,
In an age on ages telling,
To be living is sublime."

As a result of all this increase of learning, power and riches, we have great enterprises and institutions of every description. One man's mind is the foundation of each plan or work. But this one man does not perfect the whole alone, but employs and sends out many to assist him, thereby helping others as well as himself. And this is all carried out systematically and in order.

Our Heavenly Father has a grander and more wonderful work planned out and to be accomplished throughout the ages. This too, we can readily see, is being done by system and in order. This great plan of Jehovah is the salvation or redemption of his people, the fulfillment of his covenants of promise made with the fathers, saying "In thee and thy seed shall all the families of the earth be blessed," meaning through Christ.

God is not doing this work alone, but has chosen and set apart certain ones as co-workers with him, of whom Christ is chief. Jesus in turn has chosen apostles, and through the teaching, suffering and examples of both Christ and his apostles, many are persuaded to be his disciples. Each disciple has his mission or duty to perform, not only those sent out to do a particular work, but all who live in harmony with him and his precepts.

God in his infinite love and wisdom, has revealed to us in his sacred word what our mission or duty is. Therefore we should search the Scriptures given by inspiration, written by holy men of God, as they were moved by the Holy Ghost, for through obedience to them we may obtain eternal life. In them we learn how through one man's disobedience life was lost to the world of mankind, and how through the obedience of one, life may be regained—that we may not only have life, but have it more abundantly—how God sent his only begotten Son into the world "to seek and save that which was lost," and "whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life."

In order to exercise an intelligent belief or faith in a person or thing, one must possess a full knowledge concerning that person or thing. For one to inform us that there lived a Washington or Napoleon does not give us an adequate idea of the man. We must know the man, in a word, to know a person is to know what he is.

What does it mean to believe in Christ? We read that it is necessary to believe in him in order to obtain eternal life. The belief of the mere fact of his existence is surely not sufficient, nor the further fact of his death, burial and resurrection (which some term "the gospel.") If we were to go about asking our friends if they believed in Christ, having that idea in mind, nearly all would readily say Yes. If this were all-sufficient I hardly think our Heavenly Father would enjoin upon us the belief and obedience of the gospel of the kingdom, repentance and baptism, and a godly life. We must know who Christ is, why he came into the world, what he is doing, what he will do, in other words, what his mission is.

Matthew says, "Jesus went about all Galilee teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing all manner of diseases among the people." He commissioned his apostles to "go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature." He called his twelve disciples together and gave them power and authority over all devils, and to cure all diseases. And he sent them to preach the kingdom of God, and to heal the sick.

Paul, who was called to be an apostle, separated unto the gospel of God, said to the church at Rome, that he was "ready to preach the gospel, for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." Jesus speaking to the eleven said, "All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth. Go therefore and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, the Son and Holy Ghost, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you."

Jesus gave his disciples these instructions to carry out, knowing that he must soon leave them, for he must suffer death on the cross, and be buried, and resurrected the third day, in fulfillment of the prophecy concerning him. The prophets of old who also have their mission in this grand plan of redemption, tell us of the birth of Jesus, his patient endurances of scoffing, his death and resurrection.

Prophecy does not stop here, but further reveals Christ as King—our future King. His work is not completed at the resurrection or at the time of his ascension, but he would have his followers continue preaching the gospel of the kingdom, teaching others the way of eternal life, and all things whatsoever he has commanded from that time until he comes again to set up that kingdom and reign. He is now at the right hand of the Father, making intercession for us, where he will remain until the Father's own time, when according to his promise, Jesus will come again to reward his servants and receive them unto himself.

Then will be ushered in the glorious reign of Christ. He will reign till he has "put down all rule and all authority and power," till he hath put all enemies under his feet. The last enemy that shall be destroyed is death. Then he shall deliver "up the kingdom to God, even the Father, that God may be all in all."

What nobler mission in life could one have than being a servant of the Christ, teaching what he taught and trying to emulate his character.

FLORA HARRIS.

The Gospel of the Grace of God.

This is a phrase which has not escaped the twisting used by many to bring the Word of God into line with their own preconceived notions of gospel truth. Such persons are apt to forget that there is such a thing as "wresting" the Scriptures to their own destruction.

It so happens that there is to be found in the immediate context of these words a correction of any such wresting as might be attempted. This is supplied by the Apostle himself as if on purpose to anticipate any such wresting. Paul was addressing the elders of the church at Ephesus, and he reminds them of the long period of three years during which he had been warning them, as well as of the subject which had occupied him during that period. This he expressly declares, Acts xx. 25, was "preaching the kingdom of God." That is, that "proclaiming the kingdom of God" was equivalent to what he had just termed "testifying the gospel of the grace of God."

This was Paul's wont in preaching to both Jew and Gentile. Writing to the Romans, he said, "I am debtor both to the Greeks and to the barbarians.....so as much as in me is, to preach the gospel to you that are in Rome also." And when he was brought to Rome, where he resided "two whole years, receiving all that came to him," we read that his work was, "preaching the kingdom of God, and teaching those things which concern the Lord Jesus Anointed." When at Thessalonica this "preaching the kingdom of God" gave certain unbelieving Jews the pretext to bring a charge against him before the rulers of the city of "doing contrary to the decrees of Cesar, saying that there is another king, one Jesus." Acts xvii. 7. This preaching was in exact accord with what our Lord himself had just preached; for he said "I must preach the kingdom of God to other cities also, for therefore am I sent." And he predicted, "This gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world." Matt. xxiv. 14.

The Apostle Paul was extremely apprehensive lest the gospel should be endangered through the devices of men. He spoke of "another gospel," and of the "perversion of the gospel." Writing to the Corinthians he said, "I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve, through his subtilty, your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ." 2 Cor. xi. 3. He said, "I am not ashamed of the gospel of the Anointed; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." Believing the gospel was therefore an indispensable necessity to every one that desired salvation. To understand what the gospel really is, therefore, became of the utmost consequence.

Ignorance and unbelief was here fatal, for "he that believeth not shall be condemned."

Much of the error regarding the gospel has arisen from a misuse and therefore misapplication of the term "grace of God." For ages this gospel has been exclusively linked with certain important matters such as sin, sacrifice, atonement, pardon, etc. The term "grace" is assumed by many to possess a supremely spiritual signification; and even to be viewed by such as claim to be highly evangelical as a kind of supernatural influence exerted on the minds of men whereby alone they can be enabled to believe unto salvation. They speak of a "kingdom of grace," and a "kingdom of glory." But they ignore the great truth that the true "kingdom of glory" is the kingdom of God restored again to Israel under the Messiah. This kingdom is by such persons carefully excluded from constituting any part of the gospel of salvation.

Sin, sacrifice, etc., devive their importance from the relation they bear to the name of Jesus, Anointed. Salvation has been lodged in that name. "Neither is there salvation in any other, for there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." The gospel of the kingdom and the name of Jesus Anointed went together.—"When they believed Philip preaching (or gospelizing) the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Anointed, they were baptized, both men and women." It was the "grace" or favor of God through which the gospel preached by Philip was sent.

"God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish but have everlasting life." This "love" or "grace" or unmerited favor of the great Jehovah, was the root or spring of all his redemptive measures for the race of man. In Eden the unsolicited intimation was made, "the seed of the woman shall bruise the head of the serpent." And so through Abraham to whom the gospel was preached—"In thee shall all nations be blessed." In what is called "the fullness of time," "God sent forth his Son," and in him culminated the Edenic message. But it had the solemn condition attached, "If ye believe not that I am he, ye shall die in your sins." Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall not enter therein." To leading men of the Jews he said, "Ye shut up the kingdom of heaven against men; for ye neither go in yourselves, neither suffer ye them that are entering to go in." The Apostle John wrote strongly on the name of Jesus as the crucial point of receiving or rejecting the gospel. He said "He that believeth not is condemned already, because he hath not believed in the name of the only begotten Son of God." "These are written that ye might believe that Jesus is the Messiah, the Son of God; and that believing ye might have life through his name." No Messiah, no kingdom, and no life.

"Behold therefore the goodness and severity of God." "Grace abounding," as John Bunyan has it, to provide a way of escape from destruction. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that believeth not shall be condemned."

J. CAMERON.

A drop of water fallen from a cloud into the sea, and mingled with the waters of the vast abyss, began to complain in this style: "Alas, how small a thing am I in this immense ocean, and how useless is my existence to the universe!" But it so happened that an oyster, which was in the way, opened his shell and cut it short in the midst of its discoursing. The drop hardened little by little, until it formed a pearl, which came into the hands of a diver, and after a long course of adventures became that famous pearl which today adorns the diadem of the grand Sophi of Persia.

Words at Breaking of Bread.

I would like to speak a few words of comfort to all those who are gathered around this table to show the Lord's death till he come. Job asked a very important question, a question that should interest us all, namely, If a man die, shall he live again? And now listen to the answer: All the days of my appointed time will I wait, till my change come. Thus it not seems as if Job did nor mind when this change would take place, he was willing to wait! Yes, he was very willing to wait, for I know, he tells us in another place, For I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth. We, who know the truth as it is in Christ Jesus are told by Paul while waiting for our change, to comfort one another with these words, "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first; then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall we ever be with the Lord. How much comfort it is to ourself to know and not to guess, what we are talking about, just like Job. Yes, Job assures us that he knows what he is saying, for he continues, And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God. Whom I shall see for myself and mine eyes shall behold and not another. Let us all praise the Lord, who have this assurance within them.

We do know that the days of man are at most very few and these days are full of troubles; Job experienced all this. The afflictions of life should teach us to set our affection on things above and to seek the true riches; nothing should separate us from the love of God. We may therefore under all circumstances look up to him, who is our representative in heaven, and make light of all our peril and cry, O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? The sting of death is sin; and the strength of sin is the law. But thanks be to God, which giveth us the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Therefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord. Amen.

Pine Woods Bible Class.

Teacher. In the year 1900, five articles appeared in THE RESTITUTION entitled:

PHENOMENA OF SPIRITUALISM ACCOUNTED FOR. NO. 1.

Those articles have been revised by Pine Woods Bible Class, that they may appear in the book entitled "Pine Woods Bible Class," which is proposed to be issued soon.

Now Spiritualism is the effect of some cause. Will Lud please give us what he conceives to be the cause?

Lud. Every effect must have an adequate cause, and the question arises, what is the cause of the effect called Spiritualism? Spiritualists claim that the cause of the effect is to be ascribed to never-dying spirits, said to survive death, at which time the work, device, knowledge, power and wisdom of the escaped spirit is intensified.

Q. Does the Bible agree with the above claim?

A. No. The Bible on the contrary says, that in the death state "there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom." "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish."

Q. Is the above the general teaching Scripture?

A. Yes. The general testimony of Holy Scripture is, that death ends all conscious existence. We can therefore dismiss the cause claimed by Spiritualists as false.

Q. What is the cause then of Spiritualistic phenomena?

A. In my opinion the phenomena can be traced to a natural, scientific and philosophical source. I have been much interested of late in reading a publication, entitled: "Odology an Antidote to Spiritualism," from which it is my purpose to quote extensively, and to accompany the same with suggestive thoughts.

Q. From what is the word odology derived?

A. "Now, odology (from logos, a discourse, and od) is a discourse upon od. The phenomena of Spiritualists are odistic, if anything. I have chosen to denominate what I have to say upon the subject by odology, rather than pneumatology, psychology, or any other word which concedes the unproved, and unprovable affirmation of the existence of supposed dead men's ghosts disembodiedly."

Q. Did you ever read what Professor Reichenbach says of od?

A. Yes. Professor Reichenbach says od is a fluid more subtle than electricity, and is thrown off the ends of the fingers like a blue flame.

Teacher. I remember once spending an evening at a friend's house, in company with other friends. It was a bright, crisp winter's night. I noticed a little girl running about the room scraping her feet upon a Brussels carpet, as she passed by me she touched the back of my hand with her finger, and it pricked like the point of a pin. She repeated it several times, and ran away laughing. I said to her, what are you doing, have you a pin? She replied, No, I have no pin. I then arose and scraped my feet upon the carpet as I had seen her do, and as I passed my wife, I touched the end of her nose, which shocked her. I could see a little blue flame leap from the end of my finger. I also remember a nephew who, when he wished to light the gas, would rub his feet upon the carpet, and then light the gas from the end of his finger.

Q. Why did Reichenbach give the name of od to this fluid?

A. "On this fluid Reichenbach has bestowed the name of od—I suppose for the same reason that Dr. Faraday styles the electrical poles electrods (electrodes) from electron, amber (by the friction of which electricity was first artificially discerned), and odos, away—the poles being regarded merely as the doors or ways by which electricity passes. The od is the boundary of the decomposing matter in the direction of the electric current. Reichenbach's fluid passes off at the ods or poles; and as he regards it as something else than electricity, magnetism or galvanism, he calls it by another name, even the Greco-chemical term for the extremity from which it exhales."

Teacher. Is this fluid constantly passing off from the electrods? How is that Carrie?

Carrie. The Professor says, that, "The electro-magnetic od is constantly passing off from the electrodes, or poles, of animal bodies, and certain crystals. It is probable that our bodies are enveloped with a halo of it, (like that which enveloped Jesus in a large degree on the Mount of Transfiguration, and a greater degree still as he appeared to Saul, on his way to Damascus). Mrs. Griffith says, It is well known that around and adhering to all surfaces there is a halo of semi-transparent light, seen only, however, when the object for experiment, is in a certain position with regard to the eye and the light which falls upon it."

Q. Does the halo of our bodies consist of this fluid?

A. Yes. Now, the "halo of our bodies it is probable, consists of Reichenbach's odic fluid; the color of which is visible to those who are highly odic, or in a state in which the od is abundantly generated. It is of a delicate blue when given off from the positive electrode, and yellow from the negative pole or crystal. From the finger tips of the male subject it exhales of a blue color about an inch long, but from those of a female, the jet is inconsiderable, imparting, as it were, a luminousness to their extremities."

Q. Where is this odic exhalation to be seen at night?

A. At night-time, this odic exhalation is seen in grave-yards (arising from decomposing bodies beneath the surface) "as a lambent blue haze" and this accounts for the ghosts or supposed spirits of the dead seen flitting about among the tombs of the dead. The other day a friend of mine said, that when he was a boy, living in England, that himself, and several other boys, made up their mind one night, that they would go and see an old ruined monastery, and that near by the ruin, was an old well, called "the Holy Well," as they came near the well, they saw a group of ghosts dancing all around the well. The boys went home, and told their parents they had seen ghosts dancing about the holy well. After that lots of people went at night to see the ghosts, and everybody saw them. After awhile, an examination was made, and the decaying body of a man was found in the well. The body was removed, after which no more ghosts were seen about the well. The ghosts were nothing more than the odic exhalation in the shape of a blue lambent haze, and an excited imagination could see the various forms and shapes.

Q. What produces the phantom ships sometimes seen at sea?

A. Phantom ships at sea, produced by refraction of the light reflected on the firmament from real ships.

Q. How are other phantom appearances produced?

A. "Phantom appearances are some times seen by sensitive nervous systems, produced by refraction of the odic rays in and upon the mirror formed by the magnetic halo of the earth, which emanate from the forms corrupting in the dust thereof. These phantoms (in Greek styled phantasma—Matt. xiv. 26), are called separate, or disembodied spirits, by the ignorant and superstitious, under the supposition that they are the real men and women, boys and girls, who used to enact life's follies in the flesh! They are, no doubt, as real as phantom ships, and as awfully mysterious to the unphilosophical, and Scripturally-unenlightened as they are to the untutored barbarians of the forecastle; but real as the phantom ships' spectres are, who would be so crazy as to maintain that they are the souls or the spirits of the ships which gave them motion over the dark blue sea? or are they disembodied ghosts of the vessels caught up to the third heavens? Yet this would be just as rational as the psychological theosophisms of the school, pulpits, and circles, about souls, ghosts, and spirit worlds."

Q. What is the best time to see this odic light?

A. The night is the best time to see this odic light. Spiritualists understand this matter, and use it to deceive the ignorant and superstitious. Cora Hatch was asked to explain why it was necessary to work in the dark in order to manifest the phenomena of spiritualism? The answer came: "The action of light agitates, dissipates, or in some way disturbs the (odic) fluid, gas, magnetism, or whatever the instrumentality be called, which is employed by spirits in acting upon grosser matter, that they are unable to control and employ it." This subtle element pervades all nature, and is by scientists called electricity, and which is used by spiritualists to produce a phenomena which they erroneously attribute to supposed spirits of the dead.

Q. Is not this at the base of a great deal of this phenomena?

A. Yes. "Now, it is a fact that in our day, there has been discovered a subtle, unanalyzable, incomprehensible principle, which though inscrutable in its essence, is found to be at the basis of all the phenomena of nature—itself eluding the test of chemistry, or the deduction of philosophy, scientists have called it electricity." The Scriptures call it spirit. "Thou sendest forth thy spirit and they are created." "By his spirit he has garnished the heavens." "The Spirit of God hath made me." "The Spirit of God moved upon the waters." On the day of Pentecost it appeared as "cloven tongues like as of fire," which certainly was an electrical phenomena.

Q. What does Professor Moser say?

A. Says "Professor Moser, as a result of his researches in Theromography, remarks that all bodies radiate light, even complete darkness. Again, he says, "the rays of this light act as ordinary light," and that two bodies constantly impress their images upon each other, even in complete darkness. Thermographic experiments prove these principles, and lead him to the conclusion, that there is a latent light in certain vapors, as well as a latent heat. The ordinary condition of the human brain, and organs supplied by its nerves, is that of adaption to the common exterior aspect of imponderable matters, such as light, heat, the grosser forms of electricity, sound, etc. But there is a more exalted or refined perception of these things which the animal organization of its own power, however, intensified by inherent excitation, cannot attain to. Our perception of the latent imponderables, latent light, latent electricity, or od, latent sounds, etc., may be rendered more acute than ordinary; but it can never rise to the highest penetration which is possible without the super-addition of something which the animal nature possesses only to a very limited degree. This something is "the Spirit of God without measure."

Q. Have all living animals this spirit?

A. All living animals have it in some degree, for "in God" they "live, and move, and have their being;" and if he were to 'gather unto himself his Spirit and his breath, all of flesh shall perish together, and man shall turn again unto dust." Job xxxiv. 14, 15. This minimum possession of God's Spirit by quadrupeds and man, is just sufficient for the purposes of that peculiar constitution of things called "this life;" but for the physical perception of things visible to beings of a more refined organization than ours, the sight of which will be vouchsafed at a future time called "the world (age) to come," the present amount of spirit is not sufficient. This can do for man what is proved, and what is randomly affirmed. He is not ordinarily in harmony with the latent imponderables; but God is intensely and completely so.

Q. Would not this make light and dark the same to the Creator?

A. Yes. Hence the darkness and "the light are both alike to him." If a man was imprisoned in darkness, a thousand feet below the earth's surface, God would see him as distinctly as we see each other above ground, in the light of noonday. Men profess to believe this, but upon what principle is it that God sees thus in darkness? Because his nature, every atom of which is condensed lightning, (as it were) glowing with such an intensity, that its radiation is felt throughout the boundless universe, penetrating through all substances, and developing life and motion in all things."

Q. How was it when Moses in the Mount came in contact with heavenly beings?

A. When Moses was in the mount, in contact with heavenly beings, his face became so luminous, that the children of Israel "were afraid to come nigh him." Ex. xxxiv. 29-35.

Q. Are there other instances of this kind?

A. Yes. See the following:

"The glory of the Lord shone round about." Luke ii. 9. "At midday O king, I saw in the way a light from heaven, above the brightness of the sun, shining (from the person of Jesus) about me and them which journeyed with them." Acts xxvi. 13. "His countenance was as the sun shineth in its strength." Rev. i. 16, "Hence he is called "light," and "a consuming fire." The rays from his presence, called spirit, diluted with the grosser constituents of the earth's products, place him in the inner relation to the imponderables, which are but one and the same principle, variously developed by the media through which it passes, into the receptacle whence it came. Thus, for instance, the most subtle principle on the earth's halo is spirit, which is called by different names, such as electricity, magnetism, etc. This halo is its reservoir, as it were. It is diluted with atmospheric air. We breathe it. It pervades every atom of our bodies and having enabled our organization to perform its functions, it exhales from the electrodes of our system, as od into the reservoir where we derived it by breathing. Thus a circle or circuit exists of the external, atomic form-changing fluid, internal, transformed matter, and nervous current, closing the circuit by od (latent light radiating in darkness) exhaling into the outer fluid."

Teacher. We will continue this study at our next meeting.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

W. H. WILSON.

The Meek and Quiet Spirit.

It is good to know, verily it is essential to know, but it is better to do, and best of all to be, as it is hardest of all. There are certain minds that seem engrossed on points of doctrine, staunch they are and true and their work is obvious and manifold. They have Bible texts with inferences, sylogisms and logic. Their reasoning is strong, their courage contagious, their enthusiasm inspiring. It is grand, to be under the spell of their influence for a time, especially where there is a sympathetic congregation to give depth and sweep to their power. But the power of reason and eloquence does not abide with us but in the "pleasures of memory." The enthusiasm departs as we go back single handed to the work and the warfare, the turmoil and the struggle—the struggle for what? To establish the essentials and non-essentials of God's truth? To preserve the record of his holy name and manifest his ways to men? I trow not—at least not yet. He that holdeth the waters in the hollow of his hand, that weighs the mountains in scales and the hills in a balance can surely be relied on to maintain his place. It is our concern, through hot and cold, through the silence and the hurly-burly to attend to our own most important business, the development of our own character, each for himself. That is the hard matter—it is easy to acquaint one's self with facts or to acquiese to certain propositions with logical deductions and so on. But in the celebrated "beatitudes" that introduce Christ's sermon on the mount there is no commendation for those that know, none for the powerful in debate or the strong in reason. All the blessing is for the poor in spirit, the mourner, the meek and the merciful, the peacemaker, the pure in heart, and those that want to know.

It seems that the essential part of growth is appetite in the spiritual as in the physical world and so the hunger and thirst for personal righteousness or righteousness is the only safe sign of spiritual health. Sometimes it happens that the logical reasoner, the eloquent exponent, who can lay it all down point on point as safe and sure as a proposition in Euclid, concludes that he has got there, and knows it all, but this does not seem to be the Christ idea. There is there no sense of finality or completion—the blessing to the lowly, quiet, continuous struggler, like the swimmer striking out up stream through the surging waters, unseen by human eye is the progress made, unfelt by others is the strain that urges upward. Here may be an overhanging limb or a jutting rock to rest on, but the stripped athlete has his mind set for the goal and heeds them not, and that goal is the sweet gentleness of Christ, far more to be desired than fine gold is the tractability of aspiring, trusting humility. This is indeed the true essential of Christianity, given this and all the rest must follow. Take this away and the rest is nothing less than nothing and vanity.

Yet there are those purporting to be of the body of Christ who are egotistical, selfish, self-asserting, spiritually arrogant. The proportion of wolves that scatter the little flock seems to be much greater than in the larger concerns where "lambs" are more plentiful and this can be easily accounted for. The great sects who form powerful organizations have the whole fold nicely fenced round and the food fed by skilled managers. There the sheep have to stay where they are put, and eat what they get, but when a body of believers meet in Berean style to "search the Scriptures," the very lack of centralized organization leaves them open to the aggression of the egotist and self-asserter. The very tolerance that they make it a special point to maintain, leaves a loop hole for the wolf, and so the strength of the Church of God is also its weakness. But the converse of the paradox is also true, for this weakness is also its strength and serves by experience for the development of character of which the cut and dried conventionalities of the modern religious trusts and combines know nothing. So we may say that even the wolf when he comes to scatter the sheep brings his lesson with him, his lesson of arrogance and know-it-allness, his lesson of intolerance to those who fail to arrive at all his conclusions, his lack of the meekness and gentleness of Christ who broke not the bruised reed, nor quenched the smoking flax. Though the wolf comes in sheep's clothing if you listen you can tell him by his bark and the loud self-assertive snarl that indicates quarrelsomeness. There is no quarreling with the meek and quiet spirit, no danger of rupture, no harsh names called. All such spirits make it as pleasant as possible all round, for the foundation of their gospel is love.

J. F. GELLETLY.

Dear Restitution:

I have given up farming and have again taken up the evangelistic work. My throat trouble which was the principal reason for my quitting the continual traveling and night meetings, does not trouble me only when I get a cold. I have agreed to work four months for the Kansas-Missouri Conference, and for the Nebraska Conference as long as the funds hold out. Those who wish to help the work in Kansas and Missouri please send offerings to A. W. Darby, Ransom, Kan. The officers appointed for the coming year in Nebraska are Almus Adams, Pres.; Mrs. Della Welsh, Sec.; Chas. E. Crowe, Treas. The address of the secretary and treasury is St. Paul, Neb. Bro. Adams has agreed to work four months for the Iowa Conference; and this, together with the fact that I have many dear relatives and friends in Nebraska and Kansas, who are interested in truth through reading our tracts and papers, and the fact that little evangelist work has been done in these states in recent years, is the reason for my preference, at least for awhile, to work in these states. I preached for a week near Lebanon, in South Co., Kansas, where I have many relatives who never before heard the truth preached, and among several families, they all seemed favorable to the truth, and one of my dearest cousins requested me to return to baptize him. I have left them a month or two to study; while I hold meetings in western Nebraska.

At this writing, Oct. 11th, I am on my way to Moorefield, Neb. to hold meetings for about two weeks. Pray for me brethren that I may have wisdom and the spirit of Christ, that the truth preached may draw some to obedience and prepare those already in the truth for the marriage of the Lamb, which is now certainly near. While we would be glad to know that the condition of the church were otherwise, yet we have to face the facts that in many places strife and division exist, and also worldliness and lack of zeal and a sad condition th[illegible] wisdom of man cannot [illegible] edy. Only the wisdom [illegible] spirit of God can [illegible] bride for the greates[illegible] has ever been or ever w[illegible]

What We Believe.

"We" are a body of religious people who, as such, "believe" something. We believe the teaching of the Word of God. This is our rule of faith and practice. But what does the Word teach as essential matters of "faith and practice?" Do we as a people uniformly hold to the great foundation principles of faith as set forth in the Word of God? Are our public ministers a unit on the things to be taught and believed in order to salvation? In short: Have we a faith? If so, what is that faith? What does the Word of God teach us as essential to true faith and practice? We have answered these questions in a very concise and yet comprehensive way in the upper right hand corner of our paper, THE RESTITUTION. The object of these lines is to say that, since writing a series of articles for THE RESTITUTION on "What We Believe," quite a number of requests, both verbal and written, have come to the undersigned asking that said articles be published in book form. They will make a book of about 60 pages, making 15 chapters in all. Such a book should sell for 15 cents per copy. Now, brother and sister, this concerns you. Do you desire the publication of this work for distribution among such who ask, "What do you believe?" If so, please write to the undersigned at Plymouth, Ind., saying how many copies you want at 15 cents per copy. Write on postal. Send no money until notice is given that the work will be published.

WE ask any brother or sister who knows the time paid for on subscription is expired, to please renew today. We need it.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalisation of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, OCT. 10, 1904.

THIS item is for the person who has allowed his time to expire and has not yet renewed. We wish to hereby solicit you to at once send in your subscription money for the paper. At this season of the year our expenses are necessarily heavy, as we must get fuel and otherwise prepare for winter. The political campaign is on, and the attention of some is diverted by this cause. Brethren and sisters, do not allow anything to crowd out your duty in this branch of the Lord's cause. Hurry in your renewals at once.

BROTHER P. Neill, Evangelist for the state of Ohio, reports a series of meetings at Center school, Goshen, where he had excellent attention and a good interest was manifested.

THE Baltic fleet has finally sailed. Least a dispatch from Copenhagen of Oct. 16, says a large fleet of Russian vessels left Libau early that morning. Some are to go by the Canal route, and some round the cape of Good Hope.

THE article in this issue headed "A Legacy of the East," was read at the Kansas Conference. When sent to us a request was made that the MSS. be returned when published. We have mislaid the return address, and ask the one interested to give us this information.

KING George of Saxony is dead, and his son Frederick Augustus III is now on the throne. It was his wife, the Princess Louise, who eloped with a French tutor named Giron, and by a special court divorced at Dresden in 1903. As the present king has never remarried, and as the Pope never has sanctioned the divorce, the king may recall his wife to court.

[illegible] has been some talk that [illegible] Roosevelt would endeavor [illegible] the Czar to make peace [illegible] but if such an attempt is [illegible] most likely his kindly of- [illegible] meet with refusal. Russia [illegible] the most men and the [illegible] money too, and these things count in the long run. No one nation will influence Russia for peace. It will take the united voice of the whole of the world to force the Czar to that end now.

LAST week we left Russians advancing with the determination to drive the Japs back, and march to the relief of Port Arthur. The Japanese did retire, but when they had gone far enough it appears they turned, and the most desperate battle has been fought of this great war. The Japs had returned to within a few miles of Liaoyang, and have now driven the Russians back till the battle goes on near Mukden. Over sixty thousand men have been killed, the large per cent. being on the Russian side. It is still a question as to whether the Russians will make a stand or retreat to Harbin. It does not seem likely that the two armies will go into winter quarters so near to each other, as it would lead to continual turmoil. We will have to wait and see. St. Petersburg has lost hope that Port Arthur can hold out much longer, and when the Japs get ready to strike again it is quite likely they will have reduced the strength of Gen. Stoessel till he will have to surrender.

A LETTER received from the administrator of the estate of a brother who died last August, tells us that one of the provisions of his will made in 1899 was that $100.00 was to be sent to this office to be used in our publishing work. After the will was made, and before our brother's death, all the estate had been squandered by a relative who was trusted but proved ungrateful. Consequently we are informed of the goodwill of our brother, and we are thankful for that.

This little story is told to make occasion to say that the money you have is the Lord's, given to you simply in trust, and when you are giving account of its use, it will appear much better if you can say that when alive and enjoying full vigor of sense, you sent such a donation to the Lord's work. Do not wait till after you are gone to the grave, for good to be done with your money—use it now, and the Lord will bless it and you for the deed.

If we had money we could enlarge our work. Print tracts and circulate them. Print Sunday School papers, and in various ways add to our ability to supply the needs of the brotherhood in many places. In order to go ahead with such work it is not enough to have to sit down and figure every penny, and say just how little you can do with. It is like building a house—you may figure as you please, but the advice of all who have tried it is add a good percentage for what you do not foresee, and then you will likely have to add to that in the end. So to go on with any advanced work—any forward step—one must have some money in the bank to draw on. Then with something back of one a good heart can be put into the work, and the effort will count for something.

Brethren and Sisters, there is money enough in our Church membership the country over, to keep all the ministers at work all the time, to encourage and support young men who can be training to take the places of the old ones, to enlarge our paper and keep it well up to the requirements, to publish Sunday School literature, and all the books and tracts necessary. In short, there is money enough to make every branch of our work aggressive—advancing all the time.

What is our condition? There is little need to answer the question. We all know our churches everywhere are weak, our ministers are employed but part of the time, and not too well supported even at that. Our young men must push themselves forward—if they can. Our Sunday Schools lag because of improper literature, our publishing work is a continual drag. There is not a single branch of our cause that is advancing. The reason for this is not that the cause we advocate is not truth, for it is. It is not that we are attacked by some outside foe, nor because of great dissensions among us. The reason for this apathy may not be altogether a financial one, but it is to a large extent. If the money that is held by our brethren, that is piled up in surplus funds, and various stocks and commodities, that will be squandered by others who have no interest in the cause of truth, after we are gone, were at once turned into channels that would crowd our work to the front in every department there is no organization anywhere that could make a better showing than we would. [illegible]

Brother, Sister, you who have property interests, in a short time you will die. What you have will be taken in charge by others. Will they use it to advance the glory of God? Just remember that you are but the steward of the Lord, and he will require at your hands what disposition you have made of the bounties he has given to you. Consider now how your account with him will stand. Ask yourself how you want it to stand in the last day.

Some Vital Questions. No. 8.

139. Paul in Eph. v. 25, 26 says Christ loved the church and gave himself for it, that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the Word, that he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot or wrinkle, or any such thing," etc., note the contrast with the above.

140. Daniel ix. 26, Gabriel informed Daniel that Messiah, after three score and two weeks should be "cut off, but not for himself;" if not for himself, then it follows that it would be for others; and the preceding paragraph tells us for whom he was cut off. How different this from the theory that there was no necessity for his cutting off,—and that man can just give up his sins and thus effect his own salvation. When men will ignore Is. liii. 5, Heb. ix. 15 and scores of other Scriptures because of the exigencies of their theories; it is certainly no exaggeration to say they make rules of faith and practice to suit themselves, and reject everything opposed to them.

141. We are told in Heb. iii. 5 that Moses was faithful in all his house as a SERVANT, for a testimony of those things which were to be SPOKEN AFTER, and yet Josephites reject the bulk of what Moses wrote concerning Christ, when they turn down the typical tabernacle service.

142. "The Lamb" is one of the symbolic titles of the Lord Jesus, and indicates his sacrificial relationship. He is careful to let us know from heaven through John on Patmos, that the title remains with him after he is seated upon the throne of his glory in the ages to come; and points to him as the Lamb that was slain in behalf of his glorified associates. Reader, imagine if you can, the blood-washed throng adoring the Lamb that was UNBLESSLY SLAIN, as our author and his sympathisers teach!

143. Jesus passed through the severe trial of bearing the sin-nature of his mother without yielding to its seductive power. The Word of God was in him as the prevailing power. It is indeed the begetting power of the new creation. Jesus said that Word was Spirit; and we are also taught God giveth to every seed its own body.

144. Mark commences his gospel in this way:—"The beginning of the gospel of Jesus Christ,—the Son of God. This designates Jesus as alone the Son of God, and is in harmony with his own declaration in John iii. 16 that he was the ONLY BEGOTTEN Son that God had. One Father is enough for one Son; and that one begotten Son is all-sufficient we know, since he has constituted him heir of all things, and given him to have life in himself,—all the fulness of the Godhead now dwelling in him,—and has commanded that men shall honor him as the Father himself is honored; and never an angel was a Son of this class.

145. We learned from John xx. 31 that the beloved apostle had a double purpose in writing his gospel; first, to create the belief that Jesus was the Christ: and second, to create the belief that Jesus was THE SON OF GOD. The first is intended to lead the Jew to become a Christian: the second raises the Gentile above all Jewish exclusiveness; the two together bring eternal life to both.

146. The two truths of the preceding paragraph must always be in evidence. Life is only to be found in vital union with him who is thus made known. Each element in the fundamental conviction is set forth as of equal moment.

147. To establish that fact, that life is only to be had in his name, is to raise all being, all thought, all action into a new region, where rests the hope of the reconciliation of the conflicts and contradictions of the present order of things.

148. We are told there was no need of the death of Jesus, in the face of the divinely stated facts that we are to be saved by HIS LIFE, if saved at all; and that if he had not been raised those who had fallen asleep in him would have perished! What fellowship has light with darkness!

149. Is it not clear that the death of Jesus accomplished something which the death of no other man could? And that the words HISSON, mean something essentially different in their relation to Jesus, from their meaning when applied in plural form to others? And if so, what is it? Do not overlook the words, "Much more, being reconciled, we shall be saved by his life."

150. Mark the tenderness of the phrase, "He that spared not HIS OWN SON, but delivered him up for us all, how shall he not with him also freely give us all things. Why his own Son more than others? Simply because he WAS his own, as no others were; and THEIR RELATIONSHIP TO GOD, could only be derived from Jesus. Let it never be forgotten that the arrangement concerning others was, that they were to be "conformed to the image of HIS SON, that he might be the first-born among many brethren."

151. How was it made possible for this conformity to be brought about? We are informed in Gal. iv. 4-6 that "God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, that we might receive the ADOPTION OF SONS." Infallible evidence, this, that there was NO WAY TO ADOPT SONS, till he MADE a Son of his own, for that purpose. Why was this necessary? Why, because those under the law needed to be redeemed from it. The whole connection shows the Apostle speaks on the assumption that Jesus is Son of God without human intervention; and that no others can become sons of God except through him. God becomes the Father of those who come to him through Jesus; no others.

152. Jesus put the question to his enemies, What think ye of Christ? Whose Son is he? They answered, "The Son of David." Then came the question, "How then, doth David in spirit call him Lord?"

Do the words "in spirit" mean anything? They do! They are inspired words. David knew he had been promised a Son to occupy the throne for ever; showing it would be an immortal Son. He knew also that he would be JUST, and would need no justification from the sins of his youth, as our Josephite author claims he did.

David also confesses that God had shown him that he would awake from the sleep of death in the likeness of that Son, who would not see corruption, but bring life and immortality to light; and that he would witness the reign in glory of that Son.

152. We see by John 10th chapter that Jesus was asked to state plainly that he was the Messiah if that were the case. Had he answered as they wished, they doubtless would have attempted to crown him King on the spot. But his reply referred to GOD as HIS FATHER, and this provoked them to take up stones to stone him, because they regarded him as a blasphemer.

153. 2 Cor. v. 17 [illegible] "If any man be in Christ Jesus, he is a new creature." A community of new creatures constitutes a new creation. The character of this new creation can be learned from Eph. iv. 23, 24, where it says, "We must put on the new man, which after God is created in righteousness and true holiness. The new man describes what is in contrast with the old. The whole race is in either one or the other. Each of these is multitudinous, and each has a head. One is styled the first man, and the other the second man. One is of the earth, and the other is of heaven. I Cor. xv. 47, 48. The old creation was at the first very good, but it was marred by its head. The new creation constitutes the divine plan for erecting on its ruins a superior order of things.

154. The foundation of this new order has been laid in one who is styled the BEGINNING of the CREATION OF GOD, Rev. iii. 14; and no other than the Lord Jesus Christ. Without him there could be no new creation. Without him there could be no new creatures. Hence it is written of the members of the new creation that they are God's workmanship, created in Christ Jesus. Eph. ii 10.

155. We want our readers to realize that Jesus Christ is the source of the changed condition, or state, described by such words as "washed," "sanctified," "justified," "reconciled," "purchased," "elect," "people of God," "heirs of salvation," "heirs of the kingdom," "household of faith," "heirs of the grace of life," "vessels of mercy," "sons of God," "body of Christ," "the church," "the Lord's freemen," etc.

156. Sonship depends upon begettal. Men have once been begotten,—but they must be BEGOTTEN AGAIN in order to become sons of God. And yet in the chapter affirming the absolute need for such an operation, and the implication that, it would have such a result, Jesus is TWICE called only begotten Son of God. Why the only begotten? Because there was no other begotten as he was?

157. Those for whom we write will see clearly that there is a difference between the only begotten Son, Jesus, and those who had been begotten of the flesh, and had to be begotten again with the Word of Truth, James i. 18. The privilege of the many to become sons of God is derived from the only begotten Son of God. "But to as many as received him he gave power to become sons of God, even to them that believed on his name."

IT will be remembered that a few weeks ago we made mention of the accident to Brother Ira R. Hall. The following letter will explain all we know of his death:

Editor Restitution:

I write you this morning to inform you of the death of Ira R. Hall.

Brother Hall died at Spencer Hospital, Meadville, Pa. at 7:30, Monday evening, Oct. 10, 1904, as the result of injuries sustained by him in a runaway accident near Saegertown, on Sep. 19th. Deceased was 79 years, 4 months and 7 days old. A good man has fallen; but we sorrow not as others which have no hope.

Words of comfort by the writer from Eccl. vii. 1.

T. J. SHOCK.

As we go to press a notice concerning Bro. Hall is received from Bro. P. Neill, which will be given next week.

To the Church of God in Ohio:

Brethren beloved in the Lord, by the Ohio Conference at Salem, Ohio, Sept. 8, we were elected evangelists for the State. We are ready, willing and anxious to preach the gospel of the kingdom, that others may obtain a hope of eternal life. Dear brothers and sisters, let us all strive to make our calling and election sure by self denial and sacrifice, that the truth to salvation may be freely preached. We will answer calls together or apart, and preach the glad tidings to few or many, in doors or out, but our chief desire is the welfare of the Church of God. Address us at 366 W. Main St. Salem, O.

Dear Friend:

I was glad to hear that yourself and family were enjoying such good health: but very sorry that you have taken so little interest in the tracts and papers that I have sent: for I was very careful not to send any tracts that just gave some educated man's guess or opinion, but tracts that give chapter and verse for their teaching, and I have taken pains to look them over and correct false quotations, hoping that you would read them and look up the references. But it appears from what you say that you have just thrown them in the waste basket, and you quote at length from several highly educated men's opinions or guesses, without one text of Scripture to substantiate their guess. If I say, "guess what I have in my hand," the child four or five years old is just as apt to guess right as the Latin or Greek scholar.

In Luke x. 21, Jesus rejoiced in spirit, and said, "I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, that thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and revealed them unto babes." So I think the wise and safe way is to take what Christ and the inspired writers say; for they agree, but wise men differ on their guesses.

You say that there is but a very small handful of people in the world that believe as I do. Please read the account of Noe, a preacher of righteousness, preaching to the people more than a hundred years; and imagine what sport they made of him, calling him an old fool, fogy, crank, etc. Then read Matt. xxiv. 37-39, and Luke xvi. 26, 27, and decide which company you want to be in, the majority or the minority: "For as it was in the days of Noe, so shall it be also in the days of the coming of the Son of Man." I believe that it is just as dangerous to follow the big crowd now as it was in the days of Noe.

You say that we may differ in a thousand things, and both be all right; but we must believe the account of Jesus in 1 Cor. xv. 3, 4, that "Christ died for our sins according to the Scriptures, and that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day, according to the Scriptures."

You may be just as honest as some of the heathen mothers that offered their innocent babes to appease the wrath of their idol gods; but I am sorry that you do not believe that Christ died, or that he was buried, or that he rose again the third day; for you say that it was the shell, glove, or sock, as it were that died, was buried and rose again. Now to illustrate your position, I tell you that some enemy has set fire to my wagon and burned it to ashes; but when you come to find out the truth of the matter, it was just the box that was destroyed; the running gears are all right, the old, heavy box is gone, the wagon runs lighter than ever and is more useful. Should I not have said that my wagon box was destroyed, instead of the wagon?

Jesus says, "I am he that liveth, and was dead, and behold, I am alive forevermore." Was that the shell that was doing the talking? Would it be proper and right for us to always say, house, tabernacle, dwelling-place, or something of that sort where ever the words, Lord, Jesus or Christ appears? If not, why not?

We will try and see how foolish it sounds. 1 Thes. iv. 14. "For if we believe that tabernacle died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." Verse 16, "For the dwelling-place himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God, and the dead in the shell shall rise first." Verse 17, "Then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them, in the clouds to meet the shell in the air, and so shall we ever be with the tabernacle." Verse 18. "Wherefore, comfort one another with these words." I am sure that it would not be very comforting to me to always live with some old, vacant shell. O how I do hope that I can say something that will cause you to study God's Word independent of the wise and prudent guessers.

Please read Luke xvi. 6, and hear what the angel said to the woman that brought sweet spices to anoint Jesus: "He sayeth unto them, Be not affrighted; ye seek Jesus of Nazareth, which was crucified. He is risen." If the angel had told the woman that Jesus had come and taken his old shell away, he would have been in harmony with the serpent in Gen. iii, 4, that said, "Ye shall not surely die" and also in harmony with wise and prudent guessers.

Rev. i. 18, speaking of Christ says, "I am he that liveth, and was dead," so the "I" that liveth is the "I" that was dead. The part that flew away has no say in the matter. We are also told in Acts ii. 31 that his (Christ's) soul was not left in hell. Is it possible that you will believe that Christ was in that terrible place of suffering for the three days and nights that his old shell was in the tomb, or will you believe it was the man Jesus that was in the grave or tomb, and he in harmony with the plain account of man's creation in Gen. ii, 7, "The Lord God formed man, (not a shell) of the dust of the ground and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man (not shell) became a living soul." Not that a soul was put into the man so why will you believe that what God called man has an immortal soul in him, when there is no hint of such a thing in God's Word, and the words immortal, deathless, or never-dying soul is not found between the lids of the Bible. I hope that you will conclude that it is better to take the Bible for your guide, instead of wise men's guesses. See Psa. cxlvi. 3, 4. "Put not your trust in princes, nor in the son of man, in whom there is no help; (is it because they cannot help us that we should not trust them?) his breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish."

You say that the immortal part that leaves the shell at death, is the understanding, thinking part. If that be so, dont for conscience sake try any more to comfort mourning friends by telling them that their deceased friends are enjoying happiness when their thoughts perish the very day they die.

Our Savior said in John xii. 48, "The Word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him (or her) in the last day." Now suppose that when you come up for judgment, Jesus says: "You was a teacher of the people before you died? Yes sir. Did you teach that the wages of sin is death, as recorded in Rom. vi. 23? No sir. Why not? Because I thought man was immortal. Did you find that in the Scriptures? No sir. Why did'nt you teach the people as recorded twice in the 18th of Ezekiel that, The soul that sinneth it shall die? Well I, I, guess not; for I thought that the word death meant separation of parts, and that would not be very much punishment for sin. Do you think it means separation of parts to speak of the death of a beast? No sir. The Book that we put here for your guide says that God gave Solomon wisdom, and do you know what he said in Eccl. iii. 19? Well, no, I guess not. He said, As the one dieth, so dieth the other; yea, they all have one breath, so that a man hath no preeminence above a beast. Well I did'nt know that it read that way. I perceive that you have taken wise and prudent men's guesses instead of searching the Scriptures as commanded to in John v. 39 and elsewhere.

Now, in conclusion, do you know of one place in the Book that we have given for your instruction, that you might have been perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works, where it is recorded that ye shall not surely die? Well, I dont know that I do. Well, study a little. Oh, yes, yes, in Gen. iii. 4, it says, Ye shall not surely die. Who said it? I, I. Well dont hesitate, out with it. Well, it was the serpent that said it. I am very sorry that you have accepted those five words of the serpent instead of the many hundreds of just as plain words from my Father and I. I am through with you now, for you have preached the serpent's gospel, and his five words in Gen. iii. 4. So he will reward you, go to him. You may think that I make a hobby of the life and death question; but I think that impossible, for those five words of the devil have caused us all of our sickness, sorrow, pain and death; and he is as active as ever in his destructive work. In my next letter I will try to make it plain to your mind that he is still deceiving people, so that they cant understand words as plain as can be spoken. Such as our Savior's talk to Nicodemus, in the 3rd chapter of John and other places.

I hope that in the near future I can say, From your brother in Christ. I can now say,

From your true friend,

Jesus is mine! I am now prepared
To meet with what I thought most hard;
Yea, let the winds of trouble blow,
And comforts melt away like snow;
No blasted trees, or failing crops,
Can hinder my eternal hopes;
Though creatures change, the Lord's the same,
Then let me triumph in his name.

A Legacy of the East.

We Americans of the nineteenth century, looking back through the long vista of time to the Ancient East, are wont to think of its people as uncivilized, as catching the first faint glimmer of the sun of civilization, while we bask in his noon day splendor. But we have legacies from that same Ancient East, without which our lives would be but as "a tale that is told."

"And the Lord God planted a garden eastward in Eden, and there he put the man whom he had made." Here then we find the progenitors of the race, living in a world of purity, untouched by sin or sorrow, living in Paradise in the sunlight of God's smile. Can we say that our star of civilization outshines every other that has appeared in the firmament of the ages? Max Muller says "The world is still speaking the language of Adam." Undoubtedly Adam was possessed of as much intelligence as any man who ever appeared upon the stage of human action. A stream cannot rise higher than its source.

To Adam and his helpmeet was given absolute dominion over the earth and all that appertained thereto. To them was given the commission to keep and dress the garden, but to subdue the earth. In the beginning then we find an absolute monarchy of the whole earth, with a just and righteous ruler, the God of heaven, and Adam appointed to carry out his will in the earth.

In this as in the governments today the appointed must carry out the will of the appointing power, or be removed. Now God commanded Adam that he might eat of every tree in the garden except the tree of knowledge of good and evil, but of that he should not eat lest he die. But Adam wilfully transgressed. Paul says "Adam was not deceived," and when he was arraigned before the Lord, being very much like people of today willing to shift the responsibility on to some one else, he plead guilty saying, "The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree and I did eat." Then comes the sentence "Dust thou art and unto dust shalt thou return," and the man and his wife were driven out of the garden and a flaming sword guarded the tree of life. So then Adam rests under the curse and we as his descendants inherit his legacy. "As by one man sin entered into the world, and death by sin; and so death passed upon all men in whom all have sinned," giving the marginal reading. By his act of disobedience Adam is rendered incapable of carrying out God's designs in the earth, and is set aside.

Did God renounce his intention of having a righteous government on the earth or has he provided a way by which man may get back into his favor? He has provided another Adam, "And so it is written, the first man Adam was made a living soul, the last Adam was made a quickening spirit." The question of vital importance to us is, if a way has been provided, what is that way. We have one source of knowledge, a mine of unspeakable riches, of eastern origin—the Bible. Are we to read with preconceived ideas to have them confirmed, or are to read to find out what is really there, no matter whose religious ideas it may refute? "Hew to the line no matter where the chips fall." The number advocating a doctrine does not establish its truth, although it may its popularity. Two contradictory propositions touching the same point can not both be true—one must be false. If we are striving to get back into God's favor we must understand his plan before we can conform ourselves to his standard.

In this same beautiful garden started two doctrines, one false, the other true. God said unto Adam "In the day thou eatest thereof, thou shalt surely die," and the Serpent said, "Thou shalt not surely die." Believing God's Word then, whatever is man, whether it is the soul, or the body, or both, whatever is man dies—it is not transition. One writer on this subject says "The belief in the immortality of the soul is implanted in man by the wish. It were too horrible if it were not; it must be—it is!" What profound logic! If we wish to be the possessor of a million dollars, we possess that amount—"it were too horrible if it were not so." If we wish to sit in the highest position in the powers that be, we are the chief executive of the nation—"it were too horrible if it were not so." Following out this reasoning we become the possessor of that for which we wish in every instance. It is without even the semblance of reason. The same lie which the serpent whispered to Eve has come down through the ages and we have it today written in the books, preached from the pulpits, sung by choirs, talked at the fireside, nye it has even crept into our schools.

This belief in the conscious existence of man after death is the foundation principle of orthodoxy, having its rise in the garden of Eden, and coming down to us through Nimrod and his descendants. The belief of the so-called Christian churches is identical with all the heathen systems of religion, Mohammedanism, Brahminism, Buddhism. If this then is pagan doctrine, what then is taught in the books? Hear Job, a man from the extreme East, whom God declared to be a perfect and upright man, saying, had he died at birth "I should have been as though I had not been." In Ecclesiastes it is recorded, "The living know that they shall die, but the dead know not anything." Listen to the testimony of David concerning man, "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth; in that very day his thoughts perish." How much stronger can language be made? These are but few of the many quotations bearing upon the same point, clearly establishing the mortality of man and his absolute unconsciousness in death. This is one point in the one true faith once delivered to the saints and handed down to us through Abraham and his righteous descendants. If we believe ourselves to be already possessed of immortality we will never seek to obtain it, and will fall right here in our endeavor to gain eternal life, for are we not told to "seek for glory, honor, and immortality"? Having established the fact of man's mortality, in order that we may be participants in the Restitution age, we must find how we may get back into divine favor. The false and the true theories are both of eastern origin with Nimrod the great exponent of the one and Abraham of the other. The gospel was evidently preached to Abel for "through faith Abel offered a more excellent sacrifice than Cain." Cain . . . the transmiter of the false ideas, the world becoming filled with wickedness so "the world that then was, being overflowed with water perished." While the world was rife with falsity in religion, yet prior to the flood we have no record of idol worship.

After the earth had been purified, the race took a new start in one family from the mountains of Ararat, the truth being in the line of Shem in Chaldea. Listen to Paul, an eastern man, a scholar, and a logician, "And the Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying in thee shall all nations be blessed." He is also declared by the same good authority to be the father of all who walk in the steps of his faith. Again Paul says concerning himself, "having therefore obtained help of God, I continue unto this day witnessing to both small and great, saying none other things than those which the prophets and Moses did say should come." If we can find out what the gospel was that was preached to Abraham, the faith in which he walked, the things which Moses and the prophets did say should come, then we will know God's purposes concerning earth and man, what must be done to us to become Abraham's children and sharers of the promise, "If ye be Christ's then are ye Abraham's seed."

What was the truth in the days of Abraham, was the truth in the time of Christ, and is the truth today, and whatever is opposed to that is error. Abraham, all the ancient worthies, every true disciple of Christ in all ages, were monotheists. Col Ingersoll says Christianity would have us believe that "once three is one and three times one is one." And so they teach. Moses says, "Hear, O Israel, the Lord our God is one Lord." And Paul confirms his testimony saying, "God is one." Some writers and speakers boycott the Old Testament writers and consider them of no importance, but it is doubtful if a knowledge of the gospel could be obtained from the New Testament alone.

From a study of Moses and the prophets we conclude that God did not relinquish his design of having a righteous government on the earth and that he will at some future time establish a literal government on this earth having all the prerogatives which belong to a government—a ruler, capital, territory, subjects, laws. As the first Adam was to have absolute dominion so will the second Adam. Has the second Adam proven himself in harmony with the appointing power and obedient thereunto? A voice came from heaven saying "This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased." By his miracles he demonstrated his power to do all things which the first Adam should have done, and one thing beside, without which power the great leveller, death, would forever have held us in thraldom. He has demonstrated his power, has he shown his obedience? Paul says, "he became obedient unto death even the death of the cross." "Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friend." As the first Adam had a helpmeet for him, so will the Second Adam have a helpmeet for him—the church. All along down the ages God has been taking "out of the Gentiles a people for his name"—selecting those who developed a character in harmony with his purposes, to be under officers in the kingdom of God. When a sufficient number has been selected, the Christ will come a second time to the earth and establish his kingdom and "the law shall go forth of Zion and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem." In this government Christ will be the chief ruler, the saints of all ages the under officers, the whole world the territory, Jerusalem the capital, and the nations then existing on the earth the subjects. Then will the blessing of the nations through the seed of Abraham commence. All true Christians are seed of Abraham and heirs according to the promise. "They which are of faith, the same are the children of Abraham." This blessing of the nations will not begin until God in his own good time is ready. When enough seed has been developed, the dead in Christ shall be raised, the righteous on earth shall be changed, and the "Lord of Hosts shall reign in Mount Zion and in Jerusalem and before his ancients gloriously." Then the earth shall be brought to the condition of the garden of Eden: then a just and righteous rule shall be inaugurated and absolute justice shall be meted out to every individual; then shall be no hunger, sickness, sorrow, or death, then the desert shall blossom as the rose, springs shall break out in thirsty places and "nothing shall hurt nor destroy in all God's holy mountain." In the words of the poet,

> "I praise the sun whose chariot rolled
> On wheels of amber and of gold,
> I praise the sun, whose ample field
> Shone glorious as a summer shield.
> I praise the earth in beauty seen
> Of garlands gay of various green.
> But O God! O good beyond compare!
> If thus thy meaner works are fair,
> If thus thy bounties gilded the span
> Of ruined earth and sinful man,
> What must that glorious mansion be
> Where thy redeemed shall dwell with thee."

This legacy is of the East. Have we any other bequest to contrast with this glorious inheritance?

The true Christians, worshipers of the one true God—coming through the line of Shem are monotheists. The heathens or idolaters coming through the line of Ham are polytheists. Both starting in the country of Chaldea. Nimrod, the great leader of the pagans, systematized their worship. Their system was founded on truth but instead of being willing to wait until God was ready to begin the blessing of the nations, they undertook to do God's work in their own way, out of its season, and without his sanction. This blessing of the nations now, as we go along, is the underlying thought of all missionary work, and the project of the churches to convert the whole world. It is a Herculanean task and will never be accomplished. This attempt at blessing the nations caused the church to reach out after the reigns of government, which resulted in the union of church and state. The blessing bestowed by this union was such a reign of terror and despotism as has never been equalled in the annals of history. Nor is this confined to the Mother church, but all the daughters are attempting to drive the same steed and would use the same rod of iron should the attempt succeed.

In the olden time, in the East, people were very much like people of America in the twentieth century, and the early Christians, desiring to be like their neighbors allowed the idolatrous rites and ceremonies of their pagan surroundings gradually to creep into the church, until today there is not a true church to be found on the face of the earth. John Wesley says in his sermon on the "Mystery of Iniquity," "I doubt if you ever saw a Christian in all your lives, there is not a Christian nation, a Christian city, and scarcely a Christian hamlet on the globe." Lew Wallace says, "The early Christians after the death of the Lord borrowed altars from the pagans and recast the worship so sumptuously in purple and gold the apostles would not have recognized it." There has been a great apostasy, and the doctrines of so-called Christianity and paganism are identical.

James Freeman Clark says, "There is no doubt that the Christian doctrine of the Trinity was derived from such forms of thought previously existing in Egypt and elsewhere." Babylon had her triad; Egypt the land of Ham, had hers; Assyria, India, Persia, Scandinavia all had triads. There are triads in all religions except that of the descendants of Abraham, it being found neither in the line of Isaac nor Ishmael. Mohammedanism declares "There is one God and Mahomet is his prophet." In each and every one of these religious triads one of the three was put to death and afterwards restored to life by a rebirth or in some other way. The Christ of the Bible, the Christ on whom Abraham believed, the Christ of whom Moses and the prophets spoke, the Christ in whom Paul trusted, "died, was buried and rose again the third day." The Christ of modern Christianity has existed from the beginning of time, aye even helped in the creation of the world, and went to Paradise from the cross. Is there not a serious, a fatal mistake somewhere? Is it not a matter of the gravest importance in what Christ we are anchoring our faith? Peter says concerning Jesus Christ of Nazareth, "For there is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." Those who believe on a Christ of "one and the same substance with the Father," —on a false Christ—will never be "blessed with faithful Abraham."

Not only has Christendom adopted the God of the pagans but they have adopted their festivals and given them a Christian signification. Our Christmas, said to be the celebration of the birth of Christ, was celebrated in exactly the same manner as it is today, before the birth of the Lord. The date of the birth of Christ is not known, and it is very probable it was not in December at all, as that is the rainy season in Judea and the shepherds could not have been in the fields at midnight watching their flocks. If Christmas does not commemorate the birth of the Savior, why is it celebrated? It was originally called the Saturnalia and was a heathen festival of rejoicing in honor of the return of the God Saturn, or a species of sun worship celebrated at the winter solstice. Gifts were sent one to another, slaves were set free for a week, it was a time of great rejoicing and joy and we have adopted it wholly. There is no place in the Bible where we are commanded to celebrate the birth of Christ, and no especial prominence is given to the time of his birth.

Another festival said to commemorate the resurrection of the Lord has the same ancestors. Easter is celebrated at the same time the Jews observed their passover, and is called Easter from the Anglo Saxon Goddess Eastre, whose festival was held in April. It is a moon festival, the time of its observance depending upon the changes of the moon. In the heathen worship of the Chaldeans, the principal God was Dummuzi, the goddess Ishtar and their son Tammuz. Dammuzi was killed and Ishtar mourned for him forty days when he was re-born as Tammuz and a festival of rejoicing was held, corresponding exactly to our Lent and Easter. The Asiatic churches differed as to their time of observing the day, and after a controversy the time was fixed by Constantine in the Nicene Council. Eastre or Venus is the Astarte of the Sidonians, the Ishtar of the Chaldeans, and the Ashtoreth of the Assyrians. There is no trace of the apostles ever having kept this day, nor of its observance being commanded. The Easter egg, which plays so important a part in Easter festivities, is also of Eastern origin. An egg was said to have been dropped from heaven on the Euphrates river; the fishes rolled it ashore, the doves sat on it, and from it came the goddess Venus or Eastre. Eggs were used in many ceremonies of different heathen nations.

Sunday is not a Bible Sabbath Day, but people were ordered by Constantine to observe the venerable day of the sun, and to cease from their labors. The Catholics openly declare that the Protestants keep Sunday on their authority. Sunday then is a day set apart in honor of the Sun God, Monday is a day set apart in honor of the Moon Goddess Venus, Tuesday honors the Goddess Tuesco, Wednesday is dedicated to the Scandinavians God Woden, Thursday commemorates Thor of the Scandinavians, Friday honors the Scandinavian Goddess Frigia, and Saturday is dedicated to the God Saturn. These are heathen deities every one.

Few people seem to realize how much that is embodied in our civilization is bequeathed to us by Eastern paganism. Looking over the world at the teachings of the popular churches, at the practices of those who claim to be followers of the meek and lowly Jesus, and comparing the creeds with the doctrine of ancient paganisms, we may well enquire, are we Christians or are we pagans?

In our eastern inheritance we have only two systems brought to view. By the adoption of one we join a company of travelers who believe that at night fall they will take up their abode in a region of such light and glory, and associate with beings of such purity and perfection as to be beyond the conception of mortal man, but who in reality are destined for a house as dark as Erebus, where a Stygian sleep will take possession of them from whence there will be no awakening "They shall sleep a perpetual sleep." If we adopt the other system, we join a company of travelers who will also sleep in the house of darkness with the kings and counsellors of the world, but who have directed their journey and moulded their lives in harmony with the designs of the controller of the universe, and who have a work to do in that glorious dawn when the "Sun of Righteousness shall arise with healing in his wings" and shall dazzle all with his splendor. Then shall these be awakened from their sleep and receive the reward the Lord the righteous King shall bestow. It is ours to decide which phase of our Eastern Legacy shall be our Phineas to guide us through the Symplegades on our journey to Eden.

The Glorious Destiny of the Righteous.

The righteous have a glorious destiny. Theirs is a wonderful destiny. Their bodies are going to be raised glorious and immortal. Glorious resurrection! The righteous look for the soon return of Jesus the Christ, who shall change their vile bodies, and fashion them like his own. O what a glorious destiny is this! The body which was doomed to sickness, pain and death, and which has been the prey of vile worms, and lost every vestige of its organization, shall not only rise again, but rise in undecaying strength and beauty.

The righteous will be perfectly happy, The regenerated earth will be a state of consummate blessedness. No labor and suffering there. Its inhabitants hunger no more." They are forever exempted from sorrow and pain. By them no tear is ever shed, and no sigh is ever heard. They enjoy the company of the wise and good of every age and nation,- including patriarchs prophets, apostles, martyrs, and confessors. They reside in absolute security, having every means of the purest enjoyment. They walk with the Lamb of God in white, the Master leads them to living fountains of waters,—sources of delight, always fresh and satisfying. They sit at the right hand of God's own Son and upon his throne. In this state the righteous are to remain forever. Glorious destiny.

EUGENE B. WILLARD.

The lines of suffering on almost every countenance have been deepened, if not traced there, by unfaithfulness to conscience, by departures from duty. To do wrong is the surest way to bring suffering. No wrong deed ever failed to bring it. Those sins which are followed by no palpable pain are yet terribly avenged in this life. They abridge our capacity of happiness, impair our relish for innocent pleasure, and increase our sensibility to suffering. They spoil us of the armor of a pure conscience, and of trust in God, without which we are naked amid hosts of foes, and are vulnerable by all the changes of life. To do wrong is to inflict the surest injury on our own peace. No enemy can do us equal harm with what we do ourselves whenever and however we violate any moral or religious obligation.

In Remembrance.

We love to be remembered by our friends, but we desire that their recollection of us shall be agreeable to us and agreeable to them. We would not choose to be remembered by some circumstance of pain or shame or humiliation. If remembered, we would prefer to be remembered in connection with what was most pleasing and honorable in our experience. Our Savior, when he left this world, desired to be remembered by his followers; but he selected as a memorial to refresh our recollections, not the palm branches which were scattered before him as he rode in triumph into Jerusalem, not some reminder of the transfiguration hour when his disciples beheld his glory; but he chose as the token by which he should forever be remembered, the memorials of his suffering, of his cross, of his death. He did not bid us to scatter palms, or spread garments before him in remembrance of his name, but breaking the bread and giving the cup he said "Do this in remembrance of me," bidding us to remember him by the anguish he endured, by his body broken for us, and his blood shed to cleanse us from our sins.

Christ's memorial is his cross, the shame he endured, the pain, the anguish, the scoffing and reproach; and the breaking of bread to show forth his death, is a perpetual reminder of the most painful and shameful circumstance in all the life of the Son of God.

"Do this in remembrance of me." He calls us to remember his sorrows; to remember his reproach, to remember the scorn, the scoffing, the shame, and spitting, which he endured. And if we remember him in sorrow, and bear in mind the sufferings of Christ which he has endured for us, we may be sure that he will remember us, not only in the days of our affliction and conflict, but when he shall come in his kingdom, and shall welcome us to his presence, to his glory, to his joy.—*H. Exhortation at the Breaking of Bread.

Hearken, my beloved brethren! That means that we are to give attention to things that are spoken in the general epistle of James, in regard to the poor of this world, and of God's love and mercy to such. He has always had more compassion on the poor of this world in every form than of the rich, for he has chosen them to different positions. He tells them, fear not little flock, it is the Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom, and he chose them to be heirs of the kingdom, and we are advised not to regard the rich and despise the poor, but rather be merciful and loving toward them, for it is stated in Scriptures that God is love, and we ought to try and imitate him, for he so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son for the sins of poor mortal man.

We are advised in Scriptures to do good to them that hate you and despitefully use you, and to love thy neighbor as thyself. In our text James says, Hearken, my beloved brethren, hath not God chosen the poor of this world rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he has promised to them that love him. Some would think it one of the greatest honors to be an heir of some of the kingdoms of this world, but that would be small in comparison to being an heir of God's kingdom, which his Son is to set up in his own appointed time. We see it recorded in Scripture that God has more love for the poor of this world than the rich. It must be because they are more humble as a general thing than the rich. Let the brother of low degree rejoice in that he is exalted but the rich in that he is made low, for as the flower of the grass he shall pass away. Blessed is the man that endureth temptation, for when he is tried he shall receive the crown of life which the Lord hath promised to them that love him. Here we see again what God has promised to them that love him.

Paul in 1 Cor. xxiii. 7, 8, For you see your calling, brethren, how that not many wise men, after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble are [illegible] but God chose the foolish [illegible]'s world to confound the [illegible] hath chosen the weak [illegible] world to confound the [illegible]are mighty, and base [illegible] world and things that [illegible]d hath God chosen, yea and [illegible] that are not to bring to naught things that are, that no flesh should glory in his presence.

The promises of God are the declaration or assurance which God has given in his Word of bestowing blessings on his people, such assurance resting on the perfect justice, power, benevolence and immutable veracity of God cannot fail of performance. What a grand thing it will be if we are so fortunate as to become heirs of that glorious kingdom.

W. D. Townsend.

PSALM LXVI. 9.

He maketh wars to cease, unto the end of the earth, he breaketh the bow, and cutteth the spear in sunder. Do we in reading the lesson get the full meaning of this, he maketh wars to cease? Just read the books of the Kings of the wars between Israel and the heathen nations, of the wars until the destruction of Jerusalem, of the wars of all nations until the present time. O what suffering, what horror, we fully understand the war of our day, and we by reading God's Word can look ahead and know there will be war such as the world has never known. But these words, he maketh war to cease, thrills our hearts with joy, for we know his Word is sure. But man is powerless, for nation shall rise against nation and kingdom against kingdom; but the Lord shall judge among the nations and they shall beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks, nation shall not lift up sword against nation. Neither shall they learn war any more. Learn war is the teaching of our day, taught in the schools, on land and sea, even unto the end of the earth.

The prophet Joel says, Proclaim ye this among the Gentiles, prepare war, wake up the mighty men. Yes, surely they are awake, wide awake to all that pertains to warfare. Were ever such navies, such battleships, such engines of war, that can carry death and destruction before them like an avalanche. Men say, is not universal peace at hand, with the advent of weapons so terrible that the nations of the world will be afraid to fight. But the nations cannot live in peace, each century goes out with its history of wars. The new one has begun with war. Man has no regard for life, and universal peace will not be known until God's proclamation of peace is declared. But I will break the bow, and the sword, and the battle out of the earth, I will make them to lie down safely. He will speak peace to the heathen, and his dominion shall be from sea even to sea, and from the rivers unto the ends of the earth. God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble, though war is on every hand he can fill our hearts with the peace of his sure Word, and we can say like David the Psalmist, I can lay me down in peace and sleep, for thou Lord makest me dwell in safety. If thou preparest thine heart and stretch out thine hands toward him thou shalt take thy rest in safety; thou shalt lie down and none shall make thee afraid. This is God's promise to the righteous, then let our prayer be for the peace of Jerusalem, for the time when he maketh war to cease, when God's will may be done on earth as it is by angels in heaven. Peace on earth with Christ our king.

CALLED TO GLORY AND VIRTUE.

We are called of God into his kingdom and glory, so we will first consider how we are called. The Apostle Peter tells us (2 Pet. i. 3) it is through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord, that are given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness. This is the record that God hath given to us eternal life, and this life is in his Son. 1st John v. 11. Whereunto he called you by our gospel to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ. 2 Thess. ii. 14. We read in Rom. i. 16, I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ, for it is the power of God unto every one that believeth; to the Jew first and also to the Greek.

In 2 Tim. i. 1, Paul an Apostle of Jesus Christ, by the will of God, according to the promise of life which is in Christ Jesus; and to Timothy, verse 8, be not thou therefore ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me, his prisoner; but be thou partaker of the afflictions of the gospel, according to the will of God, who hath saved us and called us with a holy calling. Not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was given us in Christ Jesus before the world began.

We read in Rom. xvi. that the revelation of the mystery, which was kept secret since the world began, is now made made manifest by the appearing of our Savior Jesus Christ, who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light. How? Through the gospel. 2 Tim. i. 10.

Eternal life is only obtained through Christ, and the way to learn of Christ is through the gospel. Called of God, through his Son. And though a Son, yet learned he obedience by the thing he suffered. And being made perfect he became the author of eternal life. But the God of all grace, favor, who hath called us unto his eternal glory by Jesus Christ, after that ye have suffered awhile, make you perfect, establish, strengthen, settle you. 1 Pet. v. 10. But rejoice inasmuch as ye are partakers of Christ's suffering, that when his glory shall be revealed, ye may rejoice with exceeding joy. 1 Pet. iv. 13.

The glories set forth in these great and precious promises, are far more than our minds can comprehend. One promise is that if we suffer with Christ we shall also reign with him. Another that he will be a righteous ruler. Yet another, that we will be made kings and priests unto God, and reign on the earth.

If our lives are given up for his service, we have nothing to fear, as he has promised to preserve us unto his heavenly kingdom, where there shall be no more death, neither sorrow nor crying; neither shall there be any more pain, for the former things are passed away.

If we strive to answer the call to glory and virtue, there is a rest from all our labor; the rest that remains for the people of God. O how grateful I am to the great and all-wise God for these great and precious promises. So dear brothers and sisters let us not be afraid of doing too much, but do let us be afraid of coming short of the glory of God and our Savior Jesus Christ. That none called may fail is my prayer. Amen.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Marshall, co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended to.

Poetry.

Blessed are They Who Do His Will.

Lord, 'tis thy will that we should know
Thy revelation here below.
From sages, lo! it hath been hid,
And been made known to babes instead.

The humble fishermen we see,
Were by the Word—the Truth, made free.
They walked with Him—with Him ate bread;
He taught the z too, when raised from dead.

He told them He did prepare a place,
Where they should sit on thrones and rule;
Yes, rule the tribes of Israel.

All who will humbly own the Lord,
Who like a child bow to the Word,
May enter in thy kingdom fair,
Its joys may know, its glories share.

Not every one who saycth "Lord!"
Shall find in thee this great reward,
But all may enter at thy will—
Aye, all who thy commandments fill.

O mighty promise! true, divine,
In Christ all things are thine and mine!
O mighty promise! when fulfilled,
Blessing will then the whole earth gild.

Read at Berean Meeting Ohio Conference.

I have chosen for a lesson the 24th verse of the 9th chapter of 1 Cor., "Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run, that ye may obtain." Paul here compares our lives to a racer. We all know that people are not apt to exert themselves enough to run in a race unless there is a compensation for the winner. What would be the use entering into a race unless there was an object in it. Several may enter into a race but there is but one who receives the prize. This is a very good illustration of our lives. We have all entered into a race and a very hard one it is to run as we have all no doubt experienced, but the object we have in view is worth more than all the prizes men may offer. You will always notice that when a race is to take place, the road is made clear for the racers so that nothing may stop them, but the road on which we are to run is full of stumbling blocks and unless we keep our eyes forward we are liable to stumble and fall. Our race in life is a hard one for the road is very narrow, but our text says, "So run, that ye may obtain." Obtain what? "Eternal life," that is the prize we are running for. We read in Eccl. ix. 12, "For man also knoweth not his time; as the fishes who are taken in an evil net, and as the birds that are caught in a snare; so are the sons of men snared in an evil time, when it falleth suddenly upon them." We are living in the evil time and if we do not keep the prize always in view, we are in danger of falling into a snare of some kind. Do you ever stop to think of the glories that are to be revealed unto those who never turn back but are steadfast unto the end? I do not think we truly realize the great task we have before us if we are trying to run in the race which God has marked out for us. If we did, I believe we would be more zealous and run all the faster in order that we should keep up with the rest who are working hard to be a winner and receive the great prize. In the first place let us walk uprightly for we are told in Prov. xxviii. 18 and 19 that "Whoso walketh uprightly shall be saved; but he that is perverse in his ways shall fall at once. He that tilleth his land shall have plenty of bread; but he that followeth after vain persons shall have poverty enough."

Do not forget that we have been called from darkness into light, and that light is the light of the gospel. When we saw the light of the gospel and believed and obeyed, we became the servants of Christ, and there is work laid out for us to do in his vineyard. If we do not work, how can we expect to be paid for it? How can we expect to be rewarded with eternal life when our Master comes, if we do not work or run to obtain it? The work may be hard or the race hard to run and we may slip and fall a good many times, but our heavenly Father is always ready to help us up again if we but ask him for his help that we may continue to the end. What a great pay day that will be when our Master comes to reward all those who have worked diligently in the cause of truth. If we would all think on these things more, there would not be so many who grow lukewarm and fall by the wayside. But they that wait upon the Lord shall renew their strength; they shall mount up with wings as eagles, they shall run, and not be weary, and they shall walk, and not faint. Isa. xl. 31.

God's race is not ended in a few moments. We may have to run for days or months and perhaps for years before we come to the end of our journey. But think what we will obtain if we faint not. Let us not become discouraged and try to put our work off on to those who are willing to do it, but let us preach the Word, be instant in season, out of season, reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long suffering and doctrine. This is what we have to do and work out our own salvation. We are not going to be rewarded for what our brother or sister may do. It is for our own works, therefore let us not sit idly by but let us be up and doing. This is the way we must run so that we may hear that glad welcome, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." Let us put our trust in God for he careth for those who put their trust in him. 'Every word of God is pure; he is a shield unto them that put their trust in him." Prov. xxx. 5. Let us do each duty, for God shall make it plain. If he shall bless our labors, it cannot be in vain.

"Let us draw near with a true heart, in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water. Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; for he is faithful that promised. And let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another; and so much the more as ye see the day approaching; for if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fury indignation, which shall devour the adversaries." Heb. x. 22 to 27. What an awful thing it would be to any of us who have come to a knowledge of the truth, if at the time when Jesus comes to gather his saints unto him he should say to any of us, "Depart from me, I never knew you." Let us all strive to escape such a terrible thing and strive on the other hand to have Jesus say to us, "Come ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." "Wherefore, seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us; looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of God." Heb. xii. 1-2. Jesus is our great High Priest, and it is through him that we may obtain strength and blessings. After all he has done for us and the little he asks us to do for him, ought we not be willing to sacrifice our lives for him, knowing that if we do this, we will receive a crown of life? What would this life be to us without a hope? We have a blessed hope, that of seeing Jesus and being made like him and reigning with him gloriously. To me that is worth hoping for and striving to obtain. If we fall let us not stay down but let us rise up and redouble our efforts for the cause of truth. God is always willing to forgive us for our misdeeds if we ask him for forgiveness through the name of our dear Redeemer. Take heed to the words found in James i. 19-20, Wherefore, my beloved brethren, let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath. For the wrath of man worketh not the righteousness of God. If we do this our conduct cannot be anything but pure and righteous in the sight of God and man and the prize which we are striving to obtain will surely be given us. Now the God of peace, that brought again from the dead our Lord Jesus, that great shepherd of the sheep, through the blood of the everlasting covenant, make you perfect in every good work to do his will, working in you that which is well pleasing in his sight, through Jesus Christ, to whom be glory for ever and ever. Amen.

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all things Which God [illegible] by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME LIII. PLYMOUTH, [illegible]A, OCT. 26, 1904. NUMBER 40.

SELF SACRIFICE.

I have selected 1 Peter iv. 1, 2 upon which to base a few remarks. The text reads, "Forasmuch then as Christ hath suffered for us in the flesh, arm yourselves likewise with the same mind; for he that hath suffered in the flesh hath ceased from sin. That he no longer should live the rest of the time in the flesh to the lust of men, but to the will of God."

Now we young people as Bereans are obliged to face the smiles, frowns and snares of the wicked world. Every day there are traps set for our feet, and if we are not always on our guard, before we are aware of it we are caught. This text bears a good deal on self-sacrifice. There are different kinds and means of self-sacrifice. Christ we all know sacrificed his life for us, that we might have life everlasting if we but follow out God's plans and purposes. This we all know is the greatest self-sacrifice on record. What greater love and sacrifice is this; that a man give up his life for his friend. We are each of us his friend if we do whatsoever he hath commanded.

The ordinary man would naturally shrink from the thought of losing his life for any one. But if we have faith, I do not think God will expect us to do this, for we read in Rom. xii. 1 the words of Paul "I beseech you therefore brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service. Now you see God wants a living sacrifice, not a dead one, a dead sacrifice would do him no good, although we know a life sacrificed in his cause and for him is not in vain, we further know from these words of Paul and also common judgment that a living sacrifice is greater and therefore more acceptable in his sight. Christ had to die that the Scriptures might be fulfilled, for there was no remission of sins without the shedding of blood. God is apt to try our faith at any time, as he tried Abraham's, when the command came to offer up his only son Isaac as a burnt offering. God expects us to sacrifice ourselves for the brethren. If there are any among us needy or sick, even if there are petty things coming up every day that need our time and attention, we should first visit and attend to their wants. It is a very common thing for us to think of self first, but this is not according to God's will. He does not expect us though, to go beyond our means, but we must see to others as well as ourself even if we do have to sacrifice a little to do it. We should remember that each is his brother's keeper. We read that Jesus went about visiting and healing the sick and needy. Although it does not lie in our power to heal, it is our duty to visit the sick and afflicted.

There is another thing that we must also do, and that is do all we can, both financially and otherwise for the Lord. Do not let us forget these things. By doing them we show our good will and judgment which is more acceptable to the Lord than sacrifice. Christ has been wonderfully kind to us, so much so that he even suffered the agony of crucifixion that we might have life. Herein is shown the great love of both the Father and the Son. Now before we took upon us the name of Christ we were still in our sins, but having obeyed from the heart his precious Word by being baptized, we were freed from our sin; and each at that time made a solemn vow before God that he would endeavor to keep his garments unspotted from the world. We cannot hold the world in one hand and Christ in the other. We must be [illegible]er one or the other. Matt. xvi. [illegible]s, If any man will come after [illegible]him deny himself and take up [illegible]s daily and follow me.

[illegible]If we are for Christ and right[illegible]es, we can go with the crowd, [illegible]ped along the same as they are, [illegible]oy all the things which they [illegible]that is if we hide, as it were our [illegible]under a bushel. Jesus said who[illegible]therefore shall be ashamed of [illegible]my words in this adulterous [illegible]generation, of him also shall [illegible]of Man be ashamed when he [illegible]in the glory of his Father with [illegible]

[illegible]told that we must suffer in [illegible]flesh in order to do God's will, for [illegible]hom the Lord loveth he chasteneth [illegible]and scourgeth every son whom he receiveth. What we must do is to deny ourselves of the things of this world as much as we possibly can. People may and do think it very strange, but we must tell them that we do not care for the pleasures which they enjoy, but that we are looking forward to a better time, that time long promised when Christ shall come again to earth and set up his everlasting kingdom. May we all meet in that kingdom ruled over by Jesus our Savior and King is my earnest prayer.

KNOWLEDGE. PROV. VIII. 10.

Receive my instruction, and not silver, and knowledge rather than choice gold.

Knowledge means a clear perception. This is one of the important things that we have, a clear perception of God's Word, for Job xxi. 22 says "Shall any teach God knowledge? seeing he judge those that are high." No, we cannot teach God, but we must learn of him; must get knowledge from the book left as our guide. Job [illegible]xxvi. 4.

"For truly my words shall not be false; he that is perfect in knowledge is with thee." The psalmist David said "Such knowledge is too wonderful for me; it is high, I cannot attain unto it." Nor can we attain unto this perfect knowledge, but we can seek for wisdom and knowledge. "The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and the knowledge of the holy is understanding."

Yes, when we fear God and understand how utterly helpless we are of ourselves, we will say as did Hannah. 1 Sam. ii. 3, "Talk no more so exceedingly proudly; let no arrogancy come out of your mouth. For the Lord is a God of knowledge, and by him actions are weighed."

No, we cannot deceive God. Our actions are all known to him. So let us all strive to live so that our acts will be pleasing to God.

"A scorner seeketh wisdom, and findeth it not; but knowledge is easy unto him that understandeth." Or, that is humble and seeketh for wisdom and understanding. Wise men lay up knowledge, but the mouth of the foolish is near destruction. "He that hath knowledge spareth his words, and a man of understanding is of an excellent spirit." "For wisdom is a defence, and money is a defence, but the excellency of knowledge is that wisdom giveth life to them that have it." Then let us all strive to gain this knowledge which giveth life; and this is speaking of eternal life, which is worth striving to obtain, for that life will be free from sorrow and pain. Jer. xxi. 8 says "Thou shalt show me the path of life; in thy presence is fulness of joy, at thy right hand there are pleasures forevermore."

ELLA KNOWLES.

OUR FATHER.

After this manner, therefore, pray ye, "Our Father, which art in heaven, hallowed be thy name." Matt. vi. 9. In this chapter Jesus is teaching the disciples how to pray. "Our Father." This is the way in which all who are God's children by adoption, address him when before the throne of grace, and it is by the favor of God that we receive the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry "Abba, Father."

The word "our" indicates the great change Christ introduced into the whole conception of worship. There was no social worship in the Jewish temple. The priest went alone into the holy place, while the people stood outside. But with us, brothers and sisters, the worship of God is for all, with one heart and voice. We need to understand the loftiness and purity of God's love to Christ, before we can fully realize what his love to us is.

In private prayer we cannot be accepted if we come in a selfish and exclusive spirit. Sin is selfishness, and isolation separates us from God and one another.

[illegible]words seem to bring us to [illegible]we should be ever thankful for his goodness to us in being called his children. But we are to treat the name and relation of Father in which we stand to God with a holy love and fear. We should hallow God's name and submit to his reign, and seek to do his will: then we can with confidence ask him for the blessings which our natural life requires for its support and welfare. It is his kingdom that we are to be subject to. It is his power that we are to obey. It is his glory that we are to promote. He is "our Father," and will act royally to us if we serve him. He has all power in earth and in heaven, therefore, he can give us all things that we need when we pray to him. It is for his glory that we worship him, and he will hear our prayers, and do for us exceedingly abundantly above all things that we ask or think.

SARAH NEILL.

Dear brothers and sisters:

We have met to hold our second Annual Conference. I suppose each one of you have thought at some time or other, why we hold a Conference at all, and each one has undoubtedly answered it in a satisfactory manner. To me it as if there are three main reasons, first, that we may associate with, and be influenced uninterrupted by our Father and elder Brother; second, to influence each other to live nearer to God; third, to influence those about us who are not privileged as we are, and to provide some one who may influence others throughout our State to see the truth in all its beauty. From these three reasons it seems to me our chief aim is to influence. It is said events change people, if this is true, how much more should people. No man can meet another without making some mark upon him. We say we exchange words when we meet; what we really exchange is spirit. And when intercourse is very close and [illegible]quent recognizable bits of the one nature begin to show in the other.

This mysterious approximating of two natures who has not witnessed? Who has not watched some old couple come down life's pilgrimage hand in hand, with such trust and joy in one another that their faces wore the self same look? These were not two natures; it was a composite nature. Half a century's influence had told on them; they were changed into the same image. It is the law of influence, that we become like those whom we habitually admire.

Through all the range of literature, of history and biography this law presides. Men are all imitators of other men. There was a savor of David about Jonathan, and a savor of Jonathan about David. The family, the cradle of mankind, has no meaning apart from this law of influence. On this doctrine, in short, the whole vast pyramid of humanity is built.

But it was reserved for Paul to make the supreme application of the law. It was a tremendous inference to make, but he never hesitated. He himself was a changed man; he knew exactly what had done it; it was Christ. On the road to Damascus they met, and from that hour Paul's life was absorbed in Christ's. The effect could not but follow on words, on deeds, on career, on creed. Paul became like him he habitually loved. "So we all," he writes, "reflecting as a mirror the glory of Christ changed into the same image."

Nothing could be more simple, more intelligible, more natural, more supernatural. It is an analogy from an every day fact. Since we are what we are by the influence of those about us, those who surround themselves with the highest, will be changed into the highest. There are some men and some women in whose company we are always at our best. While with them we cannot think mean thought or speak ungenerous words. Their mere presence is elevation and purification. All the best stops in our nature are drawn out by their intercourse, and we find a music in our souls that was never there before. Suppose even that influence prolonged through a month [illegible]ed to the millionth degree what the virtue of the Highest can exalt and purify the nature, what bounds can be set to the influence of Christ. To have lived with Socrates must have made one wise; with Aristides, just. But to have lived with Christ must have made one like Christ; that is to say a Christian.

As a matter of fact to live with Christ did produce this effect. It produced it in the case of Paul. And during Christ's life time it was proven in an even more startling form. A few raw, uninspiring men were admitted to the inner circle of his friendship. Day by day we can see them grow. Slowly the spell of his life deepens. Their manner softens, their words become more gentle, their conduct more unselfish. As swallows who have found a summer; as frozen birds the spring, their starved humanity bursts into a fuller life. One day they find themselves like their Master, going about doing good. To themselves it is unaccountable, but they cannot do otherwise. They were not told to do it, it came to them to do it. But the people who watch them know well how to account for it. "They have been," they say, "with Jesus." Already even the mark and seal of his character is upon them, "They have been with Jesus." Unparalleled phenomenon, that these poor fishermen should remind other men of Christ.

Brothers and sisters, can we not be more earnest workers for Christ; can we not let Christ influence us more. Let us make Christ our constant companion. Be more under his influence than under any other. Ten minutes spent in his society every day, ay, two minutes if it be face to face, and heart to heart will make the whole day different. Every character has an inward spring. Let Christ be ours; every action has a key note. Let Christ be ours.

I once read of a young girl whose perfect grace of character was the wonder of all those who knew her. She wore on her neck a gold locket which no one was ever allowed to open. One day in a moment of unusual confidence, one of her companions was allowed to touch its spring and learn its secret. She saw written there these words, "Whom having not seen I love,"—that was the secret of her beautiful life. She by constantly reflecting had been changed into the same image. May we like this girl make Christ our constant and closest companion and so grow to be more like him is my prayer.

Indiana Conference, Attention!

Circumstances have arisen which appear to make it necessary to depart from the usual custom of holding the "November Conference" of the Indiana churches at the regular time, which is the third Sunday in November, and to postpone this meeting until some time after the Holidays. The meeting is to be at Plymouth, and due notice will be given as to the exact time, so that all concerned may be informed. In the mean time let us work with our might for the advancement of the cause of the truth in our respective localities.

This item is for the person who has allowed his time to expire and has not yet renewed. We wish to hereby solicit you to at once send in your subscription money for the paper. At this season of the year our expenses are necessarily heavy, as we must get fuel and otherwise prepare for winter. The political campaign is on, and the attention of some is diverted by this cause. Brethren and sisters, do not allow anything to crowd out your duty in this branch of the Lord's cause. Hurry in your renewals at once.

Some Vital Questions. No. 9.

158. John says the Word was made flesh, and dwelt amongst us,—and we beheld his glory:—note the description of his glory,—"The glory of the ONLY BEGOTTEN from a Father, full of favor and truth." Other declarations from John respecting him who spake as never man spake, are as follows:—"As the Father has life in himself, even so he gave to THE SON—just one—also to have life in himself." Verse 27.

"The Son quickeneth whom he will." Verse 21.

"I am from above—God being his Father—ye are from beneath,"—of the earth earthy. 1 Cor. xv. 47.

"I live by the Father"—as ALL really live, move, and have their being in God,—although human agency be employed,—we hold that Jesus could only say, "I live by the Father," to make a distinction between himself and all others, without meaning that he was caused to be, or to exist by God WITHOUT HUMAN INTERVENTION.

"I am the door of the sheep."

"I am the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman."

"I am the Son of God."

159. In the illustration of the vine, the position of all others is described as branches drawing their life and sustenance from him; and in almost every chapter of John's gospel the special relationship of Jesus to the Father is expressed. And when we say that Josephites have been doing their utmost to undermine the authority of that precious portion of the divine record, because of its evidence against them; we are prepared to prove it on short notice from their literature.

160. In John xvii. Jesus is said to be the giver of eternal life to all whom God has given him. And if the claim that Joseph was the Father of Jesus be true,—and there was no necessity for his death, and no need of his resurrection, and he has not redeemed us to God by his Blood, why has the Father given Jesus all who believe in him; why has God trusted all judgment to the Son of Joseph, himself a pardoned sinner? Josephitism is full of such kinks as these,—and we hope the time is not far distant when, on the platform, on the Socratic method they will be compelled to eliminate these kinks, or be judged out of their own mouths.

161. The final charge against Jesus in John xix. shows that his lofty claim to be the Son of God was well understood,—they said, "we have a law, and by that law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God."

162. We have been finding some of the signs by which John says we may "discern that Jesus is the Christ the SON OF GOD, and believing this concerning him, may find life—that quickening power which causes the relationship OF SONS, and presently swallows up mortality through his name.

163. Nathan the prophet was sent by Jehovah to inform David that he (Jehovah) would raise up a Son to him after his death, and added, "I will be his Father, and he shall be my Son." The meaning of the names of men employed by God agree with the subject matter. Nathan's name means, "The gift," or "Given One." Christ came in the line of NATHAN, the Son of David. May there not be some meaning in these two Nathans being used by God in relation to the Son given?

164. According to the law the Father was the Head of the house; and it would have been out of place for a man to say before his superior, that he was the Son of his mother. When Saul asked David whose Son he was he answered, "I am the son of thy servant Jesse." And we are persuaded that the Psalmist was not speaking of himself when he said, "O Lord, truly I am thy servant; I am thy servant, THE SON OF THINE HANDMAID." Why this departure from the established rule, and call himself the son of his mother? Let Josephites explain? Is not the Psalmist speaking of the Gift Son? From Matthew, Mark, Luke and John we learn Jesus had no human father; and we think that explains the remarkable expression, "the Son of thine handmaid."

165. The words immediately following favor this impression: "Thou (Jehovah) hast loosed my bonds." Of whom but Jesus could this be said prophetically? Death was to imprison him,—and it did; he was not to go to corruption, and he did not. And we have divine evidence that David referred to the resurrection of Christ, when he said the HOLY ONE should not see corruption. See Acts ii. And the verse preceding that which says, "I am thy servant," etc., says, "Thou hast loosed my bonds," it says "precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints," implying a provision for saving them out of the death state.

166. This leads to the question as to WHY there is but ONE Holy ONE? The answer is found in Psalm lxxxv. 17. Jehovah only made ONE SON STRONG for himself, and Jesus is he.

167. It would have broken the Scripture, if Jesus had been born of the line of Solomon while Mary came through Nathan. See the reason why, in Jer. xxii. 24-30. All the twisting and turning of mortal men cannot change this decision or set it aside. Jehovah is at the helm of the gospel ship.

168. After the truth respecting the paternity of the to-be Son was known to Joseph a mutual understanding between him and Mary in the nature of things must have have been had, and the marvelous experience of each was known to the other; and both were aware of the wonderful destiny of the long promised Son. And, from the ignorance of the people, we conclude they decided to keep the secret to themselves.

169. We are told we "lose his claim to Royalty if we hang it upon his being descended from David through Mary,—as Jewish kings did not inherit from the mother's side." We believe the promise of his being the BRANCH or offspring of David was thus accomplished. But we just as plainly read that he was also the ROOT of David as well as the OFFSPRING of David, and we just as firmly believe it.

170. In the Scriptures the word root is used as the source, origin or occasion of anything. In 1 Tim. vi. 10 we read that "the love of money is the root of all evil;" and in Deut. xxix. 18 we find these words: "Lest there be among you a root that beareth gall and wormwood." In Rom. xi. 16 it says "If the root be holy, so are the branches;" and verse 18, "Thou bearest not the root, but the root thee." In the light of this usage, and in the light of the fact that in Psa. cx. 1 David calls his Son his Lord, we conclude that it was, first, because by inspiration he knew the way of life was to be opened up by the resurrection of his Son, and that when he himself awakens from the sleep of death it will be in the likeness of that Son; so that he who was the Son in the flesh, will be the Father of David in the Spirit. Secondly, because David the Son of Jesse, was only VICEROY of Jehovah; and could bequeath to his Son no more than he possessed. Jehovah had declared himself to be the father of Israel." And David says respecting the king over him,—"The Lord is King for ever; the Lord is strong and mighty; the Holy One of Israel is our King."

171. This ever-reigning and contemporaneous King through all the Israelitish history, was king still, when Jesus was born. He sent word to David that he would be the father of that descendant of his, who should be the perpetual occupant of his throne. And when the last Son of David was dethroned because of his wickedness (Ezek. xxi. 25-27) the throne was declared vacant until the rightful heir appeared. He has been identified for us by Gabriel, as the Son of God and the rightful heir.

172. Now then,—whence came DAVID'S royalty? Did not JEHOVAH send Samuel to anoint him with oil to be King over Israel? And when God sent forth his Son made of a woman descended from David, and anointed him to be King over Israel forever with Holy Spirit, and power, knowledged him as his Son,—did he not he OUTRANK the royalty of David, and therefore rightly called by him his Lord? And was both the ROOT and the BRANCH of David, by virtue of his divine paternity?

173. It must not be forgotten that we have the word of Jesus for it (John xviii. 37) in his answer to Pilate, that his kingdom had not its source in the present kosmos, but was future, and from above, and to that royal end he was BORN KING OF THE JEWS, de jure.

174. We have positive evidence in the parable of the rented-out vineyard that as GOD'S SON he was heir to it. This relationship made him greater than Moses, Matt. v. 21, 22, 27, 28; greater than David; greater than Solomon (Matt. xii. 42). and greater than the Temple. Matt. xii. 6. And by INHERITANCE possessed a more excellent name than angels; "For unto which of the angels saith God at any time, Thou art my son, this day have I begotten thee?"

175. From the above it is seen that Christ's divine right to royalty was superior to David's, to say nothing of Joseph's. He is heir of ALL THINGS (Heb. i. 12) by virtue of his Sonship to God; who in addressing him in Isa. xlix. 6, says that it is a LIGHTTHING to raise up the tribes of Israel and restore the preserved of Israel, compared to his light to the Gentiles that he may be Jehovah's salvation unto the end of the earth," as covenanted to Abraham aforetime, a long time before Jehovah's Anointed. He is to sit on the throne of David as promised; but, for the ASKING, the Father gives him in addition to that, the nations for his inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for his possession;" and the result is given in Zechariah xiv., thus, "And the Lord shall be King over all the earth; in that day shall there be ONE Lord, and his name ONE."

176. Lest our readers forget it, we remind them that the evidence offered, that Joseph was the father of Jesus, is, that people generally SUPPOSED that to be the fact. And secondly, because Josephites say they candidly believe that the passages quoted to prove his divine paternity are not really part of the divine record; and thirdly, because a great many scholars after much research cannot prove that these passages were in the original copies.

177. What is there in all this to base one's faith upon? It is morally certain that the long lists of scholars referred to cannot prove that the passages in question WERE NOT in the original copies, or else they would do it.

178. No amount of learning will qualify men to offer an opinion on this subject, unless they also know something of Jehovah's PURPOSE in creation and redemption, and what the nature and destiny of man is.

179. When men who profess to know and believe the truth in outline, at least, attempt to build a theory upon a few isolated texts,—and do not condescend to show that it is in strict harmony with the whole tenor of the Scriptures, they should be avoided. They speak perverse things to draw disciples after them. Acts xx. 30.

180. Josephites give no adequate cause for the moral pre-eminence of Jesus, if Joseph was his father. And seeing the rectitude of holy men of old pale and dwindle before the holiness and virtue which shine forth from the life of Jesus, they cannot expect intelligent and honest people to believe them. What kept Joseph's Son from going astray?

181. We submit that it is a lawful inference, that if human generation in four thousand years before, never produced the Christ-type of man, and no one since him has been produced that way,—yea; we think it lawful to conclude there was a divine interference in his case.

182. As the life of the children of God in the future age, is hid with Christ in God now, we have absolute proof that the new race is perpetuated in him.

183. John iii. 16 furnishes infallible proof that it was in his Sonship he died. He was begotten before he was given; he was begotten before he died.

184. Matthew i. and Luke i. which stand right across the track of Josephitism; and, to get rid of which desperate efforts have in vain been made, prove to us that Jesus was not an adopted Son.

(To be continued.)

There is little to report from the Far East since last week, as the two armies rest much as they were with some slight skirmishes to enliven the time.

Death's Doings.

It is our painful duty to record the death of our beloved brother in the Lord, John A. Hagelin, Sept. 12, 1904. He was the son of Charles and Christiana Hagelin of Jankoping, Sweeden, where he was born fifty-one years ago. Although it was only about a year ago that he first heard of the gospel of the kingdom of God, and of life from the dead through Jesus, from a fellow workman, for whom he ever cherished the strongest attachment. His meek, quiet, but cheerful spirit had endeared him to the whole household of faith. And from his endeavors to interest others in the truth as it is in Jesus, we had hoped that he would by and by come rejoicing, bringing sheaves with him; but his labors were suddenly stopped.

Our dear brother was one of over 30 brethren and sisters of this church who attended the Conference at Salem, O., that commenced September 1st. As we looked into his happy face and felt his hearty hand-shake, we little thought his mortal race would end in eight days. Before taking the train for Cleveland he told us he was rejoicing in hope of the glory of God, and there was nothing else worth hoping for, or words to that effect. And as he maintained his confidence till he closed his eyes in death, we sorrow not as those who have no hope; but tenderly lay him away to await the voice of him who bought him, and come forth to life. May the glad day soon come. Amen.

God's Righteousness.

Seek the kingdom of God and his righteousness. Who or what is this? Christ of (or from R. V.) God is made unto us wisdom and righteousness. Those baptized into Christ have put on Christ. What is it to put on Christ if it is not to put on the character of Christ; and is not that character one of righteousness? Of what use is it to put on the Christ-name as a mere name? And do we not put it on as a mere name, if we are not putting on the righteousness of the name? Truly Christ is the Lord, our righteousness."

On last Saturday morning as the Russian Baltic fleet was passing down the North Sea, they encountered a fleet of British fisher boats, from Hull. For some reason, supposed to be nervousness produced by suspicions that the Japanese would have torpedo boats in that vicinity to attack them the officers mistook the fishermen for their enemy, and fired on them, killed several men and sinking some of the boats. They then proceeded on their way without attempting to rescue the injured men. There has been some sharp communicating on the subject between the two governments. The British demand an apology, indemnity for the families of the killed and injured, the punishment of the officers responsible, and a guarantee that in future British shipping will not be molested. The first two items are readily agreed to, but the Russian aristocrat can see no occasion for so much fuss on account of the killing of a few "peasant fishermen," and are in no hurry to grant the last two items. On the other hand John Bull is fairly aroused, and his fleets are ordered to sea, the Russians are given a certain number of hours, and unless she acts promptly force will be used to show who is master on the water.

Communicated.

Dear Restitution:

Having just returned from the beautiful valley of the Shenandoa Mrs. Ramsay and myself thought perhaps the readers of The Restitution would be glad to hear that we were still on top of the earth.

We landed at Stephens City Va., Aug. 12th, and were soon domiciled in the home of A. J. Boyer and family where we were made to feel that it was our home, spelling the word Home with a big H, help yourself, and if you do not see what you want ask for it, that is the way to get it," and get it you will if it is getable.

We arrived just in time to make a raid on apples, peaches, melons, grapes, etc. Not forgetting honey, fresh, clean and sweet as it most always is, yet not sweeter than the communion of saints.

Three years had elapsed since we had met and of course the question box was well stocked, by the way it never gets empty, for the fertile brain of Sister B. R. Boyer can supply a surplus any time, for she is a studious reader, and patient searcher after truth.

Saturday morning up and away on a 16 mile drive to Brother Jacob Boyers who resides near the Emanuel church where we held services, next day being the regular meeting day. The subject was the "times of the Gentiles," illustrated with a chart, showing our whereabouts on the stream of time.

We were delighted to see many familiar faces, but our joy was mingled with sadness when we realized that three young men with whom we met on former visits were sleeping in the silent tomb, yet the friends sorrow not even as others which have no hope, for they believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him, comfort one another with these words. Blessed hope.

At this meeting we met friends from over the Massanutton Mountain, or as it is called the "Fort." Here is where the father and mother Boyer reared their family of eight sons and three daughters. All were immersed into the name of Jesus, all married and settled within a few hours drive of each other. All are living but one.

But to resume the itinerary. Monday the 15th we returned to Brother A. J. Boyers, and rested, as my 32 mile drive had lamed me so that I could not sit all the time.

On the following Saturday we again went to Brother Jacob Buyers, where we always find the latch string out. And were again permitted to assemble at the church where I continued the subject of the "times of the Gentiles." At the close of service we repaired to the Shenandoa river where Carmel, son of Brother and Sister A. J. Boyer was buried with Christ by baptism into the name. This was a blessed privilege for I have longed to see him obey the gospel. May he continue to the end and receive a crown of life. He is certainly capable of doing great good, for he is blessed with an excellent memory, a critical mind, and an impulsive nature, which if consecrated to God will bring stars as crowns of rejoicing when Jesus comes.

The following week Monday and Tuesday was spent at the homes of Brother David Boyer and sons. We were pleasantly entertained and had a very enjoyable time, and will long remember their kindness.

Wednesday we were taken to Woodstock, Va., where we spent a very pleasant time Brother Milton Boyer and wife, they are going onward with their faces Zionward.

Thursday Brother Milton conveyed us to Brother John Boyer's home, where we remained until Sunday. On Saturday evening we were agreeably surprised as a party of four drove down from the vicinity of Brown town, most 25 miles distant. We thought it quite a long trip for one service, but it was a great pleasure to meet the dear ones and hear their voices once more, not knowing that we will meet again on the shores of mortality. This was Brother Ashley Updike and wife, and Randolph Updike and wife, we hope it may be ours to meet them in the kingdom of God.

It was also cheering to meet the dear ones who came over the Massanutton Mountain Sunday morning, Sister Kate Ritenhour and daughter and son, Brother Joseph Ritenhour and wife, Brother Sylvanus Boyer and wife and son, Brother Benjamin Boyer's daughter and son, also Brother Samuel Boyer was over at one time.

We regret that our physical health was such that we could not visit the dear ones in the Fort, also at the Manor we had intended to visit Brother Alva Boyer and family, but he was suffering from hay fever and left home in search of relief. I would say that on account of my health I was obliged to abridge my travels.

Sunday the 28th we had a very interesting meeting and took the parting hand. We spent the night of the 28th with Sister McInturf and her interesting family. We were very pleasantly entertained. Her daughters are good singers, and on the morning of the 29th before leaving we assembled in the parlor and had some soul-cheering music, both vocal and instrumental, in which our Sister Updike heartily joined.

Yet life in this valley is not without its shadows, every family knows what heartache means, the King of pain has not passed idly by but has shot his cruel shafts here and there, even laying low the bloom of manhood, and the beetle flush and pallid cheek or not unknown, and surely it is well thus for hope would well nigh perish if there were no clouds or shadows while traveling to the heavenly kingdom.

I have seen much while on this trip to awaken a longing for the returning King. Two of our sisters are almost helpless, caused by rheumatism, day after day and year after year, dragging about with distorted limbs, every nerve a hot wire. Surely the voice of John is echoing down the halls of time, "Neither shall there be any more pain:" Let it echo, hear it ye suffering ones.

When visiting the family of Brother John Boyer I was struck with surprise, for on a former occasion I saw eight sons file around the table in the dining room, a most interesting sight; but this time three were absent from home, two were at the table, and three were sleeping the dreamless sleep. But I seem to hear the voice of the Revelator saying, "And there shall be no more death." Thank God, the day is drawing near. Praise the Lord. Amen so mote it be.

C. C. & M. E. Ramsay.

A Timely Invitation.

A business man was on his way to the prayer-meeting. His work had detained him so long that his dinner had been hastily eaten, and yet he was late for service. The sound of music floated down the street, and as the church came into view he quickened his steps. On the pavement he hurriedly passed a stranger, who was gazing curiously up at the open windows. Acting on a sudden impulse, he turned back. "This is our prayer-meeting evening. Will you go in with me?" The stranger hesitated a moment. "Why, yes," he answered. Prayer-meeting ended, the two went out together. "I was very glad to have company to-night,' said the business man, as he parted from his new acquaintance, after finding out his name and where he lived. "May I call for you next Wednesday?" The man, without much enthusiasm, replied that he "didn't care" if he did. He called and followed it up on succeeding Wednesdays, taking care to introduce the stranger to other men of the congregation. That was the starting-point. Prayer-meeting lead to church services. The stranger finally, with his family, united with that congregation. He has become an active and efficient church worker. "Do you know," he said to first friend, recently, "do you know, I had lived in your city for seven years before I met you. I had not been in the city three days before grocers and dairymen had hunted me up; within three weeks the politicians had learned my political preferences. Yet in all those years you were the first man who had ever said, "Come, let us go into the house of the Lord."—Christian Herald.

Heart Keeping.

Heart-keeping is very much like house-keeping. There must be a continual sweeping out of dirt and clearing out of rubbish, a daily washing of dishes, and a perpetual battle with all sorts of vermin. If heart-clearing could be done up once for all, then the Christian might discharge all his graces, and have an easy time of it. And it is just because the task of keeping the inward man what it ought to be is so difficult, that many a one who begins a religious life gets discouraged and makes a failure.

The question with every Christian is: Shall outward assaults or inward weakness drive me to discouragement and disgrace me before my Master and before the world? Or shall they drive me to Jesus, who will give me a victory?

Laying up Treasures.

"Lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven." When Jesus spoke these words, he had been talking of a life of prayer and self-denial and self-discipline. What are we accumulating in heaven and in ourselves here? How much is prayer the habit of our lives? When did we last wrestle in prayer for anybody else? Christ ever liveth to make intercession. We read in the Lord's parable that "there is joy in the presence of the angels over one sinner that repenteth." That is heaven at this moment. God himself in the fulness of his love, the angels, all the redeemed, are interested in the work of redemption. If we are not one with Jesus Christ in the purpose of his coming, and in the sympathies of his heart, then we can have no part in him.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending The Restitution to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the doners request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trust worthy.

Poetry.

Hope and Faith.

Hope is an anchor to the soul,
That reaches to the final goal,
Through promises in God's great Book.
By faith unto the end we look.
The patriarchs have gone before,
But some have reached the other shore.
Death the conqueror still reigns here,
But Christ has promised to appear.
He says I am the living Way,
So walk with him day by day.
His sacrifice atones for sin,
His kingdom we'll strive to enter in.

On the resurrection's joyous morn,
When Gabriel blows his trumpet horn,
Life shall be given to all below
Who to meet the Bridegroom then shall go.

THE POWER OF EXAMPLE.

Sometimes we derive comfort and consolation from the portion of the Scriptures we read, which are full of the most precious promises and which manifest the love and tenderness of the Almighty towards us, who as his sons and daughters, are striving to do his well. At times we need the exhortation to walk as becometh saints in the practice of those virtues so constantly recommended, and a constant reference to the character of him who was spotless and sinless, in whose footsteps it is our greatest privilege, as well as our most important duty to walk, keeping our eyes fixed upon him, the author and perfector of our faith, who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame, and hath sat down at the right hand of the throne of God. Heb. xii. 2. We are influenced largely in our daily life by the power of example. The child imitates its parents, and man imitates man to so great an extent that the overwhelming thought is pressed home to us that "Imitation is the order of the age." "No man liveth to himself" and our conduct, or character and our manner of bearing as Christians, all are telling and producing their effect upon the lives and characters of those we daily come in contact with, whether on the street, in our homes, or at our places of business, and are influencing them for good or for ill, perhaps for ever. The evil effect when produced has a far more lasting influence upon the human mind and character than does the good, because the fleshly or carnal mind is at enmity with God, and all things which are good, etc. are of God. Probably the most striking example recorded of any man's cautious bearing toward his fellowmen is that of the Apostle Paul. In him we have the following of one who formerly persecuted the children of God on every hand, but who after his conversion did more for the cause of Christ than any other apostle, seemingly in an endeavor to make reparation for what he had done. We have seen how cautious he was in the partaking of meat in the presence of the weaker brother, and how he constantly exhorted them both in person and by letter to good works, all the while living as close as possible to the pattern shown him by our Savior, when he was among his disciples on earth.

Paul knew a little of human nature. He knew that some men were exceedingly contentious, envious and vain glories. He knew what a love of supremacy was planted in some breasts, and what a lack of forbearance there was in others, and therefore exhorted the brethren against such things. Let us not be desirous of vain glory, provoking one another, envying one another. "For if a man think himself to be something when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself." The example most likely to be imitated is the one which is constantly set before us. We all know with what ease we fall into the ways and actions of those whom we meet daily unless we are constantly, momentarily on our guard against such things; and we know also, what an amount of courage and determination it requires to forsake their ways and actions and still be compelled to associate with them daily.

Our greatest foe is within ourselves, and life's greatest battle lies in conquering self. He that overcometh himself is greater than he that taketh a city. What a wonderful example of conquest of self we have in our beloved brother Paul. He always endeavored to pattern after the example shown him by our Savior as we read in 1 Cor. xi. 1, "Be followers of me even as I am also of Christ." I love to study the character of Paul for his example seems to us so much stronger than that of our dear Lord in that he was not always spotless and sinless after his conversion, after he had taken the wheel he never faltered, never tired, never even left off his constant watch but piloted his ship of character straight up to the mark of the prize of the high calling in Christ Jesus which enabled him at last to proclaim, "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." Let us while we are in Conference here try to shut out the world and its cares, and let us drink in the truths as they are poured out to us here, endeavoring not to overcome the obstacles which may confront us on the morrow, but let us implore strength and succor from our loving Father in heaven, so that we may be enabled to overcome ourselves just for today. May each succeeding day find us with the same true desire to attain to the standard of character set before us, so that in God's own appointed time we may be accounted worthy of an entrance into his kingdom.

PAUL'S DEFENCE BEFORE AGRIPPA.
ACTS XXVI.

During the few minutes allotted me I would like to address you on what is to me a most inspiring chapter in the grand old Book of God, and that is the 26th of Acts, Paul's defence before Agrippa. O, I tell you it is a masterpiece. I hav'nt time to tell you who Agrippa was, or what the occasion was, and if you are a Bible student you ought to know, but at any rate you must hear the defence.

Paul was again in trouble for preaching the gospel, and had appealed unto Cæsar, the king, as was his right as a Roman citizen. But Festus, the governor who had Paul in charge, wanted Agrippa the king, to hear him before he went to Rome, and hence Paul's defence.

[Bro. Neill here quoted in a truly dramatic manner, Acts xxvi. Get the Bible and read it now, so you will see its force in this connection.—ED.]

Oh, brethren! does that not thrill you through and through. Does it not inspire you, and lift you up out of yourself in admiration, and impel you to praise God that he has left this record of the power of his gospel. The gospel which Paul says he was not ashamed of (Rom. i. 16) and we see he was'nt, and the power of which converted him from breathing slaughterings against the Christians to one of the ablest supporters of God and truth.

He says, "And now I stand and am judged for the hope of the promise made of God unto our fathers." Was he right? did God make any promises to our fathers? Yes, he was right. God did make such promises to our fathers, and they were glorious ones too. Read Gen. xiii. 14-16; xvii. 18; 2 Sam. vii. 12-16; Isa. ix. 61. It was for this that he was caught of the Jews. It was for presenting these precious promises to them—words of life—that they were about to kill him. But what now? Ah, listen. "Having therefore obtained help of God;" yes, having therefore obtained help of God, and we know that this is so. See Acts xxvi. 16, 17.

What was the effect of this effort of Paul's? "Then Agrippa said unto Paul, Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian." Paul combined answer and prayer—"Would to God that not only thou, but all that hear me this day were both almost and altogether such as I am, except these bonds."

My friends, this is the prayer of the Church of God. That you might be such as we. And who are we? Gal. iii. 26, 27, 29. "For ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus. For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ. And if ye be Christ's, then are ye Abraham's seed, and heirs according to the promise." Yes, that is who we are. Children of God; coheirs with Abraham. We have shown what God has revealed through his prophets, and we have shown you the glory to be revealed to those that are faithful, and now we entreat you to accept of this great salvation before it is too late. Jesus says, in Rev. iii. 21, "To him that overcometh will I grant to sit with me in my throne, even as I also overcame, and am set down with my Father in his throne."

May this be the happy lot of all.

GEORGE NEILL.

THE BRIGHTNESS OF OUR HOPE.

Another year has rolled around since many of us met here, with its joys and sorrows, trials and temptations; and we are still among those who are alive to praise God, those who through belief and obedience have obtained a hope of eternal life, when the earth shall be filled with God's knowledge and glory, as waters that cover the sea. We are told he that hath this hope in him purifieth himself even as Jesus is pure. No matter how hard may be our struggle, or how much we are persecuted for Jesus' cause, our hope is just as bright, indeed it is written Blessed are ye, when men shall hate you, and when they shall separate you from their company, and shall reproach you, and cast out your name as evil, for the Son of Man's sake. Rejoice ye in that day, and leap for joy, for behold your reward is great in heaven, for in like manner did their fathers unto the prophets.

Not one of us know what influence our life may have on our fellowmen, but we do know that a cheerful, hopeful and rejoicing Christian has a better influence than a complaining one, who tells of all their troubles and forgets the many blessings received also. Each one has their lot in life, though some seem to be more pleasant than others. We cannot tell of all their trials. God has given us our portion so let us therewith be content, and praise him for the light of the gospel. This disposition that shows God's truth has had its effect upon our minds is not one to be acquired all at once. We must begin by being quick to hear and slow to speak. Rom. xii. 13. By being kindly affectioned one to another with brotherly love, in honor preferring one another. Not neglectful of duty, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord. Rejoicing in hope, patient in tribulation, continuing instant in prayer.

I think this last quotation bears the keynote—instant in prayer. Our only access to God is by prayer, if we draw nigh unto him, he will draw nigh to us. Daily, almost hourly, we need strength from above to predominate over the desires and lusts of the flesh, that are often suggested by our environments. We also read in 1 Cor. x. 13, There hath no temptation taken you but such as is common to man; but God is faithful and will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation, also make a way to escape, that ye may be able to bear it.

Jesus was made like unto his brethren, that he might be a merciful and faithful high priest in things pertaining to God, to make reconciliation for his people. For in that he himself suffered, being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted. The same Jesus, having not seen, ye love, in whom though now we see him not, yet believing ye rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory. All down through the ages, we read of God's children rejoicing in their hope. Abraham rejoiced to see the day of the Lord, and was glad.

Job in his dire affliction spoke of his hope of resurrection, saying, "I know that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth. And though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see God."

In many places David speaks of his rejoicing. He says "That I may show forth thy praise in the gates of the city of Zion. I will rejoice in thy salvation." Because thou hast been my help, therefore in the shadow of thy wings will I rejoice. And again, "I rejoice at thy word, as one that findeth great spoil."

The prophet Habakak says, "Although the figtree shall not blossom, neither shall fruit be in the vine; the labor of the olive shall fail, and the fields shall yield no meat; the flock be cut off from the fold, and there shall be no herd in the stalls, yet I will rejoice in the Lord. I will joy in the God of my salvation."

Now we come to Jesus talking to the seventy disciples that he had appointed and sent out, giving them power over all the force of the enemy, and to tread on scorpions and serpents. They were exulting in their power, but Jesus soon says unto them "Nothing shall in any means hurt you, notwithstanding in this rejoice not, that the spirits are subject unto you, but rather rejoice because your names are written in heaven." Can we not take a practical lesson right here. Supposing we are prospered exceedingly, blessed with many privileges that few realize, will we rejoice in that, or will we rejoice that we have believed the gospel of the kingdom, and that our names are written in the Lamb's book of life, and therefore we have a godly life to live.

What shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose his own eternal life? If we have love in our heart, love for God, love for his Word, love for the brethren, we will rejoice not in iniquity, nor glory in vain pleasures, but rejoice in truth, bearing all things, hoping all things, enduring all things. The apostle Paul was ever rejoicing in [illegible] in Philippians he tells us he [illegible] he can preach Jesus Christ, for in [illegible] he rejoices, and will rejoice. His desire was not only to go and [illegible] among his brethren to cheer and to exhort them, but to give to as many as would believe a hope that would reach beyond the darkness of death to an incorruptable resurrection.

Let us endeavor, dear Bereans, and brethren and sisters, to let the brightness of our hope make our lives bright and when we meet let us endeavor to show each other by our faces and manner, that we are truly rejoicing in the hope that Jesus will soon come and establish the kingdom with us as his co-rulers.

There is so much time during the week that we are subjected to woes of human life, and cares of the world, that when we do meet with each other to worship God, the influence of the meeting, if we are all rejoicing, should so fill our affections and mind that we would be able to stand amid the trials and cares of this life, and be ready at any time to meet our beloved Lord. My desire and prayer is that we may [illegible] the brightness of our hope, and all be among those whose faith will end in sight.

HATTIE PATE.

CALLED TO GLORY AND VIRTUE.

2 Peter xiii. Through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue. How are we called to glory? By the sure word of God. Of his own will begat he us, with the word of truth. I have given them my word. Sanctify them through thy truth. Thy word is truth. All who understand the truth, and obey it, and come under the commands of the word, can be called to glory and virtue—to the glorious liberty of the sons of God. For unto the sons of God, heirs with Jesus, are the promises; and the glories of that City which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God.

Glorious things are spoken of thee O City of God. The inheritance of those who are called to glory whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises, that we can be partakers of the divine nature. By the favor of God we are called to glory, but to be partakers we must have knowledge, and virtue or strength. It is God that girdeth me with strength; the Lord is the strength of my life.

Strong in faith. Strength is gained by knowledge or understanding of God's Word. Abraham was strong in faith, and staggered not at the promises of God. So we, by faith, will be strong, if we have the sure Word of God for our guide. Let us look ahead to the glories of the kingdom; be worthy of the high calling—called to glory and virtue. When we read these words, called to glory, have we stopped to think of them. Are we looking for their fulfillment?

Here are a few of the promised glories—To reign with Christ a thousand years. To inherit all things. To have eternal life. To sing the new song. To have power over the nations with Jesus our King, and wear the white raiment which is the righteousness of the saints. Yes, glorious things are spoken of thee, O City of God. Let us exhort one another, and pray God that we may be strengthened and grow in grace, looking and watching for the blessed coming of our Savior, Jesus Christ.

ELLA KNOWLES.

WAITING FOR JESUS.

Dear Bereans:

It has been our privilege to hear through the good news of the gospel that Jesus is coming to earth again, for he said to his disciples, "And if I go away and prepare a place for you, I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am there ye may be also." John xvi. 3.

There have been a few in all ages who have lived and died in faith of that same promise, and they have witnesses of those which the prophets have said should come to pass before until one by one, they have been fulfilled; and now we are living in the age when our Lord may at any time fulfill his promise, and call for those who, both the living and dead, have a covenant with him by sacrifice. Are we, each one of us waiting for Jesus? He is coming with power and great glory, and will bring his reward with him. "To them that look for him, he will appear the second time without a sin offering unto salvation." It would be well for us to stand in an attitude of expectancy and readiness, for if we allow anything in this present life to occupy more of our interest than that pertaining to future life, we may lose that one great desire—to see Jesus and be made like him. We enlisted to suffer with him now, and reign with him when he comes again, and in order to faithfully perform our part, we should be willing to give up ourselves to the will and work of Christ in his absence, and follow the example of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob, who Paul says, "died in faith not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, were persuaded of them and embraced them, and confessed they were strangers and pilgrims in the earth." Acts xi. 13.

Let us go forth, therefore, unto him without the camp, bearing his reproach, for here we have no continuing city, but seek one to come. Heb. xiii. 13, 14. For if we live as strangers here, that is, have no part with the present order of things, but make our ambitions have some reference to future life, then we shall reach the City God has prepared, and it shall be an everlasting abiding place, where there shall only be righteousness and purity, and there will be no more parting. So may we stand prepared to meet our Lord when he comes, for it was the wise virgins who had oil in their lamps when they went to meet the bridegroom, who went in to the marriage supper of the Lamb; and the door was shut. So let us remember that it is those who have the spirit of Christ dwelling in them who shall be accepted of him.

Could any of us bear even the thought of being left outside when he calls for his own? His words to us are, "Watch, therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour when the Son of Man cometh." Matt. xxv. 13.

May we all be among those who are faithful to the end, and be found of him watching for Jesus' return, so that there may be a place prepared for us in his kingdom, and we can say with the great multitude, Let us be glad and rejoice, for the marriage of the Lamb is come, and his wife hath made herself ready.

Conference Report.

The Nineteenth Annual Conference met at St. Paul, Neb. Oct. 1-11, 1904.

The secretary reported having received during the year $203.00 and turned over to treasurer, which the treasurer paid over to Bro. Adams, the Evangelist, who reported his work done in Omaha during the past year and received $203 00.

The officers appointed for the coming year are Almus Adams, President, Mrs. Fanny D. Welsh, Secretary, Chas. E. Crowe, Treasurer. The address of Secretary and Treasurer is St. Paul, Neb.

It was decided to leave the hiring of the evangelists to the Conference Board. It was moved and carried that the evangelists be employed by the month and paid $50.00 per month and traveling expenses while in the field. It was required that evangelists should send in itemized reports to the secretary of work done, expenses, condition of work, etc., after each meeting held in each locality.

The conference decided to keep both Brother Adams and Brother Crowe in the evangelistic work as long as we could raise the money to keep the work going. Both of our evangelists have agreed to work some in other states a part of the year, but we should try to keep them in the Nebraska field all the time we can get them.

In order that each may know how long we can use him in the work, we will keep two separate funds. One for Brother Adams and one for Brother Crowe. Let all who send in money to the secretary mention which fund they wish their offering put into. Both secretary and treasurer will keep account of money paid in to each fund and pay it where the donors request.

The time in the work, results of the work etc., will be published in our papers so that those who are supporting the work will know what fruitage their offering is producing. The officers and evangelists of the church are but stewards over the Lord's vineyard and goods, and should do all the business with the same care, or more strictly than a merchant or banker. We must be faithful with the unrighteous mammon if we would be entrusted in the kingdom of God with the true riches.

The secretary was instructed to get number of members throughout the state and other facts relating to our church work for a year book being prepared by Bro. A. J. Eychaner.

Brother Adams is doing a good work in Omaha, but owing to poor health, due to La Grippe, he has not in the last few years been able to accomplish what he did in former years. We are glad to learn that he is improved in health of late and we hope that he may return to the field with renewed zeal and energy, and that by the united efforts of Bros. Crowe and Adams many may be brought out of darkness into the light of truth, and have their names written in the Lamb's Book of Life. But remember we are co-workers with them and we must do our part by getting some one interested in the truth, then if we are really anxious for their eternal welfare, how cheerfully we will give of our living to send for some one to teach them the way of life more perfectly.

Yours for success in the cause.

MRS. FANNY D. WELSH.

Editor Restitution:

Will you permit me to say through our beloved RESTITUTION, that my debate came off at Atkins, Ark., as per agreement. The man whom I met, W. F. Ludlow, was not as strong a man as I expected. He was a good dodger, but he could not dodge the plain, positive declaration of the Bible. Since the debate I receive a letter from C. C. Brown, M. D., who is also one of their preachers, and among [illegible] he said, "Kindly send me a copy of your tracts, or some other literature on the immortality question and, if you have something on the kingdom question that goes to the bottom, please send it to me also. I desire to probe that immortality question to the very core, for candor forces me to confess that Bro. Ledlow failed to present as strong a defense of the immortality of man as I expected of him." Thus you see the probability is, some will be led to see the truth from that discussion. O that I was able to buy literature and scatter it over this beautiful southland of ours. There are many sons and daughters of Adam who would accept the truth if they had the chance. If I had a few copies of some good works on the kingdom, and kindred subjects to loan to such men as Dr. Brown, they would lead them to see the truth. May the Lord impress some brethren who have means to send us such books to loan to anxious enquirers after truth. Brethren, can you send Bro. Zilmer, or Bro. Wilson, or some other good brother through this part of the country on a preaching tour? Pray for me, brethren, and the cause in Arkansas. And if any of you come this way write me. Always address me at Magazine, Ark. Your brother.

Obituary.

Another veteran saint has fallen, but with the armor on. Sister Caroline Jackson, aged 83, at Blythedale, Mo. Sept. 17, 1904. This had been her home for many years, and those years were devoted to the duties of a Christian mother. For seventeen or more years she walked alone, her companion having fallen by the way, but in the faith of the coming kingdom. We laid her by the side of her husband where they will rest together in hope.

Sister Jackson was the mother of seven children. Grandmother of 28, and great grandmother of 18. Nearly all were present at the funeral. Six grandsons were the bearers.

The sermon was by the writer, the text 1 Thes. iv. 18-18. The interest was intense, and we hope the fruit will be abundant.

Obituary.

To those of like precious faith, it will be of interest to learn some things concerning our lamented Brother, Ira B. Hall of Erie, Pa., late of Randolph, Pa.

Brother Hall was one of fifteen converted by the gospel of the kingdom, through Brother J. T. Ongley, some fifty years ago, out of the Methodist Church at Hickory corners, Randolph where Brother Hall spent his entire life, except the last two with his son in Erie. Up to the time of his conversion he had made no religious profession, but afterwards had charge of the Bible class for years at Blooming Valley, three miles from his home, but was with his class every Sunday. He was not a public speaker, but was ever ready to tell the story of salvation by the resurrection, when the Lord Jesus comes.

His quiet upright life, so consistent with his faith, won the esteem of all who knew him. He farmed all his life, and sold out about two years ago. Since that time he has visited much, and talked the gospel.

A little more than a year ago the writer first met him, in [illegible] the home of Brother W. S. Tom[illegible]. He was on his way to a conference, but was induced to stay over Sunday. He thoroughly enjoyed his visit, and the Church in Cleveland enjoyed his company.

He was at our Conference here in Salem last month, and with all present enjoyed the occasion to the full, and he left an impression on us that is lasting. No one could meet him without believing that he was faithful to his covenant with our Father in heaven, and our Lord Jesus Christ.

He died at the Spencer Hospital, in Meadville, Pa., Oct. 10, as the result of injuries sustained in a runaway near Sagertown, Sept. 18. He was buried Oct. 12, in Hatch Cemetery, one mile from where he was born. He is survived by two sons, I. E. Hall of Meadville, and Dr. F. L. Hall of Erie; also two daughters, Miss Rebecca Hall a professional nurse in a Connecticut Hospital, and Miss Arminta Hall of Erie.

Though Brother Hall was of full age, we deeply lament his death, as prior to the accident he was unusually vigorous for his years, but we sorrow not as those who have no hope, for we believe, if we endure to the end, we will meet him at the general assembly of the first born.

What We Believe.

"We" are a body of religious people who, as such, "believe" something. We believe the teaching of the Word of God. This is our rule of faith and practice. But what does the Word teach as essential matters of "faith and practice?" Do we as a people uniformly hold to the great foundation principles of faith as set forth in the Word of God? Are our public ministers a unit on the things to be taught and believed in order to salvation? In short: Have we a faith? If so, what is that faith? What does the Word of God teach us as essential to true faith and practice? We have answered these questions in a very concise and yet comprehensive way in the upper right hand corner of our paper, The Restitution. The object of these lines is to say that, since writing a series of articles for The Restitution on "What We Believe," quite a number of requests, both verbal and written, have come to the undersigned asking that said articles be published in book form. They will make a book of about 60 pages, making 15 chapters in all. Such a book should sell for 15 cents per copy. [illegible] this concerns you. Do you desire the publication of this work for distribution among such who ask, "What do you believe?" If so, please write to the undersigned at Plymouth, Ind., saying how many copies you want at 15 cents per copy. Write on postal. Send no money until notice is given that the work will be published.

IMPORTANT NOTICES

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "The Restitution, Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "The Restitution."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended

Poetry.

The Present Time.

Be swift, dear heart, in loving, for time is brief,
And thou mayest come along life's highway
keep up with grief.

Be calm, dear heart, in saying the kindly word:
When cares are sated, the passionate pleading will not be heard.

Be swift, dear heart, in doing the gracious deed,
Lest some they whom most thou holdest dear be past the need.

Be quiet, dear heart, in giving the rare, sweet flower,
Or wait to keep with love some the casket in some sad hour.

Dear heart, be swift in loving—time speedeth on;—
And all thy chance of service will soon be gone.

THE PHENOMENA OF SPIRITUALISM ACCOUNTED FOR. NO. 2.

Teacher. What did lesson No. 1. close with?

Arlon. Lesson No. 1 closed with remarks relating to the vital life-spirit being scientifically termed electricity, magnetism, etc., which furnished vitality to the air we breathe.

Q. Should the air lack this vital spirit would it sustain life?

A. Now while the air we inhale is also called spirit, yet if it should lack the vital electrical spirit, it could not sustain life. Breath and spirit are necessary to sustain animal life, whether in man, or the brute creation. Job seemed to comprehend this, when he said; if the Lord should gather unto himself his "breath and his spirit," all flesh would turn again to dust. In this instance at least, "breath" and "spirit" were not used as synonymous terms.

Q. Do we not sometimes perceive the oppressiveness of the atmosphere, and how difficult it seems to breathe, and on such occasions how weak, languid and spiritless the physical system becomes?

A. Yes, we do. Then again, let this be followed by an electrical storm, and all life, both animal and vegetable, seems to be inspired with new life and vigor.

Q. Does not this show that the spirit in the atmosphere is a vital principle?

A. Yes. We are here informed that "the most subtle principle of the earth's halo is spirit, which is called by different names, such as electricity, magnetism, etc. This halo is its reservoir, as it were. It is diluted with atmospheric air. We breathe it, and it pervades every atom of our bodies, and having enabled our organism to perform its functions, it exhales from the electrodes of our system as Od into the reservoir where we derived it by breathing. Thus a circle or circuit exists of the external atomic form-changing fluid, internal transformed matter, and nervous current, closing the circuit by Od (latent light radiating in darkness) exhaling into the outer fluid.

Now, this outer reservoir of fluid may be regarded as a highly-polished and extremely sensitive mirror, in which can be excited latent odic spectres, which become visible sometimes to those whose brains are subjected to odic exaltation."

Q. What may spectral impressions arise from?

A. "The spectral impressions may emanate from corrupting bodies, and from living brains acting upon other living brains. Reichenbach's graveyard experiments have demonstrated the first; thermo-electography the second; and animal magnetism, in all its varieties, the third.

Q. Can you illustrate by experiment, what is meant by spectral impressions?

A. Yes. We may adduce here a philosophical experiment, illustrative of what we mean by latent spectral impressions. Take a piece of glass, the temperature of which is low, lay a coin upon the it, and breathe upon the surface; allow the breath to entirely disappear; then toss the coin off the surface and examine it minutely; no trace of any thing is visible, yet a spectral impression exists on that surface, which may be evoked by again breathing upon the surface of the glass. A form resembling the coin at once appears."

Q. Can a more perfect impression be produced by an electrical machine?

A. Yes. "M. Karsten placed a coin upon a piece of plate glass, which being supported by a plate of metal not insulated, the sparks from the conductor of an electrifying machine were made to strike on the coin, thereby causing them to pass simultaneously through the coin and metalic plate. After one hundred turns of the machine, the coin was removed, the glass plate appeared perfectly unaltered (the ghost was invisible), but when breathed upon, a perfect impression of the coin in its most minute details became visible."

Q. Will these impressions remain after all traces of electricity has disappeared?

A. Yes. "M. Karsten says that the impression is not produced by traces of the electric fluid remaining adherent to the glass plate; because the impression still remains with great distinctness, after all traces of electricity has disappeared, after the glass has been wiped with a handkerchief. And again, these impressions are neither destroyed, nor even weakened, by passing a stream of the opposite electricity over them."

Q. From these experiments what do we learn?

A. From these experiments we see:

1. That by breathing upon the thing impressed, hidden things may be made manifest.

2. That this can be effected at the end of months.

3. That means but real impressions of words and figures can be made on surfaces by electricity, and afterward made visible by breathing. These principles are scientific demonstrations.

Q. And, pray, what is science?

A. "It is knowledge. Human knowledge, or science, when it is really knowledge, consists of the little men have discovered—the few general facts they have found obtaining in the universe, and more especially in this terrestrial system, in relation to the earth, its substances, and man upon it. Men know but little of the laws to which God has subjected his earth and the things belonging to it, compared with what remains to be revealed."

Teacher. Will Lucy please tell us who it is that pronounces the Bible a cheat?

Lucy. "And yet it is the ignorant who undertake to draw conclusions from the data the most recondite, and pronounce the Bible a cheat, if it teach not according to what they have predetermined it ought to teach. But, after all, the multitude is not so much to blame for this as their guides. Like priests like people. The theosophist reasons out from insufficient data a crude theory, which pleases his fleshly mind, and then goes to the Bible to cull sounding epithets to sanctify it, instead of allowing God's Holy Word to teach him as a babe, and then to prove all things by its rule. This procedure is emphatically the folly of our age. All classes are guilty of it, and in consequence rush headlong to the adoption of theories which destroy the truth, and stultify themselves."

Q. What are general facts?

A. "General facts are the laws by and through which God sustains all things and operates upon them. By these laws a relationship is established between him and man, who is subjugated to their operation in common with minerals and vegetables."

Q. Does electricity act uniformly?

A. Thus, electricity acts uniformly whatever the nature of the thing acted upon; the products of that action vary according to the medium through which it acts. Like electricities repel, and unlike ones attract, whether minerals, vegetables, clouds or animal substances be the subject of their power."

Q. Now, how does God speak to man?

A. This is a point our class should critically investigate. Millions of people known as spiritualists claim that he speaks to man by means of dead men's ghosts, which they claim are deathless in their nature, and whose powers are intensified when separated from the mortal body, and these are made the means of communication between the supposed inhabitants of heaven and earth.

The above theory upon investigation is proven not only to be unscientific, but positively unscriptural.

Q. Does not the above theory lie at the base of all false systems of religion?

A. Yes. The doctrine that the above imaginary intelligences exist, lies at the foundation of every false religious system, as for instance the Roman Catholic worship of saints. The Roman church creates saints at her pleasure, out of some dead Catholic, which their church think worthy of the honor, and each good Catholic must have one of these saints assigned as his or her patron saint, to whom they must pray, and ask them to intercede in their behalf, with Jesus and the "holy mother of God." This is their means of communication.

Q. Does not this error lie at the base of the Mohammedan apostasy also?

A. Yes. This error lies at the base of the Mohammedan apostasy. The devout follower of Mahommet is promised that at death his immortal spirit shall ascend to heaven, and a numerous harem of spirit-wives will be assigned him, whereby he can revel in sensual pleasure to his heart's content. We might also name theosophists, the socalled Christian Scientists, Mormons, and the leading denominations of the Protestant Church. The heathenish doctrine of eternal torment is also based upon the existence of the imaginary immortal spirit, which spiritualists claim is not only the medium of communication between God and man, but between all the inhabitants of heaven and earth.

In the next lesson we will introduce the quotation showing how God speaks to man, which in the past has not been by dead men's ghosts, but by means of his Holy Spirit.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

W. H. WILSON.

"As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of Man be lifted up; that whosoever believeth in him may have eternal life." John iii. 14, 15.

The children of Israel were on their way to the promised land, through the wilderness from Mount Hor, by way of the Red Sea, to compass the land of Edom, being refused passage through the land. Whom thou wouldest not let Israel invade when they came out of the land of Egypt, but they turned from them and destroyed them not." 2 Chron. xx. 10. Israel became discouraged, for the way was hard, and they gave way to murmuring against God and Moses. To punish them God sent fiery serpents, which bit the people and many of them died. They were frightened and acknowledged their sin to Moses, who prayed for them. God then told Moses to make a serpent of brass, and lift it up so that all could see it, and all who looked upon the brass serpent were healed. This lifting up of the serpent was a figure of a glorious lifting up later on. But why, it may be asked, was not one of the serpents lifted up? We answer it would not have been a fitting type of our Savior, the anti-type, who was holy, harmless, undefiled, separate from sinners, offering himself without spot unto God. Jesus in receiving the penalty of man's sin, in no sense inherited the sin, he died but not by the bite of the serpent, "the sting of death is sin, but the power of sin is the law." Therefore he died as a sacrifice or offering to the law, to deliver them under the law, and to those who believe in him his righteousness is imputed. When raised up from death and the grave, he can not only heal, but destroy him who had the power to bite and sting, that is the serpent. In the type chosen there was the likeness of the serpent, but it was not any of the serpents, it was made of brass. Jesus was in the likeness of sinful flesh, but in no wise sinful, he must of necessity be as pure as Adam before he sinned, or he could not be a ransom, a corresponding price. Such a being could be tempted, yet without sin.

"His feet are like unto fine brass as if they burned in a furnace." Brass can endure the trial of fire uninjured. According to this type no one of us could make atonement for the race, as it is written, "No one can in any wise redeem his brother, nor can he give to God redemption money for himself; for the ransom of their soul is too costly, and it is omitted forever." Psa. xlix. 8, 9. (Leeser). We have all been bitten by the serpent and must be healed. Let us confess our sins as did the people to Moses, and look to Jesus on the cross. There is healing for a look at the crucified one. If a brazen serpent which pointed to Jesus will heal, how much more faith in him of whom it is written, "Himself took our infirmities, and bear our sicknesses," for "by his stripes we are healed." When the people confessed, Moses prayed, and the people were healed after the serpent was lifted up. Let the elders pray and all who confess and believe when Jesus is lifted up, will be healed body and spirit. "And I, if I be lifted up, will draw all men unto me." Jesus was lifted up on the cross, very few saw him. No one sees him now, except by the eye of faith. But of the glory of the Lord, it is written, "all flesh shall see it together." "Behold he cometh with clouds and every eye shall see him and they also which pierced him; and all the tribes of the earth shall mourn over him, even so. Amen." "For I will turn their mourning into joy, and will comfort them and make them rejoice from their sorrow, and will satiate the soul of the priests with fatness and my people shall be satisfied with my goodness, saith Jehovah. "Hear the Word of Jehovah, O ye nations, and declare it in the isles afar off and say, He that scattered Israel will gather him and keep him, as a shepherd doth his flock." Jer. xxxi. 10. "All the ends of the world shall remember and turn unto the Lord and all the kindreds of the nations shall worship before thee, for the kingdom is the Lord's and he is the governor among the nations." Psa. xxii. 27, 28.

"Faithful is the saying; for if we died with him we shall also live with him; if we endure we shall also reign with him." 2 Tim. ii. 11.

Exhortation at the Breaking of Bread.

"For ye are bought with a price. Therefore glorify God in your body and in your spirit which are God's." 1 Cor. vi. 20. "Forasmuch as ye know that ye were not redeemed with corruptible things as silver and gold, but with the precious blood of Christ, for by his own blood he hath obtained eternal redemption." Redeemed forever from the curse of the law, that we might receive the promise of the spirit through faith. "Ye are bought with a price. Be not ye the servants of men, but serve God with a pure heart, and love and obey him." For in his great love and mercy he gave his only beloved Son that we might receive the promised inheritance, the inheritance that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you, who are kept by the power of God through faith; for the just shall live by faith. Without faith we cannot come to Jesus, cannot accept him as our Savior, our sacrifice, the sacrifice of himself for us. Yes bought with a price, and what a price. See his bleeding hands and feet, torn with the nails that nailed him to the cross. See the wounded side pierced by the spear of a Roman soldier, dying an ignominious death, the death of the cross, suffering shame and scorn for you and for me. Can we repay this great debt? What can we do for him who gave his life that we might live? Greater love hath no man than this, that a man lay down his life for his friends. Our Savior gave his life for us while we were yet sinners. O such agony endured that you and I, that all who will might be free from the law of condemnation. We can respect this price, the ransom, by coming to Jesus, by consecrating our lives to his work, by faith in the gospel, the good news of the kingdom, by taking his name upon us. Greater love hath no man than this that a man lay down his life for his friends. "Ye are my friends if ye do whatsoever I command you."

May God help us to keep those commands, and help and keep us until the appearing of him who bought us with a price, the price of a sinless holy life.

"Hold fast without wavering." Heb. x. 23. "Let us hold fast the profession of our faith without wavering; for he is faithful that promised. Who was faithful to him that appointed him as also Moses was faithful in all his house. Without faith it is impossible to please God. And for their sake I sanctified myself that they also might be sanctified through the truth. If we confess our sins he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. And ye shall be hated for my name-sake; but he that endureth to the end shall be saved. No man having put his hand to the plow and looking back is fit for the kingdom of God. Blessed is the man that endureth temptation for when he is tried he shall receive a crown of life which the Lord hath promised to them that love him. And when the chief Shepherd shall appear ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away. This is the promise that he hath promised us even eternal life. Faithful is he that called you who also will do it. Behold I come quickly, hold fast which thou hast that no man take thy crown.

GOD'S GRACE SUFFICIENT.

"And he said unto me my grace is sufficient for thee. For my strength is made perfect in weakness. Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my infirmities that the power of Christ may rest upon me. And he said unto me, my grace is sufficient for thee. This statement was made to Paul when he felt that he was weak, and unable in himself to do the work before him. And after he received this assurance he felt willing to glory in his infirmities that the power of Christ might rest upon him. And Christ has promised to give strength and let his favor rest upon all who will trust and obey him. I was told of a case where friends prayed earnestly for another friend and they afterwards saw why their prayer had not been answered. In other cases people imagine they receive answers to prayer when they work to the end desired themselves. Now Paul's prayer was not answered as he had prayed to have it, but God promised that his grace would be sufficient for him. We are not promised to have every thing made smooth and easy for us, but that if we put our faith in God his favor will rest upon us and be sufficient for us. And our prayers should be for the re-establishment of God's kingdom and that we may have grace to live worthy of a place in that kingdom. We have a good promise of his protection in Psa. v. 12. For thou Lord wilt bless the righteous; with favor wilt thou compass him as with a shield. And also James iv. 6, But he giveth more grace wherefor he sayeth, God resisteth the proud but giveth grace to the humble." And John i. 16-17, And of his fulness have all we received, and grace for grace. For the law was given by Moses, but grace and truth came by Jesus Christ. Acts iv. 33. Barnabas, "Who when he came and had seen the grace of God, was glad and exhorted them all that with purpose of heart they would cleave unto the Lord. Prov. xxii. 15. Good understanding giveth favor; but the way of the transgressor is hard. Prov. viii. 35, For whoso findeth me findeth life and shall obtain favor of the Lord. Prov. xii. 2. A good man obtaineth favor of the Lord; but a man of wicked devices will he condemn. Eph. ii. 8, For by grace are

The Restitution.

"The Restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his Holy Prophets."

VOLUME LIII. PLYMOUTH, INDIANA, NOV. 2, 1904. NUMBER 41.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

ye saved through faith; and that not by yourselves, it is the gift of God. Here we see our dependence on Christ for life. Eph. vi. 24, Grace be with them all that love our Lord Jesus Christ in sincerity. Amen.

A Disappointing Utterance.

Rev. G. Campbell Morgan, D. D., the well-known English preacher, has written a book entitled "Evangelism," in which he makes the following statement concerning the churches' [illegible] to run the business of Jesus Christ like the world runs the business of selling soap, we shall do something."

We must confess that we are rather shocked and not a little pained to find an utterance of this character coming from Dr. Morgan. While he was with us, here in Los Angeles, several months ago, he impressed the entire community with his strong personality, his eloquence and the earnest dignity of his exhortations. None of us who then listened to him in such wrapt attention and with such a refreshing sense of edification would ever suppose that he would lapse into a mode of expression so distinctly disappointing as the excerpt herein quoted from his book. It is an offense not only against good taste and calculated to shock the cultured mind, but it is also mistaken in its conclusions.

If religion should ever adopt the same method for the attainment of its success that the world adopts in the soulless and selfish conduct of its commerce, there would be a sad awakening for religion. It seems to us that there can be no uncertainty as to the proper means to be employed by the followers of Jesus for the promulgation of his doctrines on this earth. He has set the example himself, he is himself the model, and it is upon him that the Christian proselytizer must be patterned if the proselyting is to succeed. And did he, the gentle Nazarene, go about his business as the world goes about selling soap? How repulsive, how terribly sacrilegious the very thought of it is when we bring it thus home to the Christian's sense of reverence.

We regret to say that too many of our preachers—well-meaning and God-fearing men though they be—are prone to seek for the clothing of their arguments in the slang and the crude vernacular of the streets. In their zeal and pious enthusiasm they perhaps think they can better reach the crowd in that way. But to know that they are certainly mistaken, they have but to consider whether or not Christ would so speak. He taught the people. He exhorted the rabble and he preached from the highways and byways; yet, mark the dignity, the purity and the beauty of his every utterance. He did not cheapen what he said by straining at catchy phrases and smart sayings. Even the parables, in which he so often spoke, are all of poetic beauty and the very elegancies of human expression.

Let us hope that, as time goes on, there will be less of this reprehensible crudeness and distasteful method of speech in the pulpit and supposedly religious writings. There is nothing to be lost by its complete abrogation, but on the contrary, there is unquestionably much to be gained.—Selected by J. T. Smith, from the Los Angeles Times.

Some people are born natural fault finders. Something is always wrong with them. They complain, they find fault with every department of the work. They act as though they were born to criticise. There is no use in arguing with them; they are of the "contrary mind," and close their eyes to all you say. They find fault with everything they do not like. They are good objectors, and never satisfied unless they are on the contrary side, and that is always the wrong side. Let us pray for them, and may they find rest to their souls.

You cannot dream yourself into a character, you must hammer and forge yourself one.

This item is for the person who has allowed his time to expire and has not yet renewed. We wish to hereby solicit you to at once send in your subscription money for the paper. At this season of the year our expenses are necessarily heavy, as we must get fuel and otherwise prepare for winter. The political campaign is on, and the attention of some is diverted by this cause. Brethren and sisters, do not allow anything to crowd out your duty in this branch of the Lord's cause. Hurry in your renewals at once.

Words of encouragement come to us from Brother W. H. Wilson. At the meeting held at Bush, Mo., by himself and Brother John Foore, thirteen were immersed. A report of the meeting will be given next week.

November 3d is the birthday of the Emperor of Japan, and a month ago it was expected that Port Arthur would surely be theirs by this time. However, the Russians still hang on, and there must be some desperate fighting before it falls. All the last week there has been a continuous bombardment, and the Russians are suffering severely.

In the region near Mukden the two armies are resting only a short distance apart. How soon they will spring at each other's throats is not known. The Russians have been so busy with their wounded which have blocked their railroads, that they can not get reinforcements for some time. On the other hand it is claimed that the Japanese have some 60,000 fresh troops with them, and are consequently stronger than they were before.

The North Sea affair that came so near to plunging Great Britain and Russia into war, has been averted for a time. Russia agrees to apologize and pay for the damage, and the fleet [illegible] be more careful in future, and avoid repeating the offence. The officers who were responsible have been detained to await an inquiry by a tribunal after the order of the Hague. It is not likely that the high officials of the Russian navy will be punished, but some captains may be used as scapegoats.

Some Vital Questions. No. 10.

185. That God foreordained us unto adoption of sons through Jesus Christ, we have abundant evidence in Rom. viii. 15, 28, 29. It is an absolute condition of sonship to God, to be COPIES of the likeness of HISSON. If God had no Son of his own, he would have no adopted sons; but on becoming children, they become heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ, and, if faithful, will be glorified with him.

186. We read in Rom. v. 8, that God commendeth, or recommendeth his own love to us, because we being sinners Christ died on our behalf; by how much more, then, having been justified BY HIS BLOOD, we shall through him be saved. Josephitism says the blood of Christ was not shed sacrificially; and those who teach that we are under obligation to show how, if that be true, they can find a place in their system for Rom. v. 8, or state how they can be justified without the blood.

187. Again, how does the above teaching appear beside, Eph. i. 5, where we learn that God foreordained us unto adoption of children by Jesus Christ, to himself, to the praise of the glory of his grace, wherein he hath made us accepted in the Beloved (Son whom he gave Jno. iii. 16) in whom we have REDEMPTION THROUGH HIS BLOOD,—the forgiveness of sins, according to the riches of his grace?" Imagine, if you can, the adoption of children BY AN ADOPTED SON!

188. Josephites teach that there was no necessity for either a Lamb of God, or for a Lamb of Joseph, to be slain. What presumption to practically say God provided a Lamb of his own to take away the sin of the world, when there was no need of it!

189. Do not Jesus' words John iii. 16 furnish infallible proof that it was in sonship he died? He was begotten before he was given to die. It was the only Begotten Son that was given.

190. Is not "the Lamb," one of the titles of the Lord Jesus? And does not that indicate his sacrificial relationship every time it occurs?

191. Do not the words in Rom. v. 10, "Much more being reconciled, we shall be SAVED BY HIS LIFE, prove that the death of Jesus accomplished something which the death of no other man could; and mean essentially different from the meaning when applied in plural form to others? Others were to be "conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the first born among many brethren."

192. To the question, "Art thou the Son of God?" Jesus replied, "I am." Then with a cry of blasphemy, sentence of death was passed upon him.

193. Who was right, Jesus, or the priests? The answer is found in Rom. i. 4 when we find he was "declared with power, to be the Son of God." In what way? By the resurrection from the dead. This is the divine ATTESTATION of his claim, and is far more powerful evidence of the righteousness of his claim than the coming down from the cross would have been. This Scripture does not say that Jesus became the Son of God by resurrection from the dead. No such declaration exists. But it gives powerful evidence that he was THE SON OF GOD.

We are told by Matthew, Mark and Luke that he was declared to be the Son of God when on the Mount of transfiguration. He was declared to be the Son of God at his baptism, according to three evangelists, and the fourth says the same by implication, John i. 32-34.

194. Jesus asked his enemies, "What think ye of Christ, whose Son is he?" They answered, "The Son David." Then came the question, "How, then, doth David in Spirit call him Lord?"

Do the words, "In the Spirit" mean anything? They do! They were words of inspiration! They mean that David knew by the Spirit that the Son promised him, who would occupy his throne for ever, would bring life and immortality to light, and that HE HIMSELF would be indebted to him for life after death; and that he would be just,—would not commit sins in his youth, and need baptism for their remission, as our Josephite author claims he did. David also knew by promise of Jehovah that when his Son shall reign gloriously for the age, it would be in his presence. Yes; David himself would be there. And beyond all [illegible] David believed God [illegible] said he would be the Father of that Son of his. 2 Sam. vii. 14.

195. Is it true as claimed, that the term Son of God is used as the equivalent of Messiah? No! It is a word of a different meaning, and is kept distinct by Jesus, by the High Priest, by the Jews generally, by the prosecutors before Pilate, and by the evangelists.

196. Jesus, when asked to state plainly whether he was the Christ or not, in his reply referred to God as HIS FATHER, and this led the Jews to take up stones to stone him, because they regarded it as blasphemy, see John x. 25-31.

197. "If any man be in Christ Jesus he is a new creature." 2 Cor. v. 17. A community of new creatures necessarily constitutes a new creation. The character of this new creation is described in Eph. iv. 25 as "After God created in righteousness and true holiness."

198. The new man describes what is in contrast with the old man. The whole race is in one man or the other. Each of these is multitudinous, and each has a head. One is styled the First Man, and the other the Second Man. One is of earth and the other is of heaven 1 Cor. xv. 47, 48.

199. The old creation was at first very good; but it was marred by the Head. The new creation is the beginning of the erection of a superior order of things on the ruins of the old. The foundation has been laid in one who is styled the "BEGINNING of the CREATION OF GOD." Rev. iii. 14. Without him there could be no new creatures; hence it is written of the members of the new creation that they are GOD'S WORKMANSHIP, created in Christ Jesus. Eph. ii. 10.

200. So that Christ Jesus is the source of their changed position, or state, which is described by such words as "washed," "sanctified," "justified," "reconciled," "purchased," "elect," "people of God," "heirs of salvation," "heirs of the kingdom," "household of faith," "heirs of the grace of life," "vessels of mercy," "sons of God," "the Body of Christ," and the "Church."

201. As Sonship depends upon begettal, men must be begotten AGAIN in order to become sons of God. Yet, in the very chapter which records the words of Jesus affirming, the absolute need for such an operation, and the implication that it would have such a result, Jesus is TWICE called the only "begotten Son of God."

202. Why ONLY? Those for whom we write will see clearly that there is a difference between the only begotten Son, Jesus, and all the others who had once been begotten of the flesh, and then begotten again with the Word of truth. Jas. i. 18.

203. The privilege of the many to become sons of God is derived from "The ONLY begotten Son." "But as many as received him, to them gave HE power to become sons of God, even to them that believed on his name."

204. While dwelling among them, the Word having been made flesh, John says, "We beheld his glory—not the description of his glory—"the glory of an only begotten from a Father, full of favor and truth."

205. Listen to declarations from him who spake as never man spake and learn WHY no one spake as he did:—

"As the Father hath life in himself, even so, he gave to THE SON also to have life in himself." V. 27.

"The Son quickeneth whom he will." V. 21.

"I am from above,—ye are from beneath."

"I live by the Father."

"I am the door of the sheep."

"I am the true vine, and my Father is the husbandman."

"I am the Son of God."

206. In the parable of the vine the position of all others is described as branches drawing life and sustenance from him. In almost every chapter of John's gospel the special relationship of Jesus to the Father is expressed.

And when we say to our brethren that Josephites have been doing their utmost to undermine the authority of that precious portion of the divine record, because of its evidence against them, we are prepared to prove what we say, on short notice from their literature.

207. In the words of comfort in the 14th chapter of John, he is seen to be the only way of approach to the Father. In the 17th he is the giver of eternal life to all whom God has given him; and that all these lofty claims on his part were well understood by his enemies, we know, by the charge against him in chapter 19, "We have a law, and by that law he ought to die, because he made himself the Son of God." Here we find some of the signs by which John says we may discern that Jesus is the Christ, the SON OF GOD, and believing that concerning him, may find life;—that quickening power which NOW causes the RELATIONSHIP OF SONS, and presently swallows up mortality through his name."

208. According to the Law, the Father was the Head of the house, and it would have been out of place for a man to say before his superior, that he was the Son of his mother. And we are persuaded that the Psalmist was not speaking of himself when he said,

"O, Lord, truly I am thy servant; I am thy servant, THE SON OF THINE HANDMAID." Psa. cxvi. 16. Why this departure from the established rule, and call himself the Son of his mother? Is not the Psalmist speaking of, or for the Son to be given?

According to Matthew, Mark, Luke and John he had no human father; that we think, explains the remarkable expression, "I am thy servant, the Son of thine handmaid." And the words immediately following seem to confirm this impression:—

"Thou (Jehovah) hast loosed my bonds," of whom but Jesus could this be prophetically said? Death was to imprison him, and it did. He was not to be allowed to go to corruption, and did not. And we have the evidence of the apostle Peter that David referred to the resurrection of Christ when he said the HOLY ONE should not see corruption. Acts ii. 24-30.

But this is not all. The verse preceding that which says, "I am thy servant, the Son of thy handmaid, thou hast loosed my bonds," says, "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints," implying that he had made provision for their living again by the resurrection of the HOLY ONE.

209. This leads to the question, WHY is there but ONE Holy ONE? The answer is found in Psa. lxxx. 17. Jehovah is there seen to have only made ONE Son of Man strong for himself.

210. It would have broken the Scripture (which Jesus said could not be broken) if he had been born of the line of Joseph who came through Solomon, while Mary came through Nathan.

In Jeremiah xxii. 24-30 we read: "As I live, saith the Lord, though Coniah the Son of Jeconiah, King of Judah were upon the signet of my right hand, yet would I pluck thee thence.....Thus saith the Lord, write ye this man childless, a man that shall not prosper, sitting upon the throne of David and ruling any more in Judah."

All the twisting and turning of mortal men cannot change this decision or set it aside. Jehovah is at the helm, and hence it is as true now as when Jesus said it, "The Scriptures cannot be broken."

211. As Joseph was not eligible to the throne of David, no Son of his could be; but we are told that we lose Jesus' claim to the throne of Israel if we hang it upon his being descended from David through Mary, as Jewish kings did not inherit from the mother's side." But we read in Rev. xxii. 16, that Jesus declared himself to be the ROOT, as well as the OFFSPRING of David. Fleshwise Jesus sprang from David. But that flesh of David or any cannot inherit the kingdom of God. That kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and only an immortal king can occupy its throne. And the Word of the Spirit informs us in Hebrews v. 9 that Jesus on being made perfect, became the author of eternal salvation (that is life) unto them that obey him." This includes David, and all others. David himself, in Psalm xvii. 15 testifies that he looked for redemption from death through his Son according to the flesh, for he says: "As for me, I will behold thy face in righteousness; I shall be satisfied when I awaken with thy likeness." Jesus the Son of David becomes the age-lasting Father. Denials and deductions are of little use here. And as to the throne of Israel, we hold that Christ's right to it is far superior to David's, even. By his own utterances we know David was but a viceroy of the great King. He repeatedly says, "The Lord is King for ever." "The Lord is strong and mighty,—the Holy One of Israel is our King." This ever-reigning and contemporaneous King through all history, was King still when Jesus was born. Jesus was SON of this reigning King. And he declared before Pilate that his kingdom had not its source in that present kosmos, but was future, and from above, and to that royal end, he was born King of the Jews.

Dear Restitution:

I want to ask any of the dear brethren of the faith of Abraham to fully explain through The Restitution about the two witnesses as found in Rev. vi. So many place these events in the past, while some few think them still future. I am not fully settled on the subject, and wish to know what others think. What were these two witnesses, when were they slain, and how? In what part of the world's history were they slain? How were they restored to life, and what was their ascension, and was it literal or spiritual.

I am trying to learn all I can from God's blessed Word, whether it is essential to our salvation or not, but I very seldom get to talk to one who is of the faith and hope of the gospel. I can't tell how lonely I feel sometimes. It is seldom that I meet with one who loves from the heart to talk of the beautiful things of the Bible, but their minds are all on things of the world, and to have fun, even among professed Christians. If one tries to talk of such things with them they are easily offended, or else say such things make no difference. Just live and do as near right as we can, and then we will be all right.

Brothers and sisters, some times I feel to murmur on account of never having the privilege of bringing up my children where the truths of the Bible are taught, and without contention, but for some reason it is not for me to have this great blessing. But whatever befalls me, I know that I love my Heavenly Father, and am trying to always do his blessed will. So I am sure all things will work together for good. Though there are times when the way seems very dark, but I feel that the presence of my dear Savior is ever near me, ready to help in every time of need.

The explanation of this Scripture is for the good of some who belong to no church, but are just studying for themselves, as well as for my own self. I have more questions to ask in the future, so let me hear from different ones through The Restitution soon.

Your Sister hoping for the soon return of our Redeemer as the King of the world.

Mary A. King.

A Few Thoughts on the War.

I noticed an article in The Restitution not long since, from one of your most esteemed contributors, Brother Dwiggins, in which he referred to the terrible mortality of modern warfare. Now there is a popular error in this matter that is very great. As a matter of fact modern warfare with all its deadly appliances is not nearly as deadly as ancient warfare, and the truth of the matter might as well be known, as it throws light on other subjects with which it is co-related.

In ancient warfare men came to close quarters. There is the story of the young Spartan who complained that his sword was too short "lengthen it then with a step forward" was the reply of his instructor. Under such conditions there was small chance for escape of the defeated.

The deadliness of such combats are illustrated in Bible history. In the war for instance that resulted in the all but extinction of the tribe of Benjamin. There were slain of the defeated in one day 22,000, another day 18,000, another 25,000. There were no prisoners taken and no quarter given.

In profane history we have the same kind of thing. When Cæsar defeated and pursued Ariovistus to the Rhine 300 furlongs, the number of the slain is said to have been 80,000. Again in Cæsar's battle with the Nervii out of 60,000 that went out to battle only 500 returned. At another time two German nations crossed the Rhine to make conquests in Roman territory 400,000 are said to have been slain, very few ever crossing the river back again. We have no such slaughter now-a-days. Then the defeated were slain almost to a man. Now often the conquerors have the greatest loss of life and the wounded and prisoners are counted "lost." At Gettysburg, for instance, the figures given are 140,000 men engaged "of which number 28,198 federals and 37,000 confederates were killed, wounded and captured." "At Waterloo 145,000 men fought, of that number 50,000 were killed or wounded."

These facts and statements are not given as a palliative or excuse, for war; but to emphasize the fact first that besides the open method of fighting, practiced in modern times which is really more conducive to safety, there is a modifying and civilizing influence running through it all as shown in the Red Cross Society, for instance. This spirit was very clearly shown in the Boer war. The present struggle between Japan and Russia, seems to be carried on on more barbarous lines by the Russians at least. But it is possible that the magnanimity of the plucky little Japanese will reach a soft place in the tough Russian heart. There is no use to shut our eyes to the fact that the name and spirit of God's Christ has had an immense influence in modifying the savagery of the inhabitants of this planet.

Another point that may be emphasized is the absurdity of the theory promulgated by some well-meaning but foolish people that by the perfecting of war machinery they will ultimately make war so destructive as to render it impossible. This is, or was, the theory of some high-toned Journals, The Youth's Companion, for instance. Since this recent unpleasantness perhaps they may have changed their minds. I have seen nothing recently on the subject of war tools as a cure for war, and at any rate all history testifies that the short sword is really the deadliest weapon after all, and the shorter the surer.

The most terrible aspect of the modern militarism is not so much the destruction of human life as its effect on human life—not its power of death; but its power over life and its baneful moral influence. Witness its growing effect in a large scale on this country so far removed from the other military powers.

The real menace to our civilization arises from the complete subjecting of humanity to the terrors of this great beast "terrible and strong exceedingly," "with great iron teeth." Under the military trust and monopoly of such a power as Russia, where does the individual come in at. Even the smaller nations are "not in it." "The islands flee away, and the mountains are not found," and the divine institution of the individual soul—the personality—is swamped and overwhelmed—crushed to a mere atom in an iron bound combination.

We who look for different things, of course are not deceived. The Father has another programme to carry out, and this present turbulence, though leading up to it, has no direct part therein.

PLEASE READ EACH WORD OF THIS.

We have made an agreement with the publishers of "Farm and Fireside," a semi-monthly journal, published at Springfield, Ohio, by which we can present our patrons with that paper for a year entirely free of cost.

Farm and Fireside has from 20 to 32 pages each issue, and is illustrated. It is accredited with having the largest circulation of any home and farm paper in the world. It is a good paper for the farmer, dairyman, stockraiser, poultryman, fruit grower and gardener. The housewife has a department—in short all members of the home are supplied with reading suitable to each one. A sample copy will be sent to you soon.

OUR PROPOSITION.

Our proposition is to send each one of our patrons who pays his subscription up and on to the end of 1905, the Farm and Fireside for a year free of any charge whatever.

This simply gives you the both papers for the price of ours.

There is necessarily a limit to this offer, and you will have to act very promptly if you wish to take advantage of it. Our arrangement ends with the month of November. So if you want the Farm and Fireside free for one year, send at once as above, and we will see that you get the two papers.

This applies to new and old subscribers alike. Each one who pays for The Restitution to the end of 1905 gets the Farm and Fireside as well.

Send as soon as possible, so as to be sure and secure the present we offer. If you are in arrears send the money to cover the delinquency, and send $1.50 for next year, and you get Farm and Fireside absolutely free.

A SECOND PROPOSITION.

In the city of Boston, Mass., is published a monthly journal devoted to education of young and old to the necessity of a humane and merciful treatment of dumb brutes as well as our duty to our fellowman. This paper is called "Our Dumb Animals," and is specially beneficial for the youth of our land, though older people cannot fail to be helped by reading it.

We propose to send Our Dumb Animals free one year to every person sending us a new subscriber for The Restitution for next year.

Do not misunderstand our offer—

1. Pay all arrears and for 1905 and you get The Restitution for that time and Farm and Fireside for one year.

2. A new subscriber paying $1.50 for the year 1905, will receive all the papers of 1904 from the time his subscription is in hand, and the full year 1905, and will get Farm and Fireside for one year.

3. Any person sending us $1.50 for a new subscriber for next year, not only entitles such new subscriber to what is mentioned in No. 2, but he will himself get Our Dumb Animals a year free of cost.

Should you wish to do so, you may name any boy or girl you would like to have receive Our Dumb Animals in place of yourself.

If you send two new subscribers as above, you can name some one for each subscriber you send, and Our Dumb Animals will be sent to whomsoever you name.

Notice.

To whom it may concern:

The congregation of the Church of God at Antioch, Illinois, have decided to meet for Bible study during the winter months, on the first and third Sundays of each month, beginning on the first Sunday in November.

"To rise each morning with a thought of God in the soul left over to fill a new mission from the night before; to kneel ere descending the stairs for the consecration of your life and the renewed assurance of his guidance of you, just for that day—this is the true preface of a beautiful life."

We Forget.

So many tender words and true
We meant to say, dear love, to you;
So many things we meant to do—
But we forget.

The busy days are full of care;
The long night fell, and unaware
You passed beyond love's leading prayer,
While we forget.

Now evermore through heart and brain
There breathes an undertone of pain;
Though what has been should be again,
We should forget.

We feel, we know, that there must be
Beyond the veil of mystery
Some place where love can clearly see
And not forget.

Dear Restitution:

Our dear brother, G. W. Smith of Corvallis, Oregon, asks me the following questions.

"Several questions are being agitated among our brethren at this time. I have my mind, and I want to hear yours." "The sonship, the sabbath and the resurrection of the wicked?" "Will the holy city, New Jerusalem, be a literal city, according to dimensions, or is the bride the church?" "Is the old serpent, the devil, a literal personal being?" Yours truly.

G. W. SMITH.

THE SONSHIP OF JESUS.

If the Scriptures do not teach that Jesus is the only begotten Son of God in the most plain emphatic manner there is no meaning in language. The question is so plain that it is almost blasphemy to discuss it. There are some questions relating to the plan of salvation, that are so plainly and fully taught in the Scriptures that they do not admit of debate. To discuss them is to doubt them. To doubt them is sacrilege. The fatherhood of Jesus is one of these questions. O, the blessed Savior who gave his precious life on the cruel cross that human family might have life. How many times he told us who his Father was. Can we, will we believe him? Dare we believe?

2. The Sabbath. The Gentiles have nothing to do with the Sabbath. The law was given to the twelve tribes of Israel and not to the Gentiles. Jesus fulfilled the law, and "brought life and immortality to light through the gospel."

3. The resurrection of the wicked. The universal resurrection of all the dead is plainly taught in God's inspired Book. If we can find one single text of Scripture which plainly teaches that all the dead shall be made alive again, then we shall have established the proposition of the universal resurrection of the dead. In God's Word it does not require two or three witnesses to establish the truth of a proposition, one is sufficient. However we shall not be content to introduce a single witness but shall call a number, none of whom can be impeached. The question under consideration is this, "will any of the wicked dead be resurrected"?

I will first call to the witness stand that good old saintly veteran, who spent a night in the den of lions, for his faithfulness to the Master's cause. One of the last things given to Daniel to record was this, "Many of them that sleep in the dust of the earth shall awake, some to everlasting life, and some to shame and everlasting contempt." Dan. xii. 2. Are the righteous raised to shame and everlasting contempt? I think not. Only the wicked have that reward. Were the ten tribes, which rebelled and went off after the leadership of Jeroboam righteous? They were not. On the contrary they bowed down to idols, even wood and stone. They were a bad lot. But what does God say of them through his prophet Ezekiel? Listen, "Son of Man these bones are the whole house of Israel, behold they say our bones are dried and our hope is lost." They had sinned so terribly that they believed they had forfeited all hope. But what saith the Almighty? "Therefore prophesy and say unto them, Thus saith the Lord God, Behold, O my people, I will open your graves, and cause you to come up out of your graves * * * and shall put my spirit in you, and ye shall live." Ezek. xxxvii. 11. Dear reader, do you believe the testimony of this prophet? If you do, how can you insist that the wicked will not be resurrected? Let us stand by God's Word though the heavens fall. Paul in 1 Cor. xv. 22 says, "As in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive." This language is plain and concise. All who die in Adam shall be made alive in Christ. In Acts xxiv. 15 Paul says, "there shall be a resurrection of the dead, both of the just and the unjust." Mark you, Paul puts both the just and unjust on the same plane with reference to the resurrection. If the just are raised the unjust will also be raised.

Again we find Jesus saying in John v. 28, "Marvel not at this, for the hour is coming in the which all that are in the graves shall hear his voice and shall come forth, them that have done good, unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation." Could anything be added to this statement to make it more explicit and emphatic? These are no idle words, Jesus meant just what he said, and said what he meant.

We will now turn to the testimony of John the Revelator. After speaking of those who have part in the first resurrection and their reigning with Jesus, he says, in Rev. xx. 5, "But the rest of the dead lived not until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection." Who are meant by the rest of the dead? Does not the statement include all the dead who did have part in the first resurrection? It most certainly does. The rest of the dead mentioned will certainly not all be righteous. All the wicked dead included in the statement. "the rest of the dead" will be raised after the thousand years have expired. Again, John says in Rev. xx. 12, 13, 14, as follows, "And I saw the dead small and great stand before God and the books were opened. And another book was opened, which was the book of life, and the dead were judged out of those things which were written in the books according to their works. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it, and death and hell (the grave) delivered up the dead which were in them, and they were judged, every man according to their works." If the sea gives up all that are in it, and the grave delivers up all that are in it and death delivers up all that are under its power, how many will be left under the power of death? Not one.

4. The holy city. Will the holy city, New Jerusalem, be a literal city according to dimensions, or is the bride the church? No the church is not the bride, neither is the bride the church. Only those who have part in the first resurrection and the living saints who are changed from mortality to immortality at the coming of Jesus, will become members of the bride of Christ. I know that some have stumbled at Rev. xxi. 9 where the angel says to John, "Come hither I will show thee the bride, the Lamb's wife." There is a simple proposition the angel offers to show John the Lamb's wife. This offer is made by the angel to John after the angel has come and gathered up the bride and they have been caught away to meet the Lord in the air, and after the marriage has taken place and Jesus has come back to the earth with his bride. The bride is now "the Lamb's wife." Where will the Lamb's wife reside after she returns to the earth? There is but one place, and that is the city of the New Jerusalem. That will be the home of both Jesus and his wife. Therefore when the angel proposed to show John the wife of the Lamb he was compelled to take him where the Lamb's wife was. Therefore John says, "he carried me away in the spirit to a great and high mountain and showed me that great city, the holy Jerusalem." The Lamb's wife being in this city, to see her John must from his position on the high mountain, look over into the city and there behold her. Remember there were high walls around this city. It was therefore necessary for John to get on the high mountain in order to see over the walls into the city. The fact that the angel, after he had taken John upon the high mountain and permitted him to look over the high walls into the city and see the Lamb's wife, then gave him a minute description of the great city can make no difference in the argument. The dimensions of the city and height of the walls will be as given by the Revelator. Eight furlongs make a mile. A cubit is about eighteen inches. Any one can figure out the size of the city and height of the walls.

The devil. We now come to the last and most difficult of the questions. But it is of small consequence. I shall content myself with giving some of the characteristics of Satan and leave each reader to determine what he is. One thing is certain, he is the most persistent and powerful enemy of the human family. He was early in the garden. All was "good and very good" until Satan came. He tempted both the first and the second Adam. But Jesus had sufficient fortitude to resist him. When Jesus comes and commences the restitution of all things an angel will also come down from heaven, having the key of the bottomless pit and a great chain in his hand, and he will lay hold on the old serpent and bind him a thousand years and cast him into the bottomless pit and shut him up and set a seal on him that he shall not deceive the nations any more till the thousand years be fulfilled. When the time of his imprisonment is past he "will be loosed for a little season and shall go out to deceive the nations, to gather them together to battle and they went upon the breadth of the earth, and compassed the camp of the saints about and the beloved city, and fire came down from God out of heaven and devoured them." From the foregoing we find that the devil is able to converse with Adam and Eve. He was not only able to hold a conversation, but he made such a powerful argument that he convinced Eve that what he said to her was true, and thus caused her to disobey one of God's plain commandments. Never since the days of creation has there been an act of disobedience to God's law which wrought such terrible havoc to the whole human family. To accomplish all this he must have had a wonderful faculty of presenting the arguments which led mother Eve to the act of disobedience. But what does it signify whether he is a personal being or not. If we get on the Lord's side and remain close to him, doing his commandments Satan will not trouble us. My dear old brother, you know by your long experience in the service of the Master, how easy it is to say, get behind me Satan, and thus drive the adversary from us.

A few more short years and Satan will be imprisoned in the bottomless pit. Truly the harvest is ripening for the reapers. The world cannot go on much longer as it now is. When was it so dangerous to travel by railroad, steamboat or in any other manner as it is today? When were there so many holdups, murders and other crimes as now? When were there so many lives lost and so much property destroyed by floods, lightning and storms of various kinds, as at the present time? When was there a war, wherein so many lives were lost as in the present war in the far east? Truly the world is growing worse and worse at a tremendous rate. Will this war continue? It will. It is but the beginning of the last great conflict in which all nations will be involved. There is a time coming when nations will not need and will not have large standing armies or powerful navies for the purpose of keeping peace. Our heavenly Father who will not only rule individuals but will also rule nations, will cause all wars and strife to cease. When Jesus comes with his saints, then will the nations beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks, nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. Isa. ii 4. Thank God "the night is far spent, the day is at hand;" ere long we shall hear the cry "behold the Bridegroom cometh, go ye out to meet him." Come Lord Jesus and come quickly.

Obituary.

Mrs. Harriet Moyer died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. Zorah Z. Story, in Wichita, Kansas, on August 20, 1904, aged 62 years, and was buried in Maple Grove Cemetery.

She went to her daughter's home to rest and get away for a time from the work at home. She had no thought but what she would come back again, but it was to be the last time. The cause of her death was some stomach trouble, and though we had three doctors, and every thing possible was done, they could not save her.

She was the mother of five children, Frank H, and Herman A. Moyer, Mrs. May Daveney and Mrs. Z. Z. Story, the other child died in infancy. We were all at her bedside at the time, doing all we could, but to no avail.

She died as she had lived, an exemplary Christian woman, known and respected by all who knew her. She was always ready to do a kind act. Her faith and hope was in the second coming of Jesus the Life-giver, the Christ, the Anointed one, the Messiah, to rule and to reign on the throne of David. The resurrection of the dead; the restoration of the kingdom to Israel; Jesus and his saints to rule and reign over the nations of the earth, to restore and bless them as God has promised. She was always backward and timid, and said such a position was too high for her. She believed in the restitution of all things which God has promised by the mouth of all his holy prophets. That Israel would be saved first, then the other nations brought into subjection. That the law should go forth from Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem, and as a result of this nations will beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning hooks, and nation shall not lift up sword against nation, neither shall they learn war any more. The abundant increase of the soil for the blessing of all nations of earth. The final destruction of all that remain wicked. The earth to be cleansed and purified, and the earth the place of fulfillment of all the promises of God.

The above outline embraces the important points in her faith, and so we do not sorrow as do those who have no hope, for she will not be dead very long, for the time is hastening when Jesus will come, and the dead will rise and join with the living to meet the Lord in the air, to ever be with the Lord. To this we add Even so come Lord Jesus; come quickly when all the redeemed can join in our anthems of praise, and sing redemption's song. We hope to meet her then.

J. A. MOYER.

Life must be lived on the installment plan. God gives and requires just so much at a time, no more, no less. Life is made up of so many successive installments of opportunity, of duty, and of grace. It is impossible, therefore, to live life in the future tense. All that man have and all that they are asked to attend to is the present. And the present in its demands is vigorous enough. Take care of the now and the future will take care of itself. Herald and Presbyter.

The Bereans Column.

[Under this heading the society of "Bereans" of Illinois, will supply the copy, and endeavor to fill the space once a month.]

Dear Bereans:

I am requested to write something for your column, and what shall it be? I have thought of a number of subjects but all subjects center around One, and that One is Christ.

I think it would be very helpful to the members of the band of Bereans to take up for the next year topics published in the column of THE RESTITUTION, the sayings and lessons of Jesus. If we do not love him as fervently as we ought and as we wish that we might, will not God in his loving favor help us to love our Savior as we would like to do. He himself says that such a love will be like fountains of living water within us, springing up into everlasting life. Think what a happy life might come to each one of us by indeed laying hold of these promises which he has given, walking with him, communing with him and trying to obey him.

Another precious thing Jesus says, He that hungereth and thirsteth after righteousness shall be filled with satisfying joy, unspeakale and full of glory. He says "And I, if I be lifted up will draw all men unto me." Oh there is something in these sayings and lessons of Jesus, separate and beautiful and alluring above all else. Who, but a loving Father would have sent them on the lips of his dear Son. And then that sweet and tender lesson about the vine and the branches. Would you not like to be a live branch in the strong protecting vine? there to be nourished that you may grow a beautiful branch on the precious vine. Paul says, "Let us consider Jesus." The word "consider" means to think or ponder upon. Christ links us to immortality. In him all our fondest hopes find fulfillment. He is God manifest to us so that when we study the lips of the Son, we are learning of the Father, and when we are obeying that Son we are pleasing the Father, and the precious knowledge that through that Son our sins are forgiven, wiped out from the record of our lives. He helps us to conquer, aids us in our struggles for the divine nature. He is everything to us. Oh! let us consider Jesus.

Yours with love,

ALICE KERR.

We find in studying the Scriptures that Christ and his disciples taught concerning the kingdom. Now the question is, What kingdom? I turn back to Daniel, second chapter and forty-fourth verse and I find: "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever."

Now I find the object, for which this kingdom is to be set up, is more particularly stated in Daniel seventh chapter. "There was given to one like the Son of Man, who came with clouds of heaven, dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations and languages should serve him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not be destroyed." In verses 18, 22, and 27, of the same chapter, the same kingdom is given to the saints for the same purpose.

"Now Jesus went about all Galilee, preaching the gospel of the kingdom." I find the meaning of gospel to be good news, or glad tidings, of the coming kingdom, and I find kingdom is where all people, nations, and languages dwell, under the whole heaven, and I find this kingdom is to be given to Christ and the saints, that all people, nations, and languages, may serve him. So I find that Jesus went about spreading the good news, or glad tidings, of a coming kingdom.

In Matthew xxiv. 14, he says, "And this gospel of the kingdom shall be preached in all the world for a witness unto all nations, and then shall the end come." This shows that the gospel that Jesus preached in Judea and Galilee, was the same that he sent the twelve disciples to preach in all the world, after he arose from the dead. I find Paul, wherever he went, preaching and testifying of the kingdom of God. In Acts 1st chapter, 3rd verse, I find these words: "After Jesus arose from the dead he was with his disciples forty days, speaking to them of the things pertaining to the kingdom of God." Also in Luke xxiv. 44, 46, 47, "These are the words which I spake unto you, that all things must be fulfilled, which were written in the law of Moses and in the prophets, and in the Psalms, concerning me. Thus it behooved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day; and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations beginning at Jerusalem." So, therefore, we find that Christ's and his disciples' main theme in teaching was concerning the kingdom that is to be established at Christ's coming. I believe it very necessary to salvation that we believe these things; for I find in Matt. vi. 33, "But seek ye first the kingdom of God, and his righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you."

I think every earnest Christian today should diligently search the Scriptures concerning these things, and be prepared to give others the light. There are so many who are ignorant on this one point. If you ask them what the kingdom of God is, they cannot tell you. Some say it is heaven, others believe it a sort of Paradise, with nothing to do, and many other explanations. I believe that we ought to strive hard to get as many as we can to see it in its true light, and as true Christians and followers of Christ, we ought to in some off hand way, wherever we are, bring out in different ways some points to set people to thinking and enlighten them on this subject of the coming kingdom.

LILLIE MAY PILSON.

GROWTH IN GRACE.

"Oh, happiest they of mortal race,
To whom our God has given grace,
To hear, to read, to fear, to pray,
To lift the latch and force the way;
But better had they ne'er been born,
Who read to doubt, and read to scorn."

People do not get holy and pure by some lucky chance, they must grow and develop by making that their constant aim in life. In order that there may be growth, food must be supplied. Some kinds of food are more nutritious than others.

It is written, "Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." Then let us take God's Word as the man of our counsel, study it carefully, yes, devour a certain portion of it daily and feast upon it. It is many a year before the sturdy oak attains its growth, but how powerful at last to withstand the elements.

God's children should grow continually by adding to their faith virtue, and to virtue knowledge, and to these every grace of the spirit. At last they will be able to withstand the fiery darts of the wicked, when the storms of life arise and billows roll about them, they cannot be tossed to and fro, because they are rooted and grounded in the faith. Time spent out of harmony with God is worse than wasted. Let us apply our knowledge derived from studying God's Word to practical every-day living, in other words, practice what we preach. We can be living epistles, if not able to write a book. Jesus took up the life work very young, for we read that he grew in stature while growing in grace. Dear Bereans, we must not stagnate, we must grow.

ALMEDA MITCHELL.

Ready for Christ's Coming.

The promises of men often deceive us. They raise our hopes, and stimulate our desires, only to disappoint them. But the Word of God can never fail. God has promised to send the Son to this earth again. This is our hope, and our greatest desire Jesus will come. God's word has declared it, and God's promises never fail. For anything we know to the contrary Jesus may come this week—indeed, he may come tonight.

O shall any of us neglect that which alone can prepare us for the coming of the Lord! In view of the suddenness and unexpectedness of the event shall we not immediately yield an entire compliance with the invitations of our most merciful Redeemer, by coming to him for the pardon and holiness without which no man shall live in the purified earth?

Beloved, remember the uncertainty of the hour when the Lord will come, and live in a state of constant readiness for his appearing. Trim your lamps; gird up the loins of your mind. Jesus is coming, and you want to be ready.

Today is the time for preparation!

EUGENE B. WILLARD.

In the midst of the wildest storms, the ear that is attuned to his love can hear above the fury of the tempest the bird notes that herald the passing of the clouds. The way will be rough at times, but if "His will be done" in our hearts we will forget the way we came when the hand of our Guide leads us at last into the gates of the city of the King.

Wisdom of Solomon.

CHAPTER 46.

1. A controler among warriors was Jessous Nause, and a successor to Mousses in prophesies, and he became according to his name great in saving his elect ones, by requiting enemies who arose against them, that he might give Israeel an inheritance.

2. How was he glorified in the lifting up of his hands and in the inclining out of a sword against cities.

3. Who before him stood in this wise? For the Lord himself led against the warriors.

4. Did not the sun at his hand stay up its foot, and one day become two?

5. He invoked the Most High, an able one, when his enemies caused him tribulation round about; and the great Lord hearkened to them with hail-stones of a controling host.

6. He cast them down upon a warrior nation, and on a declivity he destroyed those who withstood them, that nations might know their panoply, that his warrior is in the Lord's sight, and that he forsooth hath followed after an able One.

7. And in the days of Mousses he caused mercy he and Caleb, son of Jephonee, to withstand in the presence of an enemy, to prevent a laity from sin and to allay a murmuring of wickedness.

8. And they being two were saved from six hundred thousand on foot, to lead them into an inheritance, into a land flowing with milk and honey.

9. And the Lord gave to Chaleb strength and it continued with him until old age, to go up to a high place of the land, and his seed held it for an inheritance.

10. Would that all the sons of Israeel might see that it is a good thing for one to go his way after the Lord.

11. And the judges each one in his name as many of them as whose heart did not go off in fornication, and as many as did not turn away from the Lord, may the remembrance of them be in blessings.

12. May their bones have flourished to arise out of their place, and their name have been perpetuated on sons of those who obtained glory.

13. By his Lord Samouesl a prophet of the Lord established a kingdom and anointed rulers over his laity.

14. In the name of the Lord he judged a synagogue and the Lord took an oversight of Jakoob.

15. In his faith he knew accurately as a prophet, and in his faith he was known to be reliable in vision.

16. And he invoked the Lord, an able One, when enemies troubled him round about, with an offering of an unweaned lamb.

17. And the Lord thundered from heaven, and with a great echo caused his voice to be heard.

18. And crushed out leaders of Turions and all the rulers of the Phalestions.

19. And before the appointed time for him to lie down to sleep for an age, he testified in the sight of the Lord and the Christ (the Anointed King of that day meant) utilities even to the extent of sandals have I taken from no flesh; and no man impeached him.

20. And after he had slept he prophesied and disclosed to the king his end and lifted up his voice from out the earth with prophecy to wipe out the transgression of a laity.

COMMENT.

The reader will be interested in this review and incidental comment on the virtues of these ancient worthies of Israael, showing the estimation in which they were held up to the time of old Selrach. Note what he says of "the sun staying up his foot." He evidently understood it to be an actual occurrence, an extraordinary event and not hyperbole nor "eastern poetical imagery." Then what he says of Samouesl's "voice" to "Saul" through the medium of "the Witch of Endor" ought to be of particular interest to "the psycologists" of the present day He does not say anything about his "ghost" appearing, you will observe, and this agrees with the Moousaic record also when the passage is correctly translated.

Then he calls "Joshua son of Nun" as he should "Jessous son of Nause," and hints at the wonderful signification of the name itself.

His review of historical events is of interest too to the Bible student.

The Resurrection.

Some say we should not make any thing of Jesus Christ's birth, because we do not know the day he was born on. But it is necessary to remember that he was born, for if he had not been born he would not have lived; and if he had not lived he would not have developed a righteous life, and if he had not developed a righteous life, then he could not have given his life a sacrifice for sin, if he had not died and been a sacrifice for sin, there would not have been any resurrection of the dead. If Christ be not risen we are without hope and without God in the world. 1 Cor. xv.

J. E. HOLARTH.

What We Believe.

"We" are a body of religious people who, as such, "believe" something. We believe the teaching of the Word of God. This is our rule of faith and practice. But what does the Word teach as essential matters of "faith and practice?" Do we as a people uniformly hold to the great foundation principles of faith as set forth in the Word of God? Are our public ministers a unit on the things to be taught and believed in order to salvation? In short: Have we a faith? If so, what is that faith? What does the Word of God teach us as essential to true faith and practice? We have answered these questions in a very concise and yet comprehensive way in the upper right hand corner of our paper, THE RESTITUTION. The object of these lines is to say that, since writing a series of articles for THE RESTITUTION on "What We Believe," quite a number of requests, both verbal and written, have come to the undersigned asking that said articles be published in book form. They will make a book of about 60 pages, making 15 chapters in all. Such a book should sell for 15 cents per copy. Now, brother and sister, this concerns you. Do you desire the publication of this work for distribution among such who ask, "What do you believe?" If so, please write to the undersigned at Plymouth, Ind., saying how many copies you want at 15 cents per copy. Write on postal. Send no money until notice is given that the work will be published.

Indiana Conference, Attention!

Circumstances have arisen which appear to make it necessary to depart from the usual custom of holding the "November Conference" of the Indiana churches at the regular time, which is the third Sunday in November, and to postpone this meeting until some time after the Holidays. The meeting is to be at Plymouth, and due notice will be given as to the exact time, so that all concerned may be informed. In the mean time let us work with our might for the advancement of the cause of the truth in our respective localities.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended

Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? The Restitution.

—ISSUED WEEKLY BY—

A. R. UNDERWOOD, Publisher

—FOR THE—

CHRISTIAN PUBLISHING ASSOCIATION.

BOARD OF DIRECTORS:
W. D. THOMPSON,
J. H. WILLEY,
A. R. UNDERWOOD,
WM. RAILSBACK.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

PLEASE READ EACH WORD OF THIS.

We have made an agreement with the publishers of "Farm and Fireside," a semi-monthly journal, published at Springfield, Ohio, by which we can present our patrons with that paper for a year entirely free of cost.

Farm and Fireside has from 20 to 32 pages each issue, and is illustrated. It is accredited with having the largest circulation of any home and farm paper in the world. It is a good paper for the farmer, dairyman, stockraiser, poultryman, fruit grower and gardener. The housewife has a department—in short all members of the home are supplied with reading suitable to each one. A sample copy will be sent to you soon.

OUR PROPOSITION.

Our proposition is to send each one of our patrons who pays his subscription up and on to the end of 1905, the Farm and Fireside for a year free of any charge whatever.

This simply gives you the both papers for the price of ours.

There is necessarily a limit to this offer, and you will have to act very promptly if you wish to take advantage of it. Our arrangement ends with the month of November. So if you want the Farm and Fireside free for one year, send at once as above, and we will see that you get the two papers.

This applies to new and old subscribers alike. Each one who pays for THE RESTITUTION to the end of 1905 gets the Farm and Fireside as well.

Send as soon as possible, so as to be sure and secure the present we offer. If you are in arrears send the money to cover the delinquency, and send $1.50 for next year, and you get Farm and Fireside absolutely free.

A SECOND PROPOSITION.

In the city of Boston, Mass., is published a monthly journal devoted to education of young and old to the necessity of a humane and merciful treatment of dumb brutes as well as our duty to our fellowman. This paper is called "Our Dumb Animals," and is specially beneficial for the youth of our land, though older people cannot fail to be helped by reading it.

We propose to send Our Dumb Animals free one year to every person sending us a new subscriber for THE RESTITUTION for next year.

Do not misunderstand our offer—

1. Pay all arrears and for 1905 and you get THE RESTITUTION for that time and Farm and Fireside for one year.

2. A new subscriber paying $1.50 for the year 1905, will receive all the papers of 1904 from the time his subscription is in hand, and the full year 1905, and will get Farm and Fireside for one year.

3. Any person sending us $1.50 for a new subscriber for next year, not only entitles such new subscriber to what is mentioned in No. 2, but he will himself get Our Dumb Animals a year free of cost.

Should you wish to do so, you may name any boy or girl you would like to have receive Our Dumb Animals in place of yourself.

If you send two new subscribers as above, you can name some one for each subscriber you send, and Our Dumb Animals will be sent to whomsoever you name.

Poetry.

An Empty Day.

"An empty day" I said, when from His hand
I took it first, what time the dawn grew gray,
Void of the work and joy that I had planned:
An empty, bitter day!

"How shall I face the long still hours?" I said,
"The slow, sure hours whose silence is not peace,
As one by one they pass with even tread
Until the daylight ceases?"

I bowed mine head, and said: "God help me bear
The cross of these forsaken hours, I pray,
As in Thy sight." Then first I was aware
Of Patience in my day.

One after one the silent hours went past,
Nor joy, nor hope came near my lot to share,
Nor blessed work to hands which pain held fast:
Yet they were hours of Prayer.

And while I waited, and they still went on,
I, finite yearning drew my heart above,
Outstretching to the gates where Christ has gone,
So they were hours of Love.

One other Guest I knew, when far away
The last still hour through sunset portals trod;
The precious Gift that filled my empty day,
Prayer, Patience, Love and God.

Communicated.

Notes by the Way.

Dear ones of the Household of Faith, I have some real cheering and encouraging news to report as to the result of our work in the dear Master's vineyard.

On the night of Oct. 21, I bid farewell to the loved ones at home, and at nine o'clock P. M. took the train for St. Louis, Mo., arriving there at 7:45 A. M., where I changed cars. I took the Belmont Branch of the Iron Mountain Railroad for Fredericktown, Mo. Three minutes after boarding the train, it moved out of the station. This was a very close connection. The seats and standing room was packed clean back to the door. I had to stand up two and a half hours before I could get a seat. The World's Fair traffic packed the train. When we got about fifty miles from St. Louis, the train ahead of us collided with a freight train, and we were delayed sometime. We arrived at Fredericktown, some three hours late.

Quite a number of brethren was at the depot, to meet myself and Bro. John Foore, of Kansas, who was to join me in the work at Blush. This was the first time that I ever met "Uncle John," as he is familiarly called. We both took the same train from St. Louis, but neither of us knew it.

The brethren then conveyed us to Blush, some six miles distant. We took supper with Brother and Sister Graham and family, after which we all went to the meeting house, and there met with the dear precious ones in Christ, and you can be assured that it was a happy meeting. Those who are in the Blessed Hope have a fraternal bond, that the world knows nothing about.

From the very start, the meetings opened up with life and animation. Uncle John is of a jovial nature, and loves to sing redemption songs, his happy nature makes those around him feel happy also.

The people came out in crowds. The house was often packed both standing and sitting room being occupied, and sometimes on the outside were enough people to fill another house, who could not possibly get in.

The people are certainly getting their eyes opened, they are beginning to see that their leaders have been teaching them wrong, and are fast loosing confidence in their "blind guides," and are not willing to occupy the same "ditch" with them. The meetings commenced on Saturday night Oct 22, and was held all through the week, and over the following Sunday, both day and night.

Uncle John and myself both spoke at each meeting, and alternated each night, in taking the lead. Our work together was effected, and bore good results.

The Baptists started opposition meetings, and held them both in the day time and nights also but they did not hurt us at all. A Mr. Montgomery was selected by the Baptists as the champion defender of the immortal soul theory. I left our meeting that morning in charge of Uncle John, while I went to hear the aforesaid gentleman defend his theory. For about two hours and a half he raved, stamped, shouted, yelled and screamed, and threw himself into all manner of contortions to emphasize his belief of the falsehood, until he produced physical exhaustion. Then he would have to be more moderate for awhile, until he could regain his strength once more, when he would make another outbreak.

He declared that man could not be mortal, because said he, "If man is mortal, death can end his existence." Then the question arises is man mortal or immortal? Mr. Montgomery says immortal, and God's word "mortal." See Job iv. 17: "Shall MORTAL MAN be more just than God." Then according to Mr. Montgomery, "death can end his existence," because the Bible speaking of man calls him, "mortal man."

While I was taking notes Mr. Montgomery would occasionally say: "Stick a pin there," "put that down," and I put it down, but did not do any pin sticking at that time, I reserved that for my reply, when I pricked a hole in his balloon, and let all the gas out. He said "God is Spirit, man is the same, stick a pin there." Again, he said, "Man is purely spirit," that is, wholly spirit, like God. Now contrast this as follows:

"Man is purely spirit."—Montgomery.

"Dust thou art."—God.

Now if he is "purely spirit," he could not in any sense be "dust," because dust is not spirit.

Now Mr. Montgomery's statement harmonizes beautifully with that of the Serpent when he said to our first parents "Thou shalt not surely die." Now, Mr. Devil, what reason have you to offer as to why they should "not surely die"? Answer, Why simply because they will then "become as gods," the Elohim, or the angels, which cannot die. In other words, "purely spirit," the angels, Elohim or gods, being "ministering spirits," purely spirit, and if they should become purely spirit, like the angels, then their descendants must of necessity be purely spirit also, for the reason that like always produces the like in nature. Then to believe that man is spirit like God, as Mr. Montgomery says, and "man is the same as God," then the Serpent told the truth, and God the untruth, if Montgomery's statement is true, that "man is purely spirit" like God, for that which is "purely spirit," like God, cannot die. Jesus recognized that that which was purely spirit, or angelic cannot die: See Luke xx. 35, 36: "But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead, neither marry, nor are given in marriage; neither can they DIE ANY MORE; (why not?) for (or because) they are equal unto the angels: (purely spirit) and are the children of the resurrection." Previous to becoming "worthy to obtain that world," they were not "equal unto the angels," and hence not "purely spirit." Neither can the worthy become "as the angels," "purely spirit," until they become "the children of the resurrection." Mr. Montgomery agrees with the Serpent, that man is now "purely spirit." Instead of being Spirit, God says: "Dust thou art." Gen. iii. 19. "I also am formed out of clay." Job xxxiii. 6. "I have taken upon me to speak unto the Lord, which am but dust and ashes." Gen. xviii. 27. "Remember I beseech thee that thou hast made me as the clay, and wilt thou bring me into dust again?" How could he bring him "into dust again," if he had not been previously dust?

Mr. Montgomery says, "Death is not the cessation of conscious being." Compare the above statement with the Bible statements.

"The dead know NOT ANYTHING." Eccl. ix. 4, 6. "The dead praise not the Lord." Psa. cxv. 17. "Thou hast visited and destroyed them, and made all their memory to perish." Isa. xxvi. 13, 14. "His sons come to honor, and he knoweth it not." Job xiv. 21. "In death there is no remembrance of thee." Psa. vi. 4, 5. "His breath goeth forth, he returneth to his earth, in that very day his thoughts perish." If the above statements do not prove the cessation of conscious being, then they do not prove anything. Judge you. I might continue this at great length, but space will not permit. On Sunday morning and at night also I reviewed the statements of this champion of Satan's falsehood to immense congregations, the house was not large enough to accomodate those who wished to hear. Uncle John followed me with a clincher to clinch the nails.

The results of the work of myself and Uncle John at these meetings were glorious. Much of the seed which bore fruit, was largely due to seed sown by Uncle John in previous years, but the effects of the present meeting was to bring it to completion.

Thirteen believers publicly confessed the faith once delivered to the saints, and asked for baptism. I tell you we had some happy meetings following these confessions. On Sunday noon, at the conclusion of the morning meeting, we all started for a stream about a mile distant, in order that these dear ones may be buried with Christ in baptism. It was a beautiful sight to see this large concourse of people wending their way along the forest road, to witness the solemn and impressive ceremony of being buried with Christ in baptism. I am told that the people were strung along the road for the space of half a mile. They massed themselves upon the beautiful wooded banks of the stream, and seemed to be solemnly impressed with the ceremony. At five o'clock we once more assembled at the meeting house, and partook of the Lord's Supper, in memory of Jesus, until he come again.

After this, the crowd again packed the house, for our final meeting, which was again addressed by myself and Uncle John. After which the church and congregation filed past Uncle John and myself to give us a final good bye, while singing, "We'll never say good bye in Eden." Praise the Lord, we did have a happy meeting, and I expect to have more as I journey through the Southern States on the trip I have now started. I have a number of appointments in Missouri, which I will now fill. Should there be other places in Missouri, which desire my services, send notice at once to my home address, and they will be immediately forwarded to me. God is good. He is prospering the work I am performing in his vineyard.

I will also say that most of the copy for Pine Woods Bible Class book is already prepared, and I hope to issue it as soon as I return home. If there are others who wish it, please send in word as soon as possible, that I may know how many to print.

I am so happy in the Lord, and feel encouraged when I see the people hungry for the Word of life. There are places in the South where isolated brethren live, that would so like to have the Word preached to their neighbors, but they are too poor to have me come. It is sad to be obliged to pass them by, but I cannot help it. We have but few laborers in the field, and it does seem to me that those few laborers ought not to be tied hand and feet, as it were. Nevertheless I am thankful I am permitted to do as much as I am doing, and see some fruit follow the proclamation of the gospel of the kingdom.

At the present time Uncle John and myself are holding meetings at Valleys Mines, Mo., which I will shortly report. Let us push forward with vigor, and keep up a rejoicing spirit.

I wish to say those thirteen who were baptized, were mostly young people. The youngest was seventeen, while the oldest was thirty. Their names are as follows: Steward Cooper, Sallie Cooper, Charles Cooper, Robert Cooper, Henry Cooper, Lilly Cooper, Thomas Bally, Almeda Bally, Sarah Reed, James Waggner, Jennie Smith, Clarda White and Fred Graham.

May God bless you all, and may you so live that God will grant you an abundant entrance into his glorious kingdom.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.
W. H. WILSON.

Immortality.

In a recent number of the North American Review Prof. Goldwin Smith makes what seems to me a very singular argument in relation to the soul: whether mortal or immortal. He concludes that science cannot be reconciled with the teachings of the Scriptures, in the fact that science cannot prove that the soul is immortal, and evidently attaches considerable weight to the almost universal belief that because men yearn or long for immortality, they have it; yet that it cannot be established scientifically, and concludes that if science can convince mankind of the fallacy of present or inherent immortality, they would take better care of their lives; wars would cease or at least be so prevalent, as they would naturally shield their lives as there would be no hereafter; thus taking the time worn proposition as a fact that the Bible is emphatic in its declaration of the soul's immortality.

It is surpassing strange, that men of master minds, capable of grasping the most abstruse problems in the scientific world, and many of them tenaciously holding to the inspiration of the Scripture are so utterly lost as to the teachings of the inspired Word in relation to their own natures, and the mission of a Redeemer into the world. It possibly is too easy and they are looking for something that is obscured by the plain statements that God has given us throughout the entire record in unfolding his great plan of redemption.

The analysis that we shall now attempt as to the soul and its status before God, is mainly directed to those who claim to have implicit faith in the truth and inspiration of the Scriptures as we find them.

The crowning work of God's creation was man. His mechanical construction was the very acme of perfection, and the more delicate and highly wrought the mechanism the greater the degree of intelligence. Man was given dominion over the fowls of the air, the fishes of the sea and over every thing that moved or had life upon the earth; he was eminently superior to all earthly creation. Yet he was made of the dust of the earth, every element that entered into his physical body is found in the ground upon which he walks. But when he was formed, and that, too, in God's image, he was still inanimate clay; no life, no thought, no mind, action or feeling; the element of which he was composed was clay. But here comes another element; God breathed into his nostrils the breath of life, and man became a living soul; his nature was changed; either of the elements entering into his composition, availed not alone; but when the breath of life began to operate upon the delicate organs of the body he became a living, thinking being, a soul, possessed of thought; and his physical and mental faculties controled by his mind, (or if you please spirit). Let us cast about and see if there is anything that we may compare this wonderful soul to, in its construction or separate parts. A man may be in a desert place, suffering, perishing for water; yet the elements of which water is composed, are around him in unmeasured quantities, viz. hydrogen and oxygen. If he had the means at hand or the power to unite these two elements in their proper proportion he would have water in abundance. In their separate state they cannot sustain life; hence he perishes because he lacks the means to combine them. The same figure will apply to the soul; so long as the condition of the body is such that the elements of earth and air can coalesce or work in harmony, the soul can exist; separate the elements and it ceases to be; the life, the reasoning power, the mind returns to its original condition, and is not. Again although a more crude comparison, it may be likened to a locomotive; if skillfully constructed, and in the hands of a competent mechanic, when the motive power, steam enters its great lungs, it becomes almost a thing of life, and its value to man is almost incalculable, but take away its motive power, this great grand servant of man becomes nothing more than the merest rubbish. But to return to this being that became a living soul. There was but one condition imposed upon man to continue his life forever, and that may be summed up in the one word obedience; he must obey his Maker. For God said when he placed him in the beautiful garden to dress and to keep it, Of all the trees of the garden thou mayest eat except the tree of the knowledge of good and evil; there were no restrictions on his free will agency except this one; but if he ate of this forbidden tree he should die, i. e., there would be a separation of the elements of which he was composed. But he was tempted and fell from his high estate and became a sinner and the whole race of mankind being descended from him are subject to the same condition. But now that man is a sinner, what is the result? Did God carry his verdict into execution, or did the Tempter tell the truth? The verdict of the majority of the so-called religious world takes the side of the Tempter. But God drove man out of the garden; for what purpose? to prevent him from eating of the tree of life. Suppose he had eaten of the tree of life, what would have been the result? He would have lived forever, and become an immortal sinner; and to make doubly sure, God placed cherubims, and a flaming sword that turned each way to keep the way of the tree of life. It was not God's purpose to let the power to destroy sin escape him, for immortality cannot be destroyed. But this scientific Professor takes for granted that if the soul dies, that is the last of it, and there can be no hereafter, and if it is true that the soul dies people will be more careful of their lives. He overlooks the fact that there was a vague promise of future life given the woman, that her seed should bruise the serpent's head, which was later made plain and confirmed by many covenants, and the redemptive scheme was gradually unfolded as the centuries went by, until he comes to the Cross of Calvary, when God gives his own beloved Son to bear the sins of the whole world, and to suffer death, that sin might be destroyed and make it possible for this lost soul to regain, yes, gain more than he lost in the garden of Eden, for Jesus says I have come that ye might have life, and that more abundantly. But the same conditions are exacted of us that were required of our first parents, "obedience." For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. For God sent not his Son into the world to condemn the world, but that the world through him might be saved. John iii. 16, 17. Jesus says, I am the resurrection and the life, he that believeth in me, though he were dead, yet shall he live. Jno. xi. 25. We need not concern ourselves, that if we go down into the death state, (if we have believed in Jesus) and "we know not anything," Eccl. ix. 5, though our "thoughts perish," yet there is a book of life, a book of remembrance, and Jesus says, He that overcometh, the same shall be clothed in white raiment, and I will not blot out his name out of the book of life, but I will confess his name before my Father and before his angels, Rev. iii. 5, and if we keep his works unto the end we "shall receive power over the nations." Rev. ii. 26. There is a blessed, a comforting promise. Because I (Jesus) live ye shall live also. John xiv. 19.

Some Vital Questions. No. 11.

Having God for his Father, Jesus was the greater Son of David, greater than Solomon, and superior to Moses; for, as a Son over God's house he was GOD'S HEIR, as the parable of the rented-out vineyard shows; having "by inheritance a more excellent name," even, than angels. For unto which of the angels saith God at any time, "Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee."

212. We give it line upon line. Rom. viii. 3 furnishes divine evidence that "God sent his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh," (of his Son). Our readers know that if any other man were left to bear the condemnation, it would have destroyed him because HIS OWN transgressions would have stood in the way of escape; and so God commended his love by providing a redeemer who did suffer the condemnation, and was rescued from it after its infliction, because he knew no sin, and thus became the Prince of Life.

213. It is about time to again remind Josephites that they have not explained why, if Jesus was the Son of Joseph, he was the only child of Adam who knew no sin! Can they respect themselves if they fail to do this?

214. They also owe it to themselves to explain why they baptize converts into the death of Christ, if he did not die sacrificially. Rom. viii. 8. Can they expect to be respected if they do not.

215. It is equally important for them to explain how the old man is put off, and how and when the new man is put on, and why the flesh has to go through a symbolic death, burial, and resurrection!

216. It has been said that Jesus committed sins in his youth, by a Josephite. It will be little use to ask him how he reconciles that assertion with the words of the Spirit 1 John i. 7, "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin." Josephites get along far more comfortably without such passages as that, and Hebrews ix. 22, "without shedding of blood there is no remission of sin;" and 1 Peter i. 2, "Elect according to the foreknowledge of God the Father, through sanctification of the Spirit, unto obedience and sprinkling of the blood of Jesus Christ."

217. Another question Josephites cannot afford to ignore is this,—"If the ordinary working of natural events produced one Jesus,—how is it that through eighteen centuries of far more promising conditions, they have not produced another? After Nebuchadnezzar came Cyrus, after Cyrus Alexander, after Alexander Julius Cesar, Charlemagne, Napoleon, but after Jesus, no rival. Take any department of human life, and each age produces its great man, and greater, in some respects as ages roll on—but no one like Jesus!"

218. The apostle Peter says to the elect of God (1 Pet. i. 18-21) "Ye were not redeemed with corruptible things as silver and gold,.....but with the precious blood of Christ, as of a lamb without blemish, and without spot, who [Christ] verily was ordained before the foundation of the world, but was manifested in these last times for you who do believe in God and gave him glory; that your faith and hope might be in God.

BELIEF IN GOD includes the record he has given of his Son (1 John v. 10-12) which, in the above quoted passage, says of the elect, "They were redeemed by the precious blood of Christ." Josephites are not redeemed by this blood they exclude themselves, and this divine rule excludes them.

219. Hebrews ix. 26 says Christ once in the end of the world hath appeared to put away sin, "by the SACRIFICE OF HIMSELF." Our opponents' sins, then, have not been put away, they reject the means to that end.

220. We have shown how one Josephite teacher claims to have been rid of his sins by sinning no more. He must be a greater favorite of heaven than David was. His repentance did not free him of the sin of the past. According to the 51st Psalm, he in an agony of mind sought mercy, for his sin was ever before him; and expected no joy or gladness till he was purged. Is it not surprising that such reckless statements should be made to people who own Bibles?

221. In view of Col. i. 14, 15, which says, "In whom (God's dear Son) we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins," what hope of forgiveness can Josephites have? See also Acts v. 31; and Acts xiii. 38.

222. In Acts xx. 20 Paul told the elders of Ephesus that he kept back from them nothing that was profitable, and had showed them and taught them publicly and from house to house. As he kept back, or omitted to say that JOSEPH was the father of Jesus, to say the least, what was UNprofitable then, is now the most profitable thing Josephites have to write about, judging by the space devoted to it.

223. In Romans v. 1 we read, "Therefore, being justified by faith (constituted righteous) we have peace with God through our Lord Jesus Christ." This, together with Isa. lx. 6, "All our righteousness are as FILTHY RAGS," and Eph. ii 5, 8, "By grace ye are saved, through faith;" ought to silence,—and will silence those who say they can be righteous without assistance from Christ, if not hindered by moral obtuseness. The record says, "Grace reigns through righteousness by Jesus Christ our Lord unto eternal life." Rom. v. 21. So, when a righteous God and a repentant sinner meet on a blood sprinkled platform. Mercy's stream flows unhindered,—God is glorified, and the sinner is an heir of salvation.

224. In 1 Cor. ii. 2, Paul says, "For I determined to MAKE KNOWN nothing among you except Jesus Christ; and him crucified." This is the whole gospel under two heads; for the same apostle writing to the same church in the 15th chapter mentions among the chief items of the gospel by which they were being saved, That Christ died on behalf of our sins, according to the Scriptures. This item of Paul's gospel Josephites have no use for. And they dispense with it without offering anything in place of it, except their own acts.

225. But what did Paul make known about Christ Jesus? The answer is found in Acts ix. 20 where we learn that immediately after his conversion, before he left Damascus, where he washed away his sins by the act of baptism into Christ, he "proclaimed Jesus, That he is the Son of God;" for which the Jews in that city conspired to kill him; but failed, because the disciples lowered him from the wall in a basket, and so escaped. And yet

226. We are told that Jesus was THE SON OF JOSEPH by men living more than 1800 years after Paul proclaimed him to be SON OF GOD, and that, too, by the commission of that Son himself; it is wise to consider well, before embracing what such teachers say. When we have the confession of one of the leading Josephites in America that they have NO PROOF that the first chapters of Matthews and Luke are not part of the original gospels named; but that they "candidly believing it;" it should be clear to our readers that their candid belief is all that is offered for the faith of others. Here they may well hesitate.

227. They should remember, too, that this Paul who in the synagogue of the Jews at Damascus proclaimed that he so recently put to death, was THE SON OF GOD, started out from Jerusalem to search for and arrest disciples of the crucified ONE; but was arrested himself on the way, by a voice from heaven, saying, "Saul, Saul, why persecutest thou me?" He was completely turned around by his heavenly visitor.

228. We learn from Galatians i. 15, 16 that Paul had been set apart from birth by God, "to reveal HIS SON in him." Could an honest and intelligent person for a moment think of God setting him apart from birth, to REVEAL THE SON OF JOSEPH in him?

229. In the writings of Paul we have evidence that there were various controversies, such as apostleship, circumcision, factions, etc., but never a question as to the divine paternity of Jesus; and

230. If anywhere in the epistles we found the apostles endeavoring to prove up these sublime conceptions of Christ and his mission, it might be inferred that they were called in question by some; but nothing of the kind appears. And when some had gone so far as to deny the resurrection of their own bodies, apostolic answer was, that their resurrection and Christ's were linked together. As he was raised they certainly would be, if they maintained their confidence. This appears to have settled the matter.

231. The Word of the Spirit by Paul in 1 Cor. xii. 27, says, "Now ye are the Body of Christ, and members one of another." This was addressed to the church at Corinth, and shows Christ to be the dominant power as ruler, as intellect, as center and life of the Body, and each member a part of the Christ. These can only be made as one, by union with him and this is effected by faith in his gospel, and baptism into his death, see Rom. vi. 3. But as Josephites say there was no need of his death, of what use is it to be baptized into his death? And if not united with him in that way, are they united with him at all?

232. We are informed in Heb. i. 4, that the "More excellent name" of Jesus was INHERITED. From whom? As it places him "higher than the angels," it must have been inherited from One higher than they. All know that he had a name before he was baptized, and therefore also before his resurrection. This narrows the matter down considerably, and we ought to arrive at the truth very soon.

1. We KNOW he did not inherit it from Joseph.

2. We KNOW Jesus was higher than the angels BY BEGETTAL, the immediate context saying, for "to which of the angels said he at any time, 'Thou art my Son, this day have I begotten thee?' He was so far superior to angels that they did homage to him, but lower in nature.

233. It is important for our readers to note the difference between RELATIONSHIP and CONDITION. By one, —Jesus was above,—by the other, he was below the angels. And his subsequent exaltation was due to his matchless life. "Thou hast loved righteousness and hated iniquity, therefore God, thy God hath anointed thee with the oil of gladness above thy fellows."

234. "The sublime personality of Jesus presents a pattern of spiritual excellence unapproached and unapproachable," and as far as we can see, can only be explained by his parentage. And as we read of "Nathan, which was of David, which was of Jesse, which was of Booz, which was of Salmon," etc., so, when in answer to the Lord's question, "Whom say ye that I am?" Peter answering said, "The Christ OF GOD," we as surely know he was begotten not of man, BUT OF GOD, as that Nathan was begotten of David, and David of Jesse.

235. As, then, Jesus was not of man nor by man,—and as God is unsearchable, we should not be surprised if the human mind fail to fully comprehend his Son.

236. It has been truly said that as a ship of the line could not be built by an untutored savage,—as the masterpieces of literature, music and art are not the product of inferior minds, even so there is an equal disproportion between Jesus and his biographers. Christ and the Bible stand or fall together, the Bible being centered in him; and therefore JESUS' CHARACTER could not have been the invention of human genius.

237. As we hold to the literal accuracy of the term "Son of God," we may be asked why the term "Son of Man" is not equally literal? Ans. His birth of Mary satisfies the Sonship of Man; and the words, "who was not begotten of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God," satisfies the other. See John xx. 31 for the object of the gospel.

238. We are anxious that our readers should realize that throughout the New Testament Jesus is represented as related to God, as no other man is; and secondly, that his relationship to man is largely a relation of difference than of similarity. The human race as a whole, is estranged from God by sin. Jesus is not one of these. He is at one with God, of whom he is called THE Son; and the leader of reconciliation.

239. The position of SONS is that to which others are invited through Jesus. 1 Cor. i. 9, 11. God is faithful, by whom ye were called unto the fellowship of HIS SON, Jesus Christ. Eph. i. 5; having foreordained us unto the adoption of children by Jesus Christ." 1 John i. 3. "Our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ." 1 John i. 7. And the blood of Jesus Christ HIS SON cleanseth us from all sin.

240. "More than twenty times in John's first epistle the relationship of Father and Son is referred to, and in many instances in a most impressive manner. In chapter iv. 9, "God sent his only begotten Son into the world that we might live through him." V. 10, And sent "HIS SON to be the propitiation for our sins." Chapter v. 5, "Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that JESUS is the SON of GOD."

241. Peter begins his first epistle with the words, "Blessed be the God and FATHER of our Lord Jesus Christ;" and in his second assures us that he had "not followed cunningly devised fables," for he had been an eye witness of his Majesty, and heard the voice from heaven, which said, This is my beloved Son in whom I am well pleased."

That Saving Name

Has been put on by four joyful forerunners since we last wrote, and caused great rejoicing in the Church of the Blessed Hope, not alone for the addition to the household of faith but that it furnished an opportunity to proclaim the truth to a greater number of aliens than for several years; and we are hopeful that some of the good seed sown has commenced to grow. We thank God for this evidence that the Gospel of Christ is still the power of God unto salvation to every one who believes it with the heart.

It gives us pleasure to introduce to the Church of God scattered abroad, Brother and Sister Klingingatin, previously Disciples, who rejoice greatly in the newly found hope.

Also John and Gertrude Greif, son and daughter of our dear Brother and Sister Greif, who have long cherished the Blessed Hope. They have enjoyed great advantages in this respect and also the advantage of attending the Sunday School. We trust they will both be faithful witnesses for God and truth in this vast city, where thousands of snares are set for their feet, and finally receive an abundant entrance into the kingdom of God's dear Son.

We call special attention to our offer in another part of this paper. It is before you, and now that the political campaign is over, we trust our friends will give interest to this matter.

The Japanese guns are still battering the Russian forts about Port Arthur. The resistance is becoming feebler, and as the lines are drawn in the suffering of the people and troops inside is increasing. There is some fighting in the north near Mukden, but no great engagement, and neither side gaining a great deal.

The Coming of the Lord.

The following paragraphs read not long ago, were written by W. R. Chandler, corresponding editor of Messiah's Advocate, and were quoted by Elder Miles Grant for The Crisis: "If straws show which way the wind blows and floating bubbles yet indicate the drift of the current, we are safe in asserting that an apostasy akin to that which engrossed the Jewish people before the first advent is now settling upon those who have preached the second advent. The decline of this religious belief is far past the inceptive point, some leaders are becoming unsettled in their teaching, and laymen, hitherto stalwart, are beginning to say that Adventism is a failure. "Why should we talk longer," they say, "of the signs of the times? Let us fall into line with other churches and have discussed from our pulpits subjects that are abreast with the times?"

"For many years the writer has believed that such a declension would come. Christ's earnest and oft repeated exhortations "watch, watch," were for other men than the humble Galileans who were before him, said he, "What I say unto you, I say unto all watch!" Ah that "all" though a little word was of mighty reach. It leaped across the misty span of eighteen centuries, and is now ringing in clarion tones in the ears of this busy generation. The "porter" whosoever he will be who is watching when the Nobleman returns, must be a sturdy fellow. He must be of the stuff of which heroes are made and his conservatism must be well nigh imputable. He will be jeered at and called a fogy. He will be beaten with many a taunt by brethren who have gone with the drunken," etc.

The information these paragraphs contain is startling. We have not thought that Adventists of whatever branch they might be, could be turned away from their faith on this point, however much they might be led into grievous error on other things. Called out for the very purpose of proclaiming the coming of the Lord to be near at hand, it is expected that each herald be faithful, and that he be in haste to warn the people, like the heralds who ride for their lives in times of flood or of war. But if there is growing indifference and actual apostasy in the ranks of other Adventists, is there not danger that the same spirit creep over the readers of The Restitution? "Watch! what I say unto one, I say unto all, watch!" Prophetic truth is as important now as it was when it drew our fathers from the churches early in the forties. It is even more important for it is a light that must shine "until the day dawn." Shine? How can it shine unless studied and preached upon in view of current history?

Other truths are important, we want them dwelt upon in every paper, that the sinner who reads may know that there is life for him only though Christ and the resurrection of the dead, but we must not neglect prophecy. For now that our attention has been called to the matter, we know there is danger of even our own dear brethren and sisters apostatizing from God. Have not some of them already grown cold? Can we see much difference between them and the world? Have we not already heard it said, "I do not like to hear sermons on prophecy?" "Not like to hear sermons on prophecy?" Then we do not like to hear of the coming of Jesus, for his coming is prophecy, and all connected with that coming, is prophecy. We cannot get away from prophecy. It is "the sure Word" upon which our faith and hope are built. It is through prophecy that we know where we are in time. We are not in the dark, hence can see the spires of the New Jerusalem gleaming not far away. Our Lord may "tarry" for "a little while." That others may come to repentance but he will not "delay his coming." Our work is not yet done, if we would "hasten the coming of his kingdom," the message he has given us must be preached until the end come. There is abundant need for warning, for exhortation, for watchfulness for consecration and for prayers. "The Lord is coming!"

The Saints Will See Jesus.

The saints will see Jesus! What a hope! What a source of rapture! This hope sustained Job under his manifold and almost crushing calamities. "I know?" says he, "that my Redeemer liveth, and that he shall stand at the latter day upon the earth; and though after my skin worms destroy this body, yet in my flesh shall I see him; whom I shall see for myself, and mine eye shall behold, and not another."

The saints will see Jesus! Glorious sight to behold! O what a motive to aspire after perfect holiness. Surely the hope of seeing Jesus who "is light" and in whom "is no darkness at all," cannot be cherished without exerting a powerful influence in our sanctification. "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is, and every man that hath this hope in him purifieth himself, even as he is pure."

O God of heaven! Grant us the purity of this blessed Son Jesus. Open our eyes to see him, dimly though it be, even here on this old earth; and vouchsafe to us the glorious sight of Jesus in the regenerated earth forever. Amen.

God's Blessing on Giving.

There is a close connection between what a man gives and what he gets. God calls for the whole tithe, not for a tithe. There are some Christian people who think it sufficient if they give a tenth. The Jew gave a tenth after the first fruits of his increase, and every third year a tenth for the poor; and probably he would give one-fifth or one-fourth of all he possessed. There is no definite sum laid down in the New Testament, but the command of the Old Testament is intensified and enlarged in the New.

But having settled whether it is to be a tenth or a quarter, or whatever it be, remember that the proportion is the Lord's and not ours; and whosoever will thus honor God with his substance, in return God will honor him with prosperity. I will call the witnesses once again. I can furnish anyone with the names and addresses of all the cases I mention. In the North of England two brothers went into business. They were born in a very small cottage, and had nothing to start business with. But they were enthusiastic in religion. They were determined to give to the Lord, and they made an arrangement that the Lord Jesus Christ should be a partner in the concern, and a fixed proportion should be given to him of all profits. They so gave and prospered. The first year they had a nice lot of money to give. The second year they had still more. The third year the profits were so great that they went into four figures. Then they thought the proportion to be set aside for God was too much to give to charity.

Always be suspicious when you change your terms. It was for charity now, not for the Lord. Seeing it was such a big lot they divided it, took half for themselves, and gave the other half away. The next year, on the testimony of one of the brothers, they did not make a copper. And before the end of six months of the following year they came to a crisis.

The two brothers met one day and locked themselves in the office to face the situation. And William said to James, "We have never prospered since we robbed God. The first charge on the business must be to pay back what we have robbed." They knelt down and prayed and made this promise. Before the end of the year the business pulled round. Strange enough, after some years they made a similar mistake and had a similar experience. Today they are among the wealthiest Christian people in the land. They prospered as they honored God in their giving.

There is another man in the North of England (I will mention his name for I do not think he will object,) Alderman Stephenson of Newcastle. He told a friend that he went into business resolved to spend a third, save a third, and to give a third of all he made. He went on like that until he had saved enough. He went on spending a third and giving two-thirds. As he felt his family had quite enough, he now stops in business and gives all he makes. Jabez Wooley of Garforth, did almost the same.

But unless a man cultivates a habit of systematic giving when he has not much to give, he will give little when he is rich.—Selected by S. Roxana Wince.

"'Many years ago,' says Oliver Wendell Holmes, 'in walking among the graves at Mt. Auburn, I came upon a plain white marble slab which bore an epitaph of only four words, but to my mind they meant more than many of the labored inscriptions on other monuments: "She was so pleasant." That one note revealed the music of a life of which I knew nothing more.' How much good can be done in church, home and society by just being pleasant; how many acerbities it will sweeten; how many obstacles it will brush away! All our virtues must not be of the heroic and strenuous type; we need also the gentler, finer graces. The Bible has much to say in praise of pleasantness."

Misfortune is never sad to the soul that accepts it as from God, for such do always see on every cloud the face of an angel.

There is only one way to be happy, and that is to make somebody else so; and you can't be happy cross-lots; you have got to go the regular turnpike road.

Poetry.

Over the Alps Lies Italy.

"Over the Alps lies Italy!"
Thus spake the warrior in days of old.
Checked by those mountains whose hoary heads
Of the centuries' wars with the elements told.

Little he reeked of the danger or fear
That hidden in glacier or pass might be;
Boldly his voice rang out, and clear—
"Over the Alps lies Italy!"

. . . . . .

Long as the morning dawns on world-tired,
Oh, ne'er that ruddiness eyes may see,
Cheering us onward, whate'er befall—
"Over the Alps lies Italy!"

Youth reads the words and bright eyes flash,
Thinking of all the future brings;
All heart can wish for of honor and fame,
Of love and joy and earth's beautiful things.

Oh, the world is fair and life is sweet,
And deep in youth's heart is a wordless glee;
But his spirit leaps forward, the future to greet—
"Over the Alps lies Italy!"

Manhood comes on as years depart.
Hearts cease more oppress the soul
The work of the world and its duty each day,
And all too swiftly the seasons roll.

Poet and painter, musician and priest,
Noodles and men of low degree,
They strive and they struggle, from greatest to least—
For "Over the Alps lies Italy."

. . . . . .

God grant for us all, when the time shall come
That our work hands drop the burdens they bear,
When the words we have spoken, the deeds we have done,
Are remembered only as things of yore;

That when we shall enter that new, strange sphere
Where no thought of time or of change shall be,—
We may find all we labored and longed for here—
Over death's Alps our Italy.

Exhortation at the Breaking of Bread.

KEEP MY COMMANDMENTS AND LIVE.

This is the advice of Solomon in Prov. vii. 2, and Jesus gives the same advice in Matt. xxii. 37, 38, when he said, "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the first and great commandment." It is the great Creator that commands obedience from the created. After the sentence of death had been pronounced upon Adam for disobedience, he and all his posterity would have remained in the death state except God had made a way of escape from death, and that is what he did do when he made the promise that the seed of the woman should bruise the serpent's head.

Paul tells us in Gal. iv. 4, who the seed was, for he says, "When the fulness of time was come, God sent forth his Son, made of a woman, made under the law, to redeem them that were under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons." Then in Acts iv. 12, Peter, speaking of Jesus Christ says, "Neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved," and 1st John iii. 23, tells us that this is his commandment, that we should believe on the name of his Son, Jesus Christ, "For this is the promise that he hath promised us even eternal life, and this life is in his Son, he that hath the Son hath life, and he that hath not the Son of God hath not life."

It is vain to say we worship God, unless we keep his commandments since his commandment is, that we should believe on the name of his Son Jesus Christ, and that there is no salvation in any other name. Then it is through him we obtain a hope of life everlasting. It is easy to say "believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, but how do we obey the command to arise and be baptized and wash away your sins. When we obey this command, we acknowledge we are transgressors and under condemnation of death. After we have been baptized and washed away our sins, we are justified by faith through our Lord Jesus Christ, having been made free from sin we become servants of righteousness. Paul says, "To whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey his servants ye are to whom ye obey, whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness, now (when we were baptized) being made free from sin become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness and life everlasting." "The gift of God is eternal life through our Lord Jesus Christ."

Oh, let us believe God and keep his commandments that we may obtain the promise of life forevermore. Each day I am more and more thankful that where as once I was blind now I see, and being enlightened can realise how great a delusion it is to believe God gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him might receive happiness instead of life eternal. Oh how great is the gift which God offers, even eternal life, made like unto the angels and can die no more. No wonder Paul says, "I count all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Jesus Christ my Lord, for whom I have suffered the loss of all things, and do count them but refuse that I may win Christ, and be found in him, not having mine own righteousness which is of the law, but that which is through the faith of Christ, the righteousness which is of God by faith; that I may know him and the power of his resurrection.

Dear ones, let us too try to keep in mind how full of loving-kindness and tender mercy was our God when he made the promise which gives us life from the dead through our Lord Jesus Christ. May our lives bear testimony that we have been with Jesus and learned of him. Let us keep his commandments and live.

THE DOOR OF SALVATION.

John x. 9. "I am the door, by me if any man enter in he shall be saved and shall go in and out and find pasture. The thief cometh not but for to steal and to kill and to destroy. I am come that they might have life and that they might have it more abundantly. I am the Good Shepherd. The Good Shepherd giveth his life for the sheep. He that entereth not by the door into the sheepfold but climbeth up some other way, the same is a thief and a robber."

Christ is our only door, our only hope of salvation. "The gospel of Christ is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth, neither is there salvation in any other; for there is none other name under heaven given among men whereby we must be saved. There is a way which seemeth right unto a man but the end thereof is death, and many shall follow their pernicious ways by reason of whom the way of truth shall be evil spoken of."

Many people think their own way is better than God's way. "Jesus sayeth, I am the way, the truth and the life. No man cometh unto the Father but by me. Because straight is the gate and narrow is the way which leadeth unto life and few there be that find it."

The Sabbath.

I see that the Sabbath question is attracting considerable attention, and I have been requested to write an article on the subject, and after forty years study of the Scripture, I find no proof that the law given to Moses on Sinai is binding on any, or under this dispensation, and I find no proof that any one kept the law from Adam to Moses.

The Commandments were Israel's Constitution and no penalty for breaking these Commandments is mentioned in the Decalogue, but without a doubt God gave the law stating the penalty for breaking the Commandments.

As we read in Leviticus xxv. it was on Sinai that God spake to Moses regarding the land keeping a Sabbath, and the year of Jubilee and hallowing the tenth year and proclaiming liberty to the inhabitants of the land. God gave more than the Ten Commandments on Sinai.

After leaving Genesis ii. 3, I find not one word or command for keeping the Sabbath or that it was ever kept until Israel's delivery from Egypt.

Exodus xx. we learn that Moses was called upon Sinai and that God gave him the law.

Exodus xxxiv. Moses called the second time. Here we read that the feast of unleaven bread is commanded and the feast of weeks and the feast of ingathering at the years end.

Exodus xxxv. Moses gathered all Israel and said unto them, These are the words the Lord hath commanded that ye should do them, ye shall kindle no fire throughout your habitation on the Sabbath day.

Numbers xv. 32, 36, Here a man was found picking up sticks on the Sabbath and was stoned to death.

Deuteronomy v. Moses calls all Israel. Hear O Israel, the statutes and judgment that ye may learn and keep them. The Lord our God made a covenant with us in Horeb. The Lord made not this covenant with our Father, but with us who are alive this day. They were reminded that they were bondsmen in Egypt and that God had brought them out with a mighty hand and stretched out arm. Therefore; (for this deliverance) the Lord their God commanded them to keep the Sabbath.

Nehemiah ix. 13, 14, informs us that the Law, Commandments, Statutes and Sabbath were made known to Israel by the mouth of Moses on Sinai. Nehemiah and Moses both inform us when and where the Law and Sabbath were made known. There can be no mistake as to the time and place. All this Scripture proves beyond a doubt when and where the Law and Commandments were given and to whom they were given. As Paul says, the Law was added on account of transgression. I will show further along what the Law was added to.

Exodus xii. 43, 51. God informs Moses that no stranger should eat of the passover unless he was circumcised. One law was to be for home born and the stranger that sojourn among you. If a foreigner sojourns in the United States and violates the Law here he is punished by the laws of this country. So it was with a stranger sojourning with Israel, otherwise the Law was not binding on any one but the people to whom God gave the Law, namely: Israel.

Isaiah i. 12, 15, informs us that the new moon, Sabbaths, calling of assemblies, even the solemn meetings and anointed feast were a trouble unto God, and when they spread forth their hands, God would hide his eyes from them and when they make many prayers. "I will not hear you." Evidently this was to Israel.

Lamentations ii 5, 6, God had taken away his tabernacle as a garden and caused the solemn feast and Sabbath to be forgotten in Zion.

Hosea ii. 10, to 12. God would cause all her (Israels) mirths to cease, her feast days, her new moons and her Sabbaths and solemn feasts. God's Word has been fulfilled as we read in Ezekiel xxi. 25–27, that there was to be an overturning, and from the days of Zedekiah, the kingdom of Israel, which was the kingdom of God has been overturned to remain overturned until he, whose right it is should come and it would be given him.

The law governing the people who were subjects of this kingdom, ceased to be in force and will be until the kingdom of God is set up with Christ as King, then the same law that God gave to Israel will be the law to govern all nations.

Zacharish xiv. 16 to 27. Here we learn that the left of the nations which come up against Jerusalem will go up from year to year to worship the King; the Lord of Hosts and keep the feast of tabernacles. It shall come to pass whosoever will not come up of all families of the earth, upon them shall come no rain and the Lord will smite the heathen that come not to keep the feast of tabernacle, 19th to 21st vs. we read that the nations will sacrifice. In this chapter we read that God will gather all nations against Jerusalem to battle. Beyond a doubt, this prophecy is unfulfilled and when fulfilled, all nations will come under the law that God gave Israel on Sinai for one thousand years.

Zech. viii. 18, 23. We read the feast of the fifth, seventh and tenth month shall be to the house of Judah, joy and gladness, and there shall come people of many nations going to another saying, Let us go speedily to pray before the Lord, yea, many people and strong nations shall come and seek the Lord of Hosts in Jerusalem. And in those days when the prophecy is fulfilled, ten men out of all nations shall take hold of the skirts of him that is a Jew, saying, "We will go with you, for we have heard that God is with you."

It is evident that these two chapters are not fulfilled, but when fulfilled all nations will come under one universal law. It is evident that the law of God is not binding on neither Jew or Gentile under this dispensation. Not once did Christ command to keep the Sabbath, but as the custom was among the Jews to teach in their synagogues on the Sabbath, Jesus being a Jew, did as his people were accustomed to do.

Romans vi. 10, 21. Here we read that the righteousness without the law is manifest. 18, to 16 verse we read that the promise to Abraham and his land was not through the law, but through the righteousness of faith.

Romans vi. 14, 15. We are informed that we are not under the law but under grace. Romans vi. 4, 5. Here we learn we are dead to the law by the body of Christ and are delivered from the law to (serve) in newness of spirit, not in the oldness of the letter.

Galatians iii. 10–18. We learn that no man is justified by the law in the sight of God, evident, says Paul, Christ has redeemed us from the curse of the law, that the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Christ. 17, the Covenant that was confirmed by God in Christ four hundred and thirty years before the law was given did not disannul or make the covenant of none effect, but the law was added to the covenant because of transgression until the seed should come.

Acts xv. We read that a certain sect of the Pharisees believed it was needful for the Gentile believers to be circumcised and keep the law of Moses, and the apostles and elders came together to consider the matter. Their decision was that they were not to trouble the Gentiles about the matter. 19 to 29, nothing could be more clear.

Romans ii. 14-16, Paul says that if the Gentiles, which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, these having not the law unto themselves, showing the law of God written in their hearts.

Romans iii. 20, 21. Therefore, by the deeds of the law, there shall no flesh be justified in God's sight. 28. Paul concluded that a man is justified by faith, without the deeds of the law.

Romans iii. 23–25. Paul says the law was a schoolmaster to bring us to Christ that we might be justified by faith, but after faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster.

Galatians v. 1, 4. Stand fast in the liberty wherewith Christ has made us free. We are not to be entangled with the yoke of bondage, and Christ is become of non effect unto you, and if justified by the law ye are fallen from grace.

Galatians iv. 10, 11. Paul was afraid of the brethren, lest he had bestowed upon them labor in vain. In 10th verse, he says they were observing days, month, times and seasons.

I find no proof for keeping the Sabbath or law.

Submitted in the spirit of love and truth.

Here and There.

I want to say to the household of faith that, although I have not written much of late, I have not been idle. In fact, my silence is due to being crowded with work. Being absent from home most of the time, I could not take the time to write. It was my privilege to attend six Conferences this year. Besides attending the June Meeting and the Annual gathering of the Indiana Conference, I was present at the Iowa, Ohio, Michigan, and Southern Illinois Conferences. All were to me times of spiritual good. Old acquaintances were renewed, new ones formed, and the ties of brotherly love were closer drawn. These gatherings also afford an opportunity to gain an insight into the amount as well as the quality of the work that has been done. Brethren and sisters, have you ever thought what feelings we would experience should the Master suddenly appear in our midst and with unfailing scrutiny inspect our work? It is, moreover, a fact that he who walks in the midst of the golden candlesticks is constantly inspecting our work. Let us do our work well.

I was pleased to note a general interest in the work, and almost everywhere the call is for evangelistic work and workers. Let me appeal to our young men whose eyes may fall on these lines. Have you ever thought of the debt of gratitude you owe to God for sending the light of the glorious gospel of Christ to give you the knowledge of God? Have you thought of the many who sit in darkness who perish for the want of light? Do you not feel in the depth of your heart a desire to return the love of God by devoting your powers to the proclamation of the gospel? Where we have one man in the field we ought to have ten.

Not long since I received an urgent invitation from Bro. T. E. Willey, of Mount Ayr, Ind., to present the gospel to the people of that place. The M. E. Church was secured, and I had the pleasure of speaking in it seven times in five days. The attendance throughout was good, and the interest from first to last was excellent. Although the gospel with its promises and conditions was new to many, they came from evening to evening and listened with rapt attention to the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ. We also had the honor of baptizing two believing ones upon their confession of faith in the gospel as presented. They are Bro. and Sister Wilbert Hart. May they continue steadfast in the truth as it is in Jesus. I purpose going back at some time in the near future. I am confident that there are others who, when they know "that way" more perfectly, will also obey from the heart the form of gospel teaching. Bro. and Sister Willey and others, although isolated from others of like precious faith, have for years stood for the defense of the gospel. Let them meet often for mutual edification and comfort. There are many other isolated ones in Indiana who need an occasional visit from an evangelist. Brethren, the time is short. Let us be up and doing.

Obituary.

Mrs. Maria Neighoff was born at Hagerstown, Maryland, Jan. 19, 1809; died Oct. 30, 1904; aged 95 years, 9 months and 11 days. Early in life she was united in marriage with David Swope, who died in about a year. To this union was born one daughter, Elizabeth, who died last February. In April, 1837, she moved to Illinois, locating at Oregon, in Ogle Co., where she married Baltzer Neighoff the following year. Here they lived until about the year 1840, at which time they removed to Plum River, Town of Freedom, Carroll Co. From this place they again moved, going to Savanna, where they remained for three years, after which they returned to Plum River. In 1868 they moved to South Dakota, where they lived for eleven years, then returned to Plum River to make their home with their daughter, Mrs. S. P. Renner, at whose home the husband died 26 years ago, since which time her home has been in the family of her daughter, until in February last when her daughter was stricken by death. Soon after she came to the home of her grandson, where she died on last Sunday. In 1836 she united with the Christian church in which she remained a member until 1854, when she joined the Church of God of the Abrahamic faith. In her church relationship she has ever lived the life of one who had a conscientious duty to perform before God. We lay her away to rest in the hope of a glorious resurrection.

Cornelius.

Peter had to be prepared for the work. The narrative of his preparation is contained in the tenth chapter of Acts. A direct attack was made upon his prejudices. He became very hungry about 12 o'clock in the day. While waiting for someting to eat on the housetop, an amazement came over him. In this state, he saw a great sheet full of all sorts of unclean creatures fit and appropriate emblems of the moral condition of the Gentiles. At this crisis, the Spirit said, "Rise Peter, kill and eat!" But Peter preferred hunger to defilement; and would not consent, until it was repeated for the third time, that the legal distinction between clean and unclean was done away:—"What God hath cleansed, call not thou it common," or unclean.

The impression made upon Peter by this vision is best expressed in his own words. "God hath showed me," says he, "that I should not call any man common, or unclean. Therefore came I to you Gentiles, as soon as I was sent for." In this way the second key of the kingdom was imparted to him. Its use was to make known the fellowship of the mystery.

As soon as Peter's preparation even while he was debating within himself the meaning of the vision, three Gentile messengers from Cornelius, a centurion of the Italian regiment, arrived from Caesarea, to request him to visit him. The Spirit told Peter to go with them, nothing doubting, for he had sent them.

Now, while God was preparing Peter's mind for a ready obedience, he had sent a messenger to tell Cornelius to send for Peter. It would be well for the reader to reflect on the character of Cornelius before the angel visited him. He was not a pagan Gentile, or a wicked sinner in danger of hell fire; but a proselyte of righteousness, or an outer court worshiper. "He was a just and devout man, and one that feared God with all his house; gave much alms to the Jews, among whom he was of good report; and he prayed to God alway." No better man lay or clerical, can be produced from any modern sect than Cornelius. He was a God-fearing, "pious, and generous hearted man he was not a perverse, hot-headed ignorant disciple of some sect; but a man approved of heaven, whose prayers and alms were acceptable before God as a memorial of him, and why dwell so on the character of this man? Because, a special messenger was sent from heaven to tell even this good man, this just and devout Gentile, to send for the apostle Peter, that he might come from Joppa, and tell him what he ought to do. But as though this were not explicit enough, the angel stated that, "Peter should come and tell him words whereby he and his house might be saved." Now it is worthy of especial note by the religionists of this self complacent generation, that this just person was not in a saved state under the new order of things; that he had both to hear words, and to do something for his salvation, which he had then as yet neither heard nor done. And let it be observed, furthermore, that the angel of God was not permitted to preach the gospel to Cornelius; or, in other words, to tell him what he ought to do; or, "the words by which he and his house might be saved." He was only allowed to tell him to send for Peter. According to modern notions this was quite unnecessary; for, cries popular ignorance, it would have saved both time and trouble, if the angel had told Cornelius at once what it was necessary for so excellent a man to believe and do, instead of sending three men through the broiling sunshine to fetch Peter to Cesarea. O what a lesson is contained in this interesting narrative for the "clergy," ministers, and people of these times. How it convicts them of infidelity of the gospel, and sinfulness before God, or, if sincerity be granted to them, and, doubtless, there are among them many honest and well intentioned persons who "err not knowing the Scriptures;" grant, then, that they sincerely love truth in the abstract, yet comparing their creeds and preaching, and practices, with the testimonies contained in the second, tenth and eleventh of the Acts, to say nothing of others—how condemned are they as vain talkers and deceived leaders of the blind. It is really painful to listen to the superficial dissertations of the texturaries, retailed to the people from the pulpits of the day. Theological speculations on isolated scraps of Scripture are substituted for the words of Peter and the other apostles, by which alone even the pious can be saved. They talk of true religion, of primitive Christianity, of the gospel, of churches of Christ, and of an evangelical ministry; but where among papist or Protestant church or dissent are these things to be found, reflecting the precepts, precedents, and morality of the "pure and undefiled religion" of the New Testament.—Elpis Israel, selected by J. Cameron.

"Not only pleasant things, but sad ones, have their influence and are remembered. It is well to have this truth ever in mind and to act in view of it. 'Kind words can never die' says the little song. When one heard that sung pleasantly, he said sadly: 'Cross words can never die.' One is as true as the other. When we speak to another, it would be well for us to ask our own hearts: 'How will this be thought of, by and by, when it is recalled in memory?' By our words and by our deeds we are making memories for others that shall give pleasure or give pain in the coming days."—Selected by S. R. Wince.

Wisdom of Solomon.

CHAPTER 47.

1. And after that arose Nathan to prophesy in the days of David.

2. Even as fat separated from a sal-vation-offering, so was David set apart from the sons of Israel.

3. Among lions he smote as among kids, and among bears as among lambs of sheep.

4. In his youth did he not slay a giant and take away reproach from a laity when he raised his hand with a sling-stone, and cast down the gaping wonder of Goliath?

5. For he invoked the Most High Lord and he gave to his right hand controlling power to take away a man able in war, to exalt the horn of his laity.

6. Even so among myriads he glorified him and praised him with blessings of the Lord when he wore a diadem of glory.

7. For he crushed out enemies round about and he made nought of the opposing Philisterion; unto this day he broke their horn.

8. In every deed of his he gave confession unto a sacred Most High; with an oracular word of glory with all his heart he hymned and loved the One who created him.

9. And he stood psalter-ode-players before the altar, and with the echo of them he sweetened musical strains.

10. He gave appropriate beauty to festivals and he cosmically arranged appointed times unto a consummation with the praise they sung to his sacred name, and from morning dawn made the sanctuary echo.

11. The Lord took away his sins and exalted his horn forever, and gave unto him a covenant of kings and a throne of glory in Israel.

12. After him arose a son having exact knowledge, and for his sake he lodged him in a wide place.

13. Saloomoon became king in days of peace, for whom God caused things to cease round about, that he might stand a house in his name, and make ready sanctification forever.

14. How wise didst thou become in thy youth and how thou wast filled like a river with understanding.

15. Thy soul didst cover a land and thou didst fill it with parables of enigmas.

16. Unto islands afar off thy name arrived, and thou wast beloved in thy peace.

17. With odes and comparative illustrations and parables and with interpretations countries wondered at thee.

18. In the name of the Lord God, the God whom Israeel had invoked thou didst gather together the gold like tin and silver thou didst multiply like lead.

19. Thou didst incline thy loins away unto women, and thou didst misuse thy official-power with thy body.

20. Thou didst give cause for blame unto thy glory, and thou didst desecrate thy seed, to bring wrath upon their offspring, and compunction to thy folly, so that a divided petty rule came to pass and an unfaithful kingdom arose from out Ephraim.

21 and 22. But the Lord may not forsake his mercy and utterly destroy from his works, nor wipe out the progeny of his elect one, and take away the seed of the one who had loved him; and he gave unto Jakoob a remnant, and unto David a root from out him.

23. And Saloomoon rested in the midst of his fathers and left behind him of his seed folly for a laity and Hroboam inferior in understanding, who stood a laity away from his counsel, and Hierobam son of Nabat who caused Israeel to sin, and gave to Ephraim a way of sin.

24. And their sins became exceedingly multiplied to stand them away from their land; and they sought out every wickedness, until requital came upon them.

COMMENT.

It would be difficult to find more of valuable history and biography summed up in the space of this one chapter and as graphically given, to say nothing of the glimpse we get of God's hand through these great human instrumentalities notwithstanding their many frailties, directing and working his eternal purposes in the councils and counsels of men. The record and lasting influence for good these great men have left behind them is convincing evidence that life is worth living even were there no future. What shall we then say who believe that the gospel has a promise not merely for the life that now is, but for the life that is to be, and with what emphasis

...ld we bring home to ourselves ... beginning Christian of our day the ... records of these older saints.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the doners request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trust worthy.

What We Believe.

"We" are a body of religious people who, as such, "believe" something. We believe the teaching of the Word of God. This is our rule of faith and practice. But what does the Word teach as essential matters of "faith and practice?" Do we as a people uniformly hold to the great foundation principles of faith as set forth in the Word of God? Are our public ministers a unit on the things to be taught and believed in order to salvation? In short: Have we a faith? If so, what is that faith? What does the Word of God teach us as essential to true faith and practice? We have answered these questions in a very concise and yet comprehensive way in the upper right hand corner of our paper, THE RESTITUTION. The object of these lines is to say that, since writing a series of articles for THE RESTITUTION on "What We Believe," quite a number of requests, both verbal and written, have come to the undersigned asking that said articles be published in book form. They will make a book of about 60 pages, making 15 chapters in all. Such a book should sell for 15 cents per copy. Now, brother and sister, this concerns you. Do you desire the publication of this work for distribution among such who ask, "What do you believe?" If so, please write to the undersigned at Plymouth, Ind., saying how many copies you want at 15 cents per copy. Write on postal. Send no money until notice is given that the work will be published.

Indiana Conference, Attention!

Circumstances have arisen which appear to make it necessary to depart from the usual custom of holding the "November Conference" of the Indiana churches at the regular time, which is the third Sunday in November, and to postpone this meeting until some time after the Holidays. The meeting is to be at Plymouth, and due notice will be given as to the exact time, so that all concerned may be informed. In the mean time let us work with our might for the advancement of the cause of the truth in our respective localities.

We will answer calls together or apart, and preach the glad tidings to few or many, in doors or out, but our chief desire is the welfare of the Church of God. Address us at 866 W. Main St. Salem, O.

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, Co., Ind."

Remittance should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in it. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended

Our proposition is to send each one of our patrons who pays his subscription up and on to the end of 1905, the Farm and Fireside for a year free of any charge whatever.

This simply gives you the both papers for the price of ours.

There is necessarily a limit to this offer, and you will have to act very promptly if you wish to take advantage of it. Our arrangement ends with the month of November. So if you want the Farm and Fireside free for one year, send at once as above, and we will see that you get the two papers.

This applies to new and old subscribers alike. Each one who pays for THE RESTITUTION to the end of 1905 gets the Farm and Fireside as well.

Send as soon as possible, so as to be sure and secure the present we offer. If you are in arrears send the money to cover the delinquency, and send $1.50 for next year, and you get Farm and Fireside absolutely free.

A SECOND PROPOSITION.

In the city of Boston, Mass., is published a monthly journal devoted to education of young and old to the necessity of a humane and merciful treatment of dumb brutes as well as our duty to our fellowman. This paper is called "Our Dumb Animals," and is specially beneficial for the youth of our land, though older people cannot fail to be helped by reading it.

We propose to send Our Dumb Animals free one year to every person sending us a new subscribor for THE RESTITUTION for next year.

Do not misunderstand our offer—

1. Pay all arrears and for 1905 and you get THE RESTITUTION for that time and Farm and Fireside for one year.

2. A new subscriber paying $1.50 for the year 1905, will receive all the papers of 1904 from the time his subscription is in hand, and the full year 1905, and will get Farm and Fireside for one year.

3. Any person sending us $1.50 for a new subscriber for next year, not only entitles such new subscriber to what is mentioned in No. 2, but he will himself get Our Dumb Animals a year free of cost.

Should you wish to do so, you may name any boy or girl you would like to have receive Our Dumb Animals in place of yourself.

If you send two new subscribers as above, you can name some one for each subscriber you send, and Our Dumb Animals will be sent to whomsoever you name.

Poetry.

Where Is Christ?

Where the many toil together, there am I among My own;
Where the tired workman sleepeth, there am I with Him alone;
I, the power that poseeth knowledge, dwell amid the daily strife;
I, the Bread of Heaven, am broken in the sacrament of life.

Every task, however simple, is to Me and that does it for;
Every deed of love and mercy done to man or done to Me.
Thou hast learned the peaceful secret, thou hast come to Me for rest;
With the burden, in thy labor, thou art, Felix, doubly blest.

Nevermore thou needest seek Me; I am with thee every where;
Raise the stone and there shalt find Me; cleave the wood, and I am there.

PHENOMENA OF SPIRITUALISM ACCOUNTED FOR. NO. 3.

Teacher. Lesson No. 2, closed with the introduction of the topic as to how God communicated with man. I will ask Ella to talk on that point.

Ella. We are told that "When God speaks to man he speaks electrically, that is by his Spirit; for electricity is the term science has bestowed upon what the Bible styles spirit. All physical phenomena are produced by the spirit acting according to laws peculiar to it, a very few of which are scattered about in works of science. When the Creator wills to speak, he does it by the same spirit that shivers the sturdy oak, or rends the rocks asunder. Sometimes he communicates his mind by making direct spectral impressions on the magnetic mirror of the brain."

Q. In a case of this kind, which do men see these things?

A. In this case a man in his sleep sees objects, and hears sounds that have no real existence; but are representative of realities past, present, or future. These are the dreams and visions of the prophets. Sometimes he speaks mediately, but still electrically, as through Jesus Christ to his apostles, whose method we will look into briefly in connection with the principles brought out in M. Korsten and Dr. Draper's experiments, (as related in lesson No. 2.)

"Things, ideas, or images may exist upon the brain's tablet or sensorium, and yet be invisible (that is not recollected by the individual who received them), and consequently invisible to all other persons, from his inability to utter them."

Q. Though the person may not be conscious of it, may not the ideas exist in the person?

A. Yes. Though thus invisible, the ideas are nevertheless existent, and actually present within. They exist, however, in the state of latent spectral impressions, and in order to be evoked or made visible, they need to be breathed upon by the same principle that impressed them upon the sensorium. Now, the sensoria, or magnetic mirrors, or minds of the Apostles had been prepared (Luke i. 17), or polished by the process they had undergone by the ministry of John. They were in a state represented by the polished metal or glass, (see lesson 2) in Dr. Draper's experiment, ready for the coin to be impressed upon it. Jesus came, the medium through which the Father operated in word and deed. John v. 30. He spoke the words, laying them, so to speak, like coin upon (the glass) their hearts; while the Father, who performed the miracles, passed by their effect, the electricity of his spirit, as it were, through the Word, and their sensoria, stamping impressions there, as by M. Karsten's experiment with the glass, coin and electrifying machine." See Lesson 2.

Q. Did not Jesus recognize the fact that he was operated on by a power not of himself?

A. Yes. "I can of mine own self do nothing," said the Lord Jesus; "the Father is in me. The words that I speak unto you I speak not of myself; but the Father that dwelleth in me, he doeth the works." This proves what we have said that Jesus was the Father's medium or channel through whom, by his Spirit, he operated on men's minds by words confirmed by miracles, in strict accordance with the laws illustrated by the experiments before us.

Q. Did not the apostles hear many things which for a time remained upon their minds as spectral impressions?

A. Yes. "The Apostles saw and heard many things during their attendance upon the instructions of the Great Teacher which continued to the end of months, as hidden spectral impressions upon their sensoria, but which were afterwards evoked in lines of living light."

Q. Give an example.

A. For example they saw Jesus ride into Jerusalem on an ass' colt, as predicted by Zechariah. But one of them referring to it says: "These things understood not his disciples at the first; but when Jesus was glorified, then remembered they that these things were written of him, and that they had done these things unto him." John xii. 16. They knew what was written in the prophet, and they saw what the people did on the occasion referred to; but their knowledge was a latent spectre until made manifest some time after at the glorification of Jesus."

Q. But what happened then, by which these latent spectral impressions were evoked?

A. The spirit was breathed upon them after the illustration contained in Dr. Draper's experiment. But why were they not evoked before Jesus was glorified? For the reason assigned by John, in speaking of the gift of the Spirit—"The Holy Spirit," says he, "was yet not given, because that Jesus was not glorified." John vii. 39.

Q. Did not Jesus intimate that they would need the breath of the Holy Spirit before they would understand the import of his words impressed upon their brain?

A. Speaking of his teachings, Jesus said unto them, "These things have I told you, that when the time shall come, ye may remember that I told you of them. When the spirit of the truth is come, it will guide you into all the truth. It shall glorify me." John xvi. 4, 13, 14: The glorification in this sense was the receiving things concerning Jesus, and showing them to the Apostles—evoking the impressions already existing and communicating new ones as evinced in their writings. In this way they were glorified as well as Jesus, for receiving the spirit of the truth, it became in them as a fountain of the living streams; thus, "whom he justified them he also glorified." Rom. viii. 30. The Lord Jesus was glorified in a sense, after his resurrection, before he was received into glory; and therefore, before he ascended he gave a measure of his spirit to his Apostles—not a full charge, as on Pentecost, but a sufficient charge, so to speak, to evoke the hidden spectral impressions, the effect of which electrification is seen in their words and actions, between the ascension and Pentecost, compared with those before his crucifixion."

Q. How did Jesus proceed to develop these impressions?

A. "In bringing out these impressions, he proceeded as in Karsten and Draper's experiments with the coins, for the Apostle says, "He breathed upon them and said, Receive ye Holy Spirit, (Labete pneuma hagion), and from that time they had authority to remit sin. Man was made in the image and likeness of God. Or as David saith, (watkhasseraihu meat maielohim), Thou hast made him to fall a little short of the Elohim, (Psa. viii. 5) or angels. He is, therefore, like to them in form, and capable of similar manifestations; but he falls short of their perfection and beauty, strength, and electrical or spiritual exaltation."

Teacher. Albert, are angels spectral or real beings?

Albert. Read. "The Elohim, gods or angels are not spectral impressions, any more than men and women are, though they can make such impressions. They are ponderable, occupying space that cannot be occupied by another body at the same time. They are not ghosts, or disembodied winged phantoms, through which you may sweep your arm as through a shadow, and, leave them undivided. They are bodies of a nature capable of corporealing a thunderbolt without deterioration, or hazard destruction. They can walk in the glowing furnace unaffected, as they can also whom they choose to mantle in a halo of their spirit. Dan. iii. 25; Isa. xxiii. 14, 15. They can eat and drink, and be washed with water." Gen. xviii 8.

Q. What is the popular notion concerning angels?

A. "The popular notions about angels are mere superstition. Disembodied spirits with wings are spectral impressions, made by odic emanations from brute folly, on the unpolished sensoria of the ignorant. Winged heads of chubby babies, peeping out of clouds, on the margin of inner glory, are spectres of minds bewitched or crazed by the "philosophy of vain deceit" of theosophical magicians, and prophets of the "spirit world"—a world of electro-magnetic spectralia. Such angels as the people's heads are filled with flourish there; and the darker the intellect, the more vividly are they seen in all their glory."

Q. What about death bed impressions.

A. In death bed scenes, latent spectral impressions become quite vivid, they see angels beckoning them to come up higher, hear rapturous heavenly music, etc. The death bed scene of a Mohammedan will see the spectral impressions made upon his brain. He may see his promised harem of spirit wives, and rejoice in the prospect of sensual enjoyment. These death bed experiences will vary just as much as the impressions that have been made upon the brain may differ, and one death bed scene will contradict another.

Some have agonizing death bed scenes, see a blazing hell, devils, and every vile thing if those spectral impressions have been made upon their sensoria.

This will be continued in the next lesson.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

PETER IN PRISON, ACTS XII.

In our lesson for today we learn of the great King of Judah, Herod; his pride; his miserable death; how he persecuted the Church and how he apprehended Peter, put him in prison, and delivered him to four quaternions of soldiers. A quarternion was a Roman guard of four soldiers, detailed to act as sentries over a prisoner. Each hand was hand-cuffed to a separate soldier inside the cell while the other two kept sentry outside the door. These four were relieved every three hours day and night so that there were four quarternions required for one days' service and four for the night watches. At that time during the days of unleavened bread, we read in Exodus how the Passover was instituted. Seven days thou shalt eat unleavened bread and the seventh day shall be a feast to the Lord. Ex. vii. 6. So after these days were over Herod intended bringing Peter to face the people. What was it Peter was imprisoned for? For preaching this same gospel that it is our privilege to rejoice in, and that we, (unlike Peter) can speak of freely and without fear. But it says prayer was made by the Church without ceasing; and he was miraculously delivered, he appeared to be in a trance; the chains fell from off his wrists, and after coming to himself he says, "Now I know of a surety that the angel of the Lord hath delivered me from the hands of Herod and the people." This brings to mind the 37th Psa. 6 and 7 verses. This poor man cried, and the Lord heard him and delivered him out of all his troubles. The angel of the Lord encampeth round about them that fear him and deliverath them. Let us follow the apostle Peter from time to time as he overcame by fearless action and burning words the humiliation of men. It was Peter who on the Day of Pentecost spoke words which pricked to the heart his hearers. It was Peter who said to the lame man at the beautiful gate, "In the name of Jesus of Nazareth rise up and walk." It was he who on imprisonment spoke to the rulers of the people and elders of Israel; who rebuked Ananias, who also said, "We ought to obey God rather than men." From his lips did Gentile ears first hear that the glad tidings were not alone for the Jew. Like Paul Peter rejoiced that he was counted worthy to suffer shame for the name of Jesus.

Now on a set day Herod made an oration, and it pleased the people, and they shouted, "It is the voice of a God and not a man." And he kept silence, which showed consent; and because of this we see in the 23d verse his miserable death, eaten by worms, because he gave not God the glory. He was not like Peter when he went to visit Cornelius, who falling at Peter's feet to worship him, took him up, "Saying, I myself, also am a man." What a lesson we learn from this. In Col. iii. 23 we read that whatsoever ye do, do it heartily as unto the Lord, and not unto men, in singleness of heart fearing God, knowing that of the Lord ye shall receive the reward.

In studying this lesson I have been naturally much impressed by the life and character of Peter. We read in Luke xxii. 31, 32, how Jesus said unto him that Satan desired to have him to sift him as wheat. But Jesus told him he had prayed for him that his faith fail not. But he thrice denied his Lord and followed him afar off. But Peter was repentant, for we read that he went out and wept bitterly. Jesus then enjoined him to feed his lambs, for Jesus said unto him, "Peter when thou art converted strengthen thy brethren." Now may we not all profit by applying the words of Jesus to ourselves? Would we not also be glad that the Savior offered prayer in our behalf? With Satan still in the world, and a knowledge that some shall depart from the faith it is well for us to take warning, and pray that our faith fail not, that at our Lord's coming we may be found at our post firm and true, ready for the "grand review."

MRS. EMILY GROVES.

The Two Witnesses. Rev. xi.

Mary A. King asks for information through THE RESTITUTION as to,

1. What were these two witnesses?
2. When were they slain, and how?
3. How were they restored to life?
4. What was their ascension?

To these four questions I will endeavor to give an answer according to the teaching of the Bible.

1. Who are the two witnesses? Witnesses are of two kinds, oral and documentary,—the saints and the Bible. In Deut. xxxi. 26, we read, "Take this book of the law, and put it in the side of the ark of the covenant of the Lord your God, that it may be there for a witness against thee." Again in John v. 39 we read, Search the Scriptures, for in them ye think ye have eternal life; and they are they that testify of me." Almost numberless passages may be cited to prove that the written Word is one of God's witnesses. And as to the oral testimony we read, Isa. xliii. 10, "Ye are my witnesses, saith the Lord." And in Acts i. 8, "But ye shall receive power, after that the Holy Spirit is come upon you, and ye shall be witnesses unto me both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea, and in Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." Nathan the prophet was God's witness when he said to David, "Thou art the man." Now having found who, or what the two witnesses are we proceed to the second question—When and how were they slain?

Christ informed his disciples that the time would come when men should kill them, and think that they were doing God service. But as a rule when one was put to death, another took his place and continued as a witness to the truth. But there came a time when the powers of darkness seemed to have put all the witnesses to death. The saints burnt at the stake; the Bible prohibited. In the death of the witnesses we must not expect it to be literal. We could not conceive of a literal killing of the Word of God, nor yet of his saints, and then coming to life again in three and a half days. The time of the death and resurrection of the witnesses appears to have been in the beginning of the 16th century. "At the beginning of the 16th century, Europe reposed in the deep sleep of spiritual death, under the iron yoke of the Papacy. That haughty power like the Assyrian of old said, in the plentitude of his insolence, my hand has found as a nest the riches of the people; and as one gathereth eggs, I have gathered all the earth; and there was none that moved the wing, or opened the mouth." And in a similar manner a writer of an article on the reformation in the Encyclopedia Brittanica, in a statement made with no reference to the fulfilment of this passages, this speaks of that period, "Every thing was quiet, exterminated; and the whole Christian world supinely acquiesced in the enormous absurdities inculcated by the Romish church." During this state of affairs, a council was held at Rome, called the Lateran council; which was assembled in A. D. 1513, and continued its sessions to May 16, 1517. In the ninth session of this council a remarkable proclamation was made, indicating that all opposition to the papal power had now ceased. This scene is thus described by Mr. Elliott (2, 396-397); "The orator of the session ascended the pulpit; and amidst the applause of the assembled council, uttered that memorable exclamation of triumph—an exclamation which notwithstanding the long multiplied anti-heretical decrees of popes and councils the like of which was never pronounced before nor since. "There is an end of resistance to the papal rule and religion; appears there is no more." The whole body of Christendom is now subjected to its head." This occurred May 5, 1514. From this date we may reckon the three and a half years the witnesses lay dead. From May 5, 1514 to Oct. 31, 1517, is three years and a half; the latter date being the time that Luther posted up his theses at Wittemberg the well known epoch of the beginning of the Reformation. Now if the suppression of the witnesses is in symbolic language was their death, when they again bear testimony would on the same principle be their coming to life again. In 1529, after the reformation had broken out, we find Pope Hadrian saying in a missive addressed to the Diet at Nuremberg, "The heretics Huss and Jerome are now alive again in the person of Martin Luther." Thus we see that the Papacy however unwittingly, has borne testimony to the death and living again of the witnesses.

In our Lord's message to the church of Sardis Rev. iii. 1 we read, "Thou hast a name that thou livest, and art dead." The period of this church is just prior to the reformation symbolized by the open door set before Philadelphia. Ch. iii. 8. One passage will give the idea of the ascension of the witnesses. "It is thou, O king, thou art grown and become strong; for thy greatness is grown and reacheth unto heaven, and thy dominion unto the end of the earth." Dan. iv. 22.

In the dark ages the martyrs were considered as the criminals of the earth—not fit to live. But now after the vail of ignorance was lifted, the martyred witnesses were seen to be the righteous—the saints of God. "The Paulinists, the Waldenses, the Albigenses, the Piedmontes, the Lollards, and the Beghards, though condemned by their fellow men were honored of God to defend the truth, and to deliver over to the fathers of the Reformation that precious deposit." They whose names had been cast out as evil, were now honored by all the reformers; symbolized by ascending to heaven in a cloud—the symbol of majesty. And this was equally true of the Bible—published by hundreds of thousands of copies—and translated into all known languages. Thus the witnesses in symbol ascended to heaven.

GEO. FRANCIS.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

Some Vital Questions. No. 12.

242. What can Josephites do with the beginning of the new creation, the SECOND, in view of the Spirit's Word in 1 Cor. xv., The first man is of the earth, earthy, the second man is from heaven?" What we have learned from the Word of truth, and what our experience has taught us make it very plain that no one begotten of the will of the flesh could have raised us so far above ourselves as he has, although we follow at too great a distance.

243. "In the natural world nothing raises itself to anything higher. Earth cannot generate life. Vegetation appropriates the inorganic to its own uses, and assimilates to itself. Animals transform vegetation into their higher selves. Man acts similarly in relation to the other orders, and directs and uses them for his own ends. But man never rises above his own level. God has reached forth his hand in Christ Jesus, and inaugurated a divine order of things, so that if any man be in Christ Jesus he is a new creature; old things have passed away; behold all things are become new; and all things are of God."

244. "Beloved, the more intimately we are associated with our living head,—the closer we are in fellowship with the Son of God, the stronger will be our assurance that we have not followed cunningly devised fables, but that we are resting on an eternal rock of truth in believing that JESUS IS THE SON OF GOD.

245. In reply to the inquiry of the High Priest, "Art thou the Christ, the Son of the blessed?" we find the solemn and emphatic "I AM." It is evident that Jesus accepted the expression, "Son of the Blessed," as indicating which they deemed blasphemous to claim. If this were not so, he allowed them to condemn him to death in a mistaken charge!

246. Our readers have only to go over the four gospels carefully to know of a surety that they all contain many things which confirm the positive evidence respecting the paternity of Jesus in the first chapters of Luke and Matthew. And we affirm positively that there are in the entire fabric of the New Testament no positive testimony against the paternity of Jesus, or anything approaching it. Then where does it come from?

247. The words, Son of God, remember, are not a title, but the expression of A FACT; the description of a relationship,—the explanation of an origin, a birthright.

248. The further we pursue this study the clearer it appears that the philosophy of salvation by Christ consists in this, that God regarded the race incapable, of itself of producing an INSTRUMENT to redeem it. And

249. This shows the vast distinction, in God's sight, that must exist between the whole race and the individual he saw it was necessary to produce in order to save them that believe. Such an one must be WITHOUT SIN of his own, although of the same flesh and blood. That the divine scheme was successful is proven by the fact that he was saved from death without a Mediator, and exalted to the right hand of the Majesty in the heavens.

250. The difficult task in this connection is, to make clear to the average reader why the blood of bulls and goats could not put away sin, in other words why it was absolutely necessary for the blood of Christ to be shed for that purpose. We find the key to this problem in Rom. iii. 25. It says the death of Christ was "to declare the righteousness of God" as the ground for the exercise of his forbearance. That is to say, God relinquishes nothing his law demands,—maintains his own supremacy while forgiving us; and exacts the recognition of them, and submission to them, as the condition of forgiveness, or the exercise of his FORBEARANCE, in remitting our sins. In the death of Christ we find the declaration of that righteousness.

When we look at a slain lamb, it is not a declaration of his righteousness, except in SHADOW or type, or figure. The animal has done no wrong,—and it would be wrong to punish it for the sin of another. The death of Christ was, that God might be just while acting the part of a justifier or forgiver of sins.

It must be remembered that Jesus was made in all things like unto his brethren, for the suffering of death. In being baptized of John in Jordan he confessed himself to be one of the condemned race, and owned the sentence of death to be just, and in addition to that, accepted the divine means of redemption from it. In this way sin was condemned in his flesh, although he was personally spotless. But being spotless he could not be holden of death; with the result that through the blood of the everlasting covenant which he shed, he was raised again so that we may exercise justifying faith in him, and live because he lives.

251. Let us approach the subject of the paternity of Jesus from still another angle. It is the ORIGIN of Jesus we want to arrive at. The promise of God to the serpent, was as follows:—

"I will put enmity between thee and the woman, and between thy seed and her seed. It [her seed] shall bruise thy [serpent's] head, and thou [serpent] shalt bruise his [woman's seed] heel." It was the WOMAN'S seed that was TO BE bruised in the heel. It was the WOMAN'S seed that was TO BRUISE the serpent's head. The sentence is complete; and, as it stood unchallenged for thousands of years, would any one having reverence for God dare tell us that it was Joseph's Son that was to be bruised in the heel, or that Joseph's Son was to bruise the head of the serpent because the record of the nativity of Jesus in Matthew and Luke transcends their field of observation and experience?

252. We want our readers to realize that we are now at the very fountain of the truth of this matter. This is the place to learn who was to be bruised, and be the bruiser of the Serpent. There is NO promise to or of the SEED OF MAN! There is no promise to or of the SEED OF GOD! Either of these assumptions makes of no effect the original promise! As the truth in the premises, as we hold it, has already been set forth, it is not necessary to repeat it here.

253. If Jesus was the Son of Joseph and not the Son of God, how could the language of the Spirit in Romans ix. 5 apply to him? It says, respecting Paul's brethren, "Whose are the Fathers, and of whom, as concerning the flesh Christ came of, who is over all, God blessed for ever. Amen." There can be no doubt as to what flesh he came of, or was made of, it was Israelitish flesh. And no doubt need exist as to whom he owed his existence The Jesus who is here called Christ, himself says, John iii. 16 that "God so loved the world (of mankind) that he gave his only begotten Son that whosoever believeth on him might not perish, but have everlasting life." Jesus was the Son given for the purpose stated, although Josephites say there was no necessity of his dying.

254. His stainless life made him an acceptable offering for sin; and we know, too, that his great exaltation is due to this cause. See Heb. i. 8, 9.

255. In addition to this let us read Col. ix. 10, "Do not speak falsely to each other, having put off the OLD MAN with his practices, and having put on that NEW one, being renewed by knowledge according to a likeness of HIM who created him." So that, as stated verse 11, "Christ is all things in all."

256. Have Josephites forgotten that it was the law of the Spirit of life IN CHRIST Jesus that freed the Apostle Paul from the law of sin and death? After setting aside God's Lamb as a useless thing, how do they expect to be freed from that law?

257. Our opponents affect to treat us with pity not unmixed with scorn, as they wade into the laws of nature and attempt to prove what the ALMIGHTY CANNOT DO. They are struck with horror, as were the Jews, when told that God has a Son. Said Moses to Pharaoh, "Thus saith Yahweh, Israel is my son, my first-born." The Hebrew nation was Yahweh's son on the same principle that the Son of Mary claimed to be Son of God—SPIRIT PATERNITY! The nation descended from him by a miraculous conception,—man being the agency employed. But it is the height of presumption to say that because Isaac was born through human instrumentality divinely assisted, therefore Jesus must have been. Is the All-wise and all powerful One limited to one method?

258. The Prince of Daniel's people was named Mi-cha-el, the meaning of which is "Who as God." He had charge of the Israelites in the wilderness; and he was as God to them. They were warned to beware of him and obey, and not provoke him, for he would not pardon their transgressions; for, said Jehovah, "My name is in him." "But if thou obey HIS voice, and do all I speak, then I shall be an enemy unto thy enemies, and an adversary to thine adversaries. The name, or power of the Eternal was in him, and so he was AIL, or GOD to Israel, and was to be obeyed as if he were the Eternal himself. But

259. It is important to note that this vicegerent did not belong to Adam's race for which the earth was formed, and delivered over to. This shows that his position was a provisional one,—until another Son of Man, and Son of Abraham and Son of David should come and assume the reins of government of Israel, and all the world beside, as decreed Psa. ii. 6 9; viii. 6. Until this event, the course of things was subjected to angels,—and of whom it should then be said, "Let all the angels of God worship him;" and to whom the Father hath declared, "Thy throne O God is for ever and ever." He will not be dethroned, as was the first Man,—because he loved righteousness and hated iniquity. Heb. i. 5-8.

260. Israel heeded not the warning of the Eternal—Mi-cha-el was provoked, and would not pardon them. The ten tribes were first expelled from Palestine on account of idolatry; and finally Judah and Benjamin and their priests put to death the rightful claimant of David's throne. The mission of the Mosaic economy was consummated, and they were delivered over to the Romans.

261. The angel of Jehovah's presence abandoned them; and they are still without a king, without a prince, without a sacrifice, without a pillar (Young's trans.) and without an ephod and teraphim. But

262. There is to be a Future Habitable, or world to come, that will not be in subjection to angels. Heb. ii. 5, and we have abundant evidence that the new administration of earth's affairs will soon be inaugurated. It is called "Zion's Times" in Is. xxxiii. 6-22, and it will be, the real Christian Dispensation,—Christianizing Dispensation, the Son of Man will be judge,—law-giver and King, in association with his apostles and all the resurrected and glorious manifestations of the Eternal Spirit, and styled by Paul "the manifestation of the sons of God." Rom. viii. 19, 23; the fulness of him who filleth all things in the saints. Eph. i. 22, 23.

263. In this connection Isa. ix. 6 brings to view the very personage we are speaking of. Speaking for himself and the nation of Israel, the Prophet says, "For unto us a child is born, unto us a Son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder; and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counsellor, the MIGHTY POWER—(Ail gybor, Heb. "The Mighty God," common version). The everlasting Father, the Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government there shall be no end upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even for ever. The zeal of the Lord of Hosts will perform this." Here we have a child born, and a SON IS GIVEN to the Jewish people. Were not sons born to the Jewish people every day? Most assuredly. Of whom could the gift of a Son be received by the commonwealth? Did not every son of a Hebrew father belong to the State at birth? Does not the fact that the birth and the gift are linked together, show that it was a Son of promise that was given? As it had been decreed that the child BORN and GIVEN should be King on David's throne for ever, may we not safely conclude that this is the Son that God told David he would be Father of? (2 Sam. vii. 14); and therefore he was surely the Giver of the Son. Had Joseph been the father of Jesus, HE would would have been the giver of the Son. Our readers are now asked

264. How could the Son of Joseph be called WONDERFUL, Counsellor, the MIGHTY POWER, THE FATHER of the everlasting age? Being begotten of the will of the flesh, he would have sinned, and having no Savior would have remained for ever in the congregation of the dead; and the everlasting covenant would never have been ratified. Happily we know from the lips of Jesus that it was the only begotten Son of God that was given, not Joseph's son. There was something truly wonderful about the birth of the former. It was infinite love and mercy that devised the plan that produced a sinless son of Adam without dishonor to the law, and secured the second Adam,—the "first-born of every creature" in the NEW RACE. And

265. As predicted a thousand years before he came in his Father's name. His own words are: "I am come in my Father's name, and ye receive me not. If another shall come in his own name him ye will receive." John v. 43. And again:

266. A thousand years before this, the Eternal announced respecting him, "IN MY NAME shall his horn be exalted." And, as previously explained briefly, when Gabriel told Mary that she should call her Son JESUS, the Spirit identifies for us, the personage referred to in the words just quoted from Psa. lxxxix. 24, "In my name;" and the words of Jesus John v. 43 prove we are not mistaken This applies also to Jer. xxiii. 5, 6 where Jehovah says he will raise unto David a righteous Branch. And a King shall reign and prosper and execute judgment and justice in the earth.....And this is the name whereby he shall be called Jehovah our Righteousness." In case this may come to the notice of those who have not at hand what we said respecting the name JESUS, we will just say: Parkhurst's Lexicon says, "Jesus in Greek, or Joshua as the Hebrew form has it, is a compound of Jah and.....to save.....so imports JEHOVAH the SAVIOR." Which warrants what we say above. Can Josephites say, "Jehovah our righteousness?"

267. All will readily see that the description of the child born and the son given to the nation of Israel, transcends human limits. The amazing titles given him; and the endless occupancy of the throne, and the constant enlargement of his government, and its establishment in justice and judgment for ever,—together with the assurance that Jehovah's zeal will perform this, should leave nothing more to be desired. But this reminds us of God's oath and promise to David in the 2nd chapter of 2nd Samuel, and the last words of David respecting it in the 23rd chapter. It says, "The Spirit of the Lord spake by me, and his Word was in my tongue. The God of Israel said, the Rock of Israel spake to me, he that ruleth over men must be JUST, ruling in the fear of God. And he shall be as the light of the morning, when the Sun riseth, even a morning without clouds, as the tender grass springing out of the earth by clear shining after rain." Can this be a description of Joseph's son? No one can doubt but he was enjoying a prophetic view of the time when his Seed, whom God would be the father of (chap. vii. 14) should come and reign. And when he says in the next verse, "Although my house be not so with God,—yet he hath made with me an everlasting covenant, ordered in all things, and sure;" every unprejudiced reader, we think, must conclude that it was the promised divine paternity that it made so real and certain to him, seeing his house did not meet the requirements, that he exultingly exclaims, "For this is all my salvation and all my desire, although he make it not to grow." That is to say, though there was as yet nothing in sight, he had implicit faith in the oath and promise. There is no comfort for Josephites here.

268. In Jer. iii. 14, 15 Jehovah says to Israel I will take you one of a city and two of a family and bring you to Zion. And I will give you pastors according to mine heart which shall feed you with knowledge and understanding." These pastors will be spirit, because "that which is born of the Spirit is Spirit." God will be indeed their father, and they will possess his divine nature. The child born, and Son given is the first-born of these many brethren, and in Hebrews ii. 10, he is called the "Captain of their Salvation."

269. This personage, who was himself "made perfect through sufferings;" Heb. ii. 10; and was predicted in the promise of "the Woman's Seed," Gen. iii. 15; in Isaac, Gen. xxi. 12; of the royal Shilo from Judah, Gen. xlix. 10; of the Scepter star out of Jacob, Num. xxiv. 17; of the divine Son assured to David, 2 Sam. vii. 14; and born of a virgin, Is. vii. 14; and to rule upon his throne, Is. ix. 6, 7; the Son of Jehovah's handmaid, Psa. cxvi. 16; the man whom thou madest strong for thyself, Psa. lxxix. 17; and many other places; showing that the incidental selection of a Son of Joseph as the Savior could not be farther from the truth as it is in Jesus.

270. If, as Josephites allege, that there was no necessity for the death of Christ is it not inconsistent to admit even that the Son of Joseph was selected? From this point of view, who selected him, and for what purpose was he selected; if he did not die to redeem us to God by his blood?

271. If an ordinary man be left to bear the condemnation himself will it not DESTROY HIM? Would not his own sins, prevent his living again? Is not this where God's love came to the rescue by providing a Savior who could bear it, and then be rescued from it, after its infliction?

272. The sin offering which healed the breach in relation to Christ is equally efficacious in relation to others. We read in Moses respecting the typical altar, that "whatsoever toucheth the altar shall be holy," that is, is accounted righteous. The Christ altar is touched by being planted together in the likeness of his death. "WE HAVE AN ALTAR." Heb. xiii 10, 11 exhibits both type and antetype. And this shows that

273. As the constitution of sin has its root in the disobedience of the first Adam, so also the constitution of righteousness is rooted in the obedience of the second Adam. Says Paul, Rom. v. 18, 19, "As through one offence sentence came upon all men unto condemnation; so also through the obedience of one shall many be made righteous. The two Adams are two federal chiefs, the first being figurative of the Second in these relations. All the sinners are in the first Adam, and all the righteous in the Second, only on a different principle.

CONCERNING the war in the Far East there is little authoritative news. As to whether General Stoessel asked for an armistice, whether General Nogi granted it, and the two have had a talk regarding terms of surrender, is all indefinite rumor. Since Nov. 6th there is no sure reports of fighting, but the defenders are reduced to near 5,000 men. The Russians still hold the inner forts, and the Japanese are trenching nearer and nearer. On the Shakhe river there is no change. Each side is attempting to find a weak spot in the other's line. There is strong talk of peace. It is certain that the Russians cannot make headway, and relieve Port Arthur by land. It is just as certain that for the Japanese to drive the Russians past Mukden and north to Harbin will be a serious undertaking, and scarcely worth the sacrifice. It would be little short of a miracle to suppose that Port Arthur can hold out till the arrival of the Baltic fleet. Even if these vessels are able to reach the waters adjacent it is an even chance that the Japanese will be able to give them a warm reception. With Port Arthur, Newchwang, Dalny, and all seaports in Japanese hands, Corea also, and with the Baltic fleet crushed, it would be next to impossible for Russia to send troops by one line of road sufficient to drive the plucky Japs out of the mountainous regions of Manchuria. So that peace to Russia, if at not too great a cost in honor, would be a boon, while to Japan it would be a blessing, as they are short of money, and find it hard to get sufficient funds. With the war continuing the commerce of the world is unsettled. In view of this state of affairs it is to be expected that the other powers will endeavor to bring about a settlement as speedily as is possible.

ANOTHER evidence that the Japanese are a wonderful people is shown in that on Oct. 4th the commander-in-chief, General Kuroki, was killed by a bursting shell at Liaoyang. Since then the battle was fought that has placed the armies as they are at the Shakhe river. The Japs demonstrated that they could fight without him, when all the world supposed he was the leading spirit of the whole army, then they told of his death.

Signs of the Times.

1. Is it not evident to the most casual observer, that these are times of excessive worldliness? Gain and gayety are the two grand idols of the age. Together they enthrall the hearts, absorb the energies, and command the homage of the multitude. Everywhere men are in haste to be rich, and utterly unscrupulous as to the means used to secure the boon. Health is imperiled, physical and mental powers are over-taxed, conscience stifled, character and reputation sacrificed and, most of all to be deplored, the eternal welfare of the soul neglected, in order to gratify a towering ambition, or an insatiable avarice. This spirit is seen in the unseemly scramble for office, in the shameless abuse of power, in the eager pursuit of pleasure, in the prevalence of reckless speculation and grasping selfishness, and in extravagant expenditure of money on costly furniture, needless luxuries, and superfluous dress—in the latter instance not only despising Christian simplicity, but in many cases outraging all propriety and good taste, and displaying complete disregard to health and comfort, so that homage may be rendered at the shrine of fashion. This evil saps the very foundations of society, and awakens suspicion and distrust. It often sunders the dearest and tenderest ties while it perverts and degrades the noblest gifts. It is especially fraught with peril to man's spiritual welfare. Its very essence is forgetfulness of God, and of eternity. Of it come science without faith, politics without principle, business without conscience, literature without holiness, pleasure without purity, in short, man without God. It invades even the sanctity of the Christian church, to tarnish its purity and impair its strength. It produces among professing Christians a regard for talent, rather than piety; for costly church edifices, wealthy congregations, and showy forms, rather than the simplicity of Christ, the spirituality of the believer, the rescue of sinners from eternal perdition. To a Christian mind such a spectacle is truly painful. To note its character and effects, and apply its remedy is the aim of all who desire the true prosperity of our country, and the eternal well being of souls.

2. Are not these, also, times of widespread immorality? This may be inferred from what we have already observed. For where there is excess in worldliness, there will invariably be laxity in morals. If, instead of the general truth, high toned principle, and a regard for the general weal, society is governed by time serving expediency, self interest and sensual gratification, then it must become essentially corrupt; evil of every grade must flourish and prevail. Is it not even so in our midst? We appeal to the state of things around us for proof. What do we see? Suicide treading in the steps of murder; drunkenness, profanity, and Sabbath desecration jostling each other; the innocent and unwary decoyed from the paths of virtue and honor to a course of infamy and shame; life and property constantly imperiled; and crime following crime in quick and alarming succession. What do we see? Speculation tampering with dishonesty, and bribery catering to theft; the public purse rifled for private or party ends, or for sectarian purposes; the press, designed to be the fount of knowledge, the exponent of truth and the guardian of virtue, is often used to gratify a vitiated taste, or disseminate a vile and godless literature. In view of such scenes the true patriot will mourn, and the Christian will take shelter in the pavilion of Divine sympathy.

What Do Our Prayers Men?

In our moments of deepest devotion we have comfort in the thought that we are priveleged to be one with God in Christ. Yet, is it not well that, even when we feel nearest to God in His service, God never treats us as we often treat Him? How sad it would be for us if God should accept our standard of faithfulness as the one to which He would conform! Quaint old Thomas Fuller says: "Lord, this day I disputed with myself, whether or not I had said my prayers this morning. * * Yet, at last I hardly recovered one token, whence I was assured that I had said my prayers. It seems I had said them, and only said them, rather by heart than with my heart. Can I hope that Thou wouldst remember my prayers, when I had almost forgotten that I had prayed?" Do we always recall our prayers, because of their really meaning something? Do we even recall God's especial answer to our most recent prayers?

Poetry.

Would I Be Missed?

I wonder if 'twould matter much
If I some day should fold my hands
And never more a task should touch
So long as the glass the sands
Should run for me—I wonder would
The world be just as fair and good?

If I some day should stay my feet
That know the path of duty plain,
And selfish, wander from the beat,
The haunts of soul, the cries of pain,
And prosper self in solitude—
Would I be missed for my lost good?

If I should some day steel my heart
To answer neither plead nor prayer;
Refuse to do my little part,
Of my best good refuse to share
With some one who was sick and poor;
Be deaf to cries outside my door,

Would all these count for very much?
Or, would some little place in life
Be yearning for a soothing touch
To calm the restlessness of strife?
Would some one miss me if I stayed,
Or from the path of duty strayed?

I need no answer to my thought,
No one need tell me aye or nay;
The answer comes unbid, unsought—
It is to live from day to day
As 'twere the last with God in sight,
And love and kindness infinite.

National Berean Association, of Cleveland, Ohio.

The twenty-third regular meeting of the National Berean Association was held Tuesday evening Oct. 11, at the home of Mrs. Conant, a friend of our Brother James Thompson.

Both President and Vice President being absent, the Secretary, Sister Bessie Nichols took charge. The meeting was opened with a hymn and prayer. Nine members responded to the roll call. The minutes of the previous meeting were read and approved of by the society. Dues were collected amounting to $1.05.

Brother Geo. Neill made a suggestion that the meetings be changed to three weeks meetings instead of monthly, same to be acted upon at the next meeting.

Brother James Thompson read a letter from Miss Whitehead of Chicago in which she asked the Bereans to aid Sister Ruth Smith, also of Chicago. It is feared an amputation of one leg is necessary. The Society's funds being very low it was moved and seconded that each of the members make a personal donation of what they could toward aiding her, and report to Brother Thompson, he having been appointed to attend to same.

The business of the meeting having been dispensed with the subject for the evening was taken up. Sister Jennie Salisbury, as leader. The subject was a continuation of the "Life of Paul."

The society had the pleasure of a visit from Sister Lang.

Meeting adjourned to meet Tuesday evening, Nov. 8, at the home of Brother and Sister Pott. Hoping all is well at Plymouth, and that you will publish the above report, also essay as soon as possible, we are,

Yours in the service of the Lord,
S. P. GROVES, Cor. Sec.

RICHES.

The Word does not make any very specific arguments concerning the reasons for its being so difficult for a rich man to get into the kingdom, but nevertheless, prophets, disciples, apostles and Christ all warn against riches in no uncertain terms.

Certain it is, that those of God's children who have been blessed by him with an abundance of the world's goods, have increased temptations of all kinds, and much more, have increased responsibility to him for their stewardship.

I can see no justification in the accumulation of more than we need unless it be with a certain end in view of bettering others than ourselves. After discoursing on the evils of wealth and stating that "the love of money is the root of all evil;" which some have coveted after, and have been "Seduced from the faith," Paul tells Timothy, and us as well, to "flee these things and follow after righteousness."

However, we have examples of rich men, of whom David was chief, whose lives were approved by God. Joseph of Arimathea, called by Matthew a disciple of Jesus, was a rich man, and great will his reward be if the uses to which he put his wealth were all inspired by a love such as prompted him to the purchase of the body of his dear Lord.

Probably the chief danger lies in the "deceitfulness of riches" as Christ says. They seem to promise so much more than they are worth in the sight of God. They promise us power to do service for God that we imagine we can't do without them; but carefully analyzed, this often resolves itself into a selfish longing for the honor received from those we hope to benefit.

Any selfish reasons for the attainment of riches brings one within the scope of God's anger, for the fool "that layeth up treasure for himself," Christ says, "and is not rich toward God" will find his soul required of him.

What does being "rich toward God" mean? If God gives us an income of $10000.00 a year, can $1.00 a Sunday be considered the most that is required of one? Did any one ever experience any feeling of loss when, even in the straits of poverty, a tenth was given to his service? If one can give a tenth of a small income then surely a greater tithe ought to be rendered from a large income. This then is one of the dangers of abundance,—the failure to render unto God his due of that he has given.

Another danger of riches is the looking down upon those in poorer circumstances. Unconsciously this seems to steal into the habits of even the best intentioned, for there comes a shrinking from association with poverty readily discerned.

It cannot be conceived that a true child of God can hold in various degrees of esteem those of equal spiritual attainment.

One danger of riches is that their attainment may be the result of misfortune and impoverishment of others. Things sanctioned by the business world are by no means always sanctioned of God. It seems impossible now-a-days to attain worldly success without descending to many business intrigues. As one's wealth increases to any appreciable extent, investments must be made, that, when resolved into their details means oppression and injustice.

Wealth brings us more into touch with worldly men, and associations always have their influence upon one. If wealth comes as the result of sales of goods, merchandise, land, or any other commodity, upper-most, generally, is the constant effort to sell regardless of the desires or needs of those who buy. Never does a merchant underestimate his goods, and the conclusion is obvious that the reverse is generally true.

Riches give their possessor a confidence in their worldly future—and alas, the one great future is too often forgotten. When one knows that in the bank are funds sufficient for all earthly needs, there is no longer the incentive for earnest communion with God regarding our daily needs and wants, and, with the satisfaction of bodily wants, comes a dulling of the keen edge of hope for the coming of the Lord.

The rich have a much greater circle of acquaintances among whom to spread the truth, but too often the result of constant association with worldly friends lessens the brilliancy of the light which ought to thereby shine the brighter.

The "foolish and hurtful lusts" which Paul tells us, drown "rich men in destruction" can be conceived to be largely those of emulation. There is always something that is wanting, possessed by those of a little more wealth, and so, step by step, covetousness creeps in and spirituality creeps out.

A rich man is never certain of his friends and with misfortune, learns sadly that it was his possessions his friends loved and not himself.

If in this world much of comfort and honor be received, what right need one expect in the next world to be placed above or even equal to those who have in this world suffered long and patiently in the service of their Lord. Christ says "Woe unto you that are rich for ye have received your consolation." Luke vi. 24.

In conclusion, let us quote Solomon: "He that maketh haste to be rich shall not be unpunished." Prov. xxviii. 20.

"A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor than silver or gold."

"For we have brought nothing into this world, and it is certain that we can carry nothing out. And having food and raiment let us therewith be content." 1 Tim. vi. 7, 8.

Quotation from H. W. Beecher:—"You know that the devil spins silk as well as hemp or flax; and when he wants to catch a trout that will not bite where it can see the line, he spins a line so fine that it cannot be seen, and puts the bait at the end of it and with the devil at the end of the rod, it is as when a man is going to make money for the sake of being good with it. If ever there is a time when Satan laughs and says, I have caught a gudgeon, it is then."

"If a man is ever drawn into the net of the evil one, it is when he gives up his conscience, his moral sense, and his self respect, cutting his manliness through and through that he may have the means of acting more manly. There are multitudes of instances in which every man, first or last, is brought under circumstances where he is tempted to succeed at the sacrifice of moral scruples, on the ground that when he has gained success he will then be in a situation to act in accordance with moral principles."

JOHN LYONS.

Thoughts of Jesus the Christ.

We are living in a time when there is a vast difference of opinion as to the paternity of the Lord Jesus, and the purpose for which he was sent into the world. The teaching and influence of men differ so widely, that some honest men and women are led away from the truth, while others are confused and know not what to do. Still there are those who like the noble Bereans, readily receive the Word of the Lord, and daily search the Scriptures for proof of a sure foundation for their faith and hope.

God's Word is infallible. It alone will stand the trial against every doctrine not in harmony with its teaching. In this brief article we will only be able to give a few testimonies bearing on this vital subject. Should these thoughts elicit such interest as to cause further investigation of the Life-giving Word, my effort in writing will be amply repaid.

First let us ask Who is Jesus? What think ye of him? An angel appeared to a virgin with the message, "Fear not Mary, for thou hast found favor with God. And behold, thou shalt conceive, and shalt bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest, and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David, and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever, and of his kingdom there shall be no end."

When she wondered how these things could be, as she was unmarried, and pure, the angel answered, "The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Most High shall overshadow thee; wherefore also that which is to be born shall be called holy, the Son of God." R. V.

We see she acquiesced to these things in these words, "Behold the handmaid of the Lord, be it unto me according to thy Word."

Turn now to Gal. iv. 4, for corroborating evidence. "When the fullness of the time came, God sent forth his Son, born of a woman, born under the law, that we might receive the adoption of sons." R. V. The King James' V. renders this "made of a woman," which perhaps more nearly conveys the meaning of the promise made to her, who was first in the transgression, that her seed should bruise the head of the serpent—Sin.

Do we gather from this testimony ought else but that Jesus is the Son of God?

In Matthew we have further corroborations, proof as to this vital truth. Joseph the affianced husband of Mary being a just man and unwilling to expose her, purposed to divorce her privily; but while he was reflecting on these things, behold, an angel of the Lord appeared unto him in a dream, saying, "Joseph, son of David, fear not to take unto thee M. y, thy affianced wife; for that thing found in her is by the Holy Spirit. She will bear a Son, and thou shalt call his name Jesus; for he will save his people from their sins." Diaglott.

Notwithstanding this array of testimony, there are those who aver that he is not begotten of spirit power, but that he is the natural son of Joseph.

But to make this theory plausible God's Word of truth is mutilated. The word of the angel to Mary and the word of the Lord to Joseph must needs be taken away. We are pained at this effort, but take comfort in the Spiritual Word which says, "The words of the Lord are pure words; as silver tried in a furnace of earth, purified seven times. "Thou shalt keep them, O Lord, thou shalt preserve them from this generation forever."

If God be robbed of the rich testimony given by Matthew and Luke, Isaiah's prophetic word stands unmolested to prove Jesus is Immanuel—the Son of a virgin. Hear also the reply of Peter to the Master's question, "Whom say ye that I am?" "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." And Jesus answered and said unto him, "Blessed art thou Simon Bar-jonah; for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven." May we not say with the apostle Paul, If God be for us who can be against us?

Why was Jesus born? Let us next consider, the Father sent him. John xvii. 18. He was sent that the world through him might be saved, "For God so loved the world that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." He is the Light of the world. He is the true bread from heaven, sent of the Father. Of himself he testifies, This is the bread which cometh down from heaven, that a man may eat thereof and not die. I am the living bread which came down from heaven, if any man eat of this bread he shall live forever; and the bread that I will give is my flesh, which I will give for the life of the world. This is the new and living way. By it we are sanctified through the offering of the body of Jesus Christ once for all. John testifies that he is the Lamb of God which taketh away the sin of the world. Profound indeed is the thought herein expressed. It brings us to the truth that he gave his life a ransom for all. 1 Tim. ii. 6.

We will at present pass over the commandments needful to be obeyed in order that mortal man may avail himself of the shed blood of the Redeemer. John speaking not to the world, but to those who have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine delivered them, says, "Whosoever believeth that Jesus is the Christ is born of God, and every one who loveth him that begat, loveth him also that is begotten of him." * * * "Who is he that overcometh the world, but he that believeth that Jesus is the Son of God." A dissenting voice might inquire, Is not Jesus often called the Son of Man? Yes, from his own lips we frequently have this appellation. It is well that he thus modestly styles himself; for there are some in this age who do not acknowledge that he is David's Son, but declare that he is God—coetaneous with the Father. Let all who know and revere the truth not stumble at the testimony which is to convince that came in the flesh, and that he was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death. "Every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God; and every spirit that confesseth not that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is not of God; and this is the spirit of antichrist, whereof ye have heard that it should come." He was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death; and, he also was declared to be the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead. Did his power begin here? No, verily no. He first manifests his power by his ability to withstand temptation. Then in his service of healing and restoring life, he proved he had power transcendent. But when he was raised to immortal life he said to his apostles, ALL POWER in heaven and in earth is given unto me. This shows how "he was declared to be the Son of God with power by a resurrection from the dead." And as the Diaglott rendering throws some light on this mooted question we here give Rom. i. 1-4, "I Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, constituted an apostle, set apart for the glad tidings of God, which was previously announced through his Prophets in the Holy Scriptures,—concerning that Son of his, who was born of the posterity of David as to the flesh, who was designated the Son of God in power as to the Spirit of Holiness by his resurrection from the dead, Jesus Christ our Lord." These are days of trial—the sifting age. Let us not make shipwreck of our faith by following this or that wind of doctrine. Instead let our faith be a shield against every enemy to the truth. Let us brighten our armor and may we by it be strong in the Lord.

MRS. E. R. BOYER.

Jesus was condemned to death on a charge of blasphemy, because he said he was the "Son of God." If he had remained dead, the sentence was a righteous one. But he arose from the dead, and thus vindicated forever the fair name of Mary, the Jewish maiden; for beyond question nothing less than "the power of the Highest" could have made her the mother of the Conqueror of death and hades. Thus also are his wondrous words and "mighty acts" established; for no one can consistently accept the fact of his resurrection, and deny the record of his life and the authority of his words. If he broke the bands of death asunder, it proves that his life was sinless, and that God recompensed him according to his righteousness, and the cleanness of his hands. Psa. xviii. 7-24.

Is Christ Really to Return?

Voices of the Old Testament prophets blended in harmonious unison in heralding the first advent of the Messiah, while the rich, melodious voices of the heavenly host chanted in glorious unison the matchless tidings of his birth. That he has come, there can be no doubt; angels, shepherds, kingly visitors from afar, a thousand slaughtered innocents shedding their blood on Rachel's heart-stone, all bear witness to the fact of his birth in Bethlehem of Judea.

He came, and for thirty years this sin cursed earth knew the presence of divinity, and marked in the sand of the desert, 'mid the flowers of the valley, on the rocks of the mountains, in the sand of the seashore, and on the wind-tossed waves of Galilee, the footprints of those travel-stained feet, which stand upon the very throne of the Eternal One. Favored by the land of his nativity, doubly blessed were those who lived in that oriental land during those years. Thrice blessed, those whose lives yielded to the uplifting influence of his presence; and yet for the comfort of the countless millions who were denied these privileges, he said: "Blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed."

The sands that have washed in the footprints
Of the Stranger on Galilee's shore;
And the voice that once stilled the rough billows
Is heard in Judea no more.

He came as all children come, wearing the white robe of innocence. He traversed the rugged pathway of our life experience, as none other ever has, wearing the white robe of innocence through the years of his mature life. He died, the just for the unjust. He rose from the grave, triumphing over all the power of the enemy; and ascended into heaven itself, there to appear in the presence of God for us. Yes, he has gone, but has he gone for aye? Has his foot pressed for the last time the soil of the first dominion? Is earth which witnessed his humiliation, never to see ought of his glory? Ah! no. From his own precious lips we have the comforting assurance, "I will come again."

Rejoice, O earth, and let these words of hope be graven on thy highest cliffs. Rejoice, ye sons of men, and send this ray of light to earth's remotest shore. Let the soft zephers of the summer whisper it, as they bring refreshing coolness to our fevered brows. Let the lightning flash this message upon the blackness of the storm cloud, as in Belshazzar's day. Let it take the wings of the morning and fly to the uttermost parts of the earth, till all shall grasp the eternity of blessing which those words presage. "I will come again."

Is Christ really to return? How strange that such a question should be raised; but doubly strange that the daughter of Jerusalem, to whom the return of the heavenly Bridegroom means so much, should ever ask this doubting question. Yet, today the question is on her lips, and other lovers, sighing for her hand, offer a thousand senseless reasons for the continued absence of her Princely Lover. Trust him, O Virgin Daughter, and turn the ear of deafness to the whisperings of those who would lure thee to thy ruin. Believe his word. "I will come again, and receive you unto myself, that where I am, there ye," my waiting bride "may be also."—H. E. Thompson in World's Crisis.

"Love Your Enemies."

A little girl asked, "What is love?" thought a moment, then with a bright face said, "I think love is a little bit of God in our hearts."

A slave, much beloved by his master and high in his confidence, saw in the slave market, a negro whose gray head and bent form showed the feebleness of extreme age. He implored his master to purchase him. Much surprised he bought him and took him to the estate. There he who had plead for him took him to his own cabin, put him in his own bed, fed him at his own board, gave him water from his own cup; when he shivered carried to the sunshine, when he drooped from the heat took him to the shade. Seeing his devotion one asked him, "Is he your father?" "No." "Your brother?" "No." "Your friend?" "No—he is my enemy. Years ago he sold me into slavery."

It is said that when Spurgeon was living at Nightingale Lane, Clapham, he was much troubled by a dog that visited his garden and destroyed his flower beds. He determined to watch for the animal and give him a warm reception. One morning seeing the dog in the garden, he picked up a stout walking stick and hid behind some trees to watch his opportunity. When the dog came near he threw the stick at him which instead of hitting the dog spent its force in the air. The dog ran for the stick, picked it up and brought it to Spurgeon. His wrath was disarmed. He could not strike the dog who has thus humbly brought the stick that was thrown at him. So taking the stick with one hand, he patted the dog with the other, saying, "Good fellow! good fellow!"

Suffer a double evil rather than revenge a single wrong. Rather let an injury be repeated than retaliate. The law of revenge belongs to the world. Such maxims as "Give him as good as he sends," or "Pay him back in his own coin," are not in harmony with Christian principle.

A brother and a sister sat side by side in school. The little boy, vexed with his sister, struck her a blow. She raised her hand to strike back, when the teacher, catching her eye, said, "Stop, my dear, better kiss your brother than strike him." The look and the word touched the little child's heart. Her hand dropped, and throwing her arms around her brother's neck kissed him. The boy was moved. The kiss was so unexpected. Tears rolled down his face. The child wiped them away with her little handkerchief, but they flowed the faster. He was completely subdued.—Word and Work.

There is safety in the love of truth; and why should not every person love the truth? The truth is light in the darkness; it is beautiful; it is glorious; it is the expression of the perfect character of him who is "chiefest among ten thousand and altogether lovely." Why should not every one who can love that which is lovely, love the truth of God which is now sent out in a final message of mercy and salvation? If we love the truth, we shall not be idle in this hour of its final conflict with the world's confederacy of evil.

Report.

Dear brothers and sisters.

The brethren at Freedom, Neb. have just had the pleasure of hearing the truth delivered by Bro. W. L. Crowe. Meeting commenced Oct. 28, and lasted till Sunday night Nov. 6. It did our hearts good, and we feel strengthened.

Brother Crowe's visit was so short we hope he will come back again and preach for us. None obeyed, yet some were almost persuaded to put Christ on by baptism, as Brother Crowe was so zealous for the truth.

We are few in numbers at Freedom, and have been very negligent in our duty for the Lord. How anxious we ought to be, for a crown of life will be bestowed upon each one of his faithful coworkers when he comes to make up his special treasures. Oh, that I may be one of his own, and that he will only come soon.

Yours in hope.
F. E. SELLECK.

Obituary.

Died at her home at Correctionville, Iowa, Mrs. Jane Parslow, in her 79th year.

Our Sister Parslow united with the Church in the town of Albany, Wis. in 1860. She had been ailing for a number of years with a complication of diseases which finally terminated in pneumonia. Her trust was in her Savior till the end, but the last enemy that will be destroyed is death.

Our Helping Fund.

We whose names are given herewith, believing that it is our duty to provide a fund to be used in sending THE RESTITUTION to those too poor to pay for it themselves, do cheerfully give the amount set opposite our names for the purpose of aiding the managers of the paper to supply the needy ones. This fund to be applied as the donors request, (or when left to the publisher to decide) only for those who themselves state their circumstances and need, or whose case is presented by some one known to be trust worthy.

The December Delineator, with its message of good cheer and helpfulness will be welcomed in every home. The fashion pages are attractive, and the literary and pictorial features are of rare excellence. There are many features that make this number specially valuable. The many Christmas suggestions given in needlework, and the cookery pages are redolent of the Christmas feast. The regular departments are all there, with other special articles on topics of interest to women and the home.

Wisdom of Seirach.

CHAPTER 48.

1. And Eelias a prophet like fire arose, and his word burned like a lamp.

2. And he led upon them a famine, and with his zeal he made them few in number.

3. In a word of the Lord he shut up the heavens; in this wise he three times led down fire.

4. How Eelias was glorified in thy wondrous acts, and who like to thee is there to boast himself?

5. He who awoke a dead man from death and from Hadees (the grave) with a word of a Most High.

6. Who lead down kings to loss and was glorified from their couch.

7. Who heareth reproof on Sina and judgments of requital rendered on Chooreeb.

8. Who anointeth kings for repayment and prophets for his successors.

9. Who was taken up in an upward —sweeping hurricane of fire in a chariot of fiery horses.

10. Who wrote down in the way of reproofs for appointed times to allay wrath before anger and to turn the heart of father to son and to restore the tribes of Jakoob.

11. Blessed-happy are those who saw thee and who were set in true order with loving; yea, indeed we shall live with life.

12. Eelias who was sheltered in a hurricane, and Elisaie who was filled with his spirit, and who in his days was not moved by a ruler, and no one asserted ability over him.

13. No word went beyond him and when he lay down to sleep (in death) his body prophesied.

14. And in his life he caused prodigies and in his end his deeds were wondrous.

15. With all these the laity did not repent, and did not stand away from their sins until they were ravished away from their land and scattered in all the earth, and the laity were left very few in number, and a ruler for the house of David.

16. Some of them did that which was pleasing and some of them multiplied sins.

17. Ezekias made a wall for his city and led Goog into their midst; he dug a precipitous place with iron, and built fountain-heads for waters.

18. In his days went up Sennacheegim and he sent Hrapeaake and he took them (the water-sources) away; and his hand was raised against Sioon, and his supercilliousness became magnified.

19. Then their hearts were moved and their hands, and they suffered birth-pange like women when bringing forth.

20. And they invoked the merciful Lord stretching forth their hands unto him; and the sacred one from heaven quickly hearkened unto them, and he redeemed them by, (in the use of) the hand of Heesaias.

21. His angel smote the camp of the Assurians, and crushed them out.

22. For Ezekias did that which was pleasing to the Lord, and became strong in the ways of David his father which Heesaias the great prophet and faithful in his vision (or way of seeing) had commanded him.

23. In his days the sun held up its foot and he added life to a king.

24. With great spirit he saw the last things and comforted the sorrowing in Sioon.

25. Until the animate-age he showed the things that are to be and the hidden things before they came to pass.

COMMENT.

This chapter is an admirable historical epitome of Israel in the days of Eelias, Elisaie and Heesaias as prophets and "men of God" higher than kings and nearer to God in swaying the affairs of men. What they said "went" as we are told here, no matter what other men, kings, rulers, judges or false prophets said or might say. They of course are types and samples of what "the royal priesthood" as a body will be in the kingdom of the age to come. What is the lesson for us Christians in this far off twentieth century? Are we to reason that these men were naturally wiser and more gifted than their cotemporaries and through their natural talents and ability had pried into the hidden things and become past-masters of "the ocult" as so many in these days of apostasy would have us believe? Not at all. In their meekness and faith, rather they had become responsive to the All-controlling and enabling hand of God and so could be used by him in the councils and counsels of men to work out his great plans and purposes. They were men whose prayer was to do God's will or what is the same thing to be made his intelligent instrumentalities in doing or working it out, and God was satisfied to use them in their day and generation as he would be to use some of us were we like them in true faith and humility.

CHAS. GARDNER.

What We Believe.

"We" are a body of religious people who, as such, "believe" something. We believe the teaching of the Word of God. This is our rule of faith and practice. But what does the Word teach as essential matters of "faith and practice?" Do we as a people uniformly hold to the great foundation principles of faith as set forth in the Word of God? Are our public ministers a unit on the things to be taught and believed in order to salvation? In short: Have we a faith? If so, what is that faith? What does the Word of God teach us as essential to true faith and practice? We have answered these questions in a very concise and yet comprehensive way in the upper right hand corner of our paper, THE RESTITUTION. The object of these lines is to say that, since writing a series of articles for THE RESTITUTION on "What We Believe," quite a number of requests, both verbal and written, have come to the undersigned asking that said articles be published in book form. They will make a book of about 80 pages, making 15 chapters in all. Such a book should sell for 15 cents per copy. Now, brother and sister, this concerns you. Do you desire the publication of this work for distribution among such who ask, "What do you believe?" If so, please write to the undersigned at Plymouth, Ind., saying how many copies you want at 15 cents per copy. Write on postal. Send no money until notice is given that the work will be published.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertised in that.

Have you acquaintances with false hopes of heaven, or who believe themselves immortal by nature, or who think their sins are forgiven, although they are ignorant of the Law of Pardon, or who have no use for a God who consigns sinners to Eternal Torment, and are ignorant of Jehovah's beneficent purpose to fill the earth with his glory and bestow Eternal Life upon believers of the Gospel, so they can enjoy it for ever? One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

PLEASE READ EACH WORD OF THIS.

We have made an agreement with the publishers of "Farm and Fireside," a semi-monthly journal, published at Springfield, Ohio, by which we can present our patrons with that paper for a year entirely free of cost.

Farm and Fireside has from 20 to 32 pages each issue, and is illustrated. It is accredited with having the largest circulation of any home and farm paper in the world. It is a good paper for the farmer, dairyman, stockraiser, poultryman, fruit grower and gardener. The housewife has a department—in short all members of the home are supplied with reading suitable to each one. A sample copy will be sent to you soon.

OUR PROPOSITION.

Our proposition is to send each one of our patrons who pays his subscription up and on to the end of 1905, the Farm and Fireside for a year free of any charge whatever.

This simply gives you the both papers for the price of ours.

There is necessarily a limit to this offer and you will have to act very promptly if you wish to take advantage of it. Our arrangement ends with the month of December. So if you want the Farm and Fireside free for one year, send at once as above, and we will see that you get the two papers.

This applies to new and old subscribers alike. Each one who pays for THE RESTITUTION to the end of 1905 gets the Farm and Fireside as well.

Send as soon as possible, so as to be sure and secure the present we offer. If you are in arrears send the money to cover the delinquency, and send $1.50 for next year, and you get Farm and Fireside absolutely free.

A SECOND PROPOSITION.

In the city of Boston, Mass., is published a monthly journal devoted to education of young and old to the necessity of a humane and merciful treatment of dumb brutes as well as our duty to our fellowman. This paper is called "Our Dumb Animals," and is specially beneficial for the youth of our land, though older people cannot fail to be helped by reading it.

We propose to send Our Dumb Animals free one year to every person sending us a new subscriber for THE RESTITUTION for next year.

Do not misunderstand our offer—

1. Pay all arrears and for 1905 and you get THE RESTITUTION for that time and Farm and Fireside for one year.

2. A new subscriber paying $1.50 for the year 1905, will receive all the papers of 1904 from the time his subscription is in hand, and the full year 1905, and will get Farm and Fireside for one year.

3. Any person sending us $1.50 for a new subscriber for next year, not only entitles such new subscriber to what is mentioned in No. 2, but he will himself get Our Dumb Animals a year free of cost.

Should you wish to do so, you may name any boy or girl you would like to have receive Our Dumb Animals in place of yourself.

If you send two new subscribers as above, you can name some one for each subscriber you send, and Our Dumb Animals will be sent to whomsoever you name.

PHENOMENA OF SPIRITUALISM ACCOUNTED FOR. NO. 5.

Teacher. What was the import of Lesson No. 4?

Bessie. In the close of Lesson No. 4, I called attention to some cases of spectral impressions conveyed to mediums by being placed en rapport, through magnetic or electrical connection, and that by this means the medium could possess herself of all the information of the party she is placed en rapport with. It is also said that she could extend the same through him to all his acquaintances both living and dead.

Q. Will an irritation of the stomach produce spectral impressions?

A. Yes. "Irritation of the stomach will do it. A gentleman in Edinburgh, said that for six weeks he had the appearance of a pig's head sitting upon his left shoulder, so that whenever he looked to that side he saw it staring him in the face. He was suffering from dyspepsia."

Q. Was that the disembodied spirit of a pig?

A. "It was as much the disembodied spirit of a pig, as the spectres seen by mediums are the disembodied spirits of dead men and women, boys and girls, infants and sucklings. When his stomach was restored to healthy action, the pig's ghost vanished from the sensorium, and was consequently dethroned from the gentleman's shoulder; so that when the excitation of the medium's sensory from another cause ceases, the disembodied spirits and all the angels vanish in a trice.

Q. If we reason from cases presented in these lessons cannot we see much light?

A. Yes. "Reasoning from the facts presented in the experiments of the coin, we might argue that the actions of men cause hidden spectral impressions to be made on the external magnetic halo of the earth, which remain after they are dead and long forgotten; so that were the Almighty to breathe upon it with his spirit a man's history (from this book of remembrance) would be evoked like the handwriting on Belshazzar's palace wall. Even these exterior spectral impressions may be discerned by mediums of peculiar sensibility, so that they may perceive scenes after the actors have become quiet. Clairvoyants have seen many things upon this principle."

Q. Can you quote a Bible case?

A. Yes. "Elisha's is a case in point here. The king of Syria warred against Israel, and devised ambuscades for his enemy; but Elisha, who was in Dothan, afar off, warned the king of Israel several times of these ambuscades. The King of Syria suspected treason in his own camp; but he was told by one of his followers that Elisha, the prophet, in Israel, told the king of Israel the words that were spoken in his (the king of Syria's,) own bed-chamber (2 Kings vi. 8) while Elisha at this time was in Dothan. Here the spectral impressions made upon the universal magnetic mirror by the Syrian's words, were breathed or shined upon by God, and evoked by God upon the sensorium of the prophet by the daguerreotypism of his spirit, which gave wings to the matter. This is 'the bird of the air' that reveals even the inmost thoughts of men. Therefore, 'curse not the king; no, not in thy thought; and curse not the rich in thy bed chamber; for a bird of the air shall carry the voice, and that which hath wings shall tell the matter.' Ecc. x. 20. Let no man do WRONG, and say, 'No eye sees me, therefore the offence shall be hid.' Sooner or later his sin may find him out. The impressions of his deeds upon the earth's magnetic halo, may happen to be reproduced upon the sensorium of some sleeping or walking medium; or even stare him in his own face when he shall rise from the dead, and behold his actions written like Belshazzar's doom, on the magnetic page in words of living light."

Q. Is not the second sight of witches of human origin?

A. Certainly "unless God thinks fit to infatuate a people by their own folly and presumption, and so create spectral impressions of things upon the sensoria of their wizards, beyond the range of their own sphere, the second sight of mediums never contemplates ideas, or images, or shadowy forms, which are not purely of human origin. All things they have seen are but the spectral impressions of human thoughts, words or actions. The doctrine they utter is always traceable to some sectarian theosophism—some double-distilled theological foolery, always at variance with the Scriptures.

Q. Is not spirit-worldism merely clerical superstition?

A. "From what I have read of spirit-worldism, I have no hesitation in saying that it is a mere lying divination. Their divinations are not borrowed from the Bible. They are lying rhapsodies—the dark and mulurious thinkings of nervous flesh, rioting in the spectralia of musty theosophisms, talked into it by gospel nullifiers and pulpit mar-texts, of the chairs and sacred desks of Christendom. They talk of separate spirits, which are mere spectral impressions on magnetic haloes, hidden indeed from light-stimulated optics, but disclosed to electro-magnetically excited brains. Such is the phantom-soul, for whose salvation from Pluto's realm of fire and brimstone, the whole machinery of clerical superstition has been erected. A stupendous fabric of moonshine—a pious cheat, for the salvation of a magnetic spectre, and nothing more real."

Q. Are we to understand modern spiritualism to be merely a spectral impression made on the medium's brain?

A. If by a spirit is to be understood no more than a spectral impression on a medium's sensorium, mesmerically evoked by the thinking of a dead-seeker, I grant that such spirits do exist separately from the persons they represent, even as the spectral impression of the coin exists on the glass separately from the coin itself. All the phenomena observed belong to spirits of this class, and only prove their existence under mesmeric citations. I can now see before my recollecting faculty a child of three years old, standing with a ruler in his hand with which he had just struck me over the head. The child, a little brother, has been dead thirty years. I see his image, and if I were placed en rapport with a medium, I could make him see the child's appearance; but would it be logical to conclude that he saw the child himself, or the real individual, which a spirit is supposed to be?"

Q. Is there a difference between the modern spiritualism and the Bible?

A. Yes. The Word of God gives such teaching the lie. It testifies that the 'dead know not anything;' and that 'there is neither knowledge nor wisdom in sheol,' whither we go. Now diviners make this word sheol equivalent to hades, which they say, is the 'place of departed spirits.' Well, let us accept their definition for the present; how then reads the latter text? Even thus: 'There is neither knowledge nor wisdom in the place of the departed spirits,' which theological mesmerists term 'the spirit-world.' This is with me, authority outweighing the testimony of all the spectres in creation, with all the opinions to boot of the many thousand simpletons—judges, lawyers, doctors and preachers, and less distinguished dupes—who vainly imagine they converse with living spirits from the vasty deep.

The clerico-priestly dogmata of immortal disembodied ghosts; heaven in a spirit-world; hell somewhere; and the necessity of faith in these wares, as administered by an ordained ministry, or sacred order, on pain of the soul's exclusion from the joys of one, and eternal fiery torment in the other—are the staff of the spiritual police, which co-operating with the civil authority, keeps the world in awe."

Q. Is not spectral impressions made on the sensorium a sufficient explanation of spiritualism?

A. To my mind the phenomena of spiritualism is more satisfactorily explained by spectral impressions on the sensorium as given in the series of articles just concluded, than it possibly can be under the old idea of attributing the phenomena to supernatural devils, which seems to me too closely allied with the prevalent theological quackery of our day, built upon the theory of disembodied-spiritism, and all the theological rubbish which clusters about it, set forth in their psychological theosophisms by theosophical magicians, whose eyes are blinded to the light of God's glory as revealed in Holy Scripture. Indeed if you sift matters a little you will find them enveloped in darkness almost as dense as that which enveloped the prophets of Baal.

Stand close to the old Book, and then there will be no danger of being led astray by any one of the multitude of religious delusions which now deluge the people. Being perplexed many are becoming skeptical. God's Word is true, it has stood the fiery test of ages, and will guide you safely to the consummation.

The phenomena of spiritualism is explainable on the ground of spectral impressions on the sensorium which has its beginning and ending in the flesh. Disembodied spirits, or supernatural devils have nothing whatever to do with the matter. The scarecrow of a big omnipresent supernatural devil, with his army of lesser supernatural devils, is a relic of superstition and the dark ages of ignorance, and is a companion of the dogma of the supposed existence of dead men's ghosts. Bundle up all the devils and ghosts and relegate them to the dark ages of ignorant superstition where they belong.

This concludes the series, and if our readers will carefully reread the entire series from one to five, they will find clear evidence the phenomena is traceable to spectral impressions which are afterward evoked, and not to disembodied spirits or supernatural devils.

The above series are to appear in the new book entitled, Pine Woods Bible Class.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.
W. A. WILSON.

A Book for the Children.

Dear brothers and sisters:

Having lately received a letter from a sister in Missouri asking this question, "Can you recommend any book or paper for little ones, say from six to ten years old that would help to teach them the truth?" I come to you for aid. We have absolutely nothing. And so to my shame I made answer. What shall we do about it? Is truth of so little value that we stolidly stand still and see the children grow up untaught, to drift back into the churches that so many of us came out of, or to deny God altogether? The grandchildren of our most valued 43 and 44 soldiers, are already becoming Methodists, Presbyterians, etc. And who is to blame? We have Sunday schools, but these schools cannot gather all the children that belong to the members of our faith. There are isolated ones who need literature that will help them in the home-training. Indeed, all need such literature, no matter where their lot is cast. There are nice little papers published, but they are too much on the story order. And there is the catechism written by Carrie Williams, but it is too advanced for the little ones. The demand is for something put in childish language. Who can write such a book? I feel myself utterly incompetent, but will help to pay the cost of printing it when written. I have no children by ties of blood, but the children of God's children, I count as mine. They are all dear to me, I love and want them to have a part in God's country, where no evil thing can come.

We must save them at any cost to ourselves. Our country is being flooded with the "new thought" papers; papers that in a covert and cunning way teach the idolatrous systems of the East, and make people believe they are all gods, and therefore all good. There are already 150 of these papers published in the United States. They are made attractive. The best and most beautiful poems of American writers are quoted in them. They talk devoutly of "piety" and "worship" and "love," but interwoven with it all is the thought that each man, like God, existed in all the "beginningless past," and will exist in all the "endless future," that he "never changes, was never born and will never die," that he is the "everlasting perceived and perceiver, the All in All, under All, above All, through All, for all time, all the love, all the light, all the truth there is in the universe. And therefore able to cause "all pains, woes, anguish and sorrow to cease forever and ever." It is the devil's old lie, "Ye shall be like God," as Adam Clark and the Syriac have it. This is the teaching of Mrs. Eddy and of her followers. They, like the heathen, make magnetism the corner-stone of their religion, not knowing that the devil is back of it all. It is time to sound a note of warning if we would save the children; it is high time that we do something to lead them into the paths of truth and of righteousness.

Have we "been very jealous for the Lord God of Hosts, when the people have forsaken his covenant and thrown down his altars," when in one district forty deserted churches can be counted? When there are "few young men to be found in the house of God, and thousands in the ball field and Sunday theatre?" When family worship is a thing of the past? the theater largely supported by the church? And saloons and drunkenness rapidly on the increase? Have we done all that we ought to have done; are we doing all that we ought to do? The alarming indifference of all classes of people in reference to their future salvation, must have a cause, and if we are to blame an hour is coming when we must give account. The Magazine of Mysteries, calls on all men to "come and be forever free!" And the one who can say, "I am," can also say, "I am freedom." And who, looking at the results ("by their fruits ye shall know them,") will not say, "it is freedom from God's laws, and freedom to do as they please, that these people desire; they do not want to submit to God; they want to drink to their fill of the cup of pleasure. And enjoy to the utmost all that money can buy. The God of the Bible is too exacting, they must have a God of their own—a heathen God. We have wondered often how the Israelites of old were led so easily into idolatry and yet we are being led into it just as rapidly and as easily. A few years ago and such a thing was undreamed of. We ought to scatter eye-openers by the thousand, for by saving the worshipers of false gods we shall save our little ones.

O brethren and sisters, we have no money to waste, not a penny! We can forego the pleasant trip, can do without the useless garments, for the Master's cause is pleading, pleading! There will be some Elijahs, some whose knees have not bowed to Baal in the last day's apostasy—will it be us? Let us show our colors, let us be uncompromising on this question, let us work for God, let us cleave to him, doing all the while all the good we can.

S. ROXANA WINGE.

Thanksgiving.

A day set apart for giving thanks. In how many cases will the thought be carried out. Even the men themselves who have sanctified or set apart this day for a day of thank offering will think more of the turkey they are to have for dinner than of the one who has blessed this whole nation in basket and store, but that will not prevent us offering up to the Father of all mercies the thanks due him for his numerous blessings to us. The Elder and myself feel very thankful to the giver of all good for health and strength sufficient to tell the wonderful truths of the gospel to those who have never heard them before. Think of it, brethren, blessed with hearing the gospel, even once in four weeks, a people who never heard of the resurrection kingdom of God, strangers to the covenants of promise. What a joy to tell them, and that is what we are doing the bright, pretty fall days. We left home Nov. 18th and from Grand Rapids took the P. M. R. R. 194 miles north to Central Lake, then 7 miles by stage, reaching Bro. Henry just dark. He was at the gate to welcome us with, "Well, I am very glad to see you, Bro. and Sister Woodward, come right in." And there was the dear wife and Carrie waiting to give us a real home greeting. It was not five minutes before we realized we had dropped right into another part of the Father's family and felt perfectly at home, and as the conversation proceeded the "trumpet gave no uncertain sound," and they were so anxious for others to hear the glad tidings, that they had loved and contended for for years. Saturday evening we went to the little church, a cosy house belonging to the Congregationalists, which they had kindly let Bro. Chamberlain have for the meetings. A good and attentive congregation listened with wrapt attention to a sermon on the second coming of our Savior to this earth, and every meeting so far has been well attended and people listen as though they had never known these things were in the Bible. The Baptist minister attends nearly all the meetings and takes notes, also some Sabbath keepers. Bro. Chamberlain's son-in-law has a face that tells its own story, shining with joy that is ever new, and then bursts out with rejoicing at being permitted to listen to the gospel, for brethren this brother had never heard a public gospel sermon, but through Bro. Chamberlain and Bro. McCroden of Dutton, who visited here three years ago, he saw the truth and went to Grand Rapids to be buried into the Christ by Bro. Hoyt. His family and Bro. Chamberlain's being the only ones in the faith here. They have never before had any gospel sermons preached here, and brethren, like Paul of old, we ask your earnest prayers that the Word of God may fall upon good ground, and some be brought into a saving knowledge of the truth. This little town is situated at the head of Torch Lake 18 miles long by from 1 to 2½ miles wide. It is said to be the most beautiful lake in the world, save one in Switzerland. It is made of springs, the water being so clear that fish are plainly seen moving on the bottom many feet below its surface—white fish, brook trout, bass, suckers, etc. are caught in quantities in the fishing season. This lake is only a few rods from Bro. Chamberlain's on the east, and climbing a hill at the west we have a fine view of Grand Traverse bay and with a spy or field glass we bring Fox islands very near to our view. It must be very pretty here in the summer. Truly God has given us many things to be thankful for.

M. A. WOODWARD.

Married.

On Thursday, November 24th, at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Josephine Marsh, in Marshalltown, Iowa, the writer united in marriage Mr. George L. Frank, aged 26, of Manchester, and Sister Orissa B. Marsh, aged 21, of Marshalltown. Mr. Frank is a steady, industrious, young creamery-man, and is highly respected in the community in which he has lived since childhood. The bride, who is the only sister of the writer of this notice, was baptized into the all-saving name of Jesus by Bro. W. L. Crowe, during the Conference held at Waterloo, in 1900. May the blessing of our heavenly Father and the abiding fellowship of Christ continue with them both through this life and at last unite them forever in the kingdom of God, clothed in the glorious garments of immortality.

G. ELDRED MANER.

The Restitution.

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel; the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

WE OFFER A CHANCE.

We offer again this coming year to go halves with any one wishing to do Missionary work.

For $1.00 we will send THE RESTITUTION to a new name for a year.

For $5.00 we will send THE RESTITUTION to 6 new names for a year.

For $10.00 we will send THE RESTITUTION to 13 new names for a year.

There is no better way to spread the truth than sending a periodical to a person whom you wish to interest. It talks when and where you cannot, and coming each week is better than a book. A sermon is heard and perhaps forgotten. A paper is repeatedly before one. Do not neglect the minister, of course, but give this branch of work consideration. Do you know a friend whom you would like to meet in God's kingdom? What amount of money would you willingly give to accomplish this end? Make a list of persons and send in at once, and so sow the seed—God will give the increase.

A LETTER dated at Roll, Ind., is signed "Mrs." If the sender will kindly supply the rest of her name, we will fill the order.

IN the far east the war simply progresses. The Japs have taken another one of the forts at Port Arthur. There is more or less fighting each day in Manchuria, with honors about equal so far as reports go.

It is given out that the Sultan of Turkey has notified Russia that her Black Sea fleet will not be allowed to pass the Dardanelles.

Selected.

In Memoriam.

"If a man die, shall he live again?" is the oldest question on record. It is from the oldest book (Job. xiv: 14). The clause which follows is rendered in the Septuigint Version, "All the days of my appointed time I will wait, till I shall exist again (hypomeno heos palin genomai)." Away back in those primitive ages, believers in God seem to have had no very clear conception of future existence. The heathen, it is true speculated much about the soul's immortality, and according to Herodotus, the Egyptians were the first who taught such a doctrine, as they first practiced circumcision, and had their priesthood and cherubim. The Israelites, under Moses, were wont to borrow from them whatever they deemed fit and proper to strengthen the Theocratic idea in the people's minds, and to inspire them with hope; but they never told them once the dead were still alive, and in happiness or misery, but in Sheol. The meaning of this term, which, however, came not from the same source, is important. It does not signify the grave (for which there is another word—keber, the equivalent of mnemeion in Greek), nor heaven, hell, purgatory, limbo nor paradise. It meant originally and ideally the death-state, answerable to the N.T. Hades, in which all mankind, good and bad, were destined to enter at death. (See the margin of Revised Version in Gen. xxxvii: 35.) Gesenius defines it, "Hades, a place in which the dead are gathered together," and adds: I have no doubt that it is for sheol, a hollow and subterranean place." Others derive it from shaal, to beg, to crave, to ask: for which reason it is said, that "Sheol and Abaddon [i. e. destruction] are never satisfied." (Prov. xxvii: 20; Ps. xlix: 14; Job. xxxiv: 19, in the R. V.) Kitto says, on the word Hades (for we are speaking of both terms), that it means, "literally, that which is in darkness;" and Parkhurst: "Obscure, dark, invisible, from a negative, an idein to see." So Liddell and Scott, adding: "The netherworld, the grave, death"; and on Erebos: "A place of nether darkness, just above the still deeper Hades." Ergo, these terms never take the plural, like keber and mnemeion; nor have they the traditional divisions, of Hellenic and latter-day theology, for two classes of souls. Observe also, that in Isa. xxxviii: 10, 11, Sheol is the antithesis of "the land of the living;" and the margin: "I shall behold man no more while I am among them that have ceased to be." This recalls what Job said about "waiting until he should exist again." (Compare Ps. cxvi: 9). We read in Sam. ii: 6, that "the Lord killeth, and maketh alive: he bringeth down to Sheol, and bringeth up." Note here, and wherever location is referred to in Scripture, that Sheol (Hades) is always down, never up. "And thou Capernaum, shalt thou be exalted unto heaven? Thou shalt go down unto Hades." (R. V. in Matt. xi: 23. Comp. Num. xvi: 30, 33.) "Deeper than Sheol;" "they went down alive into Sheol;"—"Sheol from beneath;"—"though they dig into Sheol," &c., are decisive with regard to the Hebrew idea of location, which they spoke of as subterranean. The 31 renderings of "hell," in the O. T., are all from the Hebrew Sheol, whose meaning we have discovered; and we therefore look in vain for any such place therein, distinct from the general receptacle of the dead, where "silence" prevails (P. xxxi: 17; cxv: 17; where, for "silence," the Sep. has hades.) In the language of Prof. Ives, of Yale College, "We perceive that Sheol means not the separate grave of each individual, a different Hebrew word expresses that thought; but that it is a general term for the state of all the dead, whether they lie in careful sepulchre, or, as Jabob imagined of Joseph, torn and devoured by the beasts of the field. And this general state of the dead, in Oriental imagination, was conceived of as a vast pit in the darkness of the lower parts of the earth; a vast burying-place, or more correctly cemetery (Gr. Koimeterion, a sleeping chamber), beneath the home of the living," etc. ("Bible Doctrine of The Soul," p. 101.)

The ancients, therefore, I say, had no right conception of future existence, though they believed in the doctrine. They trusted in the promise of God, that He would "redeem their souls from the hand of Sheol," and even destroy it, as Hosea and John declare (Ho. xiii: 14; Rev. xx: 14;; but it was left for Him "who abolished death" to "bring life and incorruption to light through the gospel," and at the end of the world; to bestow those favors upon the righteous. (Luke xx: 34—36; Rom. ii: 5; 2 Tim. i: 10.) The Sadducees did not believe in future existence of any kind; the doctrine of the Pharisees, as shown by Prideaux from Josephus, was one with the Egyptotic Pythagorean transmigration of souls from one body to another; and nothing that has as yet been taught by the surrounding nations, at all answered to the "life and immortality" which the Messiah (Christ) first disclosed during His public ministry. The serpent's lie had been echoed for ages, when "darkness covered the earth, and gross darkness the people;" and poets, and "Doctors of the Church," even, have rejected their compass, and thereby made shipwreck of the truth, with the deception, that "there is no death" —no punishment for sin in Adam, but immediate felicity of the "imprisoned soul," as taught by the Gnostics and Manichees. If we read, that this or that man was "gathered unto his fathers," we recognize at once a proverbial expression, relative to one's being buried, or simply numbered therewith, as (Gen. xv: 15; 2 Kings xxii: 20; and 2 Chron. xxxiv: 28 most clearly evidence. The argument from science too (for there is a very serious one indeed) may not be unworthy of passing notice here. Agreeably to modern discovery, the Bible teaches expressly, that "one spirit" (ruach, called "the spirit of lives," in Gen. ii: 7: vii: 21,) pervades the entire kingdom of sentient existence, but "returns to God" (ceases to operate under the fiat of His will) at each one's death (Job xxxiv: 14; Eccl. xii: 7.) Good or bad, whether it be that of a Jeremiah or a Judas, it returns obediently to God. The mental endowment, therefore, differs only in degree from animalcules to man, the principle of life being the same in all; and there are not wanting those among the last named who would be accounted brutes and very much worse off, if their bodies correspond more closely with their pitiable lack of necessary intelligence. Moreover, the mind germs and develops; has its periods or stages of infancy and decay; and for these reasons it cannot be immortal, but is the result of conditions and circumstances, without which it cannot subsist a moment. Rub two pebbles together in the dark, and we obtain light. So the union of "spirit" and organized matter, in manifold forms and ways, produces mind and sensation, and all the phenomena of the animal and vegetable world. "No brain, no thought," is an axiom of the soundest philosophy; and consequently no demonstration of the independent existence of the five senses after death can be expected from that source. (See particularly Ps. cxlvi: 4; and lxxxviii. 10-12, with cxv: 17.) The celebrated Martyn Paine, M. D., wrote elaborate treatises against the authors of materialistic science of the last century, to prove the distinct and substantive nature of the human soul; but confesses after all that its immortality (and as a matter of course, its separate and independent existence) is "insusceptible of demonstration." ("Phys. of Soul and Instinct," p. 89, Harper and Bros.) Upon no other grounds than the presence of an universal life-force (demonstrated by Dods and Faraday,—call it electricity, ether, or what not), can telepathy and clairvoyance be accepted as at all possible.

It warms the sun, refreshes every breeze,
Glows in the stars, and blossoms in the trees;
Lives through all life, extends through all extent,
Spreads undivided, operates unspent:
Breathes in our souls, informs our mortal part,
As full, as perfect, in a hair as heart.

What, then, be it asked with all candor, is the believer's hope, when death has robbed him of a beloved father, mother, consort, or other relative or friend that is dear to his heart, and who lives in the record of a godly and well-ended life? The curious are anxious to know—it is reasonable for them to inquire—what becomes of "the traveler who never returns," despite our hopes and tears, no matter how much we pray. The stubbornness of this cold fact has led many to deny future existence altogether, while others see therein a solution identical with the eschatological teaching of Paul and Jesus, and all the inspired penmen before and after them. That solution inheres in the Christian doctrine—the fundamental doctrine—of The Resurrection of the Dead, without which, according to reason and Revelation, there can be no future life, no individuality, no personal identity or sameness. Hence the Scriptures in a great variety of places speak of death as a "sleep," and that, not because there has been no interruption of life in the article, but because there is to be in a certain, mystical sense, an "awakening." "How are the dead awakened [egeirontai] and with what manner of body do they come?" writes Paul in 1 Cor. xv: 35. Bishop Kip says, on The Catacombs: "Death was to them [the first Christians] like sinking to a gentle slumber; and often, this is the only idea expressed in their short epitaphs."—The only idea! All the dead from Adam down are, therefore, in the death-state, their souls and bodies sharing alike the consequences of the dissolution. Their next conscious moment like the twinkling of an eye, to them is their revivification and reunion in the "habitable age to come." If there is no time without motion (and Aristotle illustrates this by the example of those who were fabled to have slept in the temple of the heroes, and who, on awaking, imagined that the moment in which they awake had succeeded without an interval to that in which they fell asleep), there is no sensible difference in Hades, or Sheol, between a moment and a million of years. When we recognize non-existence as not such a terrible thing after all, the reluctance of entering a temporary state, allied thereto, at once vanishes in thin air. Time, like space, is purely relative, the one having no more extension than the other, apart from material agency. Hence, we invariably feel, in abstract conception, as if we were between two eternities, the one a parte ante, and the other a parte post.

The "terror of such thought, therefore, exists only in the imagination of superficial minds. "There the wicked cease from troubling; and there the weary be at rest." Job iii: 17. A careful examination of the uses of egeiro and anastasis, in the N. T., has convinced me that no escape of the soul from its "old prison" at death, is at all answerable to the waking and standing up again (their definitions) of the departed, as exemplified by the risen Person of Christ. In a passage, whose avowed purpose is to dispel ignorance in this connection 1 Thes. iv: 13-18, the Apostle Paul does not so much as throw out a solitary hint that the dead are elsewhere than as "sleeping in Jesus" until His coming at the last day. Read carefully. Both the living and the awakened dead are caught up together, as Elijah was, to meet the Lord; but not themselves, which (latter) is a physical impossibility. Death is not swallowed up in victory till this mortal shall have put on immortality. Until then there are neither rewards nor punishments, judgment scenes nor the sending of Adam from one paradise to another still better. Both the Apostles' Creed and St. Paul coincide, that the Lord Jesus shall judge the dead as well as the living, at his appearing and his kingdom 2 Tim. iv: 1, until which time no one's case had been tried, and no man had ascended into heaven. John iii: 13; Acts x: 42. Dr. Adam Clarke observes, in his Commentary on 1 Cor. xv: 32, that what the apostle says here, is a regular and legitimate conclusion from the doctrine that there is no resurrection; for if there be no resurrection, then there can be no judgment, no future state of rewards and punishments."

Such, dear reader, is the believer's hope. We shall meet our loved ones again, but not as shades. We shall see them just as the risen Lord was seen—with flesh and bones, though changed and glorified. Luke xxiv: 39; Phil. iii: 20,21. Because we cannot raise the dead; because we do not know how, can the finite oppose any impossible to the Infinite, who "burst the bands of death," raised Lazarus and Himself from the tomb, multiplied the loaves and fishes, and created man in the beginning from the dusty, lifeless elements? "Why should it be thought a thing incredible with you," said Paul to the Greeks, "that God should raise the dead?" All this twaddle about the same atoms having been used in common by countless myriads of animals and men, as so much objection to future life by Resurrection, is insulting to the Word and Wisdom of the Great First Cause of all being, and borders on Atheism. For my own part, who, on July 22, followed a dear son to the grave, and to whose memory I dedicate this token of unmingled love—these crumbs of holy consolation; I am certain that the arms of my dear Leo, that embraced my neck so many times in the Baltimore City Hospital; blessing me and his dear mother, and begging our prayers—oft joining me therein;—I am certain, I say, that those very arms shall embrace my neck again, if only I die as he died —Safe in the arms of Jesus: Safe on his gentle breast. But, my son, if thou art alive in Sheol, I could not with righteous Jacob, go down thither unto thee mourning," or refuse to be comforted, as he did. I should rejoice exceedingly indeed, and welcome the happy moment which should place me where you are. But thou art asleep. So—

Fare-well, but not forever, Leo dear,
Sweet be thy rest—Millennial Day is dawning;
Swiftly shall pass thy night of slumber here,
And Christ will call thee to wake 'mong the morning.

Contradictions in the Bible.

I am constantly meeting men who say that the Bible is full of contradictions. When I ask them to show me one, they generally reply by saying, "It is full of them." When I press them to point out one of the many which they assert exist, usually they have no more to say. One afternoon while I was in Chicago Mr. Moody called to me and said, "Here is one of your sort of men, (meaning skeptics), talk with him."

I asked the man, "Why are you a skeptic?"

He replied, "Because the Bible is full of contradictions."

"Will you please show me one?"

"It is full of them."

"Well, if it is full of them you ought to be able to show me one. Please do."

I handed him my Bible. He was greatly disconcerted and began fumbling with the leaves, saying it was somewhere in the Psalms. Finding that he was searching for Psalms over in the New Testament, I offered to find Psalms for him. He did not seem to know much about the book of which he was so skeptical and about which he had been so dogmatic. Having found the book for him, he was now at a loss to tell in what Psalm the contradiction he referred to was to be found.

At last he said, "If I had my own Bible here, I could find it."

"Will you bring your own Bible tonight and show it to me?" I asked.

He promised to do so, and we agreed upon a particular point in the church where we would meet at the close of the evening service, and he solemnly promised to be there. At the appointed time I was there, but my skeptic was not. Months passed by and one night one of the students called me and said, "Here is a skeptic, I wish you would deal with him. He says the Bible is full of contradictions."

I looked at him and could not keep from laughing, it was the same old skeptic. He saw I recognized him and I said, "You are the man who lied to me, are you not?"

He dropped his head and for once was an honest skeptic and answered, "Yes, sir."

Most of those who tell you that the Bible is full of contradictions are in reality as utterly ignorant of what is in the Bible as this man, and if you ask them to show you one of these many contradictions, they are at their wit's end and look sheepish enough and you have then a good chance to show them that they are sinners and point them to Christ.

But once when I asked a man to point to one of the many contradictions he cited this: "In Jno. i: 18, it says, 'No man hath seen God at any time,' but in Ex. xxiv: 10, it says of Moses and Aaron and Nahab and Abihu, and seventy others, 'They saw the God of Israel.'" Now, that certainly looks like a flat contradiction, and many besides skeptics have been puzzled by it. Indeed, one of the most devout men I ever knew was so puzzled by it that he left his business and came miles to ask me about it. But the solution to this apparently unanswerable difficulty is very simple.

We must remember in the first place that two statements which in terms flatly contradict one another may be absolutely true, because the terms are not used in the same sense in the two statements. For example, if any man should ask me if I ever saw the back of my head I should be obliged to answer, "No, I never saw the back of my head." And yet I could make the answer, "Yes, I have seen the back of my head," and it would be true; for more than once, when looking into a glass with another glass back of me I have seen the back of my head. It depends entirely upon what a man means when he asks me "if I ever saw the back of my head," what I shall answer him. If he means one thing, I answer, "No, I have never seen the back of my head," and that is true. If he means another thing, I answer, "Yes, I have seen the back of my head," and that is perfectly true.

But some one may object, "In the latter case you did not really see the back of your head, but a reflection of it in a mirror." I reply, "Neither do you see the back of any one else's head when you are looking right at it, but only a reflection of it, upon the retina of your eye. But every one knows what you mean, when you use language in this common sense every day."

Now, the case before us in the Bible is very like to this illustration. God, in His eternal essence, is "invisible (unseeable)" 1. Ti. i: 17. "No man hath seen him, nor can see him" 1. Ti. vi: 16, "He is Spirit not form" Jno. iv: 3, 24. So John tells us the profound and wondrous truth that "No man hath seen God at any time; the only begotten Son, which is in the bosom of the Father, he hath declared him."

But this essentially invisible God has been pleased in His great grace to manifest Himself again and again in bodily form. Such a manifestation of God (or theophany) Moses and the seventy elders saw in the Mount. Such a manifestation Israel saw in the temple. Is. vi: 1. Such a manifestation Job saw Job xlii: 5. It was God that was manifested in their theophanies, and so it was God that they saw. We see then that both of these apparently flatly contradictory statements, that "No man hath seen God at any time," and that "Moses (and the others) saw God," are perfectly true.

Jesus Christ, Himself, was the crowning manifestation of God. In Him dwelt all the fullness of the Godhead in a bodily form. Col. ii: 9. So Jesus said to Philip, "He that hath seen me hath seen the Father." Jno. xiv: 9. All other apparent contradictions in the Bible will also disappear if we study them earnestly.—R. A. Torrey.

Who Was Rich.

"If I were only as rich as he is!" muttered a boy that had just found a crust of stale bread in a garbage barrel, as he eyed a poorly dressed boy leaving a baker shop with a basket of whole fresh loaves.

"If I were only as rich as he is!" said the boy with the fresh loaves as saw another boy on a bicycle, munching candy.

"If I were only as rich as he is!" sighed the boy on the bicycle as another boy rolled past in a pony-cart.

"If I were only as rich as he is!" grumbled the boy in the pony-cart as he caught sight of a lad on the deck of a beautiful private yacht.

"If I were only as rich as he is!" this lucky fellow wished as his father's yacht cruised in foreign waters, and he spied one day a young prince attended by a retinue of liveried servants.

"If I were as free as that boy is!" impatiently growled the young prince thinking of the boy in the yacht.

"If I could only drive out alone with a pony and nobody to take care of me but myself!" thought the pampered boy on the yacht.

"If only I could have a good time like that boy on the bicycle!" longed the driver of the pony.

"How happy that boy with the basket looks!" said the boy on the bike.

"If I could relish my dinner as that boy does his crust!" said the baker's boy. "I'm sick and tired of bread."

The Two Witnesses.

And I will give unto my two witnesses that they may prophesy. They are called the two prophets in the 10th verse, what their prophesy is about we are not informed, neither are we informed who they are. They prophesy for a period of one thousand two hundred sixty days clothed in sackcloth. I would not dare to call those years as others have done when they are called days. It is only done by those who have man-made theories which are never right. Let us explain Scripture by Scripture, then we will be sure to be right. These prophets are prophesying in Jerusalem, which is at this time called spiritually Sodom and Egypt. It is the place where our Lord was crucified and these two prophets are slain. Thereafter having finished the work given them to do. They were preserved by God until that time like their Lord when the Pharisees came to him and told him that if he did not depart hence that Herod would kill him. He said to them, Go tell that fox, behold I cast out devils, and I do cures today and tomorrow, and the third day I shall be perfected, signifying that his mission would be ended, having finished the work his Father gave him to do. His life could not be taken before, so it was the case in these two prophets. Jesus says that it cannot be that a prophet perish out of Jerusalem. These two prophets God gives them great power to call fire down from heaven to devour their enemies. The same has been done by the prophet Elijah. Also the shutting up of the heavens that it rain not. They have the power over the waters to turn them into blood and to smite the earth with plagues as often as they will. The same has been done by the prophet Moses in Egypt, so that we can readily understand why the people rejoiced over their death, after being afflicted with these plagues and why they were so bitter towards them, even to refuse to give them a burial, but allow their bodies to lay in the streets three days and a half, but God was watching over them, and put life into them and they ascended up into heaven, the same as their Lord and Master had done. These are plain, literal facts, and need no mystifying or bringing in of any popes or things done by them. The pope has no more a place in Scripture than any other emissary of Satan who are teaching the devil's lie, Thou shalt not die. This pope business I have been following up for about 25 years, and the more I see and hear of it the more absurd it becomes. Let us continue to explain Scriptural subjects by the Scriptures, which is the right and only way. More might be said on this subject of the two witnesses or prophets, but I do not wish to make a lengthy article. S. PITTS.

"No one was ever made strong by believing a lie. A strengthening faith must rest upon something which absolutely exists, entirely independent of what men think about it. Men used to believe that the sun and stars revolved around the earth. It did not alter the facts, but it made their astronomy worthless and weak. Faith must be judged by its fruits. The Christian faith produces fruits that show that it rests upon truth. Men may disbelieve in God, but it weakens their lives. A true faith in God makes the soul strong, as nothing else can, and this strength proves the truth of the source from which it flows."

The Bereans Column.

TEMPERANCE.

Some of the evil effects of intemperance are named in Proverbs xxiii. 29, where it says, Who hath woe? who hath sorrow? who hath contentions? who hath babbling? who hath wounds without cause? who hath redness of eyes? They that tarry long at the wine; they that go to seek mixed wine. Again in Proverbs xx. 1 we are warned that wine is a mockery, strong drink is raging; and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise.

Rev. Charles H. Spurgeon has said that "Drunkenness expels reason, distempers the body, diminishes strength, inflames the blood, causes internal, external, eternal, incurable wounds. It is a wife: to the senses, a demon to the soul, a thief to the purse, and a gable to beggary and villainy. It is the wise's woe and the children's sorrow. It makes a man wallow worse than a beast and act like a fool. He is a self murderer who drinks to another's good health and robs himself of his own."

Let us heed Solomon's admonition and look not upon the wine when it is red, when it giveth its color in the cup, when it moveth itself aright, for at the last, it biteth like a serpent and stingeth like an adder.

In Paul's letter to the Ephesians he says, Be not drunk with wine wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit. Eph. v. 8. And the fruits of the Spirit are love, joy, peace, longsuffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance; against such there is no law.

With best wishes for the success of the Berean Society, from one of its members.

MABEL KENDRICK.

Dear Bereans:

I am so lonely since our little church has been broken up by so many of our members moving away, some of them so far away that we only hear from them by letter, and we are left to battle alone. Oh, how I would love to meet them all as we once did in our homes for the purpose of reading and hearing the Word of God and try in our weak way to encourage and enlighten each other in the Word of truth. Sometimes we get discouraged, but we think it will not be long, and the letters of the brothers and sisters of the Berean work are so encouraging that we strive on hoping and praying that we may do something to help spread the truth and get others to read and understand the Word of God. And now, dear Bereans, let us have charity. Paul says, Though I bestow all my goods to feed the poor, and though I give my body to be burned, and have not charity, it profiteth me nothing. How much that one word means. Charity suffereth long and is kind, envieth not, doth not behave unseemly, is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, etc. Let us show the fruit of the Spirit in our words and acts, and be ever watching for the glorious appearing of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ.

Your Sister in that blessed hope.

LELE KEPLEY.

Dear Bereans:

Do you realize what a blessed privilege it is to be a follower of Christ? A real follower of Christ, one who understands and knows his will, and is ready to serve him and love him because he first loved us. One only needs to attend a "modern revival," as represented in the church of today, to see the folly of their belief. Surely we should be thankful to think we are blessed with a true understanding of his Word; and know that he is our Savior and our Redeemer. When we know what Christ has done for us can we help serving him? Let us, "Present our bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is our reasonable service. Your Sister in Christ.

WAITING FOR JESUS.

Dear Bereans:

It has been our privilege to hear through the gospel that Jesus is coming to earth again, for he said to his disciples, "And if I go I will prepare a place for you, I will come again and receive you unto myself, that where I am there ye may be also." John xiv. 3. There have been a few in all ages that have lived and died in faith of that same promise and they have witnesses of those which the prophets have said should come to pass before until one by one they have been fulfilled, and now we are living in the age that our Lord may at any time fulfil his promise, and call for those who, both the living and the dead, have made a covenant with him by sacrifice. Are we, each of us waiting for Jesus? He is coming in power and great glory, and will bring his reward with him. "To them that look for him, he will appear again without a sin offering unto salvation." It would be well for us to stand in an attitude of expectancy and readiness, for if we allow any of this present life to occupy more of our interest than that pertaining to future life, we may lose that one great desire to see Jesus and be like him. We enlisted to suffer with him now, and reign with him when he comes again, and in order to faithfully perform our part should be willing to give up ourselves to the will and work of Christ in his absence, and follow the example of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob who Paul says, died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, were persuaded of them and embraced them, and confessed they were strangers and pilgrims in the earth." Acts xi. 13. Let us go forth, therefore, unto him, without the camp, bearing his reproach, for here we have no continuing city, but seek one to come. Heb. xiii. 13-14. For if we live as strangers here, that is, have no part with the present order of things, but make our ambitions have some reference to future life, then we shall reach the city God has prepared, and it shall be an everlasting abiding place, where there shall only be righteousness and purity, and there will be no more parting. So may we stand prepared to meet our Lord when he comes, for it was the wise virgins that had oil in their lamps when they went forth to meet the bridegroom, who went in to the marriage supper of the Lamb; and the door was shut. So let us remember that it is those who have the spirit of Christ dwelling in them that shall be accepted of him. Could any of us bear even the thought of being left outside when he calls for his own? His words to us are, Watch, therefore, for ye know neither the day nor the hour when the Son of Man cometh." Matt. xxv. 13. May we all be among those who are faithful to the end and be found of him, watching for Jesus' return, so that there may be a place prepared for us in his kingdom and we can say with the great multitude, Let us be glad and rejoice, for the marriage of the Lamb is come and the wife has made herself ready.

LIZZIE WOODS.

Dear Bereans:

Have we eternal life now? The Bible tells us we have it by faith. Faith in what? Faith in the Son of God, faith that he will fulfill every promise he has ever made us. What is faith? "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Heb. xi. 1. If we have put our faith in Jesus Christ we know in whom we have trusted. He is able and willing to forgive us our sins and to keep us from falling. The Bible tells us that eternal life is a gift, which we are to obtain by seeking for it. This means, then, that we have to work for it, not that we may sit down, fold our hands, and do nothing and this great and wonderful gift will be ours with no effort put forth upon our part. No, it means that we must strive earnestly for it, we have to work out our own salvation with fear and trembling. It means that after we have received the knowledge of the gospel of the kingdom of God and have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine delivered to us, that is, repented of our sins and put on Christ by baptism into his name and have risen to walk in newness of life, trying to add to our faith, virtue, (courage) knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness and charity, then by a patient continuance in these things, we shall obtain eternal life. Therefore let us lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him, endured the cross, despising the shame, and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God. Heb. xii. 1-2.

The Times of the Gentiles.

"By measure hath he measured the times and by number hath he numbered the times, and he will not move nor stir them until the said measure be fulfilled."

"And Jerusalem shall be trodden down of the Gentiles until the times of the Gentiles be fulfilled."

"She hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins."

It is conceded that the time times and a half time, that the wonderful numberer through the prophet Daniel measures off for us three and a half times or 1260 year days, prophetic time, that this manner of counting time, was given by the Lord to Israel through Ezekiel the prophet. "I have appointed thee a day for a year, a day for a year."

In Daniel's vision the angel "raised his right hand and his left hand unto heaven and sware by him that liveth forever that it shall be for a time times and a half" thus doubling the time to seven times or 2520 years, given over to the Gentiles to rule and dominate over Jerusalem, from the departure of the glory of the Lord from the temple and city of Jerusalem, the holy place of the God of Israel. But before we come to the beginning of Gentile times in the history of Israel we will go back to Solomon's reign when he was arrayed in all his glory.

The king sinned grievously and in 984 B. C. we read that "the Lord was angry with Solomon because his heart was turned from the Lord God of Israel which had appeared unto him twice.....And the Lord said unto him, Forasmuch as this is done of thee and thou hast not kept my covenant and my statutes which I have commanded thee I will surely rend the kingdom from thee and give it unto thy servant." Solomon's punishment began when the Lord gave him this ultimatum in 984 B. C. No doubt has regretted his wickedness and fall from the favor of God.

Now turn to Ezekiel and read what the Lord decrees unto Israel. "This shall be a sign to the house of Israel .....For I have laid upon thee the years of their iniquity according to the number of the days, three hundred and ninety days, so shalt thou bear the iniquity of the house of Israel." The prophet was also to bear the iniquity of Judah for 40 days as a sign to them of 40 years, that God would bear with their iniquities, which years were fulfilled to Judah from the preaching of Christ Jesus in A. D. 30 to A. D. 70 when their calamity fell upon them and their city and temple destroyed their house was left desolate.

"A day for a year, a day for a year." This sign and time table is the key to the duration of Gentile times. We plainly see in this 40 years allotted and fulfilled in Judah, that there must be 390 years elapse for Israel, before Gentile times could begin, "For my Word shall not return unto me void, saith the Lord." After the 390 years were filled full, as is shown by these dates B. C. 984-390 and 594 B. C. that in this year Ezekiel declares, "Now is the end come upon thee and I will send mine anger upon thee and will judge thee according to thy ways and will recompense upon thee all thine abominations." "An end is come, the end is come." "Thus shall mine anger be accomplished and I will cause my fury to rest upon them and I will be comforted and they shall know that I the Lord have spoken it in my zeal when I have accomplished my fury in them." Just here begins the times of the Gentiles with their desolating career in B. C. 594 at the ending of the 390 day years. We read in Ezdras, "For like as all that is made in the world hath a beginning and an end, and the end is manifest—even so the times also of the Highest have beginnings in wonders and powerful works and endings in effects and signs."

The Lord sent his prophets to be a sign to Israel and Judah at the end of their appointed times that he would bear with their iniquities, but they repented not of their sins and so their punishment came upon them in double measure. And the Lord said, "Even thus shall the children of Israel eat their defiled bread among the Gentiles whither I will drive them." This is the only instance where the word Gentiles is given us by the prophet Ezekiel. The Gentile power is evidently the great red dragon who is composed of the nations of the earth, save Israel and Judah who were and are God's chosen people.

"Beginnings in wonders and powerful works." The beginning of Gentile times was marked by the vision the prophet saw and told the children of Israel concerning Jerusalem—"I heard behind me a voice of a great rushing sound saying, Blessed be the glory of the Lord from his place, so the Spirit took me up.....but the hand of the Lord was strong upon me. Son of Man I have made thee a watchman unto the house of Israel, therefore hear the Word at my mouth and give them warning from me".....And behold the glory of the God of Israel was there according to the vision that I saw in the plain.....And the glory of the God of Israel was gone up from the church whereupon he was, to the threshold of the house——and the house was filled with the cloud and the court was full of the brightness of the Lord's glory...Then the glory of the Lord departed from off the threshold of the house and stood over the cherubim.....And the glory of the Lord went up from the midst of the city and stood upon the mountain which is on the east side of the city..... And the cherubim lifted up their wings and mounted up from the earth in my sight and the glory of the God of Israel was over them above." Thus did the God of Israel abandon Jerusalem to Gentile rule—"For it is given unto the Gentiles and the Holy City shall they tread under foot forty and two months." And to double this makes seven times or 2530 years, the appointed time from the Lord's hand. The times of the Gentiles began in the year 594 B. C. according to Bible chronology. One measure of time times and a half time, or 1260 years sweeps down the centuries and emerges in A. D. 666 a most wonderful number of the times in the light of revelation and a way mark in the beginning ending and midst of the times. "Here is wisdom." "The wise shall understand." Let the watchman of Israel take this number and measure in consideration for, "In the latter days ye shall consider it perfect."

As we found the midst of the years another 1260 day years reaches out to our own near future A. D. 1926 when Gentile times are ended, "And the glory of the Lord shall be revealed and all flesh shall see it together for the mouth of the Lord hath spoken it." Isa. xl. 5. "Comfort ye, comfort ye, my people, saith your God. Speak ye to the heart of Jerusalem and cry unto her that her appointed time is accomplished, for she hath received of the Lord's hand double for all her sins." "Now is come salvation and the power and the kingdom of our God and the authority of his Christ. Come Lord Jesus, come quickly.

The Gospel Recovered. No. 46.

DRAWBACKS AND HINDRANCES.

"That they all may be one.....that the world may believe that thou hast sent me." Jesus.

In the preceding paper, No. 45, the interruption of this subject was explained, and some apology offered by the writer of this for his persistent defence of the gospel. A brief mention was also made of the contents of the three preceding papers, 42, 43 and 44. These were occupied with the work of Dr. Thomas entitled Eureka. The seventh vial was then referred to, and the substantial agreement of Eureka with the Horae Apocalypticae of Rev. E. B. Elliott pointed out.

So much then for Eureka properly socalled. It so happens, however, that to the III. Vol. of Eureka there is appended a work of 102 pages, which was originally published by the same author in 1854. It was entitled —Anatolia, or Russia triumphant and Europe chained. It now appears with a new title, namely, A Brief Exposition of the Prophecy of Daniel, with the original Introduction condensed one half. As Anatolia may thus now be taken to form part of Eureka, it seems proper to deal with it here, and the more especially, as the author makes a strong claim for its originality. In the abridged Preface as now re-issued, he says—"The work is original throughout." In the Introduction as originally published, he had said—"Unlike the Coming Struggle, the Supplement to the Coming Struggle, and the Coming Rest, all inaccurate unacknowledged plagiarisms from Elpis Israel.....Anatolia is original throughout." Farther on he says, "If we may judge from the utter failure of commentators to interpret the eleventh of Daniel, it may be pronounced to be the most difficult and incomprehensible, chapter in the Bible." Referring to Professor Moses Stuart's view of Daniel, he says, p. 89, "Seeing then that these (mere grammarians are ignorant of this gospel [the gospel of the kingdom].....We shall be better employed in excavating the truth that lies below".....He then gives what he entitles, "Paraphrase of the eleventh chapter of Daniel to the 35th verse inclusive."

There is certainly here a very special claim to originality in expounding the xi. chapter of Daniel, "excavating the truth for ourselves." It so happens, however, that a hundred years earlier an author had published a full exposition of the first thirty verses of this very chapter of Daniel. This was Bishop Thomas Newton, in his "Dissertation on the Prophecies." Date of Dedication, 1754. Taking verse by verse he gives, at considerable length, extending to some thirty-five pages, a historical fulfilment of the prophecy. He gives in footnotes copious extracts, in the original languages, from Greek and Latin authorities, and "translated in the text." The names of Justin Martyr, Herodotus, Diodorus Siculus, Polybius, Appian, Josephus, Gertius, Porphyry, may be noted, as also the Septuagint, the books of Maccabeus, etc. Bishop Newton says, "Thus far commentators are in the main agreed, and few or none have deviated much on the common road." For the most part therefore New in swiftly followed his predecessors in this exposition. The "paraphrase," named above being necessarily much condensed, is substantially in agreement with Bishop Newton's exposition, and although the form of a "paraphrase" may have a certain claim to originality, yet this real substance of the fulfilment of the prophecy was put before the public a hundred years before.

Some of the author's opponents were not slow to point out the correspondence between this part of Anatolia and Bishop Newton's Dissertations on the xi. of Daniel. In a pamphlet issued by the "Campbellite" body in Birmingham, England, entitled "The History and Mystery of Thomasism," this formed a prominent part. It may be mentioned also that the pamphlet pointed out a considerable verbal identity between another portion of Anatolia and a work by Granville Penn, entitled, The Prophecy of Ezekiel Concerning Gogue." Nearly two pages of parallel columns are given showing the identity referred to. It may be mentioned that in Elpis Israel where the subject of Gog is dealt with, Penn seems to be indicated by the phrase "a writer some 35 years ago." But not even this much is given in Anatolia to indicate that the author was indebted to a previous work for any of his materials.

But it was not only outsiders who were found pointing such plagiarism on the part of the author of Anatolia, the brotherhood had their attention specially directed to the same matter. As early as 1865, one of the brethren issued a pamphlet of some twenty pages addressed as follows: "To the Baptized Believers of the Gospel of the Kingdom of God." On the subject of the Gog of Ezekiel the pamphleteer says, "We find that J. T. has made very free, both in Elpis Israel and Anatolia, with a work entitled, "The Prophecy of Ezekiel Concerning Gogue," written by Granville Penn, Esq. and published in London [England] in the year 1814." He then gives over two pages in parallel columns, of which he says, "Compare the following." As a specimen I give here one paragraph:—

ANATOLIA.

Page 65—The question as to what nations are signified by Rosh Meshekh and Thuval has been long since determined by the learned. The celebrated Bochart, about the year 1040, observed, in his elaborate researches into sacred geography that Ros, or Rosh, is the most ancient form under which history mentions the name of Russia; and he contended that Rosh and Meshakh properly denote the nations of Moscovy and Russia. 'It is credible' says he, that from Rosh and Meshekh (that is, the Rhosi and Moschi), of whom Ezekiel speaks, descended the Russians and Muscovites, nations of the greatest celebrity in European Scythia.' We have indeed ample and positive testimony that the Russian nation was called Ros, by the Greeks, in the earliest period in which we find it mentioned. The Ros are a Scythian nation, bordering on the northern Taurus. And their own historians say, 'It is related that the Russians (whom the Greeks called Ros) derived their name from Ros, a valiant man, who delivered his nation from the yoke of its tyrants.'

G. PENN'S PRE. ILLUSTRATIONS.

Page 10—If we next inquire what nations are signified by those proper names, we shall find that this question also has been long determined by the learned. The celebrated Bochart, about the year 1040, observed, in his elaborate researches into sacred geography that Ros, in the most ancient form under which history makes mention of the name of Russia; and he contended that the two first of those names properly denote the nations of Russia and Moscovy. 'It is credible,' (says he) that from Rhos and Mesech, (that is, the Rhosi and Moschi), of whom Ezekiel speaks, descended the Russians and Moscovits, nations of the greatest celebrity in European Scythia? We have indeed ample and positive testimony that the Russian nation was called Ros, by the Greeks, in the earliest period in which we find it mentioned. The Ros are a Scythian nation bordering on the northern Tauros.' This testimony is given by Cedrenus, Zonarus, Leo Grammatians, and Tretres. And their own historians thus report: 'It is related that the Russians (whom the Greeks called Ros, and sometimes Rosos) derived their name from Ros a valiant man, who delivered his nation from the yoke of their tyrants.

It may also be mentioned that the writer of this pamphlet points out how near Edward Irving came to "the gospel of the kingdom" in the late twenties of the 19th century. He quotes from Dialogues on Prophecy, in which Irving under the name of Aristo, the following,—"It is clear that the matter of the gospel, the Word of preaching, the substance of faith, the object of hope, is the kingdom of God, which also is the only thing we pray for in the Lord's prayer—'Thy kingdom come,'" adding this commentary or exhortation 'Thy will be done on earth as it is in heaven' and therefore in the very first blush of the thing, it is manifest that every preacher should be occupied in proclaiming to every man the kingdom of heaven which is to come whatever may be his opinion concerning the same. We are not to be abused or derided for preaching a kingdom; but they who do not preach a kingdom are to be accused of not preaching the gospel of our Lord and his apostles." This pamphleteer also mentions Alexander Campbell as having set forth the import of baptism and affirms that "J Thomas has the honor of being the first in these days to join the "water" and the "Word" together; and that "great credit is due to John Thomas for discerning this, and for making it known to his fellowmen." He also says, "I frankly admit also that I did not know what the "gospel" was until I read part second of Elpis Israel, and other portions of J. T.'s writings. It would be ungrateful as well as untrue in me if I were to deny this." Previous to J. T.'s visit to Britain in 1848 I do not believe there was a baptized believer of the gospel in Britain.

Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri Work.

I have spent a month and a half in the evangelistic work in Nebraska at old points in Frontier Co. and now have begun work for the Kansas-Missouri Conference. Though only one has come out for baptism yet the seed of truth has been sown in many hearts and will not return void, even though few may obey it. Bro. Chadwell is having better success in the work in Missouri as a number have obeyed the gospel under his preaching. Our Nebraska treasury is empty and the Kansas-Missouri treasury almost empty and we hope that those who are interested in the work going on in these States will send in their offerings for the work. The Nebraska Secretary is Mrs. Fanny D. Welch, St. Paul, Neb., and the Kansas-Missouri Secretary is A. W. Darby, Ransom, Kan. Brethren, act quickly.

Yours in the hope.

Wisdom of Seirach.

CHAPTER 50.

1. Simoon son of Onias, the great priest, who in his life time repaired the house, and in his days stayed up the inner-sanctuary.

2. And by whom a two story elevation was founded, a lofty erection for an enclosure of the temple.

3. In his days a receptacle for waters became weakened, the perimeter as it were of a sea, a copper.

4. He was one who was thoughtful for his laity against a smiting-blow, and who strengthened their city for a siege.

5. How he was glorified in the concourse of the laity in an exodus from the vail of the house.

6. Like a day-dawn star in the midst of a cloud like a moon full of days.

7. Like a sun shining upon the inner-sanctuary of a Most High, and like a bow of light in clouds of glory.

8. Like a flower of roses in days of new things, like a lily by exits of water, like a bud of frankincense in days of summer heat.

9. Like fire and frankincense on a censer; like a vessel of gold beaten-solid adorned with every precious stone.

10. Like an olive-orchard flourishing with fruit, and like a cypress-tree high up in the clouds.

11. When he took up a flowing-robe of glory, and put on a consummation of boasting, in ascending a sacred altar he glorified a garment of sanctification.

12. And when he received quarters from the hands of the priests, and he himself stood beside the altar's hearth with a garland of brethren round about him like a growth of cedar on the Libanos, they even environed him like trunks of palm-trees.

13. And all the sons of Aaroon in their glory, and an offering in their hands in the presence of all the church of Israel.

14. And with a complete number of public-servitors at altars he adorned an offering for an all-controlling Most High.

15. He stretched out his hand unto a libation bowl and poured a libation from the blood of the grape; he poured it an odor of sweet-smell into the foundations of the altar unto a Most High Universal King.

16. Then sons of Aaroon raised a shout, they echoed it with their trumpets; they made a great noise to be heard for a reminder-offering in the presence of a Most High.

17. Then all the laity hasted with one accord and fell down upon their faces upon the ground to worship their Lord, all-controling God, the Most High.

18. And the psalmodists with their voices song praise, made a sweet strain in a full house.

19. And the laity of the Lord Most High besought with votive-prayer in the presence of a merciful one, until the cosmic ceremony of the Lord had been consummated and they had finished his public ceremony.

20. Then descending he lifted up his hands over all the church of the sons of Israael to give the Lord's blessing from his lips, and in his name to boast.

21. And he repeated a second time showing the blessing from Most High with homage.

22. And now may ye have eulogized the God who doeth all great things, who exalteth our days from the womb, and doeth with us according to his mercy.

23. May he have given unto us rejoicing of heart, and that there come to be peace in our days in Israael according to the days of the aniamtage.

24. That he entrust us with his mercy, and in his days may he have redeemed us.

25. With two nations hath my soul been provoked and the third is not a nation.

26. Those who sit on a mountain of Samaraia, Philistiaim namely, and the savorless laity that dwelleth in Sikimol.

27. I have furrowed chastening-instruction for understanding and exact knowledge in this book, I Jeesous son of Seirach a Hierosolumite who showered big drops of wisdom from his heart.

28. Blessed-happy he who shall familiarize himself with them, and he who hath set them in his heart will have become wise.

29. For if he shall do them he will be strong in every way because his footprint will be the Lord's light.

COMMENT.

This chapter is a good specimen of Israael's inspired instruction in civic government and the general principles underlying the specific texts and examples illustrating them herein given are still up to date and as applicable today as when written to promote good endeavor and noble counsel. The reader will observe that the author Seirach claims divine inspiration for his embodied wisdom and prophesies a blessing on those who accept the fact, and in the 29th verse asserts the same condition for getting and appropriating the wisdom and the blessedness that the Christ himself does in his later teaching; namely, "If ye know my commandments blessed are ye if ye do them." And again: "If ye would know my teaching do my words."

This general principle of being able to do what one knows is more and more being assisted and adopted even in the secular teaching of the day. Theory and abstract knowledge is a good thing; but practice is much better. The head and the hand must work together to accomplish the best results, and the higher pupil goes up in the scale of ethics, the more absolute becomes the demand.

Kennan gives us a good pointer in the direction in his Japanese article in "the Outlook" of Aug. 27th, 1904. It is really startling to some of us, who saw the first act in this great drama on the world's stage, to see a nation come out of semi-civilization and heathendom and in the short space of fifty years take a front rank in all the arts and sciences that make a nation a world-power. Read what Kennan says of forethought and preparation as factors in the present Japanese success.

CHAS. GARDNER.

Exhortation at the Breaking of Bread.

BLESSED ARE THEY WHICH DO HUNGER.

This admonishes us to always have a desire for righteousness. The result of hungering and thirsting is that we shall be filled. Our heavenly Father will find us if we do our part. Hunger is a condition in which we are aware that more food is needed in order to build up the waste caused by the broken down tissues. This waste is a conditional warfare in which we are required to watch and pray. Each hour and day brings with it duties. If we neglect them we grow weaker as the man who refuses food. We must remember that in order to be filled we must hunger and thirst, not after the things of this world but after righteousness. God must be in our mind to the exclusion of all worldly matter. The apostle says 1 John ii. 15. Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For behold, what manner of love the Father hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called the sons of God; therefore the world knoweth not us, because it knew not him (Christ). If we would remain in the race for life eternal we must remember that we must strive lawfully. Paul says that we must bring into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ. This does not mean a half-hearted service, but that our all must be given unto the Master. Whosoever eateth my flesh, and drinketh my blood, hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day. John vi. 54. The flesh and blood here alluded to means the words that he spoke. The twelve understood his saying for when many left him he asked his apostles will ye also go away? Peter answered and said Lord, to whom shall we go? Thou hast the words of eternal life. And we believe and are sure that thou art that Christ, the Son of the living God. This is the grand thought that our minds must be filled with. We must hunger and thirst after it in order that we may be fed. God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life. The plan of eternal life has been wrought out and we have been obedient to God's will and now must remain his children by walking worthy of that calling. Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises; that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. 2 Peter i. 4. Finally, brothers and sisters, let the mind of Christ be in us. He was always obedient to the Father's will thereby assuring his resurrection from the dead. So may we in the same manner be assured of the same great blessing.

Your brother waiting for our life.

One Year $1.50. Six Months 75 Cents. Three Months 40 Cents.

PLEASE READ EACH WORD OF THIS.

We have made an agreement with the publishers of "Farm and Fireside," a semi-monthly journal, published at Springfield, Ohio, by which we can present our patrons with that paper for a year entirely free of cost.

Farm and Fireside has from 20 to 32 pages each issue, and is illustrated. It is succeeding with having the largest circulation of any home and farm paper in the world. It is a good paper for the farmer, dairyman, stockraiser, poultryman, fruit grower and gardener. The housewife has a department—in short all members of the home are supplied with reading suitable to each one. A sample copy will be sent to you soon.

OUR PROPOSITION.

Our proposition is to send each one of our patrons who pays his subscription up and on to the end of 1905, the Farm and Fireside for a year free of any charge whatever.

This simply gives you the both papers for the price of ours.

There is necessarily a limit to this offer and you will have to act very promptly if you wish to take advantage of it. Our arrangement ends with the month of December. So if you want the Farm and Fireside free for one year, send at once as above, and we will see that you get the two papers.

This applies to new and old subscribers alike. Each one who pays for THE RESTITUTION to the end of 1905 gets the Farm and Fireside as well.

Send as soon as possible, so as to be sure and secure the present we offer. If you are in arrears send the money to cover the delinquency, and send $1.50 for next year, and you get Farm and Fireside absolutely free.

A SECOND PROPOSITION.

In the city of Boston, Mass., is published a monthly journal devoted to education of young and old to the necessity of a humane and merciful treatment of dumb brutes as well as our duty to our fellowman. This paper is called "Our Dumb Animals," and is specially beneficial for the youth of our land, though older people cannot fail to be helped by reading it.

We propose to send Our Dumb Animals free one year to every person sending us a new subscriber for THE RESTITUTION for next year.

Do not misunderstand our offer—

1. Pay all arrears and for 1905 and you get THE RESTITUTION for that time and Farm and Fireside for one year.

2. A new subscriber paying $1.50 for the year 1905, will receive all the papers of 1904 from the time his subscription is in hand, and the full year 1905, and will get Farm and Fireside for one year.

3. Any person sending us $1.50 for a new subscriber for next year, not only entitles such new subscriber to what is mentioned in No. 2, but he will himself get Our Dumb Animals a year free of cost.

Should you wish to do so, you may name any boy or girl you would like to have receive Our Dumb Animals in place of yourself.

If you send two new subscribers as above, you can name some one for each subscriber you send, and Our Dumb Animals will be sent to whomsoever you name.

Poetry.

Give Praise to God.

How can the lip be dumb,
The hand all still and numb,
When thee the heart doth see and own
Her Lord and God alone?
Tune for thyself the music of my days,
And open thou my lips that I may show thy praise.

Yea, let my whole life be
One anthem unto thee;
And let the praise of lip and life
Outring all else and reach the skies:
O Jesus Master, Lord and Saviour mine supreme
For heaven and earth the one, the grand, the eternal theme.

Notes by the Way.

When the work of myself and Bro. Foore at Bush, Mo., was over, the dear ones in Christ felt that the time had passed too rapidly. They felt that it had, indeed been a time of refreshing to them, and also a time of great rejoicing in seeing so many of their sons and daughters yield obedience to the faith.

Bro and Sister Graham and son, Bro. and Sister Cooper and others, accompanied us to Fredericktown, where we said farewell, and boarded the train for Valles Mines, Missouri.

On arriving at our destination, we found Sadie, a loved daughter of Bro. and Sister Morse with a conveyance waiting for us. Bro. Morse himself was unable to meet us, he being in the dairy business had to attend to the milking at the hour of our arrival.

On arriving at their home, we were most heartily welcomed, and made to feel perfectly at home, and our every want was anticipated by Sister Morse.

Bro. Morse secured the Methodist church, in which to hold our meetings, which was quite a commodious house. "Uncle John" and myself jointly conducted these services.

Valles Mines is a new field. The one true faith and hope of the gospel had never before been preached in this place. We had a very fair attendance, and a respectful attention was given all through the meetings, with an increasing interest, as the people began to comprehend the teaching, and a desire was expressed by some to learn more of the grand and soul-stirring truths contained in Holy Scripture.

"Uncle John" and myself both used charts to aid us in unfolding, and making plain these truths, to the minds of our hearers. It comes with double force, when both eyes and ears can be employed to convey these truths to the minds of the hearers. This method of conveying instruction is employed and approved of by the best educators in our country in instructing their pupils, both in the elementary and more advanced branches of our educational systems. This same method is as equally effective in conveying sacred, as it is in secular or scientific instruction. This being so, we should not be slow in using the best and most effective method in conveying sacred instruction to the minds of our hearers.

"Uncle John" is one of those men of whom it can be said, that he has "music in his soul," he is nearly always singing, "making melody in his heart unto the Lord." This, he used to some effect, in our meetings. He loved to sing his favorite song: "A Thousand Years, Earth's Restitution."

"The Blessed Hope" is soul-inspiring, it is enough to make the heart sing for joy, in any person who will give it an abiding place within them. If you want to drive away the "blues," give it a large place in the heart, and the blues will have to get out. The sunshine will drive away the cloud.

I had some little talk with a lawyer at Valles Mines, who came to Bro. Morse house. He told me that he did not believe in the Immortality of the soul, or an hell of endless torment, but said he did not know why he did not, only that it did not accord with his ideas of things. He expressed a wish that Bro. Morse would start a public class, where the Scriptures could be studied along these lines. Bro. Morse expressed his willingness to do so. I presume the class will have been started by this time, and may God bless Bro. Morse in conducting it.

Some of our Methodist friends were quite friendly with "Uncle John" and myself, and bid us welcome to their homes."

Our meetings commenced on Saturday night, and were to continue over the following Sunday. On the following Sunday morning I presented the life and death question under the topic, "Who is your Father?" illustrated by two charts to which the closest attention was paid. At the conclusion of the meeting, several Methodists came to me, and expressed their appreciation of the instruction. As our meetings were to close with our evening service, several asked me to stay one day longer and tell them what will become of the wicked. I consented to do so, and announced that on Monday night my subject would be, "What will become of the Wicked, Hell and the Devil."

On Monday night a good congregation assembled, and listened attentively. After service they expressed their appreciation, and warmly invited me to return at some future time, and give them further instruction.

I find in my experience, these truths can be presented without offense, by refraining from the use of unnecessary harsh language, and let other denominations alone; it is not necessary to either mention or refer to them. Preach the truth faithfully, but in love. If other denominations become aggressive, then I would not flinch in boldly standing in the defence of God's truth.

With this service terminated our work at Valles Mines, for the present. Our next appointment was at Morse Mill, Mo., but owing to the prevalence of scarlet fever in the town, the appointment had to be postponed for the time present.

On Monday morning Bro. Morse conveyed "Uncle John" to De Soto, where he took the train for his home, at Parsons, Kansas.

On Tuesday morning Sister Morse conveyed me to De Soto, where I took the train for Cedarville, Mo.

Bro. R. Fyfe met me at Lockwood, and conveyed me to Cedarville. On arriving at the family home, I was heartily welcomed. We have no organized congregation at Cedarville. The believers at this place consist of Bro. and Sister J. M. Fyfe, wife, four sons, and two of the sons' wives, and an aged brother named Cook, making nine altogether. I would suggest that I believe it would be profitable for them to organize, and meet regularly for communion, and social worship. Read Heb. x. 22-25.

The brethren here are alive in the truth, they love to talk on Bible topics; and are anxious that those who know not the truth, should learn it. The public services at this place were not as largely attended as in the other places that I have visited. A chain of circumstances over which the brethren had no control, brought this about. It seems that the Christian church people had been holding protracted services for some five or six weeks, every day in the week, and had pressed home the views in which they differ from other denominations, and had made converts from these denominations. This raised up denomination prejudice, and they were almost afraid to listen to any stranger who may come in their midst.

The truth, as far as I have preached it, found lodgment in some minds, however, and expressed their regrets when the meetings closed, because they desired to learn more.

On the last Sunday I was there, I could not have the church, because the Christian church held their regular service at that time. Their minister, however, invited me to occupy the pulpit with him, to read the Scriptures, and gave me a part of the time to speak to the congregation. The house was full. I told them that success in anything depended upon a correct and right start. To start wrong in the Christian life meant failure, and a wrong ending. As to the correct place to start, I called their attention to Rom. iv. 6-25. The proper place to start was that which would secure to the sinner the pardon of sins. Verse seven: "Blessed are they whose iniquities are forgiven, and whose sins are covered. Blessed is the man to whom the Lord will not impute sin."

To whom comes this blessedness of having "iniquities forgiven?" this is a very important question? Is it a blessing to be experienced by those who were circumcised? Yes. When did Abraham have the faith, before or after circumcision? Verse 10. Before he was circumcised. Abraham was reckoned to Abraham for righteousness. It was the faith alone which was counted for righteousness, under the law, even as it is now. The law and no law are at all apart from the faith. See verse 14: "For if they which are of the law be heirs, faith is made void, and the promise of none effect." The law makes no one heirs, it is the faith. "Christ is become of no effect unto you, whosoever of you are justified by the law; ye are fallen from grace." Gal. v. 4. Some tell us we are damned, if we don't keep a part of the law—the Sabbath. How about this Datum: "Ye observe (Sabbath) days, and months, and times, and years, I am afraid of you, lest I have bestowed upon you labor in vain." These early Christians were observing the Sabbath days, the Sabbaths months, (new moons) and yearly Sabbaths, and because of their keeping these Sabbaths, his work among them he was afraid was in vain. It is the faith which counts, after it is "sealed." What was the seal to his (Abraham's) faith? See Rom. iv. 11: "And he received a sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had (before) yet being uncircumcised; (why so?) that he might be the father of all them that believe," etc. The faith came to Abraham in the shape of a promise or contract. "He staggered not at the promise of God through unbelief; but was strong in faith, giving glory to God; and being fully persuaded, that what he had promised, he was able to perform. And therefore it was imputed to him for righteousness." "To whom the Lord will not impute sin." Ver. 8. In Abraham's case, what purposed did circumcision serve? See ver. 11: "And he received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith," sealed the contract. Then Abraham became the father of all who "walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham, which he had being uncircumcised."

I told the congregation that the correct starting point was to first "walk in the steps of that faith of our father Abraham," and then we must individually seal the contract. I directed their attention to Col. ii. 10-13, where the Christian is required to submit to circumcision, and seal the contract, and that no contract is valid, or of force until it was sealed. "In whom also you are circumcised with the circumcision made without hands, in putting off the body of the sins of the flesh by (what means?) the circumcision of Christ; (which circumcision consists of being) buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead. And you being dead in your sins, and the uncircumcision of your flesh, hath he quickened together with him, having forgiven you all trespasses." I pressed it upon them, that the correct point was the faith of Abraham, next seal the individual contract by the "circumcision of Christ," and the effect would be—"forgiven you all trespasses." The pastor then got up and said that no contract was valid until it was sealed.

I again by invitation occupied half the time at the evening service, and further pressed home the fundamental truths. The pastor and people expressed themselves as pleased. I left them with the prejudice broken, and a brighter prospect for a hearing when I shall visit them again. I insist that the truth should be preached in a manner that will create as little prejudice as possible.

After these services, Bro. Fyfe conveyed me to Lockwood, Mo., where I took the train for Mountain Grove, Mo. At this date (Dec. 1) services are in progress at Mountain Grove, which I will report at another time. I expect to be in Kansas, and Oklahoma soon, to fill my appointments. Should there be others who wish my services in these places, send word immediately to my home address.

If there are others who wish Pine Woods Bible Class when issued, please notify me at once.

Yours in the Blessed Hope.

W. H. WILSON.

"I believe I left you in my study gazing on the beautiful fall landscape with Traverse Bay and Torch Lake bathing it all in shimmering beauty. But alas, for my beautiful picture, when the morrow dawned we could hear the Bay moaning and dashing its angry waves against the shore, the snow flying in all directions and the increasing winds settled the question of a small blizzard being present. Sunday night was too stormy for any one to venture out, except our faithful young Bro. Stebens, who drove seven miles in the morning and remained, and when it was decided not to have meeting in the evening he drove to the village and brought two young ladies to Bro. Chamberlain's home who wished instruction on the subject of "The nature of man." The entire evening was filled with Bible talk, and we believe it left its convincing proof with them of their mortality. Monday the storm continued with snow piling up toward the top of the fences; but Tuesday it subsided somewhat and we had our last meeting, the Elder speaking on the subject, "What must I do to be saved." The next morning before breakfast we walked to the Lake and buried Sister Chamberlain and her daughter Carrie into the Christ. It was a silent walk homeward, but O, how our hearts bounded with joy as we thought of the angels recording two more names in the Lamb's book of life. May their lives prove to others the reality of the gospel to save. We were in East Port eleven days and spoke eleven times, leaving them with the promise to return at some future time in warmer weather. On our way home we stopped at the little town of Marlboro, where the sound of the gospel had never been heard. We began meetings here Sunday A. M., with good interest but a small congregation of twenty grown people. We came here by the request of Sister Hartman of Athens, Mich., who has a married daughter living here. Later a request from the daughter, Mrs. Blakely, settled the question and we are making our home with them. Mr. Blakely a young man of fine business ability and his wife a school teacher of several years. We find them both heartily in love with Christian work. Sister Blakely having already from the faithful mother's teachings embraced the gospel, and the husband an earnest student, willingly giving the old traditions to the "moles and the bats." What the result of this work will be God only knows, but we feel our place is first among those who have never heard the saving message of salvation. And we feel sure the churches will willingly make the sacrifice with us and by helping with their prayers push the work along.

The Restitution,

THE RESTITUTION advocates the final "restitution of all things which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began." As a means to this end the establishment of the kingdom of God on the earth, with the Christ as King of kings, and the immortal saints as joint-heirs with him in the government of the nations; the restoration of Israel, the literal resurrection of the dead; the immortalization of the righteous, and the final destruction of the wicked; eternal life only through Christ, and many other kindred truths. Also a hearty belief of the gospel, repentance and immersion in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, pre-requisites of the forgiveness of sins, and a holy life as essential for final salvation.

The Unjust Steward.

One of the most puzzling passages in the Bible to many is the story of the Unrighteous Steward, in Luke xvi: 1-13. A lady told me yesterday that she had about made up her mind not to teach that lesson. She said: "The three points of difficulty are: First, that Jesus should hold this dishonest scoundrel up for imitation; second, that the Lord should commend the unrighteous steward; and, third, that Jesus should command His disciples to make themselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness." Let us take these three points up in order and look right at them. We will soon see that in each point, if we adhere strictly to what Jesus said, all difficulty will disappear, and the incident, instead of staggering us, will be found to be profoundly instructive.

Why did Jesus hold this dishonest scoundrel up for the imitation of his disciples? He did not hold him up for imitation. He held him up in the first place as a warning of what would overtake unfaithful stewards, how they would be called to give account of their stewardship and their stewardships be taken from them. Having taught this solemn lesson, one much needed today, Jesus goes on to show how the "sons of this world are for their generation wiser than the sons of light." (R. V.) They are wiser on this point. They use their utmost ingenuity and [illegible] effort to make present opportunities count for the hour of future need.

The "sons of light" often times do not do that. Indeed, how many present-day "sons of light," who profess to believe that eternity is all and time is nothing in comparison, are using their utmost ingenuity and putting forth their utmost efforts to make the opportunity of the present life count for the needs of the great eternity?

Jesus does not point to the steward's dishonesty to stir our emulation. But Jesus points to his good sense in using the opportunity of the present to provide for the necessity of the future. And, even then, He carefully guards His statement by saying that he "is wiser for his generation." He knows only the life that now is and from that narrow and imperfect standpoint he is wiser than is "the son of light" from his broad and true standpoint of knowing eternity, an eternity for which he is not wise enough to live wholly.

There are other utterances of our Savior where wicked or selfish men are held up by way of contrast, to show much more godly men, or even God Himself, may be expected to act in the way suggested. See e. g. Luke xviii: 6, 7; xi: 5, 8; Matt. xiii: 11, 12. The first difficulty then in the passage has disappeared. We will pass on to the second.

Why did the Lord commend the unrighteous steward? The Lord Jesus did not commend him. If anyone will look up the revised version of verse 8, where it is said, "the Lord commended the unjust steward" he will find it reads, "his Lord (i. e. the steward's Lord) commended the unrighteous steward." And he only commended his shrewdness. Jesus, so far from commending him, flatly calls him the "unrighteous steward" and, furthermore, just below warns against unfaithfulness in stewardship (vs. 10, 11.) So the second difficulty has entirely disappeared.

But why does Jesus command His disciples to make to themselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness? This difficulty disappears when we get a correct Biblical definition of the terms used. First of all, what does "mammon of unrighteous" mean? It means nothing more nor less than money. Money is called "mammon of unrighteousness" because money is such a constant minister to sin and selfishness (as for example in the case of the scoundrel above mentioned) and because "the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil" 1 Ti. vi: 9, 10, 11, R. V.

Jesus in passing would lift a warning note against the perils of money. He often packed a whole sermon into a single phrase. What does "of" mean? Exactly what the revised version translates it, "by means of." Then what Jesus bade His disciples do was to make themselves friends by means of money, i. e. to so use the money God entrusted to them that they would make friends for themselves by their use of it, and (as the context shows) to make these friends among God's poor and needy ones who would go to "the eternal habitations" and be ready to give us, their benefactors, royal welcome when our life has ended and so our money failed.

In other words, Jesus simply puts into a new and striking form His oft repeated teaching, not to keep our money, but to spend it in doing good, and so invest it in heavenly and abiding securities (cf. Matt. xix: 21, 25; xxv: 35, 40; 1. Tim. vi: xvii, 10; Prov. xix: 17.

That this teaching of Jesus was clearly understood by His hearers is evidenced by verse 14, where it is said, "the Pharisees who were lovers of money, heard all these things, and they scoffed at Him" (R. V.) So the third and last difficulty has disappeared and this passage stands out in glorious light, teaching with great force a lesson that our day greatly needs to learn that money is a stewardship and that he who seeks to enjoy it in the brief present and not rather to expend it so that it will bring us interest for all eternity, is a great fool and even the petty shrewdness of the sons of this world rebukes him.—*R. WE OFFER A CHANCE.

We offer again this coming year to go halves with any one wishing to do Missionary work.

For $1.00 we will send The Restitution to a new name for a year.

For $10.00 we will send The Restitution to 13 new names for a year.

There is no better way to spread the truth than sending a periodical to a friend whom you wish to interest. It talks when and where you cannot, and coming each week is better than a book. A sermon is heard and perhaps forgotten. A paper is repeatedly before one. Do not neglect the minister, of course, but give this branch of work consideration. Do you know a friend whom you would like to meet in God's kingdom? What amount of money would you willingly give to accomplish this end? Make a list of persons and send in at once, and so sow the seed—God will give the increase.

Our offer of two papers for the price of one has been extended through the month of December. Send in renewals and take the benefit of the offer made.

It was our privilege to have a call from Brother J. F. Wagoner as he was returning from his visit over Sunday to the brethren at South Bend. He reports good interest and a fair attendance at the meetings held.

At St. Petersburg there has been a demonstration by the supporters of the movement for a constitutional government in Russia. It took such a violent form that the guards fired on the people and about one hundred were killed.

A Letter from Brother Joblin tells of his wife being very sick, having suffered a paralytic stroke, and her life being in grave danger. We pray that if it be the will of God she be restored to health again, and if not so to be may God's grace sustain in the hour of trial and affliction.

In the far East the War has progressed to the extent that the Japs have gained possession of positions at Port Arthur that have enabled them to destroy the remaining vessels of the Russian fleet. A report says that the main army has been withdrawn, and sent to reinforce their comrades in front of Mukden. In view of the situation of affairs the Czar has issued an order that the Baltic fleet shall stop, and not go to Asiatic waters.

The Parable of the Rich Man and Lazarus.

Luke xvi. 19-31.

It is upon this parable more than on any other portion of Scripture, that immortal soulists rely for the support of their doctrine of immortality in sin and misery. It enters into all their arguments on this question. It is thought to contain the materials for answering all objections, and silencing their opponents. It is taken for granted that our Lord here teaches, and intended to teach that the dead are conscious, that the souls of all men are immortal, and that on leaving this world, all men go at once into a state of blessedness and joy, or of torment that is absolutely unchangeable and eternal. It has furnished the materials, by the help of a lively imagination and fervid rhetoric, for the most fearful pictures of the never-ending agonies of the lost, in the world of despair. It has been employed as the theme of more terrific discourses, and exhortations and appeals than, perhaps, any other portion of Scripture. And yet when one comes to examine it soberly and carefully, he can find no good reason to suppose that our Lord intended to teach anything whatever in regard to the state of the dead. We had altogether another purpose as we shall see.

1. That this is a parable, a prophetic parable and not a biographical sketch, is quite evident. It must then be treated as a parable, and be understood as a parable, to illustrate and enforce a certain truth. Its metaphors, its scenic representation, its personages are to be taken, not as realities, but as imaginary things. Much less can one take certain portions of it—such as may suit his convenience and purpose—as real, and reject such portions as he cannot well use, as unreal. No parable can be explained in this way; or rather, if one be allowed to accommodate a parable to his purpose in this way, he ought, by ingenious manipulation, to be able to prove anything he may please. Parables may not be made first sources of doctrine. Doctrines, otherwise and already grounded, may be illustrated, or indeed further confirmed by them, but it is not allowable to constitute doctrines first by their aid. This rule, however, has often been forgotten, and controversialists, looking around for arguments, with which to sustain some weak position, one from which they can find no other support in Scripture, often invent for themselves support in [illegible].

2. The scene of this parable is altogether an ideal or suppositional one—and was meant to be so. It is supposed to be in the Hadean world,—a place, or state rather, concerning which the Scriptures have taught us absolutely nothing, excepting that it is one of darkness and silence where the "dead know nothing" (Eccl. ix. 5) into which all men, both good and bad go when they leave this world. If the scene had been in Gehenna, that place of fire into which the wicked are cast, as the Scriptures inform us, after the resurrection and the judgment, to be consumed, this parable would have seemed to afford some justification for the doctrine that has been founded upon it. The word Gehenna is the only word that is rendered Hell in our revised version; the word Hades is transferred to the text, without any change. If the authors of our old version had done the same, instead of unfortunately translating both words "hell," they would have saved a great deal of confusion of mind, and false reasoning from the parable, and in regard to the state of the dead generally. The two ideas represented by these two words, Hades and Gehenna, are as distinct as they can well be. The first is the place, or state, of the dead without reference to their character, between death and the resurrection to judgment. The other is the place into which the wicked are cast after judicial sentence has been pronounced upon them, to be destroyed soul and body together. The Jews, especially the Pharisees, to whom this parable was spoken, had adopted very generally the fanciful and ghostly notions that prevailed among the heathen nations by which they were surrounded. The Egyptians, Persians, Hindus and Greeks, with all of whom the Jews held relations of intercourse, had in their popular representations of the under-world of the dead, regions of peace and honor for the good, and regions of fire for the bad; and Paradise was separated from hell by a distance no greater than the width of a thread. Our Lord constructed this parable as he did his other parables, to suit their notions of things without any design of endorsing or of opposing them. When he uttered the parable of the shrewd, tricky steward who made "friends of the mammon of unrighteousness," whom his Lord not our Lord—commended for his shrewdness, that he might give a lesson, as to the proper use of money, we are not to understand him as recommending this sort of sharp practice in our business dealings with each other; nor by the parable of the "unjust judge," to whom he likens himself in one point, are we to understand him as approving of the character of this selfish, hard-hearted judge; nor by the parable of the "Great Supper" are we to understand him as sanctioning the practice of giving great suppers, which in his day, if not in ours, were scenes of gluttony, drunkenness and revelry. Our Lord took the people as they were, and used their language, and adapted his illustrations to their modes of thinking and living. They had a thousand false notions which he did not attempt to correct. When our Lord said to the self-righteous Pharisees who murmured because of his compassion for sinners, that there is "more joy in heaven over one sinner that repenteth than over ninety and nine that need no repentance," (Luke xv. 7) we are not to understand him as admitting their claim to his favor, or as affirming that there are any among the children of Adam who need no repentance; but simply as addressing them on the basis of their own assumptions. It is not to the drapery of his parables, nor to the elements of which they are composed, nor to the scene where they are laid, but to the truth he would illustrate, that we are to direct our most earnest attention.

3. There is nothing in the circumstances or symbolism of this parable, that harmonizes with the representations given us everywhere else in the Scriptures concerning the Hadean state, or the rewards and punishments of the future world. So far as its pictorial conception is concerned, it stands alone and is quite unique. Nothing is said of the moral character of the two principal characters in this drama,—of the rich man, whom tradition,—not our Lord,—calls "Dives," because he was rich, and of Lazarus, a very common Hebrew name, meaning, "without help." It is quite common to hear the former spoken of, as proud, sensual, miserly and in every way corrupt; and the latter, as humble, patient, prayerful and pure in heart. Indeed, it is not possible to adapt this parable to the purposes of those who use it to represent the [illegible] ure bliss of the righteous, [illegible] one is shown to be or assumed to be, a very bad man, and the other a very good man. But they are obliged to draw entirely on the imagination for all this. They have done this, so uniformly and so long, that such representations seem to them no doubt, as facts and part of the parable itself. Not a few of them will be astounded, if not offended, to be told that there is not one word or hint in what our Lord said, to show that the poor man was one bit better than the rich man. He is represented as poor, beggarly, and deceased, and all this might have been,—as is usually the case,—on account of his vices; and that he was made any better by his suffering, there is no evidence whatever. The other is represented as rich, and supplied with everything to minister to his earthly happiness; and for aught that appears to the contrary is good as any other rich man. They are also represented as taking their bodies with them into Hades, and as retaining full possession of all their physical organs and functions, and what is more, the rich man has five brethren still living upon the earth. Of course, this could not be after this world had passed away and the eternal state had commenced. Still further, Lazarus is in Abraham's bosom, not with Christ in heaven, where the righteous are supposed to be in the eternal world. Nor does it accord with the representation of Scripture that the saved and the lost should be within speaking distance of each other. In short, we have no reasonable ground to suppose that our Lord intended by this parable to teach anything concerning the rewards and punishments of the future state, much less to endorse the heathen notions of the intermediate state, which the Pharisees had adopted; or to give any sanction to the revolting doctrine of purgatory, which the papal or Catholic church has founded on this one single passage.

4. What then, did Christ mean to teach by this parable? This should be very evident in view of the circumstances under which it was spoken, and the persons to whom it was addressed; and doubtless would be, were it not for the special efforts that have been made to make it teach something else. It was addressed to the proud, hypocritical Pharisees, who claimed to be the children of the kingdom through their father Abraham, and heirs of the promise, in preference—if not even to the exclusion—of all other people. Indeed, they looked upon the people of other nations with contempt, and regarded them as hardly worthy to eat of the crumbs that fell from their well supplied table. They had been signally favored of heaven. They might well be spoken of as rich, as rich in all their high privileges, and clothed in purple and fine linen and faring sumptuously every day, in comparison with the poor Gentiles who were sometimes famishing for want of the very bread of life. They supposed that these rich blessings were insured to them as the special favorites of heaven, and that this distinction between themselves and others would always exist. Our Lord had been uttering parables in their hearing by which he rebuked their pride, self-conceit and hypocrisy. He had set forth in strong colors the divine displeasure toward them, for their abuse of their high privileges, and had showed them how vain were their hopes. He forewarned them of their rejection in favor of these very people whom they so much despised: "Then shall ye begin to say, we have eaten and drunk in thy presence, and thou hast taught in our streets." But he shall say, "I know you not whence ye are, depart from me all ye that work iniquity. There shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth, when ye shall see Abraham and Isaac and Jacob and all the prophets in the kingdom of God and yourselves thrust out. And they come from the East and from the West, and from the North and from the South, and shall sit down in the kingdom of God; and behold, these are last which shall be first, and these are first which shall be last." See Luke xiii. 26-30. Having spoken to them the parable of the presumptuous guest who had taken the highest seat at the feast, and was humbled by being made to take a lower place; and of the wedding supper, and of the rejection of the guests first invited, because of their frivolous excuses, and of the invitation then given to the poor and the maimed and the halt and blind to take their places; and then, of the lost sheep, and of the prodigal son, to show his tender regard toward those whom they regarded as unworthy of being recovered to him, self and of the covetous, dishon- [illegible] it is said that "the Pharisees also, who were covetous, heard all these things and derided him." 14th verse. Then follows this parable of prophecy, in the same line, and with the same general purpose and thought in view, to show them how completely their high position would be reversed, in favor of those whom they now so much despised. No prophecy of Scripture has been more fully and exactly fulfilled than this. The Jews have died as a nation, and lost all their high privileges and possessions. The very land which they once possessed has been taken from them. They have no country on earth they can call their own. They are despised and deprived of their rights as citizens in many countries. They have been persecuted and oppressed, as no other people—not even the barbarous Africans—have been. The Gentiles, on the other hand, have taken possession of their country, and have entered into their high privileges, and have come to inherit, very largely, the promises made to the children of Abraham. They are this day, as it were, in Abraham's bosom, and in the enjoyment of ten thousand temporal and spiritual blessings. There is, as it were, "a great gulf fixed" between the Jews and the Gentiles,—not a gulf of space, for they are also within speaking distance of them. But they are distinctly a separate people in whatever part of the world they go to reside. The Gentiles do not (or very seldom if ever) inter-marry or intermingle with them. This line of separation has been wonderfully and miraculously preserved for these nineteen hundred years. They are still obstinate in their unbelief. Missionary labors have been less successful among them, than among any other people. Indeed, it may well be said, "If they hear not Moses and the Prophets, neither will they be persuaded, though one rose from the dead." 31st verse. For they still have Moses and the prophets; and what is more Jesus Christ, one of their own nation, and of whom Moses and the prophets testified, has risen from the dead and they will not hear. But we need not draw out the parallel into other specifications, though it might be done. No one should attempt to make a parable "go on all fours," as it is said, and extort special meanings from its details, after its general scope and bearing have been made manifest, as I think has been done in this article. The parallel between the history of this Jewish people, and the picture drawn of it, in this prophetic parable, seems to me too complete and perfect in the above, to admit of any other interpretation.

How long this state of Jewish wretchedness and separation is to continue, neither the parable nor other Scripture informs us, except in an indirect way. That it is an eternal one, the text furnishes us no evidence to believe. This is one of the ideas that has been implanted into it, by the spiritualistic theology which would make it descriptive of the eternal separation of the righteous and the wicked in the future world. We believe, from numerous other prophecies found in the Scriptures, that "God will yet have mercy on Israel," (read Rom. xi.) and that when "the fulness of the Gentiles" shall have come in, he will restore them to favor and abundantly bless them, (25 and 26 verses) which I hope will also be our happy lot.

Growth in Grace. 2. Pet. iii: 18.

In common language "growth" means to enlarge in bulk and stature by the addition of matter. Only that can grow which lives. That in which we are to grow is the grace and knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. Grace is unmerited favor or kindness. This comes from God, and shows his disposition toward men. Grace and truth came by Jesus Christ. John i: 17. This favorable disposition of God is manifested in various ways. We are told that "the grace of God that bringeth salvation hath appeared to all men." Titus ii: 11. Man needs salvation from sin and its results. He can not save himself: and God is not under any obligations to save him. But in the plenitude of his mercy toward rebellious man God's favor brings salvation to him. In order that he may obtain this salvation designed for him, the favor of God teaches him what to do and what to shun. This teaching comes to man in the "word of grace." Acts xiv: 3; xx: 32. In this word of grace is brought to us the knowledge of Christ, which knowledge in turn, has the quality to multiply "grace and peace." 2. Pet. i: 2.

Through this knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ there is to be a constant acquisition and addition to the character of the believer of those virtues which were in the Lord. This addition constitutes growth in grace.

The knowledge of God is a very important factor in the development of the Christian character in the believer. Paul counted all things but loss for the excellency of the knowledge of Christ Jesus the Lord. Phil. iii: 8. There was, to him, some excellency in the knowledge of Christ, which estimate appears from this and other of his writings. "The spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledge of him," was the object of his fervent supplication for the brethren at Ephesus. Eph. i: 17. In his estimation the effect of the knowledge of God was to "renew" its possessor. Col. iii: 10. The Roman brethren were to be "transformed" by the renewing of the mind. Rom. xii: 1, 2. Nor was Paul the only one who ascribed such virtue to the knowledge of God. The apostle Peter wrote of some who had "escaped the corruptions of the world through the knowledge of the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." 2. Pet. ii: 20. Again, Paul said, "Some have not the knowledge of God: I speak this to your shame." 1. Cor. xv: 34. The particular branch of the teaching of God upon which some of the Corinthian Church were lacking, was the resurrection. The "shame of which he wrote was due to neglect and disregard of the teaching they had received. See ff. 1, 11. There can be no growth in favor and knowledge where the means of obtaining knowledge are neglected. It is as true today as it was in Paul's day, that some have not the knowledge of God, and were the apostle living to witness such a condition, he would exclaim as he did then, "I speak this to your shame." While there is a vast mass of conflicting and confusing "theological" literature in our day, it is equally true that there are many excellent works which are calculated to enhance the knowledge of God in the earnest enquirer for the truth. I know of no single production which I regard so useful for locating all the important words of the Bible, and for giving, in most cases, a correct and reliable definition of the Hebrew and Greek terms as Young's Analytical Concordance. It may be had of nearly all publishers for five dollars, and I regard it well worth the price. Next to this is the Emphatic Diaglott, then Rotherham's Emphasised New Testament. Maps of Bible lands can be found in our Teachers' Bibles. Larger ones can be had for one dollar apiece. Of course, all these things can only be "helps" They may assist the student, but he must do the studying. Search the Scriptures, as did the noble Bereans, and you will no doubt come to the same result as they. Acts xvii: 11, 12. Do not say you have "no time" to study your Bible. We have long evenings now when nearly every one can get at least from fifteen minutes to one hour a day to devote to Bible Study. You will be surprised at the end of one year at the amount of study thus bestowed, of useful knowledge gained, and above all, the growth you have made in the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ.

I have heard well meaning people speak discouragingly about reading the Bible. Read and study the Bible. Paul advised Timothy to continue reading (1 Tim. iv: 13), and also commanded him to study to show himself approved unto God a workman that needeth not to be ashamed rightly dividing the word of truth. 2. Tim. ii. 15. If you read your Bible faithfully, some things will occur to your memory that you might not have found by merely studying the Bible "by subjects."

In your Bible study do not confine yourself to one subject, or you will become narrow. Do not flatter yourself that you have "grown" to any considerable proportion if you have not gone farther than the nature of man. Above all things, do not ride a hobby, and then accuse others who do not fall in with your theory of "ignorance" and "narrowness." The Bible is a large Book, and contains a great number and variety of subjects. It requires time, much time, and faithful, tireless study to obtain the wisdom which it contains and brings to us. 2. Tim. iii: 15.

We are commanded to "grow in grace." First the "milk of the word" (1. Pet. ii: 2), and later, when skill in "the word of righteousness" has been acquired, when the "full age" has been attained by those who "have their senses exercised" the "strong meat" is in order. Heb. v: 12-14. By faithful study and diligent application to the word of truth, there will be an "increase" of knowledge (Col. i: 10,) of faith (2. Cor. x: 15), and of the fruits of righteousness. 2. Cor. ix: 10.

Dear Restitution:

Will you please allow me to thank the dear brothers and sisters, who have responded to my request for tracts and books. I have received quite a number and have distributed them where I hope they will do good. Oh, how it does cheer me by the way to receive letters from those of like precious faith, though I have never seen them. We are doing what we can to spread the truth here, but we are persecuted, hated and despised for our faith. We have a very good Conference and Bro. J. H. Luman of Webb City, Arkansas, is evangelizing for us. He is a workman that needeth not to be ashamed. Webb City is right south of the Arkansas River, near Ozark on the Arkansas Valley R. R. If any of like faith should pass that way Bro. Luman would be so glad to see you. Bro. W. J. Sowel is another one of our preachers who lives at Bee-Be on the Iron Mountain R. R. If you should ever pass that way, be sure and call on him. He is alone, but rich in the faith. I live on the Choctaw R. R. at Magazine, 112 miles west of Little Rock. We have a good house of worship here, and it would do mese much good if some of the household of faith would come this way. We have a few brethren and sisters here, and have a Bible class every Sunday night. We meet at our residences and read several chapters and ask and answer questions. Many outsiders meet with us. Last Sunday night we read the 9th chapter of Eccl., the 14th chapter of Job, and the 15th chapter of 1 Cor. One young man became much interested and said those chapters sounded very much like soul sleepers talk. I am to have another debate at Havana, Ark., with the same man I debated with this last fall, upon the same propositions. I hope the brethren will not conclude that I am hunting debates, I am not. They challenged me, and I feel that in as much as there is no one else to defend the cause and contend for the faith, it is my duty to do so, and meet him. I say no one else, I mean by that, no one else here. We have another brother at Center Ridge, Ark., who is able to defend the cause with any one, but we may not be able to get him. In my debate with Mr. Ledlow I quoted Eccl. iii. 19, where it says, "Yea, they have all one breath." He said the word "one" was not in the Septuagint. I wrote to Bro. Zilmer and to Miles Grant, and they both sent me the quotation from the Septuagint, and it was there. I must have a Septuagint before the next debate. Where can I get one? Is it translated into the English? Some one please tell me where I can get one. If any of the brethren have any more tracts they can spare, send them on, and I will scatter them. May God bless all of like precious faith every where. Brethren, you would have rejoiced, I know, to have seen us baptized after we learned the truth. When we learned what the gospel really was, or in other words, when we learned that the "one faith" was a hearty belief of the things concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, like the Samaritans of old, we were baptized both men and women.

Yours waiting for the kingdom.

Wisdom of Sirach.

CHAPTER 51.

Votive-prayer of Jesous son of Sirach.

1. I will confess unto thee, O Lord, O King, and I will praise thee as God my Savior; I will confess unto thy name.

2. Because thou hast become my protector and my responsive-helper, and thou hast redeemed my body from loss and from the snare of a tongue's slander, from lips that are employing a lie, and in the presence of those who stood by didst thou become my responsive-helper.

3. And didst redeem me according to the plenitude of thy mercy and name from gnashing teeth made ready for food, from those who seek my soul, from an excess of tribulations which had me.

4. From the suffocation of fire round about me and from the midst of fire which I had not made to flame out.

5. From the depths of the belly of Hades (the grave) and from an unclean tongue, and from the word of a lie.

6. The slander of the unjust tongue of a king namely; my soul drew nigh unto death and my life was very nigh to Hadees below.

7. They encompassed me on every side and there was no responsive-helper; I was looking for the intervention of men and there was none.

8. And I remembered thy mercy, O Lord, and thy employment that is from an animate-age, that thou dost deliver those who wait patiently for thee and dost save them from the hand of nations.

9. And I lifted up my entreaty upon the earth, and I besought deliverance from death.

10. I invoked my Lord, my father, Lord, not to forsake me in days of tribulation, in a time of the non-responsive-help of the haughty.

11. I will praise thy name continuously and I will hymn thy praise in the way of confession; and my supplication was heard.

12. For thou didst save me from loss and deliver me from a wicked time; therefore will I confess and praise thee and eulogize the name of the Lord.

13. While I was still a young man before I had gone astray, I sought wisdom openly in my votive-prayer.

14. In the presence of the inner-sanctuary I expectantly asked for it, and until my last days will I seek it out.

15. From its flower as of a ripening grape my heart rejoiced in it; my foot went to it with directness; from my youth I traced its footsteps.

16. Mine ear inclined a little, and I received, and I found for myself much chastening-instruction.

17. To toil forward in it became mine; to the one who giveth me wisdom will I give glory.

18. For I thought it through to do it; and I became zealous for the good, and I shall not be put to shame.

19. My soul fought the battle through in it, and in doing it I became familiar with hunger; my hands I stretched on high, and I sorrowed for my sins of ignorance of it.

20. I set my soul straight for it; I got my heart with these things from the outset; and in cleansing I found it (wisdom); therefore I shall not be forsaken.

21. And my belly was moved to seek it out. Therefore I got a good acquisition.

22. The Lord gave me a tongue for my wages, and with it I will praise him.

23. Draw near unto me, ye unchastened, and put up in a house of chastening-instruction.

24. Because ye are lacking in these things, and your souls will thirst exceedingly.

25. I have opened my mouth and talked, acquire for yourselves without money.

26. Put your neck under a yoke, and let your soul receive chastening-instruction; it is nigh to find.

27. Ye see with your eyes that I have toiled a little and have found for myself much rest.

28. Get your share of chastening-instruction with a vast amount of silver, and acquire much gold with it.

29. May your soul have rejoiced in his mercy, and may ye not have been put to shame in praise of it.

30. Perform your work before due-time, and he will give your wages in his due-time.

COMMENT.

With this chapter and "votive-prayer" which ends with the 12th verse this book of the Ecclesiasticus of Sirach" closed and appropriately too with the closing exhortation to the reader "to perform your work before due-time," and to look expectantly for "the payment of the wages in God's due-time." This exhortation falls into line with the whole teaching of inspiration and especially harmonizes with the teaching of "Paul the apostle to the Gentiles" (nations) who never talks about "rewards and punishments" as all the translators have made him do. On the other hand, after showing conclusively that "redemption" is a finished work, and that man's "justification" also is God's business and not ours, and the ground of "sanctification" and the reason why God can be "just and the justifier of the irreverent" is Jesous Christ's faith as well as sacrificial work, and after "going through the testimony" to these essentials his exhortation is "to arise and walk in newness of life," realizing that we are co-partners and co-workers with God and his Son in "a sonship" inheritance "to work out" or exemplify this new life "in works meet for repentance" in works "made ready by God himself from the founding of the cosmos."

Do you lack wisdom? Ask God for it. Do you lack strength and endurance? Ask God for "enablement." Any thing that the novitiate lacks who has done "the first works" will be supplied and supplemented if he asks "in faith." This is what Paul teaches, no "reconciliation" between an "offended" Creator and man his creation; but "a restoration," "a re-creation" "a re-institution of all things" by "an All-Controller" and "an Always-Controller" "Lo, I make all things new"—not "all new things" —"the new heavens" and "the new earth" are made out of the old in this new and coming era as much as they were in Noah's time. In God's economy there is no waste of material. "Even the wrath of man will be made to praise him" ultimately; and all these past centuries of wars and unbridled passions are God's kindergarten teaching to lead man up to the choice of enlightened reason and unsatisfied judicial-ways of planning and doing things. As Gen. Sickles recently said, "Wars are part of God's divinely ordered government"—until his 'due time" to change the order and institute "the new order" in his discipline of "the nation" and mankind as an integral whole.

With this closing chapter of "Old Sirach" I would remind the careful reader of my promise at the outset and with the opening chapter that we would find much food for salutary reflection in this Book in many ways, and nothing that conflicted with "the first principles as they are in Christ" according to our latest divine record, and I would now say in closing my labors that if you the reader or readers have found as much profit and pleasure in the reading and reflecting as I have in the writing, I shall feel well repaid and you cannot do better than thank the editors and publishers for their untiring and persevering labor of love in this matter. For theirs has been the irksomeness of the task, and should any good heart be inspired to present them a substantial "free-will offering" of money nothing would please me better.

NOTICE.

The subject matter contained in the articles written by Brother Joblin entitled The Paternity of Jesus, and Vital questions, will be put in pamphlet form provided the brethren desire it. This will be decided by the promptness of your orders. The price is 10 cents a copy or 12 for $1.00. Do not send money now, but send word to M. Joblin, 626 Woodland avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, saying how many you will buy when the work is out. Due notice will be given when to send money.

Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri Work.

I have spent a month and a half in the evangelistic work in Nebraska at old points in Frontier Co. and now have begun work for the Kansas-Missouri Conference. Though only one has come out for baptism yet the seed of truth has been sown in many hearts and will not return void, even though few may obey it. Bro. Chadwell is having better success in the work in Missouri as a number have obeyed the gospel under his preaching. Our Nebraska treasury is empty and the Kansas-Missouri treasury almost empty and we hope that those who are interested in the work going on in these States will send in their offerings for the work. The Nebraska Secretary is Mrs. Fanny D. Welsh, St. Paul, Neb., and the Kansas-Missouri Secretary is J. W. Darby, Ransom, Kas. Brethren, act quickly.

Yours in the hope.

W. L. CREWS.

Pine Woods Bible Class in Book Form.

I have several times been solicited to have the past lessons of the Class put in Book form.

I have decided to do this, if I can secure enough subscribers to the book to warrant the expense of publishing it.

The book if printed will contain over four hundred pages. How many copies will you take at $1.25 each?

Send your pledges but no money until I can see if sufficient is subscribed for to warrant the expense.

Send your pledges right away, so that the book can be put to press as soon as possible. Address W. H. Wilson, 420 N. Willow Ave., Austin Station Chicago, Ill.

We need what is due us on subscriptions and trust all who know themselves to be in arrears will remember us. We appreciate the favor

IMPORTANT NOTICES.

All persons addressing us should give their name, postoffice, county and state, plainly and distinctly.

All letters should be addressed to "THE RESTITUTION, Plymouth, Marshall, co., Ind."

Remittances should be sent by bank draft, postoffice money orders, or express orders. Money sent in either of the above ways is at our risk, money sent loose in letters is at the risk of the sender. It is folly to think that you can fold bills in a letter so that no one can tell it, for one who handles much mail matter can almost invariably tell a letter with money in. Take warning and send safely.

All remittances should be made payable to the order of "THE RESTITUTION."

We cannot hold ourselves responsible for the return of manuscripts. Authors should preserve a copy for themselves.

In ordering books or tracts get the latest copy of the paper you have and order only what you see advertized in that.

When desiring a change of address, give both your old and new address.

By complying strictly with the above you will save us much annoyance, and your order will be much more promptly attended

The True Test.

We may not climb the heavenly steeps
To bring the Lord Christ down;
In vain we search the lowest deeps
For him no depths can drown.

The healing of the seamless dress
Is by our beds of pain;
We touch him in life's throng and press,
And we are whole again.

Through him the first and prayers are said
Our lips of childhood frame;
The last low whispers of our dead
Are breathed with his name.

O Lord and Master of us all,
Whate'er our name or sign,
We own thy sway, we hear thy call,
We test our lives by thine.

John Greenleaf Whittier.

The Parable of the Sower. Matt. xiii: 4 to 23.

That this parable of the Sower, as well as nearly all the parables and teachings of Jesus, apply to us of this age, as well as those to whom it was uttered, we think, admits of no question: and its language and explanations are so plain, that it would seem that comment was unnecessary; yet we see many who seem to read it carelessly and make no personal application. Indeed we are so wont to justify ourselves that we are apt to overlook the "beam in our own eye." —"That is a cutting remark of the Saviour and quite true, but it don't mean me, it hits Mr B—, over there just fon T." So that we stop to inquire, does it apply? Are there those now as then whom it concerns?

Passing the parable as given in 4th to 8th verses, we come to the explanation in 18th to 23d vs. Hear ye therefore the parable of the sower. When anyone heareth the word of the kingdom, and understandeth it not, then cometh the wicked one, and catcheth away that which was sown in his heart. This is he which received seed by the way-side. But he that received the seed into stony places, the same is he that heareth the word, and anon with joy receiveth it: Yet hath he not root in himself, but dureth for a while; for when tribulation or persecution ariseth because of the word, by and by he is offended. He also that received seed among the thorns is he that heareth the word; and the care of this world, and the deceitfulness of riches, choke the word, and he becometh unfruitful. But he that received seed into the good ground is he that heareth the word, and understandeth it; which also beareth fruit, and bringeth forth, some an hundred-fold some sixty, some thirty.

Those that received seed "by the wayside" certainly have their representatives now. How many hear "The word of the Kingdom" and at first receive it as the truth, but soon renounce it through the influences of evil designed personages. The same is true also of those represented by the "Stony places;" they receive it joyfully and for a time rejoice in the new truth, but for lack of firmness, and knowledge to defend those truths, which they might have possessed by investigation, they are soon "offended," soon give it up.

But how about the "Seed among the thorns?" has it any representatives now? Alas! how often do we see those who profess to be believers in the "Word of the Kingdom," neglecting the assembling of themselves together. Heb. x: 25. The cares of this world and love of pleasure, keep them away from the house of worship, their minds are so engrossed with business, that they cannot find time to go to church, neither to give to religious journals the benefit of their talent, and the deceitfulness of riches so absorb the mind and bedim the holier thoughts and feelings of some that charity is forgotten and the church is neglected. For this reason the cause of Christianity wanes, and the little church must struggle on by the aid of the few faithful ones, "Poor in this worlds goods, but rich in faith."

As, Lovers of God more than lovers of pleasure, as, followers of the meek and lowly Jesus, as believers in the Kingdom of God, and the near coming of our Lord and Saviour, it behooves us to be of that class represented by the "good ground." It is well that we ask ourselves the question. Am I the wayside listener? Is my daily walk and conversation such as would be represented by the "Stony ground," or "The Thorns," or am I letting my light shine? Matt. v: 16. Am I using the world as not abusing it? Am I cultivating the good seed (so that I may come rejoicing, bringing in the sheaves. In short am I using the little talent God has given me, and the feeble financial help I can give for the furtherance of God's cause, and that which will be of far greater benefit to me in the Kingdom of God, than all the wealth and pleasures of this world or age.

E. K. Barnhill.

The Coming of Elijah.

In the last chapter of Malachi it is written, "Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the coming of the great and dreadful day of the Lord." The nation of Israel is the party to which the promise of Elijah's coming is made, they are the people to be benefited by his coming, if obedient to his voice, if not the burning day of chapter iv. 1, would burn them up and leave them neither root nor branch. In Luke i. 17, The angel said to Zacharias concerning John the Baptist. "And he shall go before him in the spirit and power of Elias, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to the wisdom of the just; to make ready a people prepared for the Lord." Evidently according to Mal. iii. 1, where it is written, "Behold, I will send my messenger, and he shall prepare the way before me." Then was the Lord to come suddenly.....the messenger of the covenant. Now after the scene on the mount of transfiguration, as they came down from the mountain, "Jesus' disciples asked him saying, Why then say the scribes that Elias must first come? And Jesus answered and said unto them, Elias truly shall first come, and restore all things. But I say unto you, that Elias is come already, and they knew him not, but have done unto him whatsoever they listed. Likewise shall also the Son of Man suffer of them. Then the disciples understood that he spake unto them of John the Baptist." Now why not accept the words of the Master as final? There is but one coming of Elias spoken of in the Scriptures; he was to come before the coming of the Messiah. The Lord having come, we have no right to expect a second coming of Elijah. The epistles of Paul, of John and the Revelation are as silent as the grave on the subject of a second or third coming of Elijah. The subject is never spoken of in any of our Lord's discourses as a sign of his second coming. Why then are men fooled by impostors claiming to be Elijah the restorer—and the first apostle of the restoration hosts?

And another, laboring to gather an Elijah class to fulfill an imaginary coming of Elijah. When the fleshly mind of man exalts itself to the position that rightfully belongs to the Word of God, error is sure to be the result. Therefore by self exaltation man imagines himself the special agent of the Deity to proclaim his truth—and to correct heresy. Thus we see the bishop, or pope of Rome, claiming to be the vicegerent of the Son of God. That the earth is his diocese, and that all men of right should be subject to him. In attempting to enforce this claim we see persecution, the dark ages, and the horrors of the crusades. We see a rival to the Papacy in the Czar of Russia, the head of the Greek church. According to Greek tradition they are to rule the world from Jerusalem as the agent of the Deity, the Czar will speak peace to the nations. "And they shall learn war no more." We do not wonder that such ideas as the foregoing occupy the minds of people who are sunk in darkness and superstition, as is the case with the ecclesiastical institutions of Rome and St. Petersburg. People generally think that they themselves are right, and that God is on the side of right. Therefore they must be the favorites of heaven, to enlighten the rest of mankind. Americans look with pity, and contempt upon the superstition of the darker countries of Europe, but are we as a nation free from ideas that are of near kinship to those of Europe. Let us just look a little at the ideas advanced by our statesmen. Senator Doolittle of Wisconsin in a public speech some 40 years ago advanced the idea that the United States of America is the "little stone cut out of the mountain without hands," and that will grind the nations of Europe to powder and fill the earth with our form of government. I will close with a few quotations from a speech by—T. T. Sweeney president of the American Christian Missionary Society, delivered at the St. Louis Convention.
